COMRADES.

[THE CENTURY.]

One steed I have of common clay,
And one no less than regal;
By day I jog on old Saddlebags,
By night I fly upon Eagle:
To store, to market, to field to mill,
One plods with patient patter,
Nor hears along the far-off heights
The hoofs of his comrade clatter.

To field, to market, to mill he goes,
Nor sees his comrade gleaming
Where he flies along the purple hills,
Nor the flame from his bridle streaming;
Sees not his track, nor the sparks of fire
So terribly flashing from it,
As they flashed from the track of Alborak
When he bravely carried Mahomet.

One steed, in a few short years, will rest
Under the grasses yonder;
The other will come there centuries hence
To linger and dream and ponder;
And yet both steeds are mine to-day,
The immortal and the mortal;
One beats alone the clods of earth,
One stamps at heaven's portal.

—Henry Ames Blood.

AN EXPLODED IDEA.

Many people have the idea that a warm climate necessarily enervates and relaxes the human system, makes it less capable of nourishing itself and less vigorous in its action, and reduces the energy of the vital force, upon which we depend to build up a strong and well developed body. We do not think the facts bear out this view, plausible as it may seem.

The first condition of a conclusive experiment is the elimination of circumstances other than those whose effects are to be tested, and a moment's thought will show that in the case in question there are a great many other very important circumstances to be taken into the account besides the climate. The Southern States are almost entirely settled by people originally belonging to a colder climate, and only a few generations at most remove the present occupants of the country from those who first came into it. The latter of course brought with them the habits of life learned in their colder native homes, and knew no better than to continue them here and to teach them to their children.

Moreover, in the first settlement of the country, and until modern quick transportation came to their aid, the people were obliged to get along with many inconveniences in obtaining regular and suitable supplies. In the matter of food, especially, the common way in a colder climate to meet an uncertainty of supply, generally coupled with a scarcity of ready cash, had been to raise their own supplies of corn and pork, both of which were easily kept as long as might be necessary. The habits thus formed were quite unsuited to a warm climate, and produced an unfavorable result on the people, who are only now beginning, through closer intercourse with the rest of the world and the light of modern science, to take hold of the question intelligently, and by the aid of modern conveniences to solve it in a practical and healthful way. Instead of the traditional "hog and hominy," the poorest man now commands the markets of the world, and may obtain a sufficient variety of all the necessities of life to enable him to adapt himself to his climatic surroundings and preserve his health. Modern investigation of disease and popularization of the results aids people to understand themselves and make use of their opportunities, and the combined result of all causes is seen in the improved physical condition which even a few years has produced.

As confirming this line of thought, we notice that Mr. Edward Atkinson, of Boston, has recently published the result of a rough preliminary inquiry into the question of the degeneracy alleged by some to be taking place in the physical condition of the human race in America. His method was to collect statistics from the makers of men's clothing in various parts of the country, and thus get at the average measurements of men. From this it appears that the tendency in the South has been very generally to a spare and lean habit, showing in the fact that the average trousers demanded for the southern trade have been small in the waist in proportion to the length of leg. This peculiarity is however shown to be perceptibly yielding to the conditions of better nourishment now surrounding people in the South, as compared with former times, and although the facts brought out in the measurement of clothes may not be enough for a conclusive demonstration, yet they are certainly significant as confirming our position that instead of a degeneration, there is actually an improvement taking place. We maintain, therefore, that rightly used, and the habits of life adapted to it, the southern climate, instead of being the cause of any degeneracy, is more than commonly conducive to good health and the perfect physical development of men, and of all the South, Florida seems to afford greatest freedom from all those extremes of temperature and other unhealthy conditions which assail men in other lands, and to provide in her genial and uniform climate the most perfect outward conditions of unchecked and healthy development.

A Mill Engine Stands Fire.

A very singular incident was noted in connection with a recent mill fire in Carlton, Mich. The building was burning fiercely, but the big engine which drove the machinery continued to run all through the blaze, and by that means was saved from destruction, though there was not a wall standing on any side of it when the fire had finished.

The pumps were also running, and kept the boiler supplied, so that there could be no explosion. It was a peculiar spectacle to see the engine driving away at a slashing speed in the midst of the flames, but the motion somehow saved it from fire. All the rest of the machinery was a total loss.—Scientific American.

WINTER PARK, DEC. 16, 1887.

OUTING for December describes a very pretty picture of Irish hospitality and the stirring scenes with famous packs of that country's foxhounds. The text is liberally illustrated by capital pen-and-ink sketches.

We have received a handsome pamphlet issued by the Palatka Board of Trade, describing their enterprising and beautiful city. The Board has been doing excellent service for some time past in advertising and encouraging immigration, and we commend its example to other towns in the State.

ORANGES have been rushing into market the past week a little too fast, and the price has declined about 25 cents a box. It is reported, too, that much of the fruit is not properly picked and packed, and consequently begins to spoil before reaching its destination. Some is pulled from the tree instead of being clipped, and some is loosely and carelessly packed. In either case the price obtained is sure to be unsatisfactory. It is to be noted, however, that much of the fruit now going forward is from small growers of the blunderbuss order, who have heard that good prices were being obtained, and forthwith rush in with all the fruit they have, without taking time to handle it properly for fear they may be too late. The result is as unsatisfactory to them as cooler headed people might expect it would be. The larger and more experienced growers are only shipping moderate quantities and keeping in mind that whatever risk of lower prices there may be in a little delay, that risk is preferable to the certainty of total loss which they would incur by hasty and careless work. They know too that the crop is not a heavy one, and with reasonable care good prices will be maintained to the end of the season. Indeed the exhaustion of the "tramp" shipments early in the season will tend to make prices firmer and more reliable later on than they are now. Don't be in a hurry.

THE United States Postal Improvement Association has been organized to promote certain reforms aimed at helping the transaction of small business like the sale of seeds and plants through the mails. To this end a reduced rate on such matter is favored, and also the replacement of postal notes by a new issue of fractional paper currency, and a three cent rate for money orders under five dollars. The easy distribution of seeds, roots, cuttings, etc. is a very desirable thing, and there are many other ways in which the easy transmission of small sums of money by mail would be a great convenience to the people. We think however that a return to the "shipplasters" of war times would be a heavy price to pay for the convenience desired. A better plan would be to extend the postal note system to all post offices, even if the limit were reduced to two dollars instead of five; and if the fee were reduced to one cent instead of three it would be a cheaper way for the government to provide for the necessities of the people than to maintain the old fractional currency system, which was always a very expensive one, on account of the rapid wearing out and frequent renewal required. It was moreover a dirty and every way inconvenient medium of exchange as compared with coin. For our part, if we could only be rid of the nuisance of buzzard dollars and have plenty of two and a half and five dollar gold pieces in circulation, we would much prefer having no paper under twenty dollars in value. That is the common system in the principal countries of Europe, and any one who has tried it long enough to be used to it knows how much more convenient it is than ours. No silver above a half dollar and no paper under twenty, with free coinage of both gold and silver, is our preference for solid comfort and convenience of use.

C. L. S. C.

The C. L. S. C. Circle met at the home of Dr. Alden on the 9th. The meeting was opened with music and a prayer by Dr. Hooker. Each member present responded to the roll call with a few lines from Milton, it being his Memorial Day; Dr. Smith read his biography.

A brief outline of twelve chapters of Hale's United States History was given by the class, after which Doctor Jones' criticisms were listened to, and were very kindly received by all.

The "Question Box" was as amusing as well as instructive.

Mr. E. L. Maxson was chosen critic for next meeting.

The programme for next meeting is a debate between Dr. Jones and E. L. Maxson.

It was decided to have the next meeting at Dr. Hooker's on the 19th, to celebrate Christmas by having a social at Mr. Bachelor's during Christmas week. Three new members were added, making a membership of twenty-eight.

Insect Remedies.

The report on entomology made by W. B. Alwood to the Columbus Horticultural Society, last winter, states that many remedies were employed for the two described cabbage worms, consisting of alum water of different degrees of strength, kerosene water, tomato water, benzine, coal oil emulsions of different strengths, Hammond's slug shot, Cayenne pepper, half a dozen remedies from England, several preparations of tobacco soap and pyrethrum. None proved of any value except the tobacco soaps and pyrethrum. The tobacco soaps prepared with potash were quite efficient, the value of which was ascribed to the potash. Pyrethrum is recommended as the best remedy, being perfectly safe, easy of application, and more deadly on the worms than any remedy used. Powder of good quality, mixed with three times its bulk of flour, was found perfectly effective, applied with a dusting bellows. One pound, costing fifty cents, was enough to cover an acre if properly handled. —Scientific American.

JOTTINGS.

Miss Marsh, of Chicago, is at the Rogers House.

Gov. Sinclair, of Orlando, made us a short visit on the 14th.

Mr. Chas. Lord is back for the winter, and is hard at work already. He never loses much time.

Mrs. George W. Godfrey is at Lake Howell on their place, and is looking for Mr. G. very soon.

Mrs. Lothrop, housekeeper at the Seminole, with a large party of the help, is expected to-day.

We don't hear much about Christmas celebration here. Hope something will be gotten up in that line.

Town Clerk Maxson has received a seal for the new town government, which is a very clear and distinct piece of work.

Messrs. Eager and Maxson will remove their stores to the north room in the Henkel Block where they will have more room.

Mr. Ergood has got restless already at being out of business, and will open a fine line of fancy groceries in one of his new rooms soon.

On the completion of his work on the canal, Mr. Paige left for New York, where he will complete arrangements for opening the hotel, and return with his family about the 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Serviss, of Kansas City, Mo., were here on a visit to their friends Doctor and Mrs. Eager. This was their wedding trip, and a very pleasant one we hope it will continue to be.

Morning service will be read in All Saint's Memorial Church on Sunday next at 10:30 a. m. It is desired that all those interested in the continuance of the church services be present.

Robert Given, City Clerk of Sanford, called on us on the 13th. His health is very poor, and he is thinking of living here awhile, probably at Mrs. Guild's. We hope the change will be of great benefit to him.

Rev. T. C. Potter, the new pastor of the Methodist Church, will begin the duties of his pastorate next Sunday morning. He will preach a sermon, receive a number of members, and in the evening assist in a gospel meeting.

White's Hall was occupied for the first time last Sunday evening. It will probably prove a convenient location for meetings, concerts, etc. during the season. The seating capacity will be about one hundred and fifty, and the acoustic properties, when an audience is present, are perfect.

Judge Walker, of Indianapolis, Ind., is at the Rogers House with his wife. His daughter is attending Rollins College. Judge W. has the reputation of being an able judge, and a conscientious, hard-working officer. We hope he will enjoy his brief vacation here enough to become interested with us.

We have had the pleasure of a visit the past week from Mr. Gilbert H. Harington, of Worcester, Mass., who is an extensive manufacturer of firearms there. He is looking for a pleasant winter home for his family, is very much pleased with Winter Park, and we hope will conclude that this is the place.

We had the pleasure of a call from W. E. Arnold of the S. F. R. R. on the 13th. He is the right man for his work of bringing people to this part of the State, and if each railroad and large real estate firm here would get as live a man and start him out, the problem of knocking the California boom silly would soon be accomplished.

Our ladies will be very glad to learn that Miss Cora H. Richardson, of Renovo, Penn., will open in Mr. Ergood's new building a complete stock of all the materials for doing the thousands of kinds of fancy work which the ladies know so well about and the men so little. We shall, therefore, not attempt a description of the business, but will only say that Miss R. has had large experience at some of the largest resorts and watering places in the north, and will come prepared to meet any demand in that line. She will be here about Jan. 1st.

The Methodist Society, being crowded out of its temporary quarters in Mr. Earl's building, has rented White's Hall for a year, and last Sunday evening held its first service there. By the kindness of Messrs. Forbes and Paige of The Seminole, a few settlers were used to increase the seating capacity, and between sixty and seventy persons enjoyed the exercises. Hugh MacCallum spoke on the subject of "The Kindness of God to Man" as illustrated by the relations of David and Mephibosheth. The address was an eloquent one, producing a marked impression upon those present, and though the meeting was of unusual length, none left the room until the close. A large number of new and comfortable chairs will be provided for next Sunday's services.

Mr. Chas. J. Babbitt, of New York, was here to spend last Sunday with Judge Welborne. He is largely interested in one of the strongest companies in the State in the development of a large Spanish grant situated from the Tomoka river northward along the Halifax, and brings the good news that the standard-gauge from St. Augustine through Ormond, Daytona, etc., to New Smyrna is under contract, and will be completed next fall. While we are not directly interested in that road, an improvement of such magnitude anywhere in the State is certainly beneficial to all of us. Mr. Babbitt is a splendid specimen of the results of our climate, for from a very serious attack which left him very low with consumption about four years ago, he is now thoroughly cured, and is well and hearty. He is very enthusiastic about the beauty and prospects of Winter Park.

On last Saturday morning the last stump was blown out of the canal, and the work of removing the dams and the machinery commenced. All was in readiness by about four o'clock, and the Fanny Knowles was steamed up and with Commodore Paige at the wheel started on her first trip into Lake Virginia. The writer had the pleasure of being one of the passengers, and without a jar the little boat went through the canal and entered Lake Virginia just at five o'clock with flag flying and whistle blowing. We were right royally received on that side by the ringing of the College bell, the cheers of the students and residents and the illumination of Mayor White's premises. While, to the outside world, this is a trifling incident, it certainly adds a strong attraction to our pretty little resort. Our steam yachts will now be able to take any who may wish a lovely little sail of about ten miles where, before the opening of the canal, they were confined to about three miles, and we all sincerely hope that this is but the initial movement towards establishing a route for pleasure yachts from Orlando to the St. Johns river, including a run into Lake Minnehaha at Woodbridge.

Exercise in the Treatment of Heart Disease.

For generations the main idea in the treatment of organic heart disease has been physical rest to diminish the labor of the damaged organ. We have been in the habit of prohibiting all forms of active labor to the sufferers from cardiac disease, and the principle of our treatment has been the unexpressed but ever present idea, accepted as a self-evident axiom, that perfect rest was the best means of securing muscular compensation. Professor Oertel's experiments and results have come with startling surprise upon those who forgot to distinguish between a useful principle and the exceptions which the multifariousness of disease renders it imperative to recognize. As is well known, he treats a considerable proportion of cases of organic heart disease by regulated exercise, especially graduated ascents of mountains, and his results place the value of his method beyond reasonable dispute. There is nothing really surprising either in his treatment or the success which has attended it. A little reflection will suffice to convince us that, while rest is often useful, and indeed quite indispensable, in heart disease, there are yet many cases in which well regulated exercise will improve the nutrition of the cardiac muscle, as of the rest of the muscular system, and hence tend to the promotion of circulatory vigor.—Medical Record.

Etching on Glass.

A clean glass plate is coated, without being warmed, with a solution of gum dammar in ether. The exact strength of the varnish is immaterial, though it should not be too weak. When the ether has evaporated, we can light up our smoke factory—the benzoline lamp—and hold the glass, film downward, in the flame, moving it about with a circular motion to prevent the heat being concentrated in one part, which would probably crack the plate. The center of the flame consists of vapor of benzoline, which softens the dammar to such an extent that the soot is absorbed by the film as fast as it settles thereon. If this simple operation is properly done, a quarter or half plate sized glass can be smoked to opacity and will have a smooth, bright surface, which is an excellent condition for being etched, and is quite hard enough to form its own protection—that is, it does not require varnishing.—Br. Jour. of Photo.

The Approach of Venus and Jupiter.

The most interesting planetary observation of the present month is the approach of Venus and Jupiter on the celestial pathway. The morning sky will be made brilliant with their presence among the stars that twinkle in the east, and observers who command a view of the southeastern sky, and are willing to waken early from their slumbers, will be rewarded for their pains when they behold the beauty of the spectacle. The reason for the approach of the two planets may be easily explained. Venus, on the 2nd, reached her greatest western elongation, or greatest distance west of the sun. She then arrived at her western limit, and began to retrace her steps toward the sun, moving eastward. If Venus is moving east and Jupiter is moving west, on the same side of the sun, the approach between them is inevitable. The student of the stars will see this for himself, and will not fail to pay a tribute of admiration to the exceeding beauty of the starlit December sky, among whose glittering hosts the two peerless planets of the sun's family of worlds wend their shining way. On the 1st, Jupiter rises about two hours and a half after Venus. On the 31st, he rises only thirteen minutes after his fair rival.—Scientific American.

Cheap Books.

Brander Matthews advocates international copyright in the December Century. We quote as follows: "I come now to the one class of books the price of which would be increased by the granting of International Copyright. This is the large and important class of fiction. Of course American novels would be no dearer; and probably translations from the French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Russian would not vary greatly in price. But English novels would not be sold for ten, fifteen, twenty, or twenty-five cents each. We should not see five or ten rival reprints of a single story by the most popular English novelists. There would be but a single edition of the latest novels of the leading British story-tellers, and this would be offered at whatsoever price the authorized publisher might choose to ask—sometimes much, generally little. English fiction would no longer cost less than American fiction. The premium of cheapness which now serves to make the American public take imported novels instead of native wares would be removed; and with it would be removed the demoralizing influence on Americans of a constant diet of English fiction. That American men and women should read the best that the better English novelists have to offer us is most desirable; that our laws should encourage the reading of English stories, good and bad together, and the bad, of course, in enormous majority, is obviously improper and unwise. A well-nigh exclusive diet of English fiction, full of the feudal ideas and superstitions and survivals of which we have been striving for a century to rid ourselves, is not wholesome for those who need to be strengthened and enlightened to do their duty as citizens of a free republic. The strongest argument against novel-reading just now is that the novel which an American is most likely to read is British. 'Society is a strong solution of books,' Dr. Holmes tells us; 'it draws the virtue out of what is best worth reading, as hot water draws the strength of tea-leaves.' And in like manner society draws the vice out of what is least worth reading. Unfortunately, under the present state of the law, society in America is far less likely to get what is best worth reading than what is least worth reading. The passage of the Authors' Copyright Bill would tend to correct this evil; it would make English novels dearer, probably; but it would have very little effect on the prices of other books."
