Christina Torres

Hi everyone, I'd like to introduce the podcast series Futures in Languages, a project showcasing stories from UCF's Modern Languages and Literatures Department alumni. I'm Christina Torres and I'm a TESOL instructor in the Modern Languages and Literatures Department. I also happen to be an alumni from this department, having graduated with my Masters in TESOL in Spring 2013. I'll be your host for the five episodes in the Fall 2020 mini season. This season you'll hear from 5 different Modern Languages alumni. They'll share with their experiences were like as students in the department and what their lives are like now that they've graduated, so if you've ever wondered what it's like to be a student in our programs and what type of future studying a language can bring you, you've come to the right place. For more information about the language programs in the Modern Languages department, please visit our website at mll.cah.ucf.edu. I'd also like to give a shout out to Da Video Guy for intro and outro music downloaded from freesound.org. Now sit back, relax, and enjoy our alumni stories. Welcome to Futures in Languages.
