University of Central Florida

STARS

Rosen Library Exhibits

Rosen Library

2004

Tacky Treasures: Vintage Florida Souvenirs, Exhibit Brochure

Linda Black

Deb Ebster

Tim Bottorff

Find similar works at: https://stars.library.ucf.edu/lib-rosen-exhibits

University of Central Florida Libraries http://library.ucf.edu

This Tacky Treasures is brought to you for free and open access by the Rosen Library at STARS. It has been accepted for inclusion in Rosen Library Exhibits by an authorized administrator of STARS. For more information, please contact STARS@ucf.edu.

Recommended Citation

Black, Linda; Ebster, Deb; and Bottorff, Tim, "Tacky Treasures: Vintage Florida Souvenirs, Exhibit Brochure" (2004). Rosen Library Exhibits. 28.

https://stars.library.ucf.edu/lib-rosen-exhibits/28

A HISTORY OF THE FLORIDA SOUVENIR TRADE

The "Tacky Treasures" exhibit pays homage to a more innocent age of travel and consumerism in the Sunshine State.

Long before it blossomed into the multi-billion dollar enterprise that exists today, the Florida tourism industry catered to curious northern visitors who flocked to the state for its "healthful" climate and "exotic" destinations. Indeed, the first wave of visitors began to trickle into Florida settlements such as St. Augustine and Jacksonville as early as the 1830s and '40s, when a network of modern hotels and ship routes began to emerge.

However, the souvenir industry really blossomed during the era between the end of the Civil War and the beginning of the Depression, a period in which Florida emerged as America's most popular tourist destination.

Visitors who flocked to Florida in the latter part of the nineteenth century were often intrigued by locally-made crafts, postcards, and travel guidebooks.

By the turn of the century, tourists' tastes turned towards more refined and expensive mementos, such as fine china, carefully-crafted wooden canes, and sterling silver spoons. Throughout the middle of the twentieth century, Florida's tourism industry still featured numerous "mom and pop" souvenir stands that catered to vacationers driving across the state in search of surf, sun, and sightseeing.

While on the way to Florida's beaches, orange groves, and luxury resorts, the curious and the weary tourist was often lured into roadside stands full of alligator wallets, pink flamingo plates, sundry seashells, and many other keepsakes both cheap and expensive.

Today these "tacky treasures" are highly prized by collectors and historians alike, and the significance of Florida souvenirs as cultural icons has recently been memorialized in museum exhibits, in websites, and in scholarly books and articles (see the Bibliography for more information).

We hope this exhibit contributes to your understanding of this important part of Floridiana and encourages you to explore more of the Sunshine State and its ever-growing tourism industry for yourself.

—Tim Bottorff, Rosen Librarian

Bibliography

The following sources may be helpful for those wishing to learn more about the history of souvenirs and tourism in Florida:

Breslauer, Ken. Roadside Paradise: The Golden Age of Florida 's Tourist Attractions: 1929-1971. St. Petersburg: RetroFlorida, 2000. (Coming soon to Rosen Library)

Brown, William E. and MacCorkle, Lyn. Souvenirs of Miami: 100 Years of Promotional Literature [online exhibit]. Miami: Archives and Special Collections, Otto G. Richter Library, University of Miami, 1996 [cited 26 April 2004]. Available at http://www.library.miami.edu/archives/promo/pro.html

Hollis, Tim. Dixie Before Disney: 100 Years of Roadside Fun. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, 1999. (Rosen General Collection G155 U6 H58 1999)

Orange County Regional History Center.
Orlando: Orange County Regional History
Center, 2000-2004 [cited 26 April 2004].
Available at http://www.thehistorycenter.
org/home. html

Roberts, Larry. Florida Souvenirs 1890 to 1930. [cited 26 April 2004]. Available at http://aarf.com/feflsouv01.html

Roberts, Larry. Florida's Golden Age of Souvenirs: 1890-1930. Gainesville: University Press of Florida, 2001. (Rosen General Collection NK5045 R63 2001)

Shaffer, Marguerite S. See America First: Tourism and National Identity, 1880-1940. Washington, D.C.: Smithsonian Institution Press, 2001. (Rosen General Collection G156.5 H47 S52 2001)

Starnes, Richard D. Southern Journeys: Tourism, History & Culture in the Modern South. Tuscaloosa: University of Alabama Press, 2003. (Rosen General Collection G155 U6 S64 2003)

Rosen Library's Fun & Educational Exhibit

Features more than thirty vintage souvenirs on loan from the Orange County Regional History Center, including such "tacky treasures" as painted plates and cups, miniature vases, antique Florida handkerchiefs, and various other novelties.

For more information about the OCRHC, please call (407)-836-8500 or visit www.thehistorycenter.org

Deb Ebster, Head

Rosen Library
Rosen School of Hospitality Management
University of Central Florida
9907 Universal Boulevard
Orlando, Florida 32819-8701
(407) 903-8100

http://library.ucf.edu/rosen

University of Central Florida

Rosen School of Hospitality Management Library

in association with

The Orange County
Regional History Center

Is pleased to present a Special Exhibit Featuring

Florida
Vintage
Souvenirs from the 1930's=70's

May-June 2004