AN OLD FASHIONED GIRL.

[CENTURY BRIC-A-BRAC.]

Old-fashioned? Yes, I must confess
The antique pattern of her dress,
The ancient frills and furbelows,
The faded ribbons and the bows.
Why she should show those shrunken
charms,
That wrinkled neck, those tawny arms,
I cannot guess; her russet gown
Round her spare form hangs loosely down;
Her voice is thin and cracked; her eye
And smile have lost their witchery.
By those faint jests, that flagging wit,
By each attenuated curl,
She surely is, I must admit,
An odd old-fashioned girl.

'Tis long, long since she had a beau,
And now with those who sit a-row
Along the wall she takes her place,
With something of the old-time grace.
She yearns to join the mazy waltz,
And slyly sniffs her smelling-salts.
Ah, many an angel in disguise
May walk before our human eyes!
Where'er the fever-smitten lie
In grimy haunts of poverty,
Along the dark and squalid street,
Mid drunken jests of boor and churl,
She goes with swift and pitying feet,
This same old-fashioned girl.

FLORIDA CHINAMEN.

We are not going to take up our readers' time with an account of the few straggling representatives of the Celestial Empire who have found their way to Florida. They are generally inoffensive knights of the tub and flat-iron, whose coming and going is of small consequence to the general public. But, whether justly or not, the Chinese more than any other foreigners have been generally accused of coming into America with no intention of becoming Americans, or of identifying themselves permanently with the country and its people, but simply to get what they could and carry it home. In the case of the Chinese there has been much to justify this policy in the inhospitable reception which they have met here, but with the class of quasi immigrants to Florida, of whom we use the Chinaman as a type, there is no justification except pure rapacity and greed. They come here in true carpet-bag style, using the term without any political limitation, having no real interest in the state or their neighbors here. They have heard that Florida is a newly opened country, where a poor man may more easily start in business, or a rich man may make profitable use of his money, and they have come here to make what they can in a few years, and then get back to civilization again.

Of course every new county has to contend against this class of adventurers, but our people should look upon them as natural enemies, to be discouraged and driven out if possible, for they antagonize everything that tends to make the country a real home for those who want to make it such. We do not now refer to men of brains or capital, who come here and start railways, factories, or other legitimate business, by which they give our people employment and the opportunity for development of natural resources, whether they mean to remain or not; provided such men keep in mind the fact that the ultimate use of the country is to provide homes for men to live in, and that they have no right to come into it and take all that is good out of it, and leave it a desert. While they are here let them live as gentlemen, not as if the only object were to save every possible cent to get the good of it somewhere else; let them enjoy what they make here with the rest of us; for they make it out of our patronage, and we have a right to expect theirs in return. Otherwise the natural circulation of trade is interfered with and healthy business conditions are impossible. So long as a man's blood circulates round and round within his body, ordinary means will suffice to keep him strong and healthy, but let even a small quantity be drawn from him every day, and he will soon become weak and sickly. Just so with the elements of wealth; if the shoemaker buys his hat of the hatter, and the hatter buys his shoes of the shoemaker, both get what they need and neither is the poorer, but if the shoemaker takes the price of the shoes and buys his hat a thousand miles away, the hatter at home will have to go barefoot or be so much the poorer, except for the chance that some neighbor may raise some oranges or other product, in return for which the distant hatter may send back the price of a hat and so enable the farmer to patronize the hatter at home. Of course a certain amount of distant exchange is necessary and desirable, but let us keep it down as we may, we cannot avoid at least as much as is profitable; and if we put no check upon what goes out we shall find to our cost that others do put a check upon what comes back, and we shall have the balance against us. This is a principle of economy that may be applied in many other ways, but our present object is to call attention to its application to people of the class we have mentioned, who come here not to make a home, but to squeeze what they can out of the country, and take it away with them. They live poorly while here, in proportion to the means which our people contribute to their support, often take advantage of their neighbors because they are careless of a reputation soon to be left behind them, and after a brief career of drag-net business, depart with a deprecatory report of the country as a place of permanent residence, and leaving none to mourn their loss except those they have fleeced.

What wonder is it that such people find Florida unsatisfactory? They have come here because other places had not spare wealth enough to enable them to get fat in the role of corn-rants, and they are disappointed because they find here the same necessity for hard work that they do everywhere else, instead of being able to fill their pockets with the natural wealth which they fondly imagined lay about loose in places where there were not yet so many people to pick it up. What we want in Florida is not people who are too lazy to make a living elsewhere, but those who will take hold and work to help turn the wilderness into a garden, and make it fit for men to live in—who will make an effort to do their part towards the general improvement by exerting themselves to build comfortable houses and plant trees and flowers for home use and beauty as well as for a distant market. Then we can have a country pleasant for all to live in, and a home market as good for both buyer and seller as anywhere. Let us not encourage anybody to come to Florida as the road to sudden wealth, but rather as a place where honest work will be rewarded with a good home and the conditions of reasonable health and happiness. Let us not place our dependence upon the inflation of natural values, and the profits of short-lived boomst to be paid for by those who are left in possession after we unload, but rather let us set to work to build up the real value of the country and to make a home of it, putting in every dollar and every day's work not to make what will catch the eye of a possible purchaser to-day or to-morrow, but what will contribute to solid worth and permanent value and productiveness. Let us invite and encourage the men who will do this to come and join fortunes with us, and give the "Chinamen" the cold shoulder. That is the way to build up a body politic that can earn its living and command the conditions of happiness at home and respect from its neighbors, and we want all we can get of the right kind of people to come in and help us do it.

Live out of doors as much as you can. It is the place for a man to be. It is good for the health. A distinguished physician was in the habit of saying: "However bad the air may be out of doors, it is always worse in the house." It is good for the temper. People who are always shut up in the house are apt to grow fretful and peevish. They are prone to acquire narrow views of things, and to worry over trials not worth considering. It is good for the whole character—for strength, hope, patience and fortitude. It expands and softens one's nature and makes one more charitable.

Stedman on Tennyson.

E. C. Stedman's essay in the October Century on "Twelve Years of British Song," from which we quoted last week, has the following on Lord Tennyson: "When the laureate was raised to the peerage—a station which he twice declined in middle life—he gained some attention from the satirists, and his acceptance of rank no doubt was honestly bemoaned by many sturdy radicals. It is difficult, nevertheless, to find any violation of principle or taste in the receipt by England's favorite and official poet of such an honor, bestowed at the climax of his years and fame. Republicans should bear in mind that the republic of letters is the only one to which Alfred Tennyson owed allegiance; that he was the 'first citizen' of an ancient monarchy which honored letters by gratefully conferring upon him its high traditional award. It would be truckling for an American, loyal to his own form of government, to receive an aristocratic title from some foreign potentate. Longfellow, for example, promptly declined an order tendered him by the King of Italy. But a sense of fitness, and even patriotism, should make it easy for an Englishman, faithful to a constitutional monarchy, to accept any well-earned dignity under that system. In every country it is thought worth while for one to be the founder of his family; and in Great Britain no able man could do more for descendants, to whom he is not sure of bequeathing his talents, than by handing down a class-privilege, even though it confers no additional glory upon the winner. Extreme British democrats, who openly or covertly wish to change the form of government, and even communists, are aware that Tennyson does not belong to their ranks. He has been, as I long since wrote, a liberal conservative; liberal in humanity and progressive thought, strictly conservative in allegiance to the national system. As for that, touch but the territory, imperil the institutions, of Great Britain, and Swinburne himself—the pupil of Landor, Mazzini, and Hugo—betrays the blood in his veins. Tennyson, a liberal of the Maurice group, has been cleverly styled by Whitman a 'poet of feudalism'; he is a celebrator of the past, of sovereignty and knight-hood; he is no lost leader, 'just for a ribbon' leaving some gallant cause forsworn or any song unsung. In all fairness, his acceptance of rank savors less of inconsistency than does the logic of those who rail at the world for neglect of genius, and then upbraid them both for coming to an understanding."

WINTER PARK, OCT. 21, 1887.

Our running number this week was left unchanged by mistake. It should have been 17 instead of 16.

Our town is well located near the summit of the high land in the center of the State, and we believe that private premises in it are exceptionally free from any source of danger to health. Nevertheless, an early and thorough inspection should be made by our new government in order that actual knowledge may replace confident belief.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

We promised last week to give the facts about the yellow fever, and we think the following is a fair and true statement of the case. There is now no question that there is yellow fever at Tampa, and the weather has been warm and wet during the past ten days, and that has probably temporarily aggravated it. In spite of this, however, the "epidemic of fright" has almost entirely passed over. A rigid quarantine has been established all around Tampa, and beyond the inconvenience to travelers, there is little to fear in any other place. Out of all the people who escaped from Tampa before the quarantine was established, only two deaths have been reported from other towns, one at Palatka and one at Interlachen. Reports of the disease spreading from these cases have been circulated, but have proved groundless, and it is not now probable that any new cases will occur outside of Tampa.

Medical authorities seem to be unanimous in the opinion that the disease is slightly if at all contagious; that is to say, it is not likely to be communicated by contact or association with a person having it. It is, however, infectious, that is, it infects the atmosphere, the water, and the soil, and from these may be taken into the systems of other persons. This, however, can only take place when the condition of the atmosphere, water, or soil is favorable to the life and multiplication of the germ, ferment, or specific poison, whatever it may be, that causes the disease. The prime conditions of such multiplication appear to be filth and bad drainage, combined with warm weather. Association, therefore, with the sick where these conditions are present is likely to result in a conveyance of the disease, but where favoring conditions are absent there is but little danger of contagion. This view accords well with the facts as reported both from Tampa and previously from Key West. In both the local conditions were notoriously of such a character as to favor the disease, and it had only to be planted in either to grow and multiply, but in neither case has it shown any tendency to spread in other places where the conditions were different. Recognizing our responsibility, therefore, in offering advice to our own people, and to those contemplating a visit or residence in Florida, we think we are safe in saying that no fear of the disease need be entertained by those residing in, or coming without previous exposure to places where the sanitary conditions are good, and if in addition their own habits of life are sober and wholesome, they may generally even brave a certain degree of unfavorableness in external conditions, although we should not advise them to do so unnecessarily. The most favorable natural conditions are in the high pine lands, rather than the neighborhood of low or wet lands or sluggish streams. The best artificial conditions are generally in the country rather than in large towns. Guided by these considerations, and a reasonable care about our own immediate surroundings, we think there is no ground for any general panic, nor for any fear in coming into the State, especially as the cooler weather already beginning must soon put an end to the disease even in Tampa.

JOTTINGS.

E. H. Donkel contemplates putting in a stock of groceries.

C. B. Davids and Dr. Henkel are busy putting out strawberries. All right gentlemen we'll call around! Do you keep a dog?

J. S. Capen is having his house painted by that artist in the paint line, Joseph H. Lamay.

Joe Jordon and Charlie Williams are "taking in" the Piedmont Exposition; also T. C. Wilkes.

Miss McElhinney, teacher of the Kindergarten, has arrived, and the school has been opened with flattering prospects.

R. R. Thayer is pushing the new Ergood building as rapidly as the recent "heavy dews" will let him. Whew! but hasn't it rained?

We are glad to know that Mr. Midgough's son is much better, and if the same progress is made will soon be up and around.

W. R. Smith, Esq. has decided to "batch" it at the Dyer place. Better get his best girl to change her name and help him, say we.

Mrs. Judge L. C. Walker and daughter, of Indianapolis, are stopping at Mrs. Guild's, and Miss Walker will attend Rollins College.

Mr. Samuel S. Capen returned from his sad errand Wednesday eve. Mrs. Capen and Jerome will come about Nov. 1st, with Mrs. L. W. Capen.

We hear only the very best reports from Rollins College and everybody connected with it. It's the biggest and best institution in this locality.

Miss Gilbert has kindly offered to assist Mrs. Rogers as librarian, and the library will probably be kept open Wednesdays and Saturdays now.

The Winter Park Co's elegant new pamphlet was to have been shipped here October 12th, and will probably be here by the time this is published.

What has become of our Improvement Association? For goodness sake let's get together and spend the money on hand if we don't do any more.

We had a very pleasant call from Mr. J. A. Prentiss of the Woodbridge Ice Factory, who is thinking of putting an ice and cold storage warehouse here.

We had a very pleasant letter from Col. S. A. Adams, formerly manager of the Sanford Argus, now of the Savannah News. He is very enthusiastic about Florida.

Mrs. H. J. Pennington has arrived in Orlando, and drops us a note to inform us that she still hopes to locate a first-class family boarding house here. We hope she will succeed.

The Ladies' Library Association wish to thank Mr. MacCallum for a very plain and complete catalogue of their books. It is one of the plainest specimens of pen work we have ever seen.

H. L. Phelps and family have returned from their northern visit looking well and speaking of having a delightful time. Well, we shouldn't object to a few whiffs of mountain air ourselves.

THE WINTER PARK JEWELRY STORE.—A fine line of Jewelry, Watches, Clocks, the celebrated Willson Spectacles, Florida Curiosities, &c. Repairing.

H. M. WOODRUFF.

Miss Eva Lamson arrived for the winter Wednesday evening.

John Hunter returned from the Piedmont Exposition on Monday. He reports a big show.

Mr. J. G. Diffenderfer has bought two very fine lots near Rollins College, and will proceed to erect a pretty cottage there.

General French and son, Robert, have arrived from Georgia, and are at their lovely place, the station near which is designated by the Orlando and Winter Park R. R. Co. as "Lochmede."

Printer's ink and lots of it is what our State needs, for with our unequalled climate and advantages all we have to do to get the crowds here is to blow our horns and let people know what we have got.

Mr. Woodruff tells of having more than he can do in the jewelry, repairing, and manufacturing line. He expects soon to receive the boss rattlesnake to exhibit, which will undoubtedly attract great attention.

The paint for the Seminole has arrived, and Mr. Lamay is going to see that the "streak" that was used by the "wets" in Hillsborough county is made so wide that there will be no chance for a misunderstanding.

Gilbert Hart, Esq. writes that he will have a steam launch of his own on Lake Osceola this winter. If he don't keep it locked we shall try to borrow it once in a while in the evening. Don't watch us, Marshal Earl.

Mr. Goffon, of England, is the guest of Mr. Hall, of Hall & White's Real Estate Agency. He is the advance guard of quite a party of Englishmen, whom we hope Messrs. Hall & White will succeed in locating here.

Quite a little scare was occasioned here last week by the report that we had a Tampa refugee among us. Several of the citizens proceeded to investigate, and found that the man had been away from Tampa for quite a while before the fever broke out there, and all was serene.

Your "jotter" wishes to say that himself and family never sat down to a better or more tempting meal than they did at Mr. Geo. Dorn's this week. It was the birthday of both Mrs. Dorn and "y. j.," and the dinner in celebration of the event was all and more than heart could wish or appetite do justice to.

The reports from Tampa, while not very encouraging, do not seem to us to warrant any scare or panic here. We think the authorities will keep it in Tampa, and that no bad results will follow to the balance of the state. We sincerely hope that Tampa will speedily be relieved of its dread presence.

We hope the first thing our Council takes hold of will be the reckless shooting all around us. A person don't know when or at what point he is liable to get a load of bird shot in him, and besides it is both cruel and wicked the way singing birds and birds of plumage are being destroyed. Stop it, gentlemen; stop it, if it is a possible thing.

A meeting of the citizens is called by the School Trustees in this district at the Winter Park Co's office for Thursday evening to take into consideration the prospect for a public school this winter. We hope it will be largely attended, and that a public school can be started at once. Nothing will attract the attention of people desiring to locate more than a first-class, well-equipped public school.

To show the value of printer's ink we would call the attention of our readers to the following notice, which from one insertion in the Youth's Companion has filled the postoffice box of the Winter Park Co. nearly every day for the past ten: "Florida enquirers, by sending address to Winter Park Co., Winter Park, Orange Co., Fla., will receive free of charge some illustrated pamphlet containing a full description of that beautiful and flourishing town with map showing its ten lovely lakes; pictures of its magnificent hotel, the Seminole; prospectus of its Rollins College, valuable facts pertaining to the State in general with map, etc."

The death of Dr. J. R. Tatum, of Ocean Grove, N. J., takes from us another of the pioneers of Winter Park, for he was among the first that Messrs. Chapman and Chase sold a lot to. He was a kind, courteous christian gentleman, an able physician, and a man with whom all delighted to meet and talk. The influence of his honest and hearty work and recommendations for Winter Park will long be felt, and in his death we have lost a good friend and fellow worker. To the family of Dr. Tatum we wish to extend our heart felt sympathy in their loss, knowing full well that the loss of so kind a father and husband is a crushing blow to them, while they have the sweet consolation of knowing that his death was only a transfer from a life of suffering and pain to the realms of bliss and rest across the dark river.

Our new Council met for the first time last Thursday evening, October 13th. A general discussion was had of the work in hand; R. R. Thayer was elected president of the Board, a full and complete set of rules for their government was adopted, and the meeting adjourned to Monday evening, October 17th, to pass the requisite ordinances and resolutions to set the wheels in motion. On Monday evening, after another full discussion of the policy to be pursued an excellent set of ordinances was passed, bearing upon police authority and revenues. The committee on ordinances and rules was appointed, to whom, with the town attorney elect, Mr. E. R. Gunby, the ordinances were referred. The marshal was appointed collector, and the great wheels for the government of our beautiful place were started. Sincerely do we hope that they may run on to the glory and prosperity of all within our borders, and may proceed to pass an estray cattle and pound ordinance at once. The regular meetings were put on the second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month, and for the present, until other quarters can be provided, they will be held at the Winter Park Co's office. The Board wished us to say that all the citizens are cordially invited to the meetings, and they hope many will attend to encourage them in the arduous work which they have undertaken.

Transplanting Nut Trees.

D. B. Weir, of Marshall, Ill., offers his own experience to disprove the theory that has been advanced by various writers for several years, to the effect that in raising nut-bearing trees they are liable to be lost by transplanting. He states that during the past twenty-four years he has transplanted thousands of black and white walnut trees, one, two, and three years old, with as little loss as he has met with in transplanting trees of any other hardwood variety. A year ago last spring, according to the Northwest Lumberman, he transplanted 10,000 one and two year black walnuts, late in the season, and in a careless manner, and though the following summer was quite dry, nearly every tree grew. Last spring he transplanted 3,000 trees two years old, also late, with as little labor as possible, in thick rows, and now, after one of the driest seasons ever known, nearly all are alive. Last spring, also, Mr. Weir sent some nursery stock, including 400 one year and 400 two year black walnuts, to Northwestern Iowa, where there has been scarcely any rain for two years. A report came back from the customer July 1, that the drought had killed all the trees except the 800 walnuts, every one of which was alive and growing nicely. Scientific American.

Quartered Lumber.

A few years ago there was little if any lumber sawed quartered, or with the grain. Now not only oak but many other woods are being sawed more and more in that manner. Any consumer of lumber will tell you that it is far the better way to manufacture. We now have oak, poplar, gum, and sycamore in large quantities thus sawed. It costs more to saw quartered stock than plain, but it is much more valuable. The waste is considerable. Take a 24 inch 12 foot log, clear and straight, and 75 per cent. of it will make good quartered firsts and seconds if properly managed. Probably no wood except oak has so grown in popularity as quartered poplar. It is used plump inch, six inch, and up wide, and immense quantities are now used by piano manufacturers. There is a scarcity of it, and any one who finds plain poplar dull and hard to sell should quarter saw his stock. The Northwestern Lumberman says it is worth from $2 to $5 a thousand more.

The rule for gracefulness is in one word—nature. Whatever is done in an unaffected manner is done well.

It is much easier to reconcile an enemy than to conquer him. Victory deprives him of his power, but reconciliation of his will; and there is less danger in a will which will not hurt than in power which cannot. The power is not so apt as the will, as the will is studious to find out means.

WINTER PARK, FLORIDA.

A beautiful location on the Watershed or backbone of Florida, with nine beautiful lakes of running water; with the Hotel Seminole, accommodating 400 guests; with Rollins College and its 100 students, with an able faculty under Rev. E. P. Hooker, D. D., President. It is one of the most charming resorts in the State. Thousands have visited it to find health and recreation this winter, and none have gone away disappointed. Its educational advantages and its healthfulness, its location and its easy access by railroad makes it the most desirable and loveliest spot in Florida.

Having added a General Real Estate Department, those having property to sell, as well as those looking for investments, will find it to their advantage to give us a call. Property will be shown free of charge and maps, circulars, etc., promptly furnished on application to

LOCHMEDE

We trust the people of Winter Park will be sufficiently pleased with our effort to give them an attractive paper to come to our support generously with advertisements and subscriptions, looking for the return on their investment quite as much to the impression of their town created by a presentable paper sent abroad, as to the direct value to them personally of the reading matter supplied, although we shall try to make this as good as possible, and of a character which shall be an index of the refined class of people to whom we look for support. Send us $1.50 for and see that all people at a distance, who are in any way likely to be interested in Winter Park have a chance to subscribe too. The more we get the better we can make the paper, and we shall take pride and pleasure in enlarging and improving as fast as we can afford to do so. Send us and do not be ashamed of a small one, nor too close in calculating the return from as big a one as you can afford. It will all help to make a good showing for the town.
