Try searching the Library database, xreferplus — Your Online Reference Library!

From <http://library.ucf.edu/Databases> click on “X” in the alphabetical list of database titles, then select xreferplus. Once in xreferplus search using the terms “new years celebrations”. Some examples are:

-  Water Splashing Day (Dai New Year) – the Dai people of southwestern Yunnan Province of China celebrate the birthday of Buddha and the new year in the middle of April with the Water Splashing Festival, which includes dragon-boat races, fireworks, and splashing each other with water.
-  Alahamady Be – New Years Day in Madagascar, celebrated in March, includes feasting, the giving of presents, and religious songs.
-  Omisoka – New Year’s Eve is celebrated in Japan by settling financial accounts, eating a special noodle dish, and taking a hot bath followed by a well-earned rest.
-  Ibu Afo Festival – The Igbo people of Nigeria celebrate the New Year in March with a ceremony that has the children rushing into their houses and locking their doors to avoid being carried away by the old year as it leaves.
