Express Bus Usage Low

An express bus route to FTU inaugurated Monday by the Orange-Seminole-Osceola Transportation Authority (OSOTA), is designed to serve FTU students, faculty and staff.

Unless student, staff, and faculty support improves, this service won't be available "for very long," Coordinator of Energy Conservation James Eller commented recently.

So far most of the seats on the 43-passenger buses have been empty. Monday, the first day of the run, only nine persons rode on the first trip, and five or six rode the second day. Passengers on the return trips were also sparse in number.

Poor support of the bus system may be due to an error in the routing, Eller said. An alternate run he proposes would still originate in the same place, but travel north up Route 17-92 instead of Edgewater and Forest City Road, as it is now. Eller said he is open to any suggestions on alternate routes that would be conducive to people wishing to ride the bus.

The current route was based on the results of a survey taken by Dr. George Schrader, chairman of the Mass Transit Subcommittee of the university's task force on energy conservation. Of approximately 1600 students and faculty members polled, roughly 22 per cent, or about 300, said they would ride a bus if it was available.

The northerly route was selected because of the heavy concentration of students living in this area that responded favorably to the survey.

Before a possible new route for the bus can be determined, the OSOTA said, another survey may be necessary in order to find out the number of people lost, and the number gained by changing the route.

Eller stressed also the tremendous amount of time and energy expended for the acquisition of the bus system. It is presently operating on subsidies provided by Orange and Seminole Counties, and the Florida Department of Transportation, with no cost to the university, Eller said.

Two trips, the first originating in the Downtown Orlando terminal on Pine Street, and the second originating at Seminole Plaza, arrive at FTU in the morning, and two trips leave FTU in the afternoon, Monday through Friday. The fare is 50 cents one way, and exact change is required.

The first bus will leave the Downtown Orlando terminal on Pine Street at 6:40 a.m., arriving at FTU at 7:50 a.m. It will return to Downtown by 6:35 p.m., leaving FTU at 5:10 p.m.

There will be stops at Northgate Shopping Center, Lake Street, Brantley Center Altamonte Mall, S. Seminole Plaza, Butler Plaza, and Semoran Shopping Plaza.

A second bus will begin at Seminole Plaza at 8:25 a.m., arriving at FTU at 8:50 a.m. In the afternoon, it will leave FTU at 4:10 p.m. and arrive at Seminole Plaza at 4:40 p.m.

For exact bus stop locations and times, call the OSOTA at 841-8240.

According to Eller there is plenty of parking space available at each bus stop location for students wishing to take advantage of the express bus.

to an error in routing, endangers the future of the busline. (Photo by Alan Geeslin)

Curriculum, Grievance Guidelines Recommended By Faculty Senate

By Marvin Clegg

With barely enough senators present to constitute a quorum, the Faculty Senate on March 14 passed one resolution to bring about more uniform tenure and grievance procedures for state universities and recommended "depoliticizing" the undergraduate curriculum programs.

After voting 14-9 to refuse FuTure reporters permission to tape record the meeting, the group heard Senators David Kuhn and Mark Stern report that there is movement by the Board of Regents' "Blue Ribbon Committee on Faculty Hearings" to establish uniform grievance procedures at the state level, or to recommend that grievance procedures be handled by the university president.

A memo from Vice President for Academic Affairs C.B. Gambrell was read to the senate, in which it was recommended that FTU not establish grievance procedures before receiving the "Blue Ribbon Committee" report.

Stern said the BOR committee is looking for guidance and made a motion to send copies of FTU's recently proposed faculty grievance procedure to members of the "Blue Ribbon Committee."

Kuhn pointed out "it is very apparent FTU may be 20, 30 or 50 years behind in this."

"If we're only 30 years behind, maybe we're doing pretty well," said Chairman K. Phillip Taylor.

The motion passed unanimously.

Amending a resolution by the Faculty Senate Admissions and Standards Committee, Stern proposed that "FTU establish a University Undergraduate

Majors Return To Diplomas

Individual majors will be reinstated on diplomas for June graduates, according to Sam W. Boone, admissions officer for the Registrar's Office.

"Based on available information, this is unique in the State University System as the other universities show the degree only," a letter sent from University Registrar William Chapman to Student Government President Lee Constantine said.

"It also appears to be unique among Florida private colleges," the letter continues, "as the only institution of which we are aware that shows majors on the diploma is Bethune-Cookman College. Although there are probably other institutions which show the majors, we are aware of the diploma format of most of the prestigious universities and know of none who do."

The policy which changed the diplomas to reflect only the college and not the degree was enacted in the fall quarter and brought to the attention of the FuTure by student Tom Heckel. Following his letter, Heckel initiated a survey of student opinion with approximately 1500 respondents, according to Student Government President Lee Constantine.

After the survey was formally submitted to Student Government, President Lee Constantine said he took the survey to Dr. C. B. Gambrell, Jr., Vice President for Academic Affairs and began negotiating necessary action to have degrees listed on diplomas.

Boone said the Registrar's Office was ordered during the middle of last quarter to list degrees on diplomas, but the order was not in time to affect March graduates.

According to Constantine, he was told by Gambrell that applications for graduation this quarter will have a block to be checked, to indicate if the student wishes only his or her college listed. If left unchecked, the student's degree will automatically be printed on the diploma.

As policy stands, students obtaining double majors will have to choose which degree they wish printed on their diplomas. However, Constantine said negotiations are continuing for a revised policy that would better satisfy these students.

Christian Appoints Bi-Racial Committee

"Florida can be one of the first states in the South to eliminate the last vestiges of segregation in its university system," Commissioner of Education Floyd T. Christian told a bi-racial committee recently.

totaling 1,387 pages, was submitted to the Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) in compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

that the reporting system for monitoring the system is made operational.

Members of the bi-racial committee are Mary Singleton, state representative, Jacksonville; Alcee Hastings, attorney, Fort Lauderdale; Sam Taylor, assistant to the school superintendent, Gainesville; Jack D. Gordon, state senator, Miami Beach; Fred Hartnett, trustee, Miami-Dade Community College; and George Edgcomb, Hillsborough County judge.

Changes Planned For ADM Layout

The major renovations scheduled for a portion of the Administration Building's first floor should provide a permanent home for the admission's, registrar's and cashier's departments, according to Fred E. Clayton, director of Physical Plant.

Clayton expects the remodeling to be completed by fall quarter. The renovation, according to Clayton, will accommodate these areas for with ample space for "a long time to come."

Construction is underway on the new cashier's location in a larger area across the foyer from the Admissions counter. Clayton said this area will include the office previously occupied by the Energy Conservation Program and the adjoining classroom.

The Conservation Program office is temporarily located on the third floor of the Administration Building in a part of the Purchasing Department.

"This will give the Cashier's office much more room," Clayton said, adding that the new plans call for a masonry vault and a night deposit box outside the building.

Work on registrars and admissions remodeling will not begin until construction on the cashier's office is completed, which Clayton expects by July.

"We're (physical plant) working as fast as we can, Clayton said. "But we have to work around students and avoid disrupting classes."

Sliding glass doors will enclose the lobby now between the Cashier and Records counter, and Director of Records Ed Knight said individual booths will be set up in the area to enable private counselling for students.

"We will be putting this building to the use it was intended for--an Administration Building," Clayton said. Clayton also explained the building was originally designed for this type of renovation.

"We are beginning to get permanent homes for offices in the building," Clayton said.

Approximately $45,000 was approved by the state legislature last year for the jobs, with the funds coming from the Capital Outlay Improvement Program.

"We began work on the two jobs as soon as we could get to them," Clayton said, "but it's a slow process and we're working gradually."

HEW has until April 9 to determine whether, on the basis of the document, Florida is in compliance with Title VI.

The basic differences in the revised plan and the plan submitted in June 1973 are that the revision includes plans for the

Speakers Stolen

University police have been called in to investigate the theft of two Village Center (VC) public address speakers believed to have been stolen the evening of March 4.

The speakers were attached to the brick wall of the cafeteria and served the VC patio area. Wires, connecting the loudspeakers to the Village Center sound system, were cut.

Anyone having information concerning the whereabouts of the speakers is asked to contact the university police department, 275-2421, or VC Director Ken Lawson, 275-2117.

Connection Fails For WATS Line

By Heather Henry

Permission was not granted by the state for the installation of a WATS line for general FTU student usage, according to SG President Lee Constantine.

"I am still working on it, and it's still possible to get it," said Constantine. However, he said chances for getting the line are "about three per cent."

Constantine said Jim Martin, a communications engineer for the Florida State General Services Commission, (which made the decision) informed him that the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) prohibits WATS lines from being installed for general public use. The proposed SG-sponsored WATS line was to have been available to all students in March and therefore would have been in violation of the regulation.

Constantine explained that when SG first approached Southern Bell with an installation request, "we thought that we could work it out, because if Southern Bell was going along with us, then we wouldn't have to worry about the FCC regulation."

"One alternative is to request the WATS line for SG specially and then allow students to use it," he stated.

Another obstacle to installation was a state regulation prohibiting expenditure of more than $100 in state funds for a phone unless it is approved by the commission. In order to get the $710 per month line through commission approval, SG would have to verify that the project would save money.

"If we said it was just for the offices, we have to legitimately justify the validation, which means we have to prove that we spend more than $710 a month on phone calls, which we don't," said Constantine. "If we weren't on the WATS line, (the present one) we still wouldn't, but if we added general student use we would."

However Constantine said that figures of proposed student use could not be added.

According to Constantine, activity and service fees monies, part of which would have been spent by SG for the WATS line, are under state control because they are deposited by FTU in the state treasury.

"The state cannot pay for a WATS line for general student use," Constantine said.

Constantine said State Attorney General Robert Shevin told him that the activity and service fees are not necessarily state funds, and do not have to fall under state regulations for expenditure.

"If we can get this university to adhere to Shevin's interpretation, we can bypass the state authorities and spend the money on the WATS line," said Constantine. "Both the university administration and the Tallahassee office think the project is a good idea, it's just a matter of technicalities and red tape."

Constantine said he has conferred with Comptroller Joseph Gomez and Assistant Vice President for Student Affairs C. W. Brown on the matter.

Holiday Changed

The only holiday that FTU students will receive for the spring vacation is Good Friday. Classes will resume on Monday, April 15th instead of Monday, April 22nd as shown in the Bulletin.

According to University Registrar Dan Chapman, the change is not really a change. The schedule listed in the Bulletin was an error and the master school schedule calls only for the one day holiday.

According to Chapman, FTU nor any other member of the state university system is able to give a whole week break during the spring quarter. Chapman explained that the only reason many northern schools were able to give their students the one week break was because many of them are on the semester system which allowed them to give their break between quarters at this time.

Music Department Calls Wolf

Dr. Gary Wolf was chosen from about 40 applicants to succeed the late Dr. Gale Sperry as the music department chairman.

After serving four months as acting chairman, Wolf said he believes the position is one of great responsibility, because of the diversity of the music department.

"I realize the sense of responsibility," said Dr. Wolf, "but I see also the sense of challenge--which I welcome."

Wolf foresees no major changes for the music department presently. He believes that the foundations of the curriculum are well established and he anticipates following a similar pattern for the near future.

He is enthusiastic about moving into the new Humanities and Fine Arts building. Wolf believes that the new building will allow for a tremendous growth.

"This year we've had the largest enrollment in the music department. This is a healthy sign of our well being," said Wolf. "We're in a good part of Florida, there's a lot of talent in this area."

Wolf's major responsibilities are those of coordinating course work and overseeing the well being of the department. He also teaches private piano and repertory classes. Many of his students are currently involved in "direct experience" projects which are similar to independent study.

Wolf's new appointment is the latest addition to his list of credits. After graduating from Wichita State University in Kansas, he served in the United States Military Academy Band at West Point.

He continued his education and received his Master of Music and Doctor of Musical Arts Degree from the Eastman School of Music in Rochester. One of his many honors include the receipt of a Fullbright Scholarship to study at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria.

SG Candidacies Now Open

Students wishing to declare candidacy for Student Government (SG) presidential or vice presidential posts may do so in the Senate secretary's office in the Village Center until April 8.

According to SG elections Commissioner Gabriel Yanni, the candidate must be a full-time student enrolled for nine hours or more, must have been enrolled at FTU for the entire school year, and must not be on academic probation or warning.

Campaigning begins April 9, and continues through the elections April 17, 18 and 19.

Medical Review Booklets Available

Review booklets for the MCAT-DAT question and answer sessions are available in ADM 210 or VC 208.

The second session in organic chemistry will be conducted by Dr. Thomas Wheeler, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in EN 336.

Participants should be prepared with questions since no lecture will be given.

Times and locations for further sessions will be posted as well as listed in the FuTUre.

For further information contact Lou Turecky at 275-8424.

Vocational Teachers Plan Meeting

Vocational teachers from ten Central Florida counties will meet at FTU April 6 for a "drive-in" conference keynoted by a national outlook for vocational education by U.S. Rep. Lou Frey.

The one-day meeting, co-sponsored by FTU and the Florida Vocational Association, also will feature Fred Hagan, member of the Florida House, speaking on "The Legislative Intent of the New Florida School Funding Program."

More than 200 teachers are expected to attend from schools in an area that covers Brevard, Citrus, Flagler, Hernando, Lake, Orange, Osceola, Seminole, Sumter and Volusia counties.

Others scheduled to speak at the annual conference are Dr. Harry Hall, chairman of the secondary education department, Thurman Bailey, department of education, and Walter Bray, chief of Florida's Vocational Program Services.

Arnold Wolfong, of the Lake County Voc-Tech Center, will wind up the conference by presenting awards to teachers recognized for their achievements during the past year.

Further information on the meeting may be obtained by contacting Dr. Earl C. Fowler, College of Education, phone 275-2146.

Self Defense Pamphlet Distributed By Housing

The FTU Police Department has provided the Housing Department with self-defense pamphlets, entitled "What Every Woman Should Know About Self Protection", to be distributed to women residents. The pamphlet includes tips on home safety, how to behave when being followed, how to keep from advertising that you are alone, and basic self-defense techniques.

The idea for the pamphlet came about as a result of the assault on a coed during early January. According to Pam Browning, assistant for student development, the pamphlet was a gesture on the part of the campus police department to show that they are concerned.

Because of the cost of putting out the pamphlet only those coeds residing on campus were provided with pamphlets Browning stated. This is where the immediate concern of the force is, she said.

Copies of the pamphlet are available to interested students in Browning's office in the Student Affairs suite, AD 268.

EDITORIAL

FACULTY SENATE NEEDS WATERGATE

Feb. 21: FTU Faculty Senate votes 12 - 7 to bar a FuTure reporter from tape recording their meeting for note-taking purposes.

Senate's Reason: Prior Senate approval was not requested by the FuTure reporter.

March 14: The Faculty Senate, with no discussion, votes 14 - 9 not to approve two advance FuTure requests for the right to record the March 14 meeting.

Senate's Reason: Not Stated

If this seems inconsistent to our readers, welcome to the club. Although the FuTure tried to secure a fast note-taker for the exam week meeting to avoid the presence of a recorder, no one was available and therefore we submitted the request to record to Senate Chairman K. Phillip Taylor and subsequently, the Senate. This, we thought, would please them.

As we stated in an earlier editorial, our only 'ulterior motive' for taping is to report more accurately and completely—not to catch every senator's remark to his neighbor.

We fail to see what possible fault the Senate could find in this motive, although we heard at the time some faint mutterings about Watergate—we can't see how Watergate could be a force behind their recording ban.

Americans are not objecting to the Watergate tapes; they're objecting to the illegal activities these tapes might have recorded.

It is obvious the Faculty Senate is not proud of its ban—the official minutes of the Feb. 21 meeting left out any mention of the formal motion to ban the recorder. When we asked the Senate's secretary about this we were told "several senators thought it would be better to not mention the motion."

Think about this, senators: Watergate will have been exposed in vain if an increased accountability to the public on the part of elected officials does not result.

HALLWAYS

By Mike Hall

An aisle of opinion based on selectively perceived information presented in a manner designed to persuade you to think like I do.

Well, I trust everyone had an enjoyable spring break. What I mean is I hope you got away from Dizlando for a while. After all, Lake Eola has just so many ducks to count. Incidentally, if you happen to be one of those people who just hung around the house for the entire break you can stop reading right now. I'm trying to develop an enlightened and cosmopolitan readership and my unique style of subtle unpretentious commentary would probably just leave you cold. Anyway, back to the point at hand, which is getting away.

After my last exam I loaded the Ford with luggage, food, beer and girlfriend and took off for Annandale, Va. (Which, for those of you who aren't familiar with the area, is the same thing as Washington, D.C.) The journey up and back (which I think I'll call "Travels with Laurie") was a very enlightening and cosmopolitan experience and, out of sheer self-indulgence, I thought I'd relate some of my observations to you.

Gas, my primary concern upon starting out, turned out to be the least of my worries. Every time I stopped I was able to get a full tank. And one place in South Carolina was actually selling regular for 47 cents a gallon. Just as a precaution, however, I kept a spare can of gas in the trunk with the luggage. Now I must ask all of my friends not to smoke around me. But the only time I really had to use the spare gas was back in Florida. The situation seems to be a little worse down here than in most of the other Southern states with the possible exception of Virginia. Even D. C. and the surrounding area wasn't too bad although they were using the odd and even day rationing system.

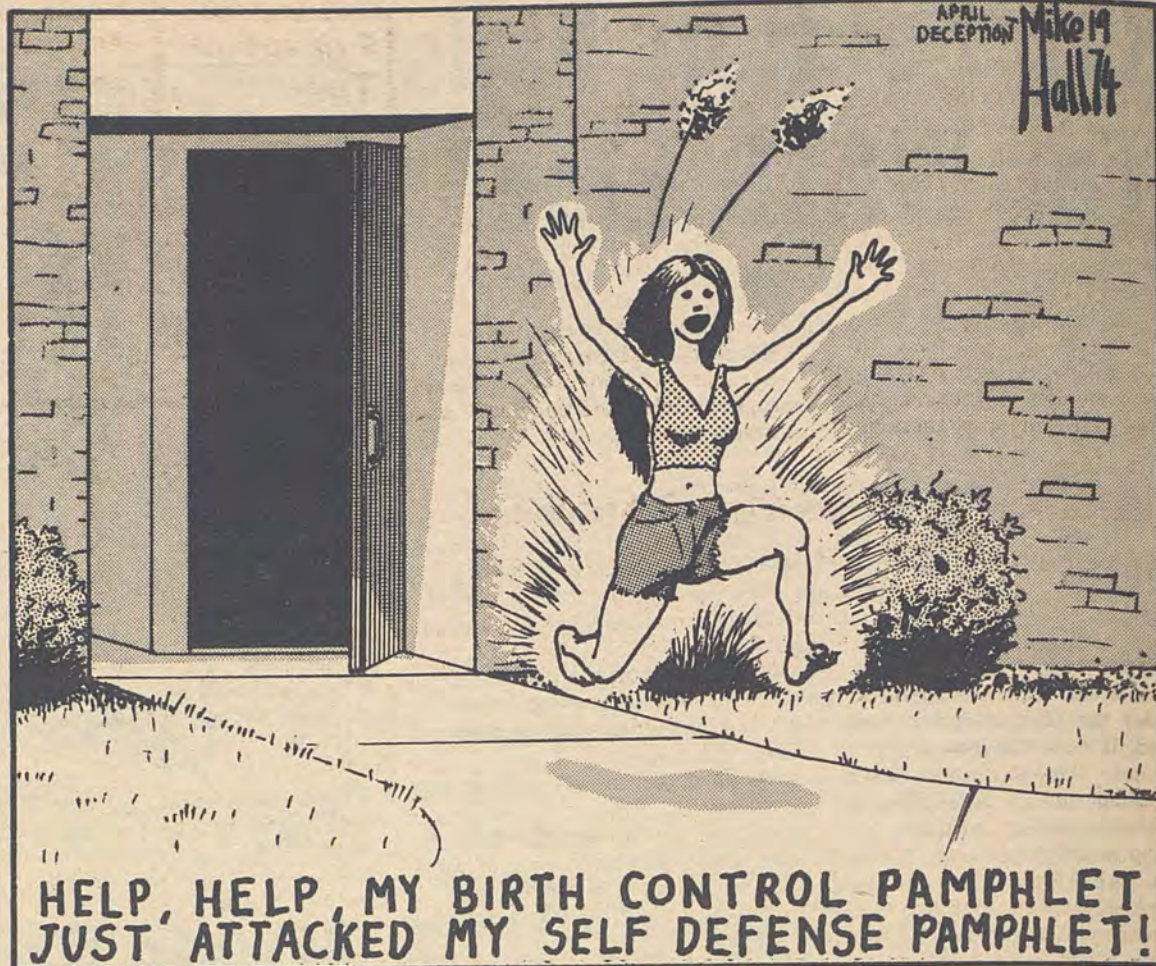

Driving into Washington you would never know there was a gas shortage. Even though the speed limit on the interstate was posted as 55 the average speed was about 60. And the long black cadillacs were passing everyone (maybe they know something we don't).

Washington D.C. is an interesting place to visit, but it's a hell of a place to drive a car. I was glad to get back to the hole in the woods.

Standing in line in the cafeteria the first day of classes, I overheard the main course lady chastising the bread boy for throwing away some rolls. "But they were stale," he protested.

"I don't care," she replied, "you're supposed to send them back to the kitchen, you never throw anything away."

Welcome home!

Smokers Inside Theater During Performances Bothers Viewer

Editor:

While I enjoyed the FTU theater department's production of "The Beaux Strategem," I must register a complaint about the number of persons who were smoking in the auditorium during the March 22 performance.

Not only was it bothersome to have to smell the cigarette -- and pipe-smoke, but it also was somewhat of a distraction to watch the play through a blue haze. And unless rules have changed since I graduated last June, it is against fire regulations and university policy to allow smoking inside the auditorium, although it is permitted in the lobby.

Again, my compliments to those who worked hard to give a fine performance; I'm just sorry I wasn't more able to enjoy the atmosphere in the theater.

Student Wants Clean-up Effort For Polluted Alligator Habitat

Editor:

Looking at FTU one would think it was beautifully designed and the grounds well kept. This was also my first impression. Did you ever look underneath the carpet and look through some of the builder's mistakes? I have, not on purpose but just by consequence. I found something interesting and would like other people to become aware about it also. It concerns a pond and an alligator named "AL."

Some people have asked me why I care about Al the alligator.

My answer is simple, I don't. I only sympathize with him. Al lives in a badly polluted pond located at the end of the path that runs behind the ROTC recreation building. Sometimes, if you are lucky, you can catch him swimming around on a sunny day. Al's habitat has been destroyed by us, not each one of us, but man in general as a whole.

Al's home has been polluted for about three years with the building materials from the school. Since this dumping has stopped, no effort has been made to restore the pond. I plead for Al.

I ask that a no dumping sign be posted and some organized effort be made to clean up the waste materials. This can be done with little effort on FTU's part. They already have the facilities and the labor would require few. With a joined force the problem could be extinguished and it's original beauty restored. I hope something can be done in the near future.

Thank you.

IFC President Attacks 'Distortions' In Greek Housing Editorial

Editor:

This letter is written in response to the editorial that appeared in the March 8 Future, which dealt with on campus Greek housing.

The FuTure is a public document for the purpose of informing the members of the university community of related news, announcements and activities. Grossing approximately $9,065 from advertising annually, the FuTure is circulated for an annual net cost to the state of approximately $17,660 or 8.5 cents per copy. Total annual gross cost of publication is approximately $26,726.

The editorial was well written, and probably well intended, but due to certain factual distortions and misinterpretations by the author, it was not entirely true.

We are not raising money for a housing project which we know almost nothing about:

1. Concerning the property leases. This is to be one of the things that the information from the land survey will determine.

2. Concerning social restrictions. We have been told by an administrator that such problems will be taken care of by the time that housing is established.

3. Concerning buildings allowed. We have also been told that we would be free to design and build any type of house or lodge that we wish, so long as it is approved by the school - which eliminate gaudy or impractical houses.

Lastly, even if all the things in the Editorial were true, it is a problem of FTU Greeks and for FTU Greeks, and an Editorial such as that could do nothing but slow down progress by creating friction with the administration.

Club Officer Questions Class Scheduling, Wants Written 'Free Hour' University Policy

Editor:

Anyone reading the class schedule for the Spring quarter (or for the Winter quarter just ended, if you still have a copy) will note that there are classes scheduled at 11:00-11:50 on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"So what?" you say. All of you active in student organizations should realize that these are your two so-called free hours each week in which meetings can be scheduled without requiring anyone to cut classes to attend. Sure.

Here are some examples taken from the Winter and Spring schedules. It was not necessary to go beyond the second page of either schedule to find them.

Like many others, I assumed that these two hours were set aside as a matter of policy. If it is not university policy, then a lot of people have been misled. This includes Mr. Jim Ferrell, Coordinator of Student Organizations. Early in the fall, I asked him if there were supposed to be two weekly free hours at these times and days and he told me that as far as he knew there were.

However, since I cannot find this policy in writing anywhere, I suppose whoever is in charge of scheduling class meeting times can always say "Prove it, buddy, Ha Ha!"

As a club officer, I am Fed Up (Name Withheld)

Ed. note: During Winter Quarter we were surprised to find the usual "free hours" not so free. However, we checked with administrators and found it had been changed to 4 p.m. on Tuesday and noon on Thursday.

After receiving your letter regarding this quarter we checked with the Registrar's Office and were told to go to Records. At the Records Office we were told to go to Academic Affairs "because they handle everything up there."

We called Vice President for Academic Affairs C. B. Gambrell's office Wednesday for the information and had not received his call back at press time.

We'll keep trying--perhaps Student Government could work on getting some useful "free hours" set aside.

Noted weekly guest speakers will discuss and debate topics of current interest in a new series entitled "Thought in Action."

"Democracy vs. Dictatorship" will be examined tomorrow and Wednesday from 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. on the Village Center (VC) green.

Future topics include "Energy Crunch: Crisis of Rip Off," and "Future Shock." Tentative topics for the last two weeks of the series are "Women's Rights" and the "Middle East."

Tentative speakers include Secretary of State Richard Stone, Public Service Commissioner Paula Hawkins, and State Energy Officer Homer Hutchinson.

Other tentative speakers include WKIS commentator Gene Burns, WDBO "Night Line" host Mike Miller and attorneys Terrell Griffin and Patsy Fawsett. U.S. Senate candidate Neal Justin and a candidate for the 1972 state legislature, Dick Bachelor, are also tentatively planned as speakers, along with FTU Sociology Department Chairman Charles Unkovic.

The informal discussions, which will be held Tuesdays and Wednesdays on the VC green, were designed to allow audience participation.

VC Assistant Program Director Kathy Cavanna states the purpose of the series, "we're trying to say, 'Hey, this is one of our basic rights, the right to meet and freely discuss.'"

Florida House candidate George Dimitriyadis, who is an FTU student, will serve as host for the series.

Professors are invited to bring classes, according to Cavanna. She said she hopes that students will bring their lunches to the informal discussions.

FTU Freshmen Survey Corresponds With Nat'l.

By Greg Like

This year's college freshmen advocate greater freedom and independence, are more religious and more "middle of the road" politically, according to the American Council on Education's eighth annual survey of new freshmen.

The survey, directed by professor Alexander W. Astin of the University of California at Los Angeles, is part of a large scale program of research on how students are affected by their college experiences.

According to the survey, 34.8 per cent of entering freshmen thought grades should be abolished, compared with 42.6 per cent in 1972. Of 821 freshmen entering FTU last winter quarter, 582 responded to a question concerning abolishing grades. About 30 per cent of the entering freshmen advocated abolishing grades.

FTU's winter quarter freshmen agreed closely with the national norm on at least one aspect of religious preference. The percentage selecting "none" as their religious preference on the national survey was 10.1 per cent. At FTU 10.2 selected "none" as their religious preference.

The national survey showed 56.9 per cent of entering freshmen were planning to obtain a graduate degree, up from 42.3 per cent in 1971. Of the total number of freshmen entering FTU last winter quarter, 467 responded to a question concerning graduate school. Thirty-six per cent indicated they would eventually seek a master's degree; 13.7 indicated they hoped to obtain a Ph.D.

For the first time in the history of the national survey, freshmen preferring a "middle of the road" political position accounted for over half of the total. Of FTU's winter quarter freshmen, 576 responded to a question concerning political orientation. Again FTU closely resembled the national survey, with 49.7 per cent indicating a "middle of the road" political preference; 26.4 per cent of the FTU freshmen described themselves as liberal 23.1 per cent as conservative, and .9 per cent as far left.

Cash For Tuition Found On Lawn

When Bob Brayton left home on the day of pre-registration he had no worries about losing the $174 in cash for spring quarter tuition he carried in his wallet.

Not having a checking account, he said he has always brought his tuition payment in cash without a worry of misplacing it.

Guy Raymond and Billy "Chip" Naramore found the stuffed black leather wallet on the Engineering Building lawn where it had slipped out of Brayton's pocket. Raymond admitted they "thought hard about keeping it" before turning it and the $174 in to the Campus Police.

Brayton was depending on the money for paying his tuition because he was having trouble getting his veteran's loan.

"If it hadn't been for someone being so honest I would not be able to be in school this quarter," Brayton said.

Brayton had been sitting under the trees making out his schedule just before his registration time.

"Man, did I ever run back to the spot where I was sitting," Brayton recalled, after realizing the wallet was gone on his way to registration.

Brayton combed the entire front lawn searching for his wallet and then ran over to the Administration Building, where he had been earlier, thinking he might have left it there.

Meanwhile, Raymond and Naramore were walking across the lawn where Brayton had been sitting, and spotted the wallet under a tree. Raymond said the wallet looked four inches thick with money. When they opened it he said "we thought the guy who lost this was crazy. We counted the money a couple of times before deciding to turn it over to the Campus Police."

Not finding his wallet Brayton then dashed over to the police station hoping someone had turned it in.

He just missed bumping into Raymond at the station as Raymond had only turned the wallet in five minutes earlier.

"I figured somebody had picked it up," Brayton said, relieved that someone honest had found it.

Raymond had lost his wallet only two weeks before and knew how the owner of the wallet felt. Raymond's wallet, though, was never returned. Although his wallet contained only a few dollars, he lost his driver's license and identification, which he is still replacing.

Now enrolled and his tuition paid, Brayton decided it would be to his advantage to open a checking account, saying he had "learned a lesson the hard way."

Allman: 'Superstar'

By Ike Harrison

"I write a lot of songs and had quite a few that weren't exactly in the Allman Brothers Band mold. Of course, the group will always be the most important thing, but there's just no use letting my non-Brothers' tunes just sit there," said Gregg Allman.

And he didn't. Saturday night, March 23, Allman brought the capacity crowd at the Orlando Seminole Jai-Alai Fronton to their knees. Never before had I seen a more electrified audience, but neither had I ever seen a more professional musical production.

Presented by L & S Productions, The Gregg Allman Tour included a twenty-four piece orchestra and special guest stars Tommy Talton and Scott Boyer of "Cowboy." Talton and Boyer are native Orlandoans and formerly played with a local group called "We The People."

The concert opened with Gregg on organ, Talton lead guitar, Boyer rhythm guitar, Chuck Leavell of the Allman Brothers on piano and the entire orchestra.

With the aid of the orchestra, Gregg presented a very mellow overtone as he played most of his solo debut album, "Laid Back."

"Don't Mess up a Good Thing" and "Midnight Rider" were his only boogie numbers, both bringing the audience to their feet.

Other songs included "Will The Circle Be Unbroken," "All My Friends," and "These Days."

During their set, Talton occasionally switched off to play his mandolin and Boyer alternated between electric, acoustic, and pedal steel guitars. "Cowboy" showed tremendous musical ability as they played a set by themselves. In fact, many people commented that they were the best part of the entire concert.

A tremendous job of stage props which included a combination of large painted plexiglass squares outlining the stage, and great lighting, further accented the quality of the performance.

Everything combined to yield a very professional production. One could easily detect that many hours of planning and rehearsal were expanded to produce a very precise show.

Gregg Allman certainly showed his Orlando audience that he has genuinely earned his title as a "Superstar."

Knights Prepare For Crucial In-State Games

FTU's baseball team, 5-2 over the past two weeks and an imposing 16-0 overall, battled tough Glassboro (N.J.) State Friday and Saturday just before heading into the make-or-break portion of the schedule.

"I tried to set up the schedule this way," explained Coach Doug Holmquist. "We started out with the weaker teams--Embry-Riddle, Florida Bible and the like. We encounters with all of those in addition to two games each with Jacksonville and Embry-Riddle. Obviously these are the pivotal match-ups and an effective showing in the final dozen games will determine if FTU is invited to a post-season regional Division II tourney.

Results of the past two weeks action establish sophomore Steve Hargest and freshman Stan Edge as the two solid starting pitchers while Joe Mikler and Calvin

String Eyes Realistic Coaching Career

By Larry McCorkle

Dave String has always been a realistic athlete.

Ever since beginning organized baseball over 15 years ago he has been accorded such honors as being named to little league all-star squads, all-state squads (in junior college) as well as being named captain of FTU's varsity baseball team. String always been an outstanding hitter and a solid fielder, but the senior physical education major has never once thought of playing pro baseball. On a more realistic level, String has strong aspirations of becoming a college baseball coach.

String, 21, has been married

almost two years. After playing two years at Brevard CC, String transferred to FTU last season where he batted .304 and led the team in rbi's with 24. At the halfway point of this season, String has already drove in 18 runs while batting .327. Last year he played mainly third base, but this year he has already driven in 18 runs while batting .327. Last year he played mainly third base, but this year he has played rightfield, leftfield, first base and third base as well as designated hitter. Early in the season there was even talk he might play some catcher.

There is no doubt that String has been invaluable to the team as a fielder and hitter, but assuredly his greatest asset to the team is his role as captain. As captain his roles vary, but primarily he assists head baseball coach Doug Holmquist any way possible.

String hopes to become an assistant to Holmquist next year. His desire is to gain as much experience as is necessary in the next five or six years to enable him to gain a head coaching job at another junior college or university.

String has a great deal of admiration for Holmquist. "I think he's super," said String.

"He's a very aggressive coach, offense-minded. He also has great rapport with the players," added String. "I like the way he sticks up for us."

String brought up several cases when his coach got into some exciting rhubarbs with the umpires, but like String said, "You gotta know how far you can go."

The String-Holmquist relationship is not one-sided--Holmquist has the utmost respect for his protege's knowledge of the game. He's also very thankful that String is around.

"I don't have time to recruit during the day (Holmquist teaches at Lawton Elementary)," said Holmquist. "However, when I want to leave practice to scout a game, I simply let Dave run the practice--never any problem."

"He's very mature," said Holmquist. There's no doubt that he's the best captain I ever had. I hope he'll be able to be my assistant next year."

String is delighted to see that the school administration has begun to do much more for FTU's baseball program. String acknowledged FTU athletic director Dr. John Powell for turning around the program. "Dr. Powell is more sports oriented than members of past FTU administration," said String.

"Baseball has come a long way," but, countered String, "we have a long way to go still."

According to String, FTU is in desperate need of a home baseball field. "FTU is thinking of having a baseball week similar to Rollins," said String, "but we have to have a home field."

Surprisingly the problem that's really holding back the baseball program, at least in String's judgment is that there is no full-time on-campus coach. There are no present openings for physical education instructors at FTU so now Holmquist is teaching 40 hours a week instead of a possible 15-hour teaching load in college. This obviously cuts down on his free time for recruiting during the day.

String is also amazed at the lack of support for athletics at FTU--not just baseball. "When Miami played FSU in baseball, 3,200 people showed up, while we're lucky to get 50," said String. "Of course, the problem is no home facility."

The 6-1, 190 lb. String thinks that FTU has the best hitting team in the state and added that he thinks they will get a NCAA Division II tournament bid if "they play .600 ball the last month of the season."

Although Dave String never thought about playing in the major leagues, it's a sure bet that he has big league ideas. Don't be surprised if one day this FTU baseball captain does make it into the majors--as a coach.

Escobar Leaves FTU Squad, Cites Personal Reasons

By Fred Cay

Luis Escobar, the brilliant second-baseman who drew early-season raves from opponents and professional scouts and was well on the way to earning national recognition, has left FTU because of personal problems.

Reportedly his concern centered around his family and he considered the problems serious enough to quit school and devote full-time to resolving them.

The adverse impact on FTU's baseball team is most graphically pointed out when you look at Escobar's performance for the Knights' first 15 games.

In 52 times at bat he stroked 27 hits for an out-of-sight .519 average, scored 15 runs and knocked in 18 from his cleanup spot in the batting order, stole five bases and amazingly did not strike out a single time. He also hit safely in every game--a 15-game hitting streak that apparently will never be snapped. Defensively, he was the strongest link in a sound infield and together with shortstop Jim Horvath formed probably one of the top double-play combos in the Southeast.

Coach Doug Holmquist, while naturally disappointed about the Colombian native's departure, maintains that he is "honored to have him for the 15 games he played."

"He's the best player I've ever coached and the school should consider it an honor that a player of that calibre would compete for us."

"I can't blame him for leaving," Holmquist continued. "He felt he had to straighten out some things and baseball certainly couldn't stand in his way. He's a man--28 years old--and very capable of making his own decisions."

His statistical contribution was obvious but his quiet leadership by example was then progressed to the visiting Northern teams, most of them good but just starting their seasons and not really ready."

"Now comes the tough part," Holmquist continued. "We have to face the Florida College Division schools, the teams we'll be battling with for a tournament berth."

Those teams, of course, are Rollins, Florida Southern, Eckerd and South Florida and the Knights have home-and-away something that only his teammates and observers of the Knights' practice sessions really knew about.

Whenever a foul pop would disappear into the woods behind the batting cage during practice, the first player to give chase would invariably be Escobar. And he was, according to Holmquist, along with outfielder Jon Teator the "most hustling player" on the team.

LUIS ESCOBAR

"It will be a struggle without him," Holmquist conceded. "We still have a good lineup but without Escobar we just don't have that one big guy in the middle of the order."

At Escobar's age he couldn't have been considered a hot prospect and of more interest to him was obtaining a degree in biology. He also didn't receive any scholarship money and was quite literally a "walk-on" as the story attests of his journey by foot to FTU from downtown Orlando.

"I just love the game of baseball," Escobar reportedly told Holmquist last summer. "I want very much to play for the team if I can make it."

Such a statement would sound like false humility coming from the mouths of most top-notch athletes, but those who know Luis Escobar realize that he meant it sincerely.

Lingelbach have moved into the lineup and done surprisingly well, according to Holmquist.

Mikler, one-for-nine at one point in the season, was inserted in the batting order (after regular right-fielder Jon Teator pulled a leg muscle) and has gone on a 13-for-24 spree since, lifting his average to .424. Lingelbach has had the most unenviable task of replacing departed Luis Escobar at second base but has done "pretty well" recently in the words of Holmquist. "It's good to get a freshman into the lineup for the future," explained Holmquist.

Most recently the Knights split a two-game set with Widener (Pa.) College, winning 6-1 Monday behind Hargest who is now 4-0, and losing a 12-10 slugfest Tuesday in which there were 25 walks given up. A doubleheader with highly regarded Cincinnati was washed out over the weekend following two lopsided triumphs over Wheaton (Ill.) College last week.

Tomorrow at 7:30 at Tinker Field FTU battles perennially tough Jacksonville University and this weekend faces Florida Southern twice. The Friday game is at Lakeland and the teams return to Orlando Saturday afternoon for the second game.

Golfers Take 12th In 30-Team Event

A creditable 12th-place finish out of 30 in last weekend's huge General Development Invitational at Port Malabar and a surprise dual meet win over Florida Atlantic on FAU's home course highlighted action during the break for FTU's extramural golf team.

Indiana University won last weekend's colossal affair at Port Malabar with Jacksonville and Rollins the closet pursuers. FTU's best-ball total of 313 for the three days resulted in the 12th place which Coach Marc Stockwell labeled "pretty good" considering the competition.

FTU entered the big meet with a handicap. Starter John Tanner was unable to compete and the FTU contingent was thus reduced to five instead of six as all the other teams brought.

Low FTU soccerer was Gary Martinet (232) followed by Doug Perry (233) and Roger Amick (235). Each day of the tourney the four low scores were counted toward the total score--thus, the disadvantage for FTU in only having five competitors.

On March 15, the golfers traveled to Boca Raton to face a

Howard Shines But Netters Fall

Neil Howard was the lone encouraging factor in an otherwise "thoroughly disappointing" loss to Samford (Ala.) College Tuesday, according to tennis Coach Lex Wood.

Despite the discouraging setback, however, the FTU varsity team still held a solid 7-2 record going into Thursday's match against College Division power Kalamazoo (Mich.) College. Kalamazoo wound up 8th in the NCAA College Division a year ago and Wood was hoping for a "rebound win" against the strong visitors.

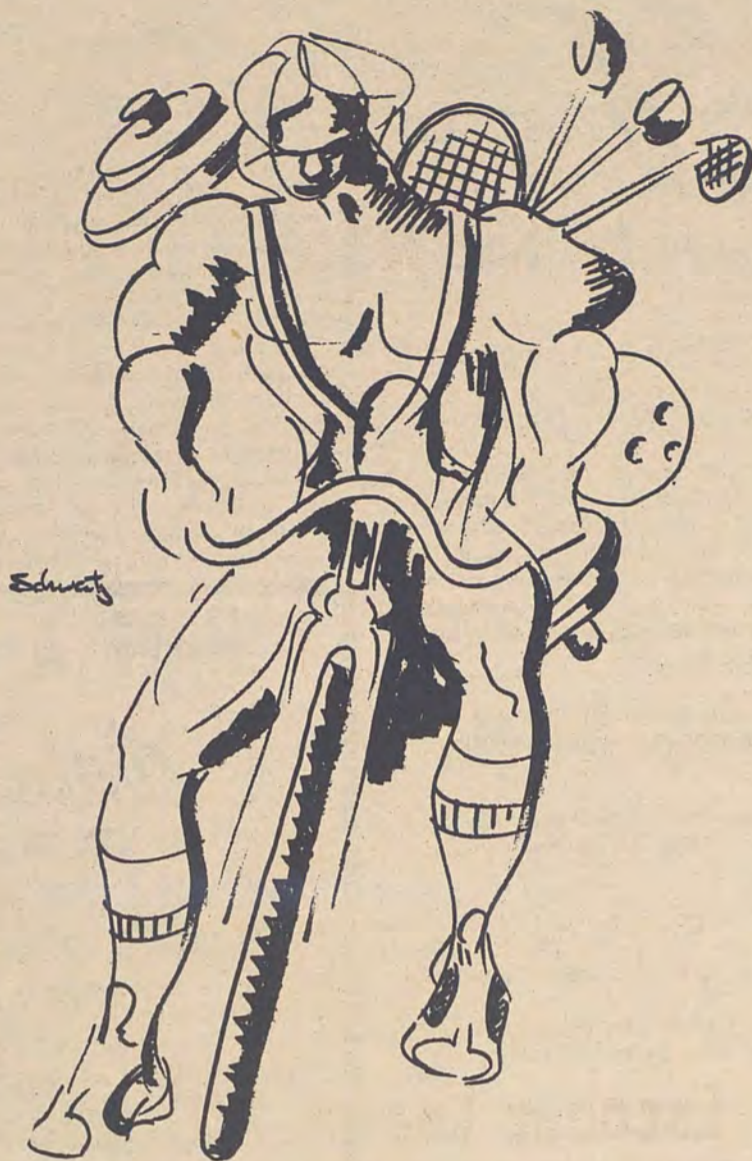

In Tuesday's 7-2 loss to Samford, Howard was the main factor averting an FTU shutout winning his singles match over Joe Fukaratas 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 and then teaming with Gary Timlin to win the No. 3 doubles in straight sets.

"Neil finally regained his freshman form," stated Wood of the bespectacled junior. "He played great the first year and solid last year but didn't really find himself this year until Monday."

Wood has been trying an interesting experiment the last several matches, alternating his top three singles players at the No. 1 spot. The reason, according to Wood, is that Nate Smith, Mike Dezeeuw and Joe Lucci have continually beaten each other in challenge matches.

"Alternating them should take some pressure off," explained Wood. "They have been too concerned with beating each other before and holding the No. 1 spot. Now they can concentrate more on their opponents."

Promising Season Set For 'Stronger' Crew

By Joe DeSalvo

It's been a successful year so far for all of the FTU athletic teams. One that promises to be included is the crew team.

According to Coach Dennis Kamrad, the team's conditioning is "up where it ought to be." Kamrad believes that this year's team is the best he's coached at FTU. Kamrad is in his second year as the team's mentor.

Team captain Greg Cordner said, "this is the strongest team we've had yet." The optimistic junior believes that the team will make a lot of noise this year.

Kamrad is very pleased with this year's personnel. There are 24 men that make up the varsity and junior varsity teams. The average weight per man on the team is 170 pounds which, according to Kamrad, "gives about 15 pounds a man to the opposition." Kamrad added, "they are small but they execute well."

Kamrad said he'll go with the varsity and junior varsity teams regardless of weight and size. He feels the lighter weight rowers are showing a better technique and this he said will help the team.

"We will divide the teams into the lightweight and heavyweight squads in the Southern and National championships," Kamrad added. Last year, the lightweights were state champs while the heavyweights were junior varsity champions in Florida.

The condition of the water and winds could be a blessing or a problem to the team on the day of a race. "If the winds are with us and the water is flat, we can beat anyone," Kamrad said. But if these conditions are reversed, we'll have a tough time winning."

The two major problems that faces the team are lack of equipment and the energy crisis. Presently, the team has two wooden shells. One is an old heavyweight and the other a new lightweight shell that was given to FTU by the "Orlando Sentinel Star" this past fall quarter. Kamrad said the key problem is that the heavyweights cannot fit in the lightweight shell.

The other problem is the energy crisis. Kamrad said the team had to cut the number of meets it could compete in because of the crisis. Also the team has decreased the number of practices a day from two to one since it has to travel to Lake Pickett in Chuluota. The team practices each weekday from 4:30 to 6 p.m. and race on Saturdays.

According to Kamrad, this year FTU will not field a women's team because of lack of equipment and funds. The girls, however, go to each practice and help the men's team.

Some of the big events the Knights will compete in are the Miami Invitational Regatta on April 6. FTU will also compete in the Governor's Cup in Melbourne on April 13.

strong Florida Atlantic squad. On a gusty, rainy day FTU came through with an upset of sorts, dumping FAU 309-314. A consistent attack was paced by Tony Kiraly with a 75. He was followed by John Tanner 77, Gary Martinet 78 and Roger Amick 70. FAU's strength was indicated the following week when it placed fifth in the General Development Corporation Invitational.

As of last week's tourney, the FTU golfers are sporting brand new golf bags, compliments of R. G. Amick, father of team member Roger. The gold bags are inscribed with "Florida Tech" and the individual players' names. All nine team members, as well as Stockwell, received the gifts.

Stockwell himself shined in a tournament over the break, finishing second in the championship flight of the Phillips 66 Invitational at Sanford's Mayfair Country Club on March 22-23.

Men's water polo and women's softball start off the intramural spring sports schedule this afternoon. Twelve water polo and just four softball teams will participate.

Three leagues (two fraternity) will battle in water polo. Alpha Tau Omega, last year's Greek winner of the sport, and Tau Kappa Epsilon will fight it out for the Black League title Thursday at 4:10 while the Gold League would appear to be a "pick 'em" affair between Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Chi Phi and Sigma Chi. Today's KS-LXA match should shed some light on just where the strengths lie.

In the Independent League, God's Children would appear the front-runner with TKE II the top challenger.

Women's softball has four Greek-oriented teams with Little Sisters (a combination of TKE and LXA little sisters) the defending champs. The three sororities-Tyes, Tri-Delta and Zeta Tau Alpha-are also entered.

FTU's Holly Lutz slams a backhand against Tampa opponent Monday. She lost No. 2 singles match, however, and girls team dropped 6-3 decision to Spartans. The women's team, 2-3-1, winds up season today when it travels to Tampa to play South Florida. (Photo by Jim Matthews)

Research Grant Received For Communications Dept.

April 1st Special

The Communications Department at FTU has just received a research grant from the organization, Concerned Research into Advertising and Promotion (C.R.A.P.)

Named as head of the project was Dr. Kenneth D. Sheinkopf, a communications professor with employment experience as an "ad man."

"I am very honored to be named by such a widely known organization as C.R.A.P. to act as a head for one of their projects. As you know C.R.A.P. has been involved with many movements such as:

1. Whether "Mr. Whipple," as charged by the National Organization of Women, reinforces male chauvinism by denying women to the right squeeze anything they want, whenever they want especially if they intend to purchase it.

2. Whether laxative commercials are leading to abuse (of particular interest to C.R.A.P.)

3. Whether the shave cream commercial whose phrase, "Take it all off", was the cause of the streaking fad.

Streaking Society

FTU, in its constant endeavor to remain relevant and to accommodate student needs and desires, has petitioned the BOR to establish a new degree program with a major in streaking. It is hoped that this program can be initiated with all deliberate speed in keeping with the theme that forms the basis of the streaking major.

PSY 310S 4(4,0)
Abnormal Streaking Psychology. Classification counseling and treatment of deviate patterns of streaking.

MEAS 342S 4(4,0)
Streaking design and analysis. Application of concepts and principles of stress, deflection strength and fatigue analysis to streaker design. Streaker project.

JRN 323S 4(4,0)

MUS 401S 2
Music to streak by.

EDPE 350S 2
Coaching theory. Theory and methods of coaching for optimum streaking performance.

FTU reporter I.M.A. Hairy Streaker recently interviewed the FTU administration on their views of the new streaking curriculum. A few selected responses follow:

Pres. C. W. Mirrorcan - "The streaking major has my full support. It is consistent with Acent on the Individual. I would advise that streakers reach for the stars with only one hand."

FTU Legal Counsel J. J. Mahaffey - "It's my opinion that streaking is legal. After all, Streaking puts everything in the sunshine which is the intent of Florida law."

Students Organize Boycott To End 'Same Old Hash'

April 1st Special

Charging Food Service with discrimination, FTU resident students yesterday organized and put into effect a boycott of the FTU cafeteria and snack bar.

According to Resident Advisor Rodney Fillinship, the boycott was organized because the residents are "tired of the same old hash and rehash day in and day out, and don't like discrimination."

Boycott organizers are Resident Hall Asylum (RHA) members Kathy Donalddaughter and Kevin Kerphy.

Kerphy said that the boycott will last until "students starve or the food service goes broke, whichever comes first."

Cafeteria manager Bill Crockett said he hopes to get with RHA representatives to straighten out the "misunderstanding."

"I did not discriminate against the students, they are getting the same food that resident rodents get."

Student Government (SG) President Lee Variabettine said: "I hope that the Senate will adopt a resolution providing for the establishment of a franchise fast-food operation on campus."

However, SG Vice President Hanted Pans said that the Senate would probably not appropriate money for such an operation, but Senate members are drafting a recommendation that food services hire Mrs. Stoffer as head chef. (Continued on Page 13)

Curriculum, Grievance Guidelines Desired

Curriculum Council consisting of two representatives from each college elected by the faculty of the respective colleges. This council would make recommendations to the Vice President for Academic Affairs concerning:

1. All proposed undergraduate degree programs,
2. All proposed undergraduate courses,
3. Periodic reviews of existing programs and courses.

"Recognizing that the responsibility for directing university curriculum matters now rests primarily with the Dean's Council, we propose that the University Undergraduate Curriculum Council become responsible for actions in areas 1, 2, and 3 listed above."

"The University Undergraduate Curriculum Council shall inform the Dean's Council of its specific actions and recommendations and shall forward these actions and recommendations to the Vice President for Academic Affairs."

It was brought to the senate's attention that the Admissions and Standards Committee version of this resolution "would give more power to Gambrell's office" if left unamended.

"It all winds up there anyway," remarked one senator just before the resolution was amended.

Stern stated the Self-Study report indicates the current curriculum decision-making is "politicized" and stressed the need for these decisions to be put back in the faculty's hands.

Dr. Bruce Pauley said, "I think there is a very strong need for a committee on this. I've been involved with course conflicts in another college and we've tried to work it out. I've been told that if course matter is the same-if it is under another college name there is nothing you can do about it."

"I don't think the faculty is less politically inclined than the Dean's Council," commented Dr. Ray Buchanan. "I don't see any advantage to this."

Stern replied, "I think that continually the faculty is underrated in its ability. We've had a young faculty and now that we're becoming more mature why not put this back in the hands of the faculty?"

Buchanan termed Stern's statement "fallacious" and emphasized that faculty members are not in the position of department heads to work on curriculum problems.

Senator Harry Smith asked, "Are we just saying that disregarding expertise, is it not more likely that a faculty committee will be more concerned with faculty concerns than the interests of the Deans' Council?"

Stern replied he felt the Deans have become more concerned with Full-Time Enrollment figures.

The motion passed 15-12 in its amended form.
