Andrew Dury and loving friend, I have since at thirty five Bas and one of y<sup>e</sup> y<sup>e</sup> had with live Basals Ruin to the Governor, & on his account at one shilling to of Gallan, & still I keep y<sup>e</sup> by me, hoping for a better could be glad if I had had more Maltese altho it is not fruits nor I care but it w<sup>o</sup>ld save me from buying & more family with a bough of it, then Ruin; well as to Gilbert Wheders estate I have been dealing with him about it, and he has sett down what it is, & how it lieth, as to pleasant sight & health of with a description of the house & things is pretty but only the barn is not extraordinary & land is good & fine But wants muddering holake, the can have 300 storey lies next to it very reasonable which I believe is true, for it is ordinary land but has an house on it, this may be an argument to draw the to deals, thou may consider of it, it is a highest of shops & boat god in ordinary, & I have, I am waiting for a price we shall know it anon, thou w<sup>o</sup>ld one it seems bid Gilbert on the an, & I but I thought, & told them it was a great sum of money, but I stuck as he has use profit with half of the m<sup>o</sup> of them, & of some other produce of the earth, some of the best & ex<sup>o</sup> profit may help, now he has brought in a part I think I think high it being in England, & I I don't whether thou wilt be willing to lend out so much or within one hour I don't know or how, what price thou wilt deliver goods at he and other I don't manage of it, but if thou w<sup>o</sup>ld god to refuse sum only advised so, or if he will come down to my liking for sum pay as thou offers, then we may god to it more fully, after I w<sup>o</sup>ld consider of it first, for I believe he is resolved to sell, & I w<sup>o</sup>ld to him to send away for first, I may send by another hand to some purpose, & the should be, I wait to hear of they, & I am joining to thy self w<sup>o</sup>ld send in the to be charge, therefore it is not done, so handing, & I doe but doe god to thee of him with my wife, I w<sup>o</sup>ld also w<sup>o</sup>ld to thee thy wife remembered, I rest thy loving friend
