Lady Tars Make Second Straight Appearance at NCAA Tournament

Debbie Levy

The Sandspur

After winning their second straight Sunshine State conference championship, the women's basketball team now have their sights set on Cleveland, Mississippi for the first round of 2000 NCAA Division II Championship tournament.

The ladies are ranked third in the Southern region. They will go head to head with sixth-ranked Fort Valley State, from Fort Valley State, Georgia. The game takes place on the 9th at 5:30pm. If they beat out Fort Valley State, they will then head off to the regional semi-finals verse number two Arkansas State.

Last year, the women made it to the regional semi-finals but were stopped by Arkansas State. Arkansas State ended up going all the way to compete for the national championship.

This year's finals are located in Pine Bluff, Arkansas on March 22-23 and 25.

Rollins College is considered one of the smallest schools's in this tournament. With an undergraduate enrollment of about 1,500, Rollins could face North Dakota State on March 22, with an enrollment of 25,000.

Women's Basketball coach Glenn Wilkes, Jr. said, "This is the best season ever for the team. We have never won back to back conference championships."

Last year the team was ranked number 12 by the USA Today poll. That was an all-time Rollins College women's basketball high. Now, the Tars have crushed this record by being ranked ninth in this week's poll.

"We have exceeded the expectations this year," said Wilkes. He added "The team was no expected to win the league and now where competing for the nationals."

By publication limitations, we are unavailable to print the game results. Please look to the next issue of The Sandspur for the latest results on the Women's Basketball team's NCAA Division II Championship.

If you arrived at the second Annual "Lip Sync" on Thursday March 2 at Dave's Down Under 15 minutes before 8:00 p.m., chances were you were unable to find a seat. By 8:00 p.m., you could not get past the entrance door as approximately 450 students awaited the event.

Thirteen organizations participated in "Lip Sync" this year. Participants ranged from fraternity members to members of religious clubs. Organizer of the event, Council of Leaders President, Karla Torres said, "Everyone involved seemed to have enjoyed themselves a whole lot, the participants, the judges, and especially the audience."

A trend seemed to have occurred when Back Street Boys look-a-likes made repeated appearances throughout the evening. Other acts ranged from a 70's theme to some good old Garth Brooks.

One participant, Lindsay Lathrop, who performed in Kappa Alpha Theta's "Buttercup" said, "I was impressed. This was one of the only school spirited things this year. It was so much fun and a good idea."

It was not only the students that commented positively but the faculty and staff as well. Administrative Assistant of Student Activities, Colleen Gray said, "I thought it was incredible - I laughed my head off." Grey added, "Programs like this where you bring in a lot of students don't happen often at this school but it's happened twice this year with this program and the football game."

The Student Government Association put on both of these events.

According to judge Sebastian Contreras, "All the participants put on a winning performance." However, only six organizations could go home with a prize.

First Place Rollins Players/BGLAAD, second McKean Hall, third Chi Omega. The honorable mentions went to Kappa Kappa Gamma, Kappa Delta, and Alpha Tau Omega.

Kappa Alpha Theta "Buttercup"

When asked about a possible 3rd Annual "Lip Sync" next year Torres said, "Council of Leaders strives to strengthen our campus community by creating unity among the students and this program accomplishes that." She added, "I think this Lip Sync will be established as a Rollins tradition that will continue for years to come."

Mozambique Fears More Rain, Flooding

Mike Cohen
Associated Press Writer

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — With heavy rain predicted next week, authorities on Sunday warned thousands of displaced Mozambicans against returning to low-lying areas to search for what is left of their homes and possessions.

With flood waters receding at least temporarily, rescue workers and aid officials said the risk of drowning had diminished. The task now, they said, was to distribute aid to the desperately hungry and thirsty flood survivors.

"The rescue phase is coming to a close," said Ross Mountain, a special envoy for U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan. But Mountain, who spent two days flying over submerged areas of the southeast African nation, said that survivors were ignoring warnings of more flooding and searching for their belongings, raising the possibility that they may need to be rescued again if heavy rains and flooding resume.

Although the distribution of emergency aid was gaining pace, President Joachim Chissano said the international community had been slow to respond to the catastrophe, an allegation the U.N. envoy denied.

"It does take time to get helicopters from Europe. We need to be realistic," Mountain said. More than $40 million had already been pledged for emergency relief and reconstruction, he said.

Chissano said people affected by the floods would need to be fed for at least 10 months, until they could grow new crops. He also said a minimum of $250 million would be needed for reconstruction and pleaded to Mozambique's creditors to forgive the country's foreign debt.

Aid workers said they expected the death toll from the disaster to soar into the thousands as water levels dropped in southern Mozambique, revealing the mud-covered remains of the dead.

Michigan School Copes After Violence

Lisa Singhania
Associated Press Writer

MOUNT MORRIS TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — To help students and teachers at Buell Elementary move past the shooting of 6-year-old Kayla Rolland, counselors will ask them to relive the tragedy, to remember as much as they can.

It might not sound like the right thing to do, said John Stein, the deputy director of the National Organization for Victim Assistance. But he says it's the best way for anyone to recover from the trauma.

"It seems to alleviate the power of these memories to be disruptive and debilitating... Without doing much thinking, you're a prisoner to emotional fragments," Stein said.

Six NOVA volunteers talked to teachers and students at the school on Friday. There will be counselors in each classroom Monday when school reopens, and teddy bears for each student, the organization's Bill Pfohel said Saturday.

"As soon as we can get back into a routine, the healing can begin," Pfohel said.

Of the people they work with, he said, "We will see anger, deep sadness, grief and guilt. They're really happy their child is alive, but they feel tremendous guilt because another child — a 6-year-old isn't."

Kayla was shot to death Tuesday, allegedly by a 6-year-old classmate. She was laid to rest Saturday at a private funeral.

World's Population Getting Fatter

David Briscoe
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population is growing — at the waist. For the first time in history, there may be as many people overweight, 1.1 billion, as underfed, researchers report.

Just because people are gaining weight does not mean the world is better fed or healthier than it was two decades ago when millions more were starving, the environmental research group Worldwatch Institute said in a report released Sunday. In fact, the report says being obese and underweight often results from the same problem: malnutrition.

In some countries there is a growing "weight gap." Well-off minorities in India, China, Brazil and some other developing nations are growing fat as the poor go hungry.

America and other wealthier countries have the opposite problem: The richer and better-educated tend to eat right, while the poor often balloon from a diet of cheap and fatty fast foods.

"Often, nations simply have traded hunger for obesity, and diseases of poverty for diseases of excess," said Worldwatch researcher Brian Halwell, who wrote the report with fellow researcher Gary Gardner.

In the United States, 55 percent of the population is overweight, with one in four adults considered obese, according to the most recent surveys cited in the report.

Russia, the United Kingdom and Germany also have overweight majorities, U.N. studies show. In comparison, 56 percent of Bangladesh's population is underweight. The figure is 53 percent for India.

Despite overall progress in feeding the world that has led to sharp reductions of underweight children in Asia and Latin America since 1980, the number of underfed children continues to grow in the poorest countries, in sub-Saharan Africa.

Both the overweight and the underweight live in worlds of sickness, disability, shortened life expectancy and lower productivity levels, Halwell said.

"This is not based on some fashion magazine's notion of proper weight or the standard set by the latest sitcom star," but on a widely accepted international standard, Halwell said in an interview.

A Letter from the Editor

We have all heard it before,
but I will say it again, Rollins College lacks in school spirit.
Granted, we are not a large school with a football team and stadium to rally around, (heck, we do not even have a fieldhouse!) but what we do have,
we need to recognize.

The women's basketball team has accepted their second straight bid for the NCAA Division II tournament.
Congratulations! I have a hunch most of you reading this letter did not know that.

These ladies work hard, on and off the court, and they should be recognized. If Rollins were a Division I school and made it to the tournament, it would make national news. The name of the school would be printed in every newspaper across the nation in the tournament schedule.

However, here at Rollins the team's name has only had a 15-second mention on the local news and is barely a buzz on campus. It is time for a change.

The women left for their first round on Wednesday morning.
Therefore, it is too late now to wish them well. But, if you see any of the lady Tars walking around campus, when they return, please tell them you're proud of them and you are behind them all the way.

Go TARS!

Dear Dea

Dear Dea,

I am really lonely here at Rollins and the other students don't seem to care to get to know me. I am friendly and reach out to others, but everyone seems so cold and artificial! Is everyone super wealthy here? Help me find some REAL people!

— Excluded in Elizabeth

Dear Excluded,

It is really difficult to feel so lonely and to try to make friendships with people that you truly see as superficial. It will be important for you to begin looking beyond the obvious image consciousness that some people portray and look for some friends who hold values more close to your own.

You may find some people you better relate to if you get involved in inclusive, rather than exclusive, campus groups. An inclusive group welcomes new members and looks to include everyone. In contrast, an exclusive group has rules in place that exclude people from participating.

Another idea is to get involved in some new student activities where the members are friendly. If you aren't sure what groups to join, talk to the staff at the student activities office. They are very knowledgeable and are more than willing to help you make some significant connections on campus.

Be willing to take the risk to reach out beyond your comfort zone and attend some places on campus that may not have been your first choice for involvement. You will likely be surprised at how enjoyable some things are if you will just give them a chance.

In addition, seeing the negative in things often protects us from taking risks and seeing things from a different perspective. It is easy to find blame outside of ourselves that often paralyzes us to the point of inaction. Please don't fall into this trap!

Potential academic majors have clubs and interest groups. Ask your favorite professor when the clubs meet.

Finally, get encouragement from family, friends at home, and staff to motivate you to take some risks and reach out.

Dear Dea,

I am so anxious and worried about all of the work that I have to do. I am freaking out! In class the other day I thought I was having a panic attack. My heart started racing and my palms got sweaty, I was shaky, and I thought I was going to faint! How do I make myself calm down in order to finish all of my work?

— Gasping in Gale

Dear Gasping,

First of all, know that you are not alone! Many students are feeling overwhelmed by everything that they have to do right now. This is one of the busiest times of the year and the feelings you have experienced are not uncommon.

It is very important for you to take a step back, sort out all of your work, and take it one step at a time. Make a decision to do one thing at a time, from start to finish, so you feel like you are accomplishing something.

Another important tool to help you learn to relax is to engage in breathing exercises. Take a deep breath, breathing in through your nose, holding it for a few seconds, then releasing your breath out of your mouth. Breathe deep into your abdomen, not into your chest. Doing this deep breathing exercise three times will automatically bring a sense of relaxation to your tense body.

If you want further instruction on breathing and other relaxation tools, the counseling center on campus has books to help you.

Also, learn to challenge your negative self-statements with rational alternatives. For example, when you begin to tell yourself that you have too much to do and will never get it done, challenge that statement with one like, "I've got a lot to do, but I will get it all done. All I need to do is take it one step at a time. I can do this."

Finally, if you find yourself feeling panicked, don't fight those feelings. Instead, go with the panic. Panic is a biological response to perceived fear or danger. Once you understand why you are responding with feelings of panic, you will understand that this response is normal because your thoughts are filled with fear.

You can control and change your thoughts and subsequently your feelings will change. You will then, once again, gain control.

Sweet and Lowdown

Marc Richfield

The Sandspur

I had missed the last several Woody Allen flicks, so I was anxious to discover what the American legend was doing. He's come back this time with a truly unique story about a fictional 1930s jazz guitarist. His name's Emmet Ray and he's an egotistical, emotionally-guarded, brilliant musician who doesn't know how to handle women and being an artist at the same time.

Emmet's playing is unarguably "sweet," but his personality isn't. He's a womanizer whose favorite pastimes include watching trains, buying clothes, and shooting rats.

As a free-spirited artist, Emmet feels that he can't be tied down to a woman, but has a hard time convincing himself that this is so after meeting Hattie. She's a mute, and she puts up with Emmet's crudeness because she's spell-bound by his guitar playing. He has regrettably fallen in love with her, but forces himself to leave her after about a year.

Emmet and Hattie, played by Sean Penn and Samantha Morton, both give masterful performances that has earned each of them Oscar nominations. Proclaiming himself as the second-best guitarist in the world, Emmet is played by Penn as an aloof, artistic jerk until

Travel Safety Information
For Students

As the time approaches for spring or summer breaks, many college students are getting ready for that much anticipated trip abroad. Most will have a safe and enjoyable adventure, but for some, the trip will become a nightmare. A number of ruined vacations are caused by one or more of the following: drugs, alcohol and disorderly behavior.

Each year, more than 2,500 American citizens are arrested abroad—about half on narcotics charges, including possession of very small amounts of illegal substances. A drug that may be legal in one country may not be legal in a neighboring nation. Some young people are victimized because they may be unaware of the laws, customs, or standards of the country they are visiting.

Besides drugs, alcohol can also get U.S. citizens in trouble abroad. Students have been arrested for being intoxicated in public areas, underage drinking, and for drunk driving. Some young Americans go abroad assuming that local authorities will overlook such conduct. Many believe that they are immune from prosecution in foreign lands because they are American citizens. The truth is that Americans are expected to obey all of the laws of the countries they visit, and those who break these laws sometimes face severe penalties.

Disorderly or reckless behavior is also to be avoided. In many countries, conduct that would not result in an arrest here in the U.S. constitutes a violation of local law. It is crucial that young Americans be aware of this risk as they are enjoying their time abroad.

Being arrested is not the only thing that can happen on a foreign vacation. Young Americans have been killed in automobile accidents, drownings, and falls because of heavy drinking and drug use. Sadly, others have been raped or robbed because they have found themselves in unfamiliar locales and incapable of exercising prudent judgment.

Remember: Reckless behavior while in another country can do more than ruin your vacation; it can land you in a foreign jail or worse! To have a safe trip, avoid risky behavior and become familiar with the basic laws and customs of the country you plan to visit before you travel. To obtain more information about traveling abroad, check the Department of State's web site at <http://travel.state.gov>.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE
WASHINGTON

Dear Editor:

As the season of spring breaks and summer vacations approaches, I ask for your assistance in alerting American students about the risks and consequences of reckless behavior while studying or traveling abroad.

Each year, many American students serve time in foreign jails or await trial in detention because they were unaware of the risks of using or possessing drugs while overseas. Many young Americans are also arrested in foreign lands because of inappropriate behavior associated with heavy drinking.

The State Department's Bureau of Consular Affairs is responsible for the protection and welfare of U.S. citizens abroad. But while U.S. consular officers can visit American citizens being held in foreign jails, they cannot get them released.

Enclosed is the State Department's press release urging young Americans to act responsibly when they travel. Additional safety information can be viewed and downloaded from the Consular Affairs' home page on the Internet at <http://travel.state.gov>.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Madeleine Albright

Tars Rally for Third Straight Victory

WINTER PARK, FL — Mark O'Sullivan drove home Peter Fitzgerald with the game-winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift the Rollins College baseball team (11-10) to a 6-5 victory over Philadelphia Textile (10-2). Rollins had led throughout the game until the Rams scored four runs in the top of the ninth to take a one run lead. The Tars then scored twice in the bottom of the inning to claim their third straight victory.

Barton Vaughn allowed only one run and four hits over the first eight innings for the Tars, but he allowed a walk and single to the first two batters of the ninth before being relieved by David Bean. The Rams eventually scored four runs, three of them earned, to take a one run lead. In the bottom of the ninth, the Rams retired the first Rollins batter before Justin Sherrod reached on an error.

A single by Peter Fitzgerald and an intentional walk to Barton Vaughn loaded the bases. Jason Cloar, who had three hits in the game, was hit with the bases loaded to score the tying run. O'Sullivan's fielder's choice plated the winning run.

Cloar had three hits and drove home two runs for the Tars while Barton Vaughn also drove home two runners in the game. David Bean (1-1) earned his first victory of the season after blowing the save opportunity.

Rollins will look to continue their winning ways beginning Monday as they host the 53rd annual Rollins College Baseball Week at Alford Stadium.

Orlando Hosts Premier Water-Sports Event

ORLANDO, FL — Making its 17th season as the premier professional water-sports tour, the U.S. Pro Water Ski and Wakeboard Tour is launching a whole new look and feel for Pro Tour 2000. The city of Orlando will host the Hang Ten Open April 13-16, at the Orlando Watersports Complex. With the reemergence of the superstars of women's skiing and wakeboarders now hitting launch ramps and rail slides, Pro Tour 2000 promises sports action never seen before.

The change in the format for wakeboarding is dramatic and promises to take the sport to new heights. Beginning this year, the course will include three obstacles for the riders to "hit" in addition to their air trick runs. On a course designed similarly to a street course in skateboarding, the rider will have access to a slider, a kicker, and the Pro

Tour's jump ramp converted to an intense takeoff platform for the riders.

The new format may make it difficult to predict a winner each weekend, but defending champion Shaun Murray and 18-year-old Parks Bonifay — the rider Time magazine once compared to Tiger Woods — should be near the top. In women's wakeboarding, Tara Hamilton and last year's two top rookies, Emily Copeland and Maeghan Major, will fight it out for the title.

The other dramatic change is the superstars of women's skiing joining the Tour. "The consensus was that the ideal time to launch the women skiers back on the Pro Tour would be in 2000," said Terrence Dornier, head of the Pro Tour. "We think this is an exciting time for women's sports and specifically women's water skiing. The talent level is out there. The level of competition will be extremely high."

Women stars you can expect to compete include Kristi Overton Johnson, Toni Neville, and Susi Graham. Rhoni Barton, April Coble, and Karen Truelove comprise a list of young stars looking for a breakout year. Four-time world champion, Helena Kjellander, will also be a factor as she battles her way back from injury.

Men's slalom star, Andy Mapple, will go into the 2000 season with more than 125 career wins and looking for more. And in men's jumping, a group known as the "Fab Five" will again battle it out for the title. This elite group of jumpers includes Jaret Llewellyn, Bruce Neville, Scot Ellis, Curtis Sheers, and Freddy Krueger.

Tars Split Double Header with Clarion

DOCOA, FL — The Rollins college softball team (2-2) split a pair of games with Clarion University (3-5). The Tars dropped the opener 5-2, but came back to win game two 2-0.

Rollins took the early lead in game one when Crystal Ritchey hit a solo home run in the bottom of the first inning. Ritchey came through again in the Tars third inning as she singled in Leigh Ferguson to put the Tars up 2-0.

Clarion rallied in the top of the fifth scoring two runs and added their final three runs in the top of the sixth inning. Kristen Dinkel had four hits and one RBI for the Golden Eagles.

Diane Whitesides (1-0) picked up the win for Clarion and Hagen Hastings (0-2) got the loss.

In the second game the Tars Michelle Wakeman (2-0) picked up the win as she struck out seven, allowed only two hits, and gave up no runs in seven innings of action. Lora Bonifacio came in to score the Tars first run when Clarion's shortstop made a throwing error in the top of the second. In the third, Haylee Dean walked, reached second on a Candice Hays single, and was driven home by a Bonifacio single. Clarion's Melissa Gring (0-2) got the loss.
