1989

Interpersonal Skills and Health Professional Issues

Judy Carol Southern M.A.Ed.

Auburn University

Find similar works at: http://stars.library.ucf.edu/jhoe

University of Central Florida Libraries http://library.ucf.edu

Recommended Citation

Available at: http://stars.library.ucf.edu/jhoe/vol4/iss2/10

This Book Review is brought to you for free and open access by STARS. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Health Occupations Education by an authorized administrator of STARS. For more information, please contact lee.dotson@ucf.edu.

Interpersonal Skills and Health Professional Issues deals with the necessity for health care providers to develop effective communication with patients. The text introduces fundamental communication skills to develop better interpersonal techniques and to improve the helping process by recruiting patients to become participants in their own health care. Section I, consisting of nine chapters, contains topics relative to communication skills, such as observing, listening, relating to, and motivating the patient/client, as well as, relating to other members of the health care team. Section II, consisting of four chapters, explores the health professional’s moral, ethical, and legal responsibilities to ensure public safety.

Strengths of the book include behavioral objectives at the beginning of each chapter. Many drawings, highlighted sections, and figures enhance comprehension for the learner. A chapter summary, a glossary, review questions, and a list of references for additional reading are found at the end of each chapter. A teacher’s guide is also available.

Judy Carol Southern, R.T., M.A.Ed., and Doctoral Candidate, Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama.