WINTER PARK, FLORIDA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1887.

No. 24.

PERPETUAL YOUTH.

[THE CENTURY.]

'Tis said there is a fount in Flower Land,— De-Leon found it,—where Old Age away Throws weary mind and heart, and fresh as day Springs from the dark, and joins Aurora's band:
This tale, transformed by some skilled trouvere's wand
From the old myth in a Greek poet's lay, Rests on no truth. Change bodies as Time may, Souls do not change, though heavy be his hand.

Who of us needs this fount? What soul is old?

Our mere masks age; and still we grow more young.

For in our winter we talk most of Spring:

And as we near, slow-tottering, God's safe fold,

Youth's loved ones gather nearer; though among

The seeming dead, youth's songs more clear they sing.

—Maurice Francis Egan.

FLORIDA ENTERPRISE.

In many countries, especially new ones, the spirit of enterprise, which the attempt to open and improve a new field naturally begets in men, finds vent in a superficial and tawdry ambition, attempts to show a prodigal display of all the least essential things of life, and even of things to be classed with riotous and extravagant living, rather than with the real helps to comfort and refinement. We think Florida is remarkably free from this mistaken and wasteful habit, and we ascribe it to the fact that a very large majority of those who have come here to take part in the settlement of the country have come with the honest intention of making homes for themselves—not simply to speculate on the opportunities for gain presented by a rapidly expanding sphere of operations. Some of the latter we have of course had, and where their operations were honest they have not been wholly unprofitable to the State.

They have built railways, started towns and assisted immigration, and in many ways used their capital, often very generously, for the advancement of the State, relying upon the stimulus thus given to business for their returns. Such men are welcome aids in our work, and such as there were of the less stable class of speculators have been largely frozen out by the winter of two years ago and comparatively dull times since. We are well rid of them, and are now in good condition for a new start this winter. The larger part of our people, who have come here to make homes for themselves, show a better kind of enterprise.
If they engage in mercantile business they try to keep good stocks of goods and to sell at reasonable prices, they are accommodating in trying to keep what customers want, and enterprising in doing what they can by advertising and other means to build up their towns. If they are artisans or professional men, they do their work faithfully, according to the means at their command and the price which customers are willing to pay. If they are raising fruits or vegetables they are interested in raising good ones, and willing to take great pains and investigate questions of fertilizing and other matters, in order to get good results.
If new people come to live among them they try to make them at home and help them to get a start.

In all that they undertake it is a noticeable characteristic of our people that they are interested in the advancement of their State as well as in their own individual affairs, and to this element of their enterprise is due a large part of the progress that has been made. They share their lands with new railways to assist their building, give away town lots to encourage the starting of desirable enterprises, encourage new people to come here, advertise our position and resources, and in every way try to assist the common cause. If a question is discussed in the newspapers, the point raised is quite as likely to be the advantage to the State in doing certain things, as the advantage to the doer himself. In these respects Florida enterprise is of the right kind—it aims at a home and good neighbors, and permanent prosperity and comfort, and it is rapidly realizing its aims. Each year sees more good houses built, more groves planted, more manufactures started, more schools, churches, libraries, and all the adjuncts of civilized life, where but five to ten years ago there was nothing but the native pine woods. At various times there has been a great boom in Florida affairs, and rapid strides have been made, and at others there has been comparative quiet, but still the motion has always been, on the whole, in the same forward direction, and the enterprise of our people has never been checked for long at a time, nor discouraged in its efforts. In spite of sun or shadow Florida moves right along and will continue to do so. Some have lost faith during the past year or two and given it up, but not many, and now all signs point to a new start this winter, and a reward for past exertions, which at the time seemed almost useless, but which are now beginning to bear their proper fruit. Nobody now regrets his perseverance in industry and enterprise and faith in ultimate reward. We are getting there, and are glad to welcome those who are coming to share our good fortune.

A Roadbed of Salt.

In the Colorado desert, near Idaho, there is a large bed of rock salt, and the Southern Pacific Railroad, in laying the track to the salt bed, has been obliged to grade the road for 1,200 feet with blocks of these crystals.
This is the only instance where the roadbed is laid and ballasted on salt.
The sea, which once rolled over this place, dried up and left a vast bed of salt nearly fifty miles long. The supply is inexhaustible and the quality excellent.—Scientific American.

WINTER PARK, DEC. 9, 1887.

OUTING for December contains the thrilling experiences of Emma Frances Benedict during her winter's sojourn in General Hooker's camp. The illustrations and frontispiece are by A. R. Wand—an artist who was on the spot and familiar with all the incidents she describes—and J. E. Kelly. The article is especially novel and interesting, and will recommend itself more particularly to female readers.

GENERAL RANDOLPH B. MARCY contributes a highly instructive and entertaining article on hunting the American Moose in December Outing. The General is a keen sportsman, an accomplished writer, and has had forty years' border experiences after every kind of game to be found on this continent. J. Carter Beard supplies four magnificent illustrations.

Our dust-smothered California rivals should come and expand their lungs with a draft of our pure Florida air. It would do them good. We have dry weather at this season it is true, but no dust, and the absence of rain only enables us the better to enjoy the free out of door life which our delicious air tempts us to. To any one whose lungs are in any way a subject of thought and care, it is a thoroughly delightful experience to simply drink in our fresh pure air, and to know as he does so that it is a means of healing, not of irritation.

It would do some of our northern friends good to leave their snowy homes for a while, and see our vegetable gardens growing and flowers blooming out of doors at this season. They hardly realize when they buy our new potatoes, our peas and beans, our strawberries, even our rose buds, that these things have all been growing out of doors all winter, without any protection whatever. They hardly realize that we can step out and cut fresh flowers for our Christmas dinner table. They read about such things, but until they have spent a winter here and seen them, they seem like unsubstantial fables, instead of the realities of life which we are actually enjoying every day. Come and see us, friends, and enjoy them too.

It is an old joke that the man who pays $50 for an acre of Florida land buys $40 worth of climate and $10 worth of sand, but those who find in it any cause for his regretting his bargain have not been here to know what he has got for his money. At any time during the past week Florida climate would have been cheap if it cost the whole $50 an acre, and the land might be considered as thrown in for a premium. Not that the land is worthless by any means, for the pleasures of a home upon it, or the value of the crops that may be taken from it need no demonstration. They are only the daily experiences of thousands of our people. But the climate is at this season, and for that matter at all seasons, about as near perfection as anything we have ever had the good fortune to enjoy.

THE market for Florida oranges this season is so far very satisfactory. The Florida Fruit Exchange reports that its last auction sale of 1235 boxes, in Boston, netted the growers an average of over $2.00 per box, the best fruit netting $2.62 per box. At this rate orange growing is a very profitable industry. Indeed most of our growers would be well satisfied to continue the business at half the above returns. Many are selling their oranges to the wine makers here at home for $8.00 a thousand, which is equivalent to about $1.15 a box, and think they are doing very well, as they have no trouble about packing, nor risk of loss by spoiling or uncertain markets, to say nothing of dishonest agents. A large quantity of fruit is being sent forward, but as yet there is no excess in the market, and prices remain good. The increasing home market has become an important aid in this respect. Both for consumption as fresh fruit and for wine making, a very large quantity of fruit is demanded right here, and every year increases that demand. When cold storage is established here, so that we can have our fruit to use all the year round, as well as be able to hold it back from outside markets, there will be an enormous increase in the capacity of both home and foreign markets to receive the crop, and such a thing as a glutted market need never be heard of, if our product increases even far beyond present expectation.

Beet Sugar at Two Cents a Pound.

We have some interesting figures from Germany, showing at what price sugar is now being manufactured in sixty-four first class factories, as reported by the association of Oderbruch and Pomerania. To think that it is possible by existing improved appliances to extract 11.31 per cent. sugar from the beet, and an additional 0.65 per cent. from the molasses, or a total of 11.96 pounds per 100 pounds of beets, is calculated to cause a thrill of satisfaction in the breasts of Americans who contend for the best welfare of their country. The cost of this sugar was only two cents per pound. These, however, are actual facts, and could, with very little additional expense, be repeated in the United States. Unlike sorghum sugar, of an unknown future, this beet sugar is placed on the European market in quantities sufficient for the entire American consumption. We only have to follow the example given us, to become the masters and not the slaves of the world's sugar trade. Why these great opportunities are neglected remains a mystery to those who have the country's industries truly at heart.—The Sugar Beet.

News comes from Prescott, Arizona, of the discovery of a wonderfully rich ledge of gold bearing rock 20 inches wide, on the Hassayampa River. The assay shows $100,000 per ton. The pieces of the rock, when broken, hang together by the gold in them.—Scientific American.

Explosive Power of Nitro-Glycerine.

An instance of the extraordinary explosive power of a small quantity of nitro-glycerine is recorded by Dr. Gorup Besamez. The incident was the explosion of only ten drops of the substance in his laboratory, and the astonishing effects he records as resulting from this explosion are well calculated to give a most respectable and respectful notion of the properties of nitro-glycerine. One of the doctor's pupils, in the course of an investigation, placed the above mentioned quantity (?) of the substance in question in a small cast iron dish heater over a small Bunsen gas burner in common use in laboratories. While so engaged the nitro-glycerine exploded with extreme violence, breaking forty-six panes of glass in the windows of the laboratory, hurled the iron dish against the brick wall, the iron stand upon which it was supported partly split and partly twisted out of shape, and the tube of the Bunsen burner split and flattened. Those in the laboratory fortunately escaped without injury. — Scientific American.

JOTTINGS.

Mrs. Switzer's mother came with Mr. Comstock's party.

Colonel Forbes went to Jacksonville on business on the 6th.

Mrs. Edgar Richmond and family returned from a pleasant visit in the East about a week ago.

The painting of the Seminole is about complete, and much improves the looks of that beautiful structure.

Charles M. Capen arrived last Saturday evening, and will visit here three or four weeks. His wife is expected the last of this week.

Commodore Paige has about completed the work on the canal and, as is usual with the work of Forbes & Paige, it is a very thorough job.

The many friends of Mr. Fletcher, of Sanford, will be sorry to hear of his death. He was an energetic and faithful workman and an honest man.

Rev. T. C. Potter, of Haines City, a preacher of eminent ability, has accepted the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Winter Park, and will enter upon the duties of the office, Sunday, Dec. 18th.

One of the men who has been painting the Seminole very narrowly escaped being killed by the S. F. train on the 7th. Mr. Etter with great difficulty saved his life. A person cannot be too careful in getting on and off the cars.

There have been on exhibition at Ladd's Drug Store, the past week, some mammoth specimens of the Bahia or Navel orange, one of which weighed twenty-five ounces. They were raised by Wilson Phelps, Esq., on his grove at Osceola.

There was not sufficient room in Mr. Earl's store to accommodate the menbers who wished to attend the service of the Methodist Church last Monday evening. White's Hall has been secured for future meetings, and next Sunday at 7 p. m. Mr. Hugh MacCallum will conduct a preaching service.

We had the pleasure of meeting Dr. William B. Garside, of Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 7th. Dr. Garside, besides being an affable and accomplished gentleman, is looking for a location in Florida, and we hope that he may decide to locate here. Think it over carefully, Doctor, if this should strike your eye.

Work has been begun by the Road Commissioners on the road leading from the canal eastward. We hope it will be prosecuted to completion, for owing to the crookedness of the present road, it is impossible to see teams a short distance ahead, and many awkward meetings have occurred there. Besides, the opening of the road will bring fully to view the lovely properties belonging to Rollins College and Dr. Coer, and make that drive more attractive than now by considerable.

Mr. Andrew Richmond arrived on the 5th for the winter. He reports the prospects for the season as very encouraging to Florida. We are also in receipt of a letter from Mr. C. V. McKinley from Milwaukee, with about the same report. From all the sources from which we can gather information, if Florida does not succeed in having a big boom this winter it will be her own fault. People by the thousands stand ready to come, but in one way and another we are cutting the fool and hindering them. First comes the Railroad Commission, a thing for which our State will have no use for a good many years yet. True, local rates in some parts of the State are burdensome, but we can much better afford to stand each our share of that burden, than to cripple our transportation lines, which are, with scarcely an exception, still incomplete, and hinder them from bringing in the through travel at nominal rates. Through travel is what we want now, and then after awhile when we get our beautiful State nicely settled and our transportation lines get on a firm foundation, put on a strong brake and hold them right down to what is right and just. Well then next, if a man happens to get overheated, or to overwork or overeat, is taken sick and dies suddenly, as people will anywhere, the calumny idiot straightway tells all he meets, "so-and-so died last night, the doctor calls it such-and-such, but you and I know that it can't be anything but yellow fever." The writer knows of $75,000 withdrawn from our section by one man who had fully intended investing it here, through a report of yellow fever in Plant City, Seffner, Orlando, Sanford and Palatka, sent him by letter by one of these calumny idiots, when we all know that the only grain of truth in it was that one case in Palatka. It is not right nor just to suppress the truth, nor is it any more right nor just to spread false alarms, and it certainly is miserable business foresight. No longer ago than yesterday the writer heard a citizen of Orange County say: "With yellow fever, high transportation rates, and a 'dry' county everything is gone to the devil." We look on him as one of his Satanic Majesty's most helpful agents in accomplishing that very result. Long faces, false alarms and forebodings will accomplish it better than any known agency. Let's overcome the evil results of the Commission somehow, let's quit talking of yellow fever as menacing us—it has ceased to do so; let's pitch in and help the Sub-Tropical and the Sanford Exposition. Everybody send out at least three copies of our local papers each week, flood the North with pamphlets, maps and circulars. We need not tell a single lie; we must banish our long faces; we need only to tell the plain truth about our section and its prospective growth and success to fill every corner with thrifty settlers. You croakers and "blue-Monday" fellows try it awhile and see if your prospects do not brighten as soon as you change your tactics. They are sure to.

French and American Newspapers.

Brander Matthews has in the December Century an illustrated article on "Parisian Newspapers" which he begins as follows:

"One of the most characteristic street-cries of London and of New York is never heard in Paris, nor is one of the most picturesque figures in the streets of London and of New York ever seen in the streets of Paris, for in France the noisy and pertinacious news-boy is unknown. The functions of this unstable disseminator of intelligence are filled in Paris by the staid old dame who sits at the receipt of custom in a kiosque. A Parisian kiosque has nothing oriental but the name. It is a little sentry-box of glass, just large enough to shelter the news-vender from the changeable weather of the French capital. On a little stand in front of the kiosque are tiny heaps of the countless newspapers of the city, and on strings on each side are pendent numbers of the chief illustrated journals, artistic and comic. These kiosques are scattered along the boulevards, and from them the Parisian buys his Figaro in the morning and his Temps at five in the afternoon.

The difference of attitude between the hurrying American, who has to have his newspaper brought to him, in haste hot from the press, and the leisurely Frenchman, who is content to pick up his paper when he goes abroad—this difference is far more than external; it is essentially typical of the irreconcilable difference between the French journal and the English or American newspaper. For one thing, the French journal is not a newspaper in the American sense of the word—and of a truth it does not pretend or desire to be. The Figaro now and again makes a ludicrous claim to the ubiquitous omniscience of the London Times or the New York Herald, but this is not to be taken seriously. The fact is, that while the primary quality of a good English or American daily paper is news, the primary quality of a good French paper is not news, but criticism,—criticism of politics in the first place, of course, and, in the second, criticism of commerce, of law, of finance, of science, of art, of literature, and of the drama. The aim and ideal of the best French editors is to present not so much the minor details of a fact, but the best possible opinion on the fact. Of mere brute news, minute particulars of scandals, crimes, and horrors, such as we here in America have dumped upon our breakfast-table every morning, with all the accompanying repetition and accumulation of uninteresting fact,—of all this the reader of the Parisian journal sees little or nothing. The childish or unintelligent thirst to know what has happened, regardless of the importance of the event, has not yet been developed in France by the rivalry of scrambling editors; and it may be asserted without fear of contradiction that even if they could have it without cost and without trouble, French editors would refuse to print most of the trivial trash which cumbers the columns of even the foremost American papers.

Frogs in Commerce.

Almost all the frogs used for experiments in vivisection in the European universities are supplied by an old fisherman of Kopenich, who, for forty-five years past, has devoted himself to this pursuit. Sometimes he has succeeded in catching as many as a thousand in one night. The traffic must be quite profitable, as the frogs sell for an average of two to four cents apiece. Period. Espan.

Printing with Wind Power.

Mr. Max Nicolaus, editor of the Avalanche, Sauk Center, Minn., sends us photographs of his printing office, in which he has two job presses run by a wind-mill—a fact that is exciting considerable attention in that section. Wind is an important agent in the running of political newspapers, especially about election time, but its employment in such prosaic service as doing useful commercial printing is, we believe, quite exceptional.—Scientific American.
