NEWS YOU CAN USE FROM THE JOHN C. HITT LIBRARY

Patent & Trademark Depository Library

The John C. Hitt Library is one of only 84 patent and trademark depository libraries in the country. If you have an idea that is amazing you might want to consider getting it patented and having a monopoly on the ownership of that product idea for up to 20 years. Just think, you might acquire as much wealth as Bill Gates, have a company as successful and well known as Apple or improve the lives of people, like Dr. Raymond Damadian, who received a patent in the field of MRI (magnetic resonance imaging). In addition to patent assistance, the John C. Hitt Library also provides trademark assistance in finding out if you have a unique name for your company or product line.

If you have any questions on patents or trademarks, contact Hal Mendelsohn at 407-823-3604 or hal@ucf.edu.

OPEN  International
ACCESS WEEK

Monday, 10/20,
9am - 3:30pm,
TA 117

Join us as we discuss publishing in open access with Peter Suber, IEEE, Springer, Gale, Taylor & Francis and several faculty members!

library.ucf.edu/ScholarlyCommunication/OpenAccessWeek

Join us to engage in the movement that's sweeping the world, Open Access! Harvard's Director of Scholarly Communication, Peter Suber, will kick off the day by answering your questions. Then stick around to enjoy one or more presentations about open access by academic publishing companies as well as several UCF faculty from a variety of disciplines. Visit us online to submit questions for Peter Suber or one of the publishers & to learn more details about this event.
