FTU Hosts BOR Meeting

By Dana Eagles

The Board of Regents of the State University System meeting at FTU's Village Center Monday threw out further consideration of a proposal by the panel's finance committee to eliminate the lower divisions at FTU and the University of South Florida at Tampa as a cost-cutting measure.

The decision came on a wave of widespread criticism from students, parents, community leaders, educators, and politicians both from within the two universities and around the state.

The capacity crowds and demonstrations to protest the proposed action predicted by some student leaders never materialized, as skepticism increased over whether the action was actually being seriously considered by the Regents or was merely a "power play" to make suggested tuition hikes of fifty cents per hour seem mild by comparison.

There were cases, however, of heckling among members of the audience, composed mostly of FTU students, in response to Chancellor Robert Mautz's claim that a mathematical average for the size of lower division classes was about thirty and to the plan that seventy-three percent of reserve funds used to subsidize the faltering 1974-75 SUS budget be granted to the University of Florida.

Regent Jack McGriff drew applause, however, from his attack of the lower division cutback, claiming that the elimination of freshmen and sophomore classes at the two universities would merely redistribute the students and place them into community colleges instead. Said McGriff, "I can't see any savings to the taxpayer."

BOR Chairman Marshall Criser brought the crowd to order several times during the meeting, accepting the vested interest of those attending, but urging patience in order to "get all the facts".

Criser opened the session calling the financial issue "not a one-faceted problem but a many-faceted problem" and said the Regents were not to determine "panaceas, but solutions for the times."

He then asked if the bright television lighting stationed at both sides of the assembly room could be turned off in the interest of saving utility dollars for the university. There was no response from the cameramen.

The board approved the plan to reduce spending for this fiscal year to an adjusted level of 2.6 percent, after a poll of several university presidents requested by Regent Chester Ferguson, including FTU President Charles Millican.

Millican, who a week before was "assured" that necessary reductions could be effected through normal personnel attrition, regular admission procedures, a moratorium on merit increases for employees but with no wage or salary reductions, reported to the board that FTU could comply with the proposal.

Other administrators sampled, however, cited hardships in meeting the economic demands.

The Board requested a $392.4 million appropriation for 1975-76. Governor Reubin Askew asked all state agencies to reduce budget requests to the 1974-75 level which would mean a budget of $328 million for the SUS.

In addition, Mautz reported, State Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington advised the SUS to make a further cut of ten million dollars from the 1974-75 budget in planning for the coming fiscal year. The board approved a priority list slicing $78 million from next year's projected request.

The question was called to vote on elimination of the lower division question as a viable proposal after only one speaker commented.

The vote was five for and two against, with Regents Harris and Kippler voting to keep the measure intact as a proposal. Harris, concerned with the quality of education available with growing enrollments and decreasing budgets, felt the elimination of the lower divisions was a considerable alternative, citing three ways of meeting the crisis as increasing other income, increasing productivity, and reducing the number of students within the system.

In other actions, the BOR lifted the ban on admissions of freshmen statewide, and approved hikes in University of Florida housing fees and an agreement for distribution of patent proceeds on a device invented by three FTU Engineering professors.

Relief was expressed on the FTU campus as the proposed action was defeated. The recommendation had drawn fire from many sources, among them ninth district Congressman Lou Frey, who called it "ill-advised, ill-conceived, and unfair...."

None of the recommendations proved popular in the two-and-a-half week debate that followed their release.

One regent Monday, however, said that from the start they were "highly tentative" and had become "widely misinterpreted" by the public.

Meal Plan Possibly Cancelled

After six years of operation, John Williams, Director of Administrative Services, this week revealed his intention to cancel the Fee Management food contract with Missison, Inc. at the close of the spring quarter this year.

Williams cited several factors which prompted the decision. "We are mainly dissatisfied with the type of contract more than anything else. Basically, it's a cost-plus contract. The contractor bills us for their expenses of operation, then adds the management fee which is currently costing us more than $20,000 per year."

A fee management type contract provides little incentive for a company to operate efficiently since, in effect, FTU is paying the contractor while guaranteeing contractor profits. This is readily evident to the University, which has suffered operating losses for the past several years.

According to Williams, a new profit-loss type contract will be bid sometime in March or early April, with the selected contractor commencing operation at the beginning of the summer quarter.

The new contract will specify that the contractor will assume all risks of operating on either a profit or loss basis.

"Under this system, the University need no longer run the risk of losses. Instead, the contractor will be forced to provide an efficiently run, quality food service if he plans to make a profit," Williams said.

"He will have to merchandise his program and offer a variety of specials to a much greater extent than is currently being done. I think that overall, the FTU food service will improve greatly as a result of the change, benefiting not only the resident students, but the entire University community."

Williams indicated that apparently there are several companies interested in bidding on the FTU operation. He also pointed out that until the formal bid opening, many of these companies would be conducting surveys and talking to various students and University officials.

Sharon Esposito, President of the Residence Hall Association, whose organization has been spearheading an effort to improve food service since December of 1973 explained that the change was "not something that happened overnight," adding that it was the "final culmination of trying to fix what we had."

The RHA will have a hand in looking at the various specifications contained in the new contract and Esposito agrees with Williams that the present contract provides little incentive to sell.

Esposito enumerated major problems with the food service. "Outrageous" prices charged for "ground meat, hamburger, and chicken," when the service allegedly promised a variety of main courses contributed to the patrons' discontent.

Efforts have been made recently, Esposito notes, but are examples of what she terms "trying too late," indicating much of the "wonderful promised progress" never materialized.

The RHA will apparently push for service on weekends, and during the summer quarters.

Among the proposals, include a ten-meal plan, which would buy the student any ten meals during the week, a fifteen-meal plan, and a 20-meal plan, offering a brunch on Sunday.

VA Offers Increased Assistance

By John Bridges

Some 1,948 FTU students are now receiving increased educational assistance through the FTU office of Veterans' Affairs.

Ken Kennedy, of the FTU office, said that the total figure of FTU students was based on all types of VA assistance available.

Last December, rate increases went into effect, retroactive to September 1, 1974. The increases boosted rates, for Chapter 34 and 35 eligibles enrolled in pursuit of a degree, up 22.7 per cent.

Rates for other forms of VA training were increased 18.2 per cent.

According to Kennedy, other important aspects of the increases affected tutorial assistance, educational loans and refresher training.

Under the new rates, tutorial benefits have increased from $50 to $60, the overall maximum from $450 to $720. Tutorial assistance is specifically identified as a service to be provided as needed to Chapter 31 veterans.

Educational loans are now available to those pursuing a degree, who have been unable to secure sufficient loans through other Federal loan programs. The VA will make direct loans up to a maximum of $600 per academic year.

Veterans discharged after January, 1955, with 36 months of entitlement may be provided up to 9 months of additional benefits for use in pursuing an undergraduate degree.

Veterans may be provided up to 6 months of educational assistance for refresher training to update their skills and bring them abreast of recent technological advances.

Educational benefits for all VA eligibles, have been increased in length from 36 to 45 months in addition to the increased rates.

Astrology Classes To Begin

Richard Stewart Bell, an Orlando-based astrologer, studies the phenomenon as a science.

As a teacher, writer and lecturer on the subject in which he has immersed himself for the past seven years, Bell next week begins a series of classes in Orlando to clear away the myths and mysticism concerning astrology and present the facts to the interested public. The facts, says Bell, speak for themselves.

Bell's column, "Dear Astrologer," begins this week in the FuTure.

In the past decade, scientific research has supported astrology, an ancient science that has been used as a tool for forecasting the future and understanding human temperaments. Since the dawn of man, a belief that the sun, moon, and planets affect man is no longer unscientific.

European studies have shown that the planets in our solar system are linked to genetics and an individual's future career. To think that planets affect our personal lives is no longer in the realm of belief, says the young astrologer - research has proven it.

The popular astrology columns in newspapers around the world plus the renaissance in astrology has made the study fashionable.

In intellectual circles in Europe and the U.S., astrology is a popular subject for conversation. "What's your sign?" is perhaps the most often heard question at many parties. Everyone knows what sign of the Zodiac they belong to and in addition to knowing their "sun sign," many know their "moon sign" and "ascending sign."

Astrology was used by Carl Jung, a Swiss psycho-analyst who contributed the terms "introvert" and "extrovert" to our modern vocabularies.

In his practice, it was standard procedure to find the horoscope of the client to pinpoint physiological complexes and then to apply the psycho-analytic technique to resolve the conflicts explained by the horoscope.

Comparison of horoscopes shows how people will get along together, says Bell and the wise couple who have marriage plans would make a sound move in having their respective horoscopes compared to see their durability and long-range compatibility.

Bell, whose wife graduated from FTU, notes that forecasting the future is another use of astrology, perhaps the most popular, but that astrology has tremendous value to psychology and bio-physics.

In the past decade, scientific research has revealed that the heavenly bodies have some bearing on life here on earth. European statistical studies have linked the planets to genetics and career selection.

Dr. Frank Brown of Northwestern University has discovered that plants and animals seem to be controlled by external forces termed "exogenous forces" - rhythms from the sun and moon.

Studies at the University of Miami have shown that during certain planetary configurations, admissions to hospitals increase and that mass human excitability is accentuated, resulting in higher crime rates and abnormal behavior.

Dr. J. Edson Andrews of Tallahassee states that more post-operative bleeding occurs from the new moon to the third quarter. The Record Corporation of America (RCA) studies planetary configurations to predict severe electro-magnetic storms.

This evidence and more has been compiled by Richard Bell who plans to use it in what he hopes will be a successful series of class sessions to try to convince a sometimes skeptical public that astrology is for real.

More horizons are opening for the astrologer, including national syndication of his column, beginning in March. The column, which has been published by the Tico Times, a Costa Rica English-language newspaper, is unique in its league in that it features a question and answer format along with the regular forecast.

The class which begins February 13, is now open for registration by contacting Larry Werts at 851-2837.

EDITORIAL

By Dana Eagles

Hindsight is always 20-20, but one cannot wonder if the public did not overreact to the fateful proposal of the Board of Regents to abort the continued growth of FTU by removing half its members, and when the news leaked, it had some possibly well-meaning regents scurrying under their conference table for cover. There are still unanswered questions, such as whether or not anyone in high places took the notion seriously in the first place. Without that knowledge, however, the community retaliated as if the idea itself was a death certificate for FTU's lower division, and the defense was in Battle of Britain-like proportions. The Regents' secretary stated he had never seen such a reaction in his entire career; Marshall Criser's "solutions for the times" went wanting for a place on the calendar.

But the dismay thing about Monday's fiasco was not the proposal itself, albeit an ill-conceived and superficial answer, not the Regents themselves, although their comments and actions were at least politically unwise, if not managerially inept, but the underlying refusal by those who should have been concerned rather than volatile about conditions that prompted the recommendations to accept the grave financial realities of running a system of state universities with inflation, recession, an economy-motivated funding system, and a budget cut far below the figure that existed before things really got bad.

Just as disconcerting is the attitude projected by some that the state owes the average citizen a higher education by virtue of his citizenship, while the tuition paid by the consumer is an almost miniscule portion of the total expense. In brief, the public university student is not in the greatest bargaining position to demand anything except what is guaranteed to him by law, and should place some respect in executive body that is underwriting his future.

As other administrators were making arrogant complaints and demands about the difficulties imposed, FTU's President Millican told the board he would do his best to work under the conditions and somehow we would make it through. He was not about to waste time wishing the problems were not there.

Of course there will be hardships. There is much to do and very little money. But we are convinced that the BOR is interested in the overall picture of making it through the low revenue period, though they are vulnerable to error. If you're tired of hearing about biting the bullet, try this one: don't bite the hand that feeds.

Millican's Letter

To: The University Community

Now that the question of eliminating freshmen and sophomores at FTU and USF has been laid to rest by the vote of the Florida Board of Regents yesterday, I want to express my appreciation to the entire FTU faculty, staff, and students for the excellent cooperation in working together to resolve this problem and for the fine way in which everyone conducted themselves at the meeting.

As one of you so aptly stated in a communication to me last week, now the faculty can get back to the business of teaching and the students to the matter of learning!

Charles N. Millican
President

PSST! HEY KID, WANNA BUY THE ANSWER TO NUMBER TEN?

Hallways

Anyone who attended the BOR meeting Monday should be aware of the rotten economic situation the state of Florida is in right now. If you aren't aware of the way things are, you will find out soon enough. The Board decided (in addition to killing that stupid freshman-sophomore thing) to cut $6.3 million from the state university systems budget for this year. Plus, they have a list of cuts for next year totaling $78 million. And all because the state is suffering from poor economic health. But then, so is the entire country and most other industrial nations throughout the world. Times are rough all over. All we can do, I suppose, is attempt to make the best of adversity. But how do we make the best of inflation and recession? Easy! We organize the 1975 Economic Downturn Olympics. Here is the way it would go...

The opening ceremony begins with the parade of unemployed. This lasts for two weeks. Then a runner, bearing a flaming "Wall Street Journal" runs from the New York Stock Exchange to the main offices of Chrysler Corporation where he ignites a huge pile of common stock.

Then the games begin. The first contest is the price hike dash. Each competitor is given a pound of sugar. At the sound of the gun they dash for a cash register 100 yards away. The contestant who makes it to the register before the price of the sugar goes up is the winner. Typically everyone loses, however.

Next in the games is the job lead relay. Each starting team member in this contest is given a lead and an application to a job opening. At the sound of the gun they must race to where the second team members are stationed and pass the lead and application along. The first team to arrive at the employment agency get the jobs.

The following days are filled with such exciting games as marathon bullet biting and the ever popular cross country belt tightening.

Then, on the final day of the Olympics, the great stock market crash is heralded by executive ledge leaping for form and distance.

Now, who says an economic crisis can't be fun?

SG Council Created

A council of university and college student governments has been created, citing as its purpose "to strengthen student government and preserve its role in the governmental system in the state of Florida and forceful expression of the views of student government."

Officially known as the State Council of Student Governments of Florida, the organization was formed January 21 in Tallahassee, chaired by Robert Michael Jordan, with Jan Pietrzyk as executive director.

The council lists as its major goals the promotion of educational training and participation in student government and the economic and industrial development of the state through college and business cooperation.

Main proposals for action for the newly-created board include the establishment of the Florida Student Lobby, establishment of a state headquarters in Tallahassee and a state center for student journalism.

Jordan stated, "This council will be a Florida first in terms of equaling the Florida state legislature in independence and effectiveness on the student government level."

Student Lobby Formulating

The organization of a Florida Student Lobby is now in the "formative stages," according to Student Government (SG) president Hunter Potts.

"Even though students have been very unorganized in lobbying efforts, we still have been fairly successful. We could be so much more effective if an organized lobby was put together," said Potts.

The purpose of the organization will be to promote or discourage legislation in the best interest of Florida students, to provide the Florida Legislature with vital information concerning the needs of students and to benefit the state education system as a whole through lobbying efforts in the state legislature.

"Student lobbies in other states have been very successful," Potts said.

"The Florida Student Lobby, which has been in the working for nine months, will hopefully be in operation by early March for the state legislative session in April."

There are nine state universities, and numerous junior colleges, private colleges and institutions located throughout the state. Membership in the lobby will encompass three forms.

Any institution of higher education in Florida may become a sponsoring member and will be eligible for a position on the Board of Directors.

Sponsoring members will be required to remit the equivalent of ten cents per student annually, according to their fall enrollment.

A subscribing membership will be open to any school or other organization of students, and they will pay a set rate of five hundred dollars annually.

Subscribing members will not be eligible for positions on the Board of Directors.

Any individual student or citizen in Florida may join the lobby as a supporting member, at a set rate of ten dollars annually.

The FTU Student Senate has appropriated eight hundred and eighty dollars for FTU to become a sponsoring member of the lobby, according to Potts.

The Florida Student Lobby Board of Directors will consist of ten persons elected annually from the sponsoring members. SG presidents or their designates will be eligible to serve as a director.

An office will be established in Tallahassee for the three months during the legislative session, with full-time positions of managing director, assistant director and clerk-secretary in operation.

"These employees will act as the coordinating backbone of the lobby," Potts said.

"They will collect and prepare information to send to SG presidents of member schools."

"We're now seeking applicants for the various positions," Potts continued. Any interested person who feels qualified for one of the positions is urged to come by the SG office for further information.

"The student lobby can be a tremendous asset to the student body, with direct and indirect benefits with regard to such things as Board of Regents' efforts, tuition, changes, and available monies for loans and grants," Potts concluded.

Dr. Goldstein Holds National Recognition

By Vicki Blanchfield

Following an impressive industrial engineering career and over five years of instruction in the College of Engineering at FTU, Dr. Ernst M. Goldstein has received recognition in the 1974-75 edition of "Outstanding Educators of America."

Goldstein was born in Berlin, Germany and earned his Ph.D. in chemistry from the Technological University at Berlin.

The professor added, "I enjoy teaching here very much. I have met many very nice students and faculty members. There is very close cooperation here between professors."

Students have twice honored Goldstein by voting him the "Outstanding Professor" in the College of Engineering in 1969 and 1971-72.

He stated his opinion concerning the proposed solar energy program, "It's definitely an extremely important program, but rather long-range. Many crucial problems still remain to be solved."

"Nuclear energy is a more short-range program for us which promises more immediate results."

Goldstein expressed particular interest in the potential of geothermal energy, "This type of energy has great appeal to me," he explained, "There are steam wells in the U.S. that once were only tourist attractions. This steam that rises out of the earth is now being used for driving turbines and making energy."

He optimistically said, "This is a very useful way to get more energy in this country without burning oil."

In addition to his academic career, Goldstein has many publications to his credit and two patents on nickel-cobalt separation, which resulted from his work with the government. This discovery has great industrial importance.

The professor is very community-minded too, and has repeatedly accepted speaking engagement invitations from local civic organizations. He is also a metric consultant for the Orlando area.

He was the recipient of the Presidential Award of the American Society for Metals,

"because I was very active in this group and I developed several lecture series for it."

Goldstein is presently the Chairman of the Educational Committee of the Central Florida Chapter of the organization.

Other achievements include membership in several professional societies: the New York Academy of Sciences and the Smithsonian Institute.

The Goldsteins have two children, a son who is presently a geologist in Texas, and a daughter who graduated from FTU and is now employed by the University of Colorado.

He arrived in this country with his family in 1948, after holding positions in Germany, Turkey and National China.

After accepting primarily research positions with metal fabricating companies in New Jersey, Goldstein joined the Materials Engineering Department of Martin Marietta's Orlando Division in 1962. He was later promoted to acting manager of the newly formed Materials Research Department of that company.

Goldstein was employed in Orlando for four and a half years before transferring to Martin's Denver Division, where he worked as Senior Research Scientist in the high temperature materials field for one year.

On the basis of his engineering knowledge and outstanding qualifications, Goldstein was offered an Associate Professorship at FTU in 1968, with the College of Engineering. Two years later, he was promoted to the rank of Professor.

Goldstein explained why he accepted FTU's offer, "I thought that sharing my industrial experience could be useful to the younger generation."

His teaching capacities here at FTU this quarter include three courses: Oceanography and Outer Space, Physical Geography and Structure and Properties of Materials, although he stated that, "By education I am a chemist."

Asked to compare FTU's engineering program to others in the State he commented, "I taught at Valencia and Florida Southern prior to coming to FTU, and I must say that this school has the best program of the three institutions."

Last Quarter - New Moon

(Editor's Note: Mr. Bell, a professional astrologer, joins our staff this week as a special columnist. This column will be syndicated nationally beginning in March. Read Mr. Bell's views on the science on page 9 of this week's FuTure.

In the last quarter of the lunar cycle, people tend to relax more and postpone major activities. On the new moon of the 11th, this all changes and everyone feels the urgency to do things.

This week is favorable for Gemini, Libra, Leo, Sagittarius, and Aries.

Taurus, Scorpio, Capricorn and Cancer are in a stage of adjustment to environmental circumstances.

Virgo and Pisces are highlighted for major turning points to their lives that will turn out better for them in the long run.

General Forecast

Aries: Friends and associates hold the key to the solution to some of your problems. Help is offered if you ask. Obstacles: February 7-9. Opportunities: February 9-11.

Taurus

Taurus: Career and your place in the world is under some stress. Relax and go slowly but surely. Plans may need to be revamped. Progress on the 7th-9th, shift in affairs on the 11th.

Gemini: Long-range plans and creative interests are favored. Friends are a source of good ideas. Best days are the 9th-11th. Looks good for Gemini this week. Cancer: For the moon children this week, you can expect the usual need for privacy, especially on the 7th-9th when other people could be troublesome for you. After the 10th all looks well. Attend to those security problems you have been having. Best days are 12th-13th.

Leo: This is a turning point in your affairs. The bottom part of your year is officially over. There is only one way to go and that is up, so get going. Best days are 10 and 11th.

Virgo: Analyze and realize that action is what you chiefly need now. The time for thinking needs help from the "do it" department. You're lucky that Mars favors you so that your energy level will be on the rise. Best days are 7th-10th.

Libra: Creative cycle is high. Do something original and reap the rewards of the imaginative approach. Some conflict in surroundings, however you breeze through without getting too involved. Good days are 9th-11th.

Scorpio: Home and family matters are stressed. Look at security matters and be sure that all is O.K. Best days are 12th and 13th. Social invitations can come your way.

Sa

Sagittarius: Your mind is restless and friends offer the proper outlet for your energies. Money matters need more work. Luck is naturally yours, but a few close calls can keep you hopping.

Capricorn: Family problems and some irritations need to be put aside so that you can focus on career matters. Discipline yourself and you can overcome your limitations. Proper attitude is the key.

Aquarius: The spotlight is on you. Put your best foot forward and you will find things going your way. Best day are 9th-12th. Friends will be in good spirits or you will improve them.

Pisces: Things that you have done in the past come home to roost this next week. The time is not to attend to any matters on which you have procrastinated.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON NATE SMITH RACKED UP FTU WIN WITH A 5-1 LEAD

Netters Lose To Darkness

By Joe De Salvo

It was a race between Mother Nature and the FTU tennis team last Friday afternoon in their home opener against Samford University. At the end, Mother Nature prevailed.

After trailing 4-2 in the singles competition, the Knights were in the midst of a tremendous comeback when darkness quietly descended over the FTU courts.

After a mutual agreement between FTU coach Lex Wood and Samford coach Turner Ragedale, the exciting match was called a tie. When the match was called the Knights were in good position to take all three doubles to pull out their first win of the 29-match schedule.

"We have three good, respectable, top doubles teams," said Wood after watching his team run the courts for over four hours. "We could have well taken the three matches but the lack of lighting forced us to make the decision," added a disappointed Wood.

In the No. 1 doubles, a flu-bitten Mike DeZeeuw reached back for his second wind along with partner Nate Smith to rebound from a 6-4 first set loss, to take the second set 6-3. When the match was called, the streaking twosome had a commanding 4-1 lead in the decisive third set against Billy Heron and Stuart Upton.

At No. 2, Joe Lucci and Trevor Graham, also recovering from the flu-bug, were one set away from victory. After losing the first set 6-4, the two came back to take an identical score in the middle set against Willie Davis and Daryl Byrd.

In Gail Graban and Doug Hull's case, it was a matter of only one point away from victory. The FTU duo had a 6-4 win and were leading 5-4 with a 40-0 mark in the clinching game in the middle set of the No. 3 doubles against Dave Lucky and Andre Van Remburg.

The day's action began on a heart-breaking note as Lucci dropped a tough one to Davis 4-6,7-5,7-6 in a match that lasted over two hours. Lucci, who replaced the ill-stricken DeZeeuw at No. 1, was one point away from taking the tie-breaker in the third set, leading 4-1. Davis surged back to win 5-4.

"Lucci looked like he won the match but he made silly mistakes. Some points were a matter of inches," said a sympathetic Wood.

FTU's first win of the afternoon came at No. 2 as Smith took a 4-6,6-1, 7-5 decision from Heron. Smith had a comfortable 5-1 lead in the third set but had to fight off Heron's comeback. "It was a long, hard, tough match," said Wood.

At No. 3, Graban couldn't get on track as he lost to Upton 6-4, 6-0. "He played tense tennis," said Wood on Graban's play. "He couldn't get his rhythm which is the key to his game thus he started to force his shots."

"It was a miracle of miracles," in Wood's words, on DeZeeuw's 6-4, 7-6 win over Lucky at No. 4. DeZeeuw, weakened by the flu, practiced little for the match.

Hull was outplayed at No. 5 as Byrd took a 6-4,7-5 win away from the standout freshman. "Doug played very well," remarked Wood. "He was aggressive but he missed some easy points. Byrd's game is consistency and was just too steady for Doug."

After an impressive 6-4 win in the opening set, Mark Gunderson changed his game from aggressive to conservative proving to be suicidal as Van Remburg took a 4-6,6-1,6-2 win. Wood commented, "Van Remburg's strategy is to have his man start to push and that's what Gunderson exactly did."

FTU will be coming off yesterday's match with Flagler, traveling to Embury-Riddle in Daytona Beach on Feb. 13. Their next home match is Feb. 17 against FIT.

LXA Tips TKE, Leaders Dwindle

By Monte Shoemaker

During the past week, three teams wallowed in victory for the first time while three others were mired in defeat and dropped from the unbeaten fold.

TKE, SX II, and ATO V lost their unblemished marks while XO, KS and Fernies made amends for early season losses.

TKE was upset by LXA, 17-16, in a tight battle between two unbeaten, SX II was gunned down by Individuals 45-21, another unbeaten pair, and ATO V dropped from a tie for first place with their 54-24 loss to still unmarried Headhunters.

XZO nipped SAE 27-24, SX crunched PKA 65-26 and Fernies rolled over Crew 82-34 for their initial wins of the year.

High scoring antics by FS&S, Headhunters and SX indicate that they may well be the teams to beat if other teams have championship hopes.

Wildcats Claw Grapplers, 35-2

By Joe De Salvo

The FTU wrestling team got an over-dosage of the Carr family last Sunday afternoon as the muscular Kentucky Wildcats humiliated hosting FTU, 35-2.

The loss was the first in five matches for the 6-4 Knights who saw their four game winning streak come to an abrupt halt.

The fact that All-American Fletcher Carr is head coach for the Wildcats, 21-4 and ranked 16th nationally, was bad enough for the Knights, but Fletcher added salt to the wound as his two younger brothers, Jim and Joe exhibited their championship techniques.

Jim, a freshman, represented the United States in the 1972 Olympics at 126 while Joe finished second in last year's World Games. The 177-pounder is only a sophomore.

The dynamic duo, destined for All-American honors this year, appeared in the East-West Wrestling Classic in Oklahoma City, Monday night.

In his match against Scott Sherman, Jim had complete control of things, taking an easy 16-5 win in the 126-pound match. The win kept Jim undefeated for the year at 24-0.

In the most lopsided match of the day, Joe outdid his brother's performance by crushing Don Carrithers 29-7. The muscular native of Erie, Pa., was gracious enough to give the out-classed Carrithers all his points on uncontested escape points.

For Coach Gerald Gergley, dejected over his team's poor performance, the only consoling moment came in the 150-pound match when Mike Wareing drew with Joe Murray 2-2. Wareing let a slim 2-0 lead in the second period evaporate when Murray managed two escape points. The draw enabled Wareing to keep his undefeated streak run to 4-0-2.

"We didn't wrestle well at all," said a frustrated Gergley. "They're (Kentucky) as tough as any team can be. They got the best personnel we've faced all year, including Mankato State."

The 118-pound match was an indication of what kind of afternoon the Knights were in for as Garrett Headley broke away from Jeff Einerson to win handily 13-2.

In one of the closer matches of the day, Pat Murphy was on the short end of a 5-3 decision for Kurt Mock at 134. A two-point take-down with 1:12 remaining in the match, entitled Jim Montaine to beat John Theders 6-4 in the 142-pound clash.

A questionable take down by Scott Corwell with less than a minute left proved fatal to Tom Hammons as he lost 3-2 in the 158-pound match.

Mike Cassity with only a slim 2-0 lead after two periods against 177-pounder Greg McCoy, took charge in the final three minutes to win convincingly 8-4.

The one point awarded for riding time enabled Brian Wilson to top 190-pound Al Lloyd 5-4 in a evenly matched battle.

In the only pin of the day (thank goodness), Pat Donley erased an early 5-0 Dave Garner lead by pinning his man at 1:48.

A FTU contingent, based on the results of the wrestle-offs this week, will be at Miami-Dade Junior College today and tomorrow to compete in the state championships. Gergley thinks FTU will be among the top three along with Florida and Florida International University.

The Knight's last home match of the year is next Friday when they host Washington and Lee University.

Booters Display Class

By Monte Shoemaker

Focusing their attention on game performance and not allowing the opposition to intimidate them has again wrought rewards to FTU's soccer team.

Coach Jim Rudy, who has preached the virtues of self-discipline to his players all year, was pleased with his team's poise and self-control during their recent robust contest with the University of Argentina, which erupted in a fracas.

Rudy said, "Our entire team was very cool and they never let anyone bother them until it reached a point of abusiveness. I've always taught my players that when they let someone intimidate them to the point where their play suffers, they have conceded a big part of the game to their opponent."

The game concluded with a physical melee midway through the second half. When the feud began, the Knights engaged their opponents as their Middle Age namesake would have. Fists flew from both sides as tempers erupted, bringing the game to a halt with the score deadlocked at 0-0.

Rudy noted three possible reasons for the poor sportsmanship of the Argentines. They had lost to the Miami (Fla.) Torros, a professional soccer team, a few days prior to their trip to FTU, they were playing their national sport in the United States, where teams are supposed to be inferior to them, and they were totally surprised with FTU's stellar play.

The coach remarked about the myriad of ill-mannered gestures displayed by the opposition.

He said, "They slapped our players in the face, pulled our shirts, ruffled our hair, kicked us, tripped us and one of them even elbowed Bill Stevens in the nose." (Stevens had to leave the game with a bloodied nose.)

An official who detected the unnecessary roughness stopped play at one point to restore order to the game which quickly reverted from an athletic contest between two highly talented teams to a brawl incognito.

Gus Romero, one of the Knights involved in the fracas, said he had looked forward to the game but was disappointed with what resulted.

"I was truly looking forward to the game," he said, "because it could have been a good experience for us. However, to me, it was a shame the way the other team showed such poor sportsmanship. We are a very aggressive team and I guess they simply over-reacted to our play."

Coach Rudy expressed similar regrets with what transpired.

He said, "The game could have been a really superb experience for both teams but they ruined it for everyone concerned. You wouldn't normally expect that type of play during an international game."

Rudy said he was not disappointed with his usually docile team for retaliating against the foreigners.

"We simply took all the abuse we could take and I feel justified in what we did. But, any time that type of thing can be avoided, that is what I want," he said.

Rudy stated that FTU had taken control of the game before the outbreak and that if the game had continued he and the Knights would have been the winners.

"They were definitely a skilled team but they were inferior to us," he said. "They couldn't get the ball past midfield and they only took one shot on goal. We had four shots on goal and were moving the ball very well."

The rigid self-discipline of the Knights through the season has been beneficial. While FTU has sent nary a Knight to the showers early, 10 opposing players have been ejected from games.

Cagers Top Tars, Argos

'Home Sweet Home'

By Joe De Salvo

As the old saying goes, "Home is where the heart is." In the FTU basketball team's case, it's "Home is where the victories are."

The Knights continued their supremacy at the Winter Park High gym last Friday night as they broke open a close contest with a second half charge to defeat a taller West Florida squad, 85-73.

The win was the seventh in a row at home for Coach Torchy Clark's troops as they broke a brief two-game losing streak.

The big gun for FTU was the consistent Bennie Shaw who shot a blistering 9-15 from the floor for a game high of 29 points. The Argos, who posted a tenacious man to man defense all evening, couldn't contain the slick 6-1 guard who mixed up his shots from driving layups to pretty 20-footers.

FTU gave 100 percent effort as two of their starters, 6-7 Willy Belotte and guard Calvin Lingelbach saw limited action due to ankle sprains. Forwards Jerry Prather and Bill Corso took up the slack on the boards picking off crucial rebounds. Prather, the 6-3 big surprise for the Knights this season, grabbed eight caroms while the senior transfer Corso at 6-4 gathered in seven missed shots. The Argos missed a total of 46 shots in the game.

The Knights got outstanding efforts from reserves David Green and David Rodgers filling in for the hobbling Belotte and Lingelbach.

The game started out in a seesaw battle as the biggest lead for FTU was six points, 18-12 midway in the half. W. Florida behind 6-7 Eddie Hands, 12 points, roared back to take the lead for a brief time 32-27 with just under three minutes remaining in the first stanza. Buckets by Green and Corso evened up the score at the half 34-34. Shaw mustered up 14 of his 29 in the first 20 minutes of play.

A combination of hot shooting from Belotte, Corso and Shaw in the beginning of the final half broke the game wide open as the Knights ran spurts of 10-2 and 14-2 to take a commanding 72-52 lead with 8:19 left. The 20-point bulge was the largest for the Knights in the contest.

Overall, the Knights shot an impressive 53 percent from the floor while the visiting Pensacolas shot a frigid 35 percent. Twenty-two turnovers by the Argos didn't help their cause as they fell to 6-9.

Behind Shaw's 29 points, Corso chalked up 20 while Lingelbach chipped in with 10. The only thorn in the Knights' side was Hands who finished with 23 points and 15 rebounds, 11 off the offensive boards.

FTU and the Argos will get a rematch in Pensacola on Feb. 20.

PKA VOLLEYBALL

By Monte Shoemaker

PKA fraternity, whose men's volleyball team finished the season with an untarnished tally of 8-0, continued its winning tradition with a sweep of all campus championships.

The team championship was won when PKA pulled from behind, 2-1, to beat the FS&S team in the fourth game 16-14 and won the fifth and deciding game convincingly 15-3.

The PKA entries were spearheaded by Mohammad Chitsaz, who was the deciding factor in the team, coed and two-man events.

The coed entry from PKA beat the Intramural Staff to win that event.

The FTU basketball team gained a measure of revenge Saturday evening as the Knights topped cross-town rival Rollins for the first time ever, 75-70.

If revenge is as sweet as some say, then the win had to be a tasty morsel for Coach Torchy Clark's charges. In all three previous meetings, the Knights came up on the short end of the scoreboard, twice losing by slim margins.

On a night that saw the Tars hold the state's leading scorer Bennie Shaw to 16 points, the Knights looked to freshman Jerry Prather for their firepower.

And fire away he did! In all the slender Mississippi native poured in a game-high 33 points while grabbing 11 rebounds, also tops for the contest.

The Tars actually sealed their own fate with turnovers in the games final minute. Holding a slim 71-69 lead Rollins' Marcus Wilson was triple-teamed at mid-court. His pass was tipped by Willy Belotte. Shaw came up with the loose ball, drove past Wilson, and layed the ball in to give FTU a 71-70 lead.

Two more Rollins miscues coupled with four pressure-packed free throws by Cal Lingelbach and Prather put the contest out of reach.

Prather and Shaw got offensive assistance from Bill Corso who chipped in 13 markers. Belotte, slowed by an ankle injury, pulled down nine rebounds with Corso contributing seven as the Knights now 10-6 dominated the boards in the second half.

Bruce Howland led all Tar scorers with 22 points. Foul-plagued Gary Parsons added 17 for Rollins as the Tars watched their season record slip to 9-6.

This weekend the Knights take to the road, a place where their success has been limited this season. Tonight they travel to Tallahassee to face the always powerful Rattlers of Florida A&M. Saturday night FTU crosses the border to face a strong Georgia Southwestern team.

Library Exhibits Missing

Of the last four exhibitions held in the library lobby, articles have disappeared from two and vandalism has occurred in a third, according to Tony Logan, director of instructional media.

From the student exhibition in the Fall, a glass sculpture belonging to John White was stolen.

An 8x10 black and white print of a hunting scene was taken from the exhibit entitled Early Photographic Images and Imaging Equipment. This exhibit is held each Fall quarter, because the History of Photography course is always taught during that time.

During the last showing of the Fall, the Batik collection, articles priced at $320 disappeared. These articles are actually priceless.

Missing are two large wall hangings described as "tie dye on velvet" and one grouping of four color photos in a single frame.

Dorothy Kannon (instructional media) is responsible for arranging for the exhibits and displaying them. She said, "FTU has a good reputation established. People want to exhibit here."

Logan added, "The practice is becoming more regular with each exhibit. Art circles are a close knit group. If word gets around that FTU is a rip off, they will no longer want to place their exhibits here."

Logan also said that if articles continue to disappear, the insurance rates will increase. It might become necessary to discontinue the practice of art exhibits in the library lobby.

Logan said he would appreciate any information any person might have about the missing objects.

Parking Violators Recieve Protection

By Walt Morris

The "parking violations appeal board" may be a reality before June.

FTU Student Government (SG) Attorney General David Boone is working on the rough draft for the proposed board and hopes to present it to the FTU Senate soon.

"It's important to get safe guards so that everyone is protected," said Boone. "The board should be open to students, faculty and staff."

Tickets for parking violations have been raised from $2 to $15.

The raise was to conform with the Florida Uniform Disposition of Traffic Infractions Act.

The new law was passed by the State Legislature last session and requires state universities to raise parking fines to the higher level.

Boone said he believes the board is needed, because it would be familiar with the problems on campus.

Boone said a violation could be appealed to the Orlando Municipal Court if the board was created. "However, as I understand it, you subject yourself to a higher fine if you appeal to a municipal court."

Boone said two problems are hindering the work on the board. "One is if the board could legally encompass all the university publics and two is the school is loosing scholarship money because it's (the money from fines) going to Orlando."

John Smith, director of the campus police, said the only courtesy citations were given the first four weeks of the quarter.

Smith said the Board of Regents okayed the use of the old fee schedule if the fine is paid within seven days.

The campus police have given about 2,400 courtesy citations this quarter.
