BYRD AND SALISBURY COP HONORS OF ANNUAL REGATTA

WATER MEET A PROMINENT FEATURE OF FOUNDER'S
WEEK

Byrd Wins Men's Cup With Total of 14 Points—Mary Salisbury Wins
Women's Trophy With a Total of 8 Points

(Stanley Fosgate)

Over 300 spectators crowded the shore of Lake Virginia, near the men's swimming dock, to witness the annual Founder's Week Regatta of Rollins College, held Thursday afternoon, February 19.

This, the greatest feature of the 35th anniversary of the college, was a decided success in every respect, from start to finish. The weather was ideal and the lake gently rippled, facts which contributed greatly towards the success of the meet.

Wallace Byrd, was the hero of the day, capturing first place in all the men's events except the tilting contest and the 25 yard dash. Byrd accumulated a score of 14 points against Stevens who came second with six points, followed by H. Vincent with five.

The women's cup was awarded to Mary Salisbury, who won out over Margaret Sutherland by the close margin of one point, receiving a total of eight points. Pauline Phelps and Sara Wight tied for 3rd place with six points each.

Canoe Races

Great skill and ability was shown in all the canoe races, both men's and women's, and especially in the war canoe race between the college and academy girl's crews. This latter event was by far the most exciting as both crews had practiced individually for several weeks in preparation for this race; consequently it was a fight to a finish. Shortly after the starter's pistol, the college crew sprang ahead and under the command of Harold Hill, gained continually until it passed the finishing line, fully three lengths in advance of the academy crew. The team work of the former was splendid.

The men's doubles, was won by Byrd and Holiday, only after a hard

FISK JUBILEE SINGERS COMING ING

The Fisk Jubilee Singers will give a recital at Knowles Hall, on March 1st. All who have heard these singers in previous years need not be told the worth of this splendid organization. They are members of the famous Fisk University, which is doing such an important work in the training and education of the colored race. All who heard them last year, were impressed with the splendid work of this group of singers.

of the Publishing House That Shall Mold True Americans

The Quarter-Centennial Banquet of the Rollins Sandspur, commemorating the twenty-fifth year of its founding was held in the college dining hall Friday evening, February 20. The hall was brilliantly lighted and artistically decorated, giving prominence to a large table in the form of an "S" in the center of the room where the staff of the Sandspur together with their guests and the speakers of the evening were seated. The Sandspur was fortunate in having as principle speaker at the banquet, Mr. Frank N. Doubleday, president of the well-known publishing firm of Doubleday, Page & Co. Mr. Doubleday is spending the winter in Winter Park, having taken the "Alabama" estate for the season.

The atmosphere of this gathering of journalists and aspiring journalists was pervaded with enthusiasm, especially on account of the presence of the editors of other college papers of the state, who had been invited to attend for the purpose of furthering the mutual interests of collegiate journalism in Florida. Miss Marie Bryan, Editor of "The Florida Flambeau" at the Florida State College for Women, and Mr. Henry W. Blackburn, Editor of "The Southern" at Southern College, were present to represent their respective papers and their schools. Mr. Dewey A. Dye, Editor of "The Alligator" at the University of Florida, was unable to be present.

The Speeches

J. Harold Hill, Editor of the Sandspur, acting as toastmaster, made a short introductory speech in which he welcomed the visiting editors and the other speakers and touched upon the growth of the Sandspur from its original form as a yearly, through its publication as a monthly, to the present form of a weekly newspaper reflecting as accurately as may be, the life and activities of the students of Florida's oldest institution of higher learning.

Mr. Hill mentioned the receipt of a letter from Myron A. Munson, a professor at Rollins in the early days of its existence, in which Mr. Munson tells of the existence of a Winter Park Journal, in those days, edited

TENNIS TOURNAMENT ENDED

(Howard Vincent.)

The finals of the annual Tennis Tournament of Rollins were played off Friday and Saturday of last week. The champion for the boys' singles is Karl Tompkins and in the men's doubles, Karl Tompkins and Charles Roberts were victorious.

Tompkins started out finely, defeating John Noe, 6-0, 6-0. He then took on Charles Roberts, having a little harder time, winning by the score of 6-2, 6-0. In the finals he met Don Vincent, and although he won in three straight sets he was given a nice run for his money. The scores were 6-4, 6-0, 7-5.

Don Vincent went to the finals, winning his first match by default. He then eliminated "Dud" Wilson with apparent ease thus coming against Fred Ward in a hard match.

As the winner of the tournament, "Tommy" gets an "All American" racket. The doubles winners were given little silver "R's." In the doubles finals Tompkins and Roberts won in three straight sets, but those sets contained a lot of work, as Stone and Ward fought hard.

JUNIOR PROM

(M. Sutherland.)

Coming as a brilliant climax to the social festivities of Founder's Week was the Junior Prom held in the Lyman Gymnasium Saturday night, Feb. 21st. The artistic decorations were composed of myriad-colored butterflies suspending from twining arches of smilax forming a low ceiling and making the hall look like a corner of fairyland. Credit for this artistic effect goes to Miss Elizabeth Merriweather and her efficient corps of helpers.

Those receiving were: Miss Winifred Stone for the Junior class, Mr. Hagerty and Mr. Hill for the Senior class, and Chancellor Brooks, Miss Barrett, Mrs. Rouse, and Mr. Arthur Slater, '09, of St. Augustine.

The music was especially fine, furnished by a six-piece orchestra from Orlando. The number of encores responded to showed the appreciation of the dancers. The entire fourteen numbers were enjoyed to the fullest extent when "Home Sweet Home" brought to a close one of the liveliest parties in the history of Rollins.

Refreshments, consisting of ice-cream, cake and punch were served by the Junior class during the intermission.

AVIATORS AGAIN DOWNED BY ROLLINS FIVE

Local Five Victorious Over Birdmen
for Third Time—Score 17-15

(Stanley Fosgate)

The basket ball game staged Wednesday, February 18, in the Lyman Gymnasium, was a fitting opening for the athletic events of the 35th Founder's Week of Rollins College.

The team from Arcadia traveled up in the hard downpour, only to be defeated in a fast and thrilling game by the Rollins boys, after a hard struggle on both sides. From the outstart Rollins, through its team-work and consistent passing, had a slight advantage over its heavier opponent, for despite the terrific onrush of the Aviators they constantly worked the ball back from the danger zone.

The jinx was clearly in evidence, running closely beside Capt. Fletcher and hanging by the Rollins basket. Time after time Fletcher would shoot, the ball spinning all about the basket only to drop on the outside. Vincent was able to free himself from the black jinx making all the field goals save one. Vincent was in splendid form and showed his best in this contest, causing the opponents much anxiety.

Boyle starred for the Rollins guards with his usual manner of slipping around the opponents. However, individual praise would be useless as the entire team worked in unison.

In the first half most of the playing was about the Rollins basket, the Aviators having very few chances at their own goal. In spite of the hard luck in shooting, Vincent made four baskets and Fletcher one (and two foul goals), making a total of twelve points for Rollins against six for the visitors. However, the Aviators strengthened slightly in the second half, making eight points against the locals' five. Milan and Lain featured for the Aviators with their shooting ability.

On the whole the game was one of the fastest of the season, save for

ALL OUT FOR THE GAME SATURDAY

Let's have everybody out for the last game of the season—Cathedral School vs. Rollins girls. Cathedral has one game to her credit already and it's up to us to stage a come-back this Saturday night. The girls are planning to make this a satisfactory ending to the whole season but it is out of the question if they do not have the proper support from the students. Cut future engagements, and bring your ladies to the game—Lyman Gym, Saturday night, at eight o'clock.

You won't be sorry.

THE SANDSPUR BANQUET

"For the members of the staff of the 'Rollins Sandspur' this is a week of unusual interest, as they are at this time celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of that publication. To them we extend our heartiest best wishes for a pleasant anniversary, and wish for them even greater success in the future than they have had in the past. We also take this opportunity to congratulate them on the splendid publication which they are issuing. It is a credit to the members composing the staff and is a creditable representative of the college it has so long represented. The fact that it has been alive for more than a score of years is a point worthy of mention, for those of us who have had experience with college publications in small schools know what it means to prepare several thousand words for the press every week. To have completed twenty-five years of successful publishing is a record to be envied by the college papers throughout the state for, generally speaking, they are quite young.

"As a fitting celebration of this anniversary the staff of the 'Rollins Sandspur' is to give a quarter-centennial banquet in their college dining hall next Friday evening—this is one of the important functions of their Founder's Week. It is a matter of special interest to note that Mr. Frank N. Doubleday, President of the well-known publishing firm which bears his name, will attend this banquet and be the principal speaker. Former editors of the 'Sandspur,' together with representatives of the college press of Florida, are invited to attend this banquet and an interesting and enjoyable time is anticipated.

"The Southern will be represented at this gathering, as the editor is in receipt of a most cordial invitation from the staff of our neighboring publication and it is felt that much will be done to promote the fraternal interests of the Florida collegiate publications."—The Southern.

A College Press Association?

The Sandspur Banquet is now over. We feel grateful to the "Southern" for the above kind words, but we feel more than grateful for the genuinely fine spirit that Southern and The Florida State College for Women showed in sending the editors of their papers to be with us. More than this, we feel that something more than a "good time"—and, really, college editors are good sports, we DID have a good time—we feel that something really worth-while will come out of this meeting of the drab monsters of our college sanctums. In fact, we believe, something constructive has already been given a start, and we hope that it will not be allowed to stop or hesitate until it materializes into a COLLEGIATE PRESS ASSOCIATION for Florida, not just another one of those organizations with a name, a president, and an annual banquet, but an organization of boosters who will boost one another out of the occasional "dumps" of our college paper work and put Florida on the map of real journalism.

It is not letting the cat out of the bag to say that after the banquet the other night the editors present and one of the former editors of the Sandspur got together. And out of that get-together emerged a tentative plan for the Florida Collegiate Press Association. Miss Bryan, of "The Flambeau," was asked to serve as secretary, pending the formation of the Association. A tentative constitution was drawn up, copies of which with plans will be forwarded by Miss Bryan to the editors of the other college papers for discussion and action.

It is expected that all the papers will get in their views of the matter at once, and so help Miss Bryan to get definite action with a view to some real work on the part of the association for next year, if not this year.

Let's have action, brother editors! It's up to us.

SPECIAL RULING ON RE-INSTATEMENT ON WAR RISK INSURANCE

Under a new and very liberal ruling of far-reaching importance to millions of former service men, issued by Director R. G. Cholmeley-Jones of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, War Risk (term) Insurance, regardless of how long it may have been lapsed or canceled, and regardless of how long the former service man may have been discharged, may be reinstated any time before July 1, 1920.

The only conditions are:

1.—Two monthly premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated must accompany the application.

2.—The applicant must be in as good health as at the date of discharge, or at the expiration of the grace period, whichever is the later date, and so state in the application.

The new ruling is the most important liberalization of War Risk Insurance since the passage of the Sweet bill, and is designed for the special benefit of service men who failed to reinstate their insurance prior to the new law, and who have been discharged more than 18 months.

Ex-service men may still reinstate their lapsed term insurance at any time within 18 months following the month of discharge by complying with the same conditions. Within three months following the month of discharge reinstatement may be made by simply remitting two months' premiums without a formal application or statement as to health.

Reinstatement may also be made after 18 months following discharge, as follows: If the insurance has not been lapsed longer than three months, by complying with the conditions outlined in (1) and (2) above. From the fourth to the eleventh month, inclusive, after lapse, by complying with the same conditions, and in addition submitting a formal report of examination made by a reputable physician substantiating the statement of health to the satisfaction of the Director of the Bureau.

In announcing the new ruling, Director Cholmeley-Jones desires to emphasize the fact that War Risk (term) Insurance or U. S. Government (converted) Life Insurance may now be made payable to any of the following new and enlarged group of beneficiaries:

Life Insurance, now or at any time within five years after the formal termination: Parent, grandparent, step-parent, wife (or husband), child, step-child, adopted child, grandchild, brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, brother through adoption, sister through adoption, stepbrother, stepsister, parent through adoption, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, brother-in-law, sister-in-law; persons who have stood in the relation of a parent to the insured for a period of one year or more prior to his enlistment or induction, or the child or children of such persons, parent, grandparent, step-parent, or parent through adoption of the insured's wife (or husband).

War Risk (term) Insurance may be converted into United States government Life Insurance, now or at any time within five years after the formal termination of the war by proclamation of the President.

United States Government (converted) Life Insurance, including ordinary Life, Twenty Payment Life, Thirty Payment Life, Twenty Year

STUDENT'S OPINION

CLOTHING.

Can you tell why it is that the Sandspur gets so little real, enthusiastic support from the students? Do you know why it is that when some students are asked to write an article for their college paper they will reply, "Aw, I can't do it, I haven't the time; get some one else to do it," and then in about ten minutes you see these same "birds" on their way to town to investigate the prospects of getting an ice-cream soda without paying the war tax? Is there an answer to the question, why these same people are among the first to look with eager eyes for their Sandspur on Saturday afternoon and are loudest in their praise for their college sheet—which is written by a few faithful and reliant students? Is there a disease contagious among students in general or just at Rollins? If so it bids fair to become an epidemic. It would be using too strong a term to call these people "scabs" or "parasites" for they really are not so worse. They just do not realize their opportunity or feel their responsibility.

Now, let us face the facts squarely: there is news enough on Rollins campus every week to publish a real newspaper without resorting to the hot air machine as is too often the case, there are students enough with ability here who can gather this news into news form for the Sandspur, there are eight pages of blank paper that must be covered with printer's ink every week or there will be the loudest yell one ever heard. We have news, people who can write it, and a paper to put it in. What is lacking? It is enthusiasm. Does the coat fit? If so, put it on and wear it. "At ease!"

Degrees and diplomas for brewers and malsters are a feature of the University of Birmingham, England. There is a regular department of biology and chemistry of fermentation, and a brewing school.

The percentage of 1909 faculty still in service in the same institution in 1919, is shown by a survey described in the Washington State College "Evergreen." In the ten colleges and universities investigated, in all sections of the nation, this percentage ranges from 20 per cent for Washington State College to 71 per cent for Stanford University. The average was 47 per cent.

Americanization is to be the dominant note of the 1920 University of California Summer School. The program is planned to help towards the solution of some of the problems confronting America today.

The Pan-American Union estimates that there are in the United States, 5,000 Latin-American Students, of whom 2,500 are in colleges and universities.

There were 4,681 women college students in England and 1,882 in Scotland in 1913-14. The highest percentage of women at any British university was 41 per cent at St. Andrews University in Scotland.

The University of London was the first academic body in the United Kingdom to grant degrees to women—this occurring in 1878. Oddly enough, Oxford and Cambridge do not yet admit women to regular membership in the university or grant degrees to them. Women are allowed to study there under certain restrictions, but they receive only certificates. They are not expected to enter into conversation with men undergraduates attending the same lectures, they may not accept invitations to dances, and they may attend public entertainments and athletic events only under conditions approved by their principal. The men students take very little notice of them.

That Great Britain cannot ignore the economic effect of a prohibition America was an argument strongly presented in the opening session of the British Parliament. The King discussed the alcohol situation in his speech, Lloyd George referred to it, and Sir Donald MacLean sharply interrogated the government as to its attitude.

LONESOME PETE

The following poem was taken from the Bates Student, Bates College, Lewiston, Me. It shows the typical "Down Eastern" dialect and in itself is a beautiful work:

LONESOME PETE.

Irma Haskell, '21

Thar's a feller in our town-ship
Goes by name of Lonesome Pete,
He's an odd sort of a duffer
Known frum here to County-seat.

Slouches long thar on the tote-road
W'en the moon is young an' mad,
With 'is old felt hat a'slantin'
An' 'is eyes a-lookin' sad.

Keeps 'is hands down in 'is pockets
An' 'is head is allus bowed;
Folks all 'low they've never hearn 'im
Speak a single word out loud.

Keeps a-wanderin' long the tote-road,
Sometimes singin', allus sad,
'S if a-lookin' after suthin' W'at perhaps he's never had.

Now he's gettin' kind uv aged
An' he mopes along quite slow,
An' he shivers mighty easy
W'en the wind begins ter blow.

Slouches 'long thar on the tote-road—
Ha'nts the swing-gate by the brook;
Moonlight nights you'll hear 'im singin';
Prob'ly see 'im if you look.

Folks allow he's somewhat daffy
An' 'is worried with 'is thot—
We-uns guess perhaps 'is sweetheart
Died, er suthin' uv the sort.

Got a ring he carries with 'im
An' a coupl' o' ribbon bands
W'at he's allus muttrin' over
An' a-fondlin' in 'is hands.

He's a sad, depressin' duffer
Most folks kinder hate ter meet,
Slouchin' 'long thar on the tote-road—
We-uns call 'im Lonesome Pete.

DELPHIC SOCIETY WELCOMES CHARTER MEMBERS AT BANQUET

IRVING BACHELLER GUEST OF OLDEST ORGANIZATION ON THE CAMPUS

The 28th anniversary of the Delphic Society was celebrated on the evening of Alumni Day, Saturday, Feb. 21st, at a banquet in the College dining hall. Tables were arranged in a large "H" (though not in compliment to the Demons) and the debating cup, perhaps to inspire oratorical flights, served as a centerpiece. The hall was tastefully decorated in white and gold, the colors of the society.

Mr. Robert Galt, recently elected president of the society, was a most efficient toastmaster. The first of the speakers of the evening introduced by Mr. Galt was Dr. Scott Hawley who told of the formation of a debating society for the college men 28 years ago. Dr. Hawley is a charter "Demon" and spoke in great appreciation of the training he received during the time he was a member of that body. He closed his observations by wishing every success to the Delphic of the future.

Miss Gladwin next told of the original girls' society, known as "Friends in Council," of which she was a member. She spoke particularly of the strong and valuable influence which the first critic of the society, Miss Eva J. Root, exercised over the young women.

Miss Sarah Muriel, of the class of 1918, spoke briefly of the re-organization of the society in 1917. Miss Winifred Stone, the present Delphic vice-president, brought greetings from the society to the alumni and spoke in a delightful manner of the organization as it now stands.

At the completion of the after-dinner speeches the annual presentation of the Delphic Debating Cup was made by a charter member of the society, Mrs. A. B. Whitman (Maude Neff, music 1895), who awarded the cup in a gracious and charming manner to the Freshman class, whose appreciation was ably voiced by Mr. Charles Fohl, president of the class of 1923.

The literary treat of the evening the toastmaster kept up his sleeve to the last. This treasure trove was the famous author, Mr. Irving Bacheller. Mr. Bacheller is well known for his wonderful portrayal of the quaint and humorous characters in which his writings abound. His subtle humor and delightful personality were brought into prominence by his selections and the prolonged applause which followed his readings indicated that his hearers fully realized the privilege which was theirs. Mr. Bacheller generously responded with a second reading.

This annual banquet of the Delphic Society is an event much looked forward to by former and present students of the college. It is a time when friend meets friend and when in picking up the threads of a golden past at Rollins many new friends are made among the alumni of the future by the alumni of the present.

HAMLIN GARLAND AGAIN FAVORS ROLLINS AUDIENCE

The Author Changes His Subject and Tells of a Visit to Some Literary Friends in England

(Robert Galt)

One of the outstanding features of Founder's Week was the lecture by Mr. Hamlin Garland, well-known American author and lecturer, who spoke to a large and appreciative audience in Knowles Hall last Thursday night. Many of Mr. Garland's hearers had a pleasant remembrance of his lecture given during Founder's Week of last year and had returned to hear more of his experiences in the world of literature.

Chancellor Brooks introduced Mr. Irving Bacheller, who was to introduce the speaker of the evening. Both Mr. Bacheller and Mr. Garland being old friends, each claims to know the other's fine points as well as his failings. Mr. Bacheller said that the worst failing which Mr. Garland had was to think that he could sing and to be continually trying to prove it, when he couldn't.

Mr. Garland stated that he had been asked to speak on "Prairie Song and Western Story" but owing to its similarity to last year's lecture he would change it and give a few reminiscences of his visits to the homes of several English authors.

He began by telling of the visit of Rudyard Kipling to this country and how he with James Whitcomb Riley dined with Mr. Kipling at the latter's hotel. Mr. Garland had been forced by circumstances over which he had no control to wear a Prince Albert coat to all social events and felt embarrassed by this invitation. When he wrote Mr. Kipling, asking if he would mind his coming in such attire, Kipling replied, "Come in a sack if you like."

A short time afterward, Mr. Garland was invited by the English author's League to come over and address them at their annual banquet. He made plans to do so, but confided to a friend that he ought to take the conventional dress suit with him but that he had worn a Prince Albert for so long that his acquaintances had gained the idea that he was opposed to dress suits. His friend suggested that he tell his associates when he returned that as the English were such advocates of convention he had been forced to get the dress suit. In this manner his problem was solved.

Mr. Garland told of sitting next to a "little old man" who was very reticent, and when, after the banquet Mr. Garland asked some one who this man was, he was told it was Barrie, the Scotch author and playwright. During his stay in England he was introduced to George Bernard Shaw, the noted English author. Shaw invited Garland out to his country home for a visit and while there he met Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the writer of the well-known detective stories featuring Sherlock Holmes.

After going back to London Mr. Garland attended a banquet and sat next to a man who had little to say to anyone and who seemed little interested in anything said. Upon inquiry Mr. Garland learned that he was none other than Henry M. Stanley, the not-

TRUSTEES OF COLLEGE HOLD THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING

The thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Rollins College was held in Carnegie Hall Wednesday morning at ten thirty, February 18, the opening day of Founder's Week. An Old, Old Story

Smith—"My wife is a woman who always speaks her mind."

Jones—"Her conversations must be monotonous."

Smith—"Not at all, she's continually changing her mind."

Must Have Been Hot!

Jerrie (addressing Prof.)—"Did you ever see a mad potato?"

Prof—"No, who ever heard of the like?"

Jerrie—"I did, I saw one that was actually boiling."

A Hard Death

Vanity dies hard; in some obstinate cases it outlives man.

Your Birthday

Schultz—"Can you lend me a quarter?"

Fosgate—"Impossible, I've tried to lend you money several times but you always take it as a gift."

ed African explorer who found Livingston. To break the ice, Mr. Garland asked a question about the African tsetse fly and Stanley's face instantly lit up and he went into a long account of his experiences in Africa.

Speaking of what one might expect in the conversation of great literary men when they gathered together, on occasion, like a great international "Who's Who," Mr. Garland said that at one of the banquets he attended, Barrie and Stanley both sat near him but neither said a word for a long time. At last Barrie turned to Garland and said, "Gairland, will ye ha' some butter?" and toward the close of the meal Stanley said, "Garland, have some bread."

Mr. Garland closed his lecture with two short poems of his own writing, one called, "When The Horses are Chawing Hay" and "Let's Go Home Tomorrow."

Mr. Garland spoke at several banquets during Founder's Week and the students greatly appreciated his kindness in doing so.

SEXTON JOHNSON APPOINTED SUPERINTENDENT OF OR- LANDO'S SCHOOLS

At a recent meeting of the Orlando school board Mr. Sexton Johnson of the class of twenty was appointed superintendent of all city schools, a position which he is well qualified to fill because of his experience as superintendent of grammar schools. Mr. Johnson has been persuing special courses at Rollins for several years and will take his A. B. degree with the graduating class this year.

THE WAY THEY DO IT

(We offer this as exhibit "A" in support of our theory that the editor has a "soft" job.)

"Feb. 20, 1920.

"Editor,

"Rollins Sandspur,

"Campus.

"Dear Sir:

"I herewith tender my resignation as Assistant News Editor of your esteemed paper, which resignation to become effective at once and to stay so.

"In defence of this step I offer the following explanation:

"In the first place I have not been discharging my duties in a satisfactory manner, and I wish to resign before I am asked to. In the second place I have not the time to devote to my duties as Assistant News Editor, that such a responsible position demands. And in the third place, I do not think that I will have the time to devote to these matters, nor do I think that I would be able to successfully and (conscientiously?) discharge the duties imposed upon the Assistant News Editor.

"It is, therefore, with a deep feeling of regret that I at last take the step which I find is necessary both for the Sandspur's ultimate success and my own freedom of conscience.

"Sincerely,

"J. IRVIN CHAFFEE, JR."

JUST MISSED ME

"Father," said little Jimmy, as his parent seated himself at the tea table, "I was very near getting to the head of my class today."

"How was that, Jimmy?"

"Why, a big word came all the way down to me, and if I could only have spelt it I should have gone right up to the top."

WIT IN CHEMISTRY

Prof. Blair was lecturing, "A scientist says there's phosphorus enough in a man's body to make 40,000 matches."

"Maybe," said the young thing, "but there's not enough grit in some men to make one strike."

Great Wealth

Robbins—"Sure, I guess my uncle's rich by now."

T. Taylor—"What makes you think so?"

Robbins—"Last summer he sold three cotton ranches and got about a thousand dollars each for 'em."

FIRST PAN-HELLENIC HELD AT VIRGINIA INN

Irving Bacheller and Hamlin Garland Honor Guests at Fraternal Function

(Helen Hanna)

Of all the pleasant affairs held during Founder's Week, none will be more happily remembered than the annual Pan-Hellenic banquet given at the Virginia Inn, Thursday, February 19.

Invitations to this smart dinner were extended to the stray Greeks of the college, to the alumni of the fraternities represented on the campus, and to a few distinguished friends. Covers were laid for about sixty guests.

The tables were prettily decorated with center pieces of petunias.

Between courses pledges of the various fraternities entertained the guests with extemporaneous speeches, songs, and other stunts of an amusing nature.

The after-dinner speeches were of an unusually high order and brought out most vividly the high ideals for which the Greek letter societies of Rollins stand. Mr. A. J. Hanna, an alumnus of Phi Alpha, acted as toastmaster. Miss Florence Bumby, president of the Pan-Hellenic Association, told briefly the purposes of the association, and the reasons for its existence. Representatives from the four organizations which make up this association were then introduced. They gave brief but interesting talks concerning the goal towards which their respective fraternities were working. These representatives were: Wyman Stubbs, Alpha Alpha; Harold Hill, Phi Alpha; Pauline Phelps, Kappa Epsilon; and Dorothy Richards, Sigma Phi.

Mr. Hamlin Garland, the noted author, and one of the honored guests of the fraternities, was then introduced by the toastmaster. Mr. Garland said that his success in speaking, which even Mr. Bacheller admitted, was mainly due to the preparation he had received in the weekly speaking contests held at his little college in Iowa. He said that he sympathized with the hardships of the pledges, but that they should accept them, since the hardships undergone in college are merely preparatory to success in the various activities of life.

Mr. Irving Bacheller, the noted writer, closed the after-dinner speeches with an informal talk. Mr. Bacheller is an A. T. O. man, having founded the chapter at St. Lawrence College. He said that his chapter emphasized scholarship, and character. He spoke of his fraternity

METRICS IMPORTANT IN LATIN AMERICA

U. S. Must Cease Using Old Units or Vast Trade Will Be Lost

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The question of measures seems to be a very important matter in Latin-American trade. This is being emphasized here in government circles. Instances multiply where persistence by commercial houses and others in using the present obsolete weights and measures have not only caused embarrassment, but even prevented trade development.

An instance is cited from Lima, Peru, where an American firm which neglected to submit its invoices in metric terms was saved from the confiscation of its entire shipment only after strenuous efforts by the United States commercial attache at that port.

A bulletin by the Latin-American division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, in discussing the necessity of the metric system in Latin-American trade, says that "the present lack of uniformity in the old weights and measures used in Latin America constitutes one of the chief reasons for the extension of the metric system in that part of the world."

"The recognized advantages of uniformity and simplicity possessed by the metric system and the impetus already given it in Latin-America by its official adoption, make it the logical successor of the numerous and varying systems that must inevitably yield to definite standards with the expansion of trade and the resulting improvement in communication."

experience as one of the big things in his life.

The Pan-Hellenic banquet is the crowning event of the year in the life of the Rollins fraternities, and one of the principal features of Founder's Week. For several years it has been the annual re-union of these organizations, and has proved an ideal home-coming for the alumni Greeks.

"MY DREAM"

"My Dream" was written by Angel A. Reyes, a Filipino high school graduate and sent to the Sandspur by Jack Shannon, a former student in the college. Those who might have known Jack Shannon when he was at Rollins will be interested to learn that after leaving college he was married to Clella Avery, also a graduate of Rollins. After their marriage the happy couple went on a long honeymoon which took them to San Francisco, Vancouver, Japan and thence to the Philippine Islands where Mr. Shannon became the Treasurer of the Episcopal Board of Missions of the Philippine Islands. Mr. Shannon has just recently been made Administra-

STETSON VS. ROLLINS GIRLS

Once more Rollins was represented at Stetson by the girls' basketball team. It was a return game played Monday night on the Stetson floor to a large audience. Rollins had a few rooters who certainly let the team know they were there. Due to switches and fast playing on the part of the Stetson girls the score finally resulted in favor of Stetson, 27-8. However, Rollins was right on their heels and they had to work for every basket they caged. Numerous substitutions detracted from the interest of the game, but, even at that, it did not lack action one minute. Some snappy passes and pretty foul shots were made by both teams.

The score at the end of the first half was 17-3, in favor of Stetson.

MY DREAM.

The stillness of the air of the night put me into a pleasant slumber thereby giving me a delightful dream which I never experienced before.

I dreamed that I was on a journey to attend the festival ceremonies at Cavite. On board I fortunately sighted a beautiful maiden sitting by the deck. Her beauty put my heart into an uncommon palpitation, the stoppage of which is the expression of my true love to her.

Due to this fact, I could not help but find a way by which I might be introduced to her and that I might venture to express my sincere affection.

Being in good luck, I found an intimate friend, related to her, who gladly presented me to her. After knowing each other, I began to perform such heart duty which could no longer be kept undone.

I began to state my lovely words in such a soft, smooth and clear manner that the moonlight seemed to have lightened my thought. I told her that she was the key without which I would stand disconsolate and cold outside the meaning of life and universe; that the love she awakened in me unlocked all mysteries; that she was the one and no other.

With these sweet words, her heart was touched and could not refuse but to answer my love with love.

I took her by the hand, putting my cheeks close to her's, to show my own true affection, when suddenly her father appeared with such an angry look and grasped my love by the neck intending to put an end to her life. In my fright that my adored be cursed by him, because of me, I called for help with such a loud and thrilling voice, which caused my father to awake me.

When I awoke I found myself on my own soft bed with my dear brother beside me and not on board with my fair maiden. At this I only smiled.

Mrs. Boynton has the distinction of being the first member of her class to become a mother. She was married almost immediately after receiving the A. B. degree and has been making a career for herself in the home.

Katherine entered Rollins in 1916, coming here from Piedmont College in Georgia. She was a brilliant student and completed the course in three years. She was active in student activities and served as an officer in the Y. W. C. A. and Delphic Literary Society as well as in her college class. She was graduated with the class of '18 and during the latter part of the month of June of that year was married to Mr. John L. Boynton, of the town of Boynton on the East Coast. Mr. Boynton is connected with the Interstate Commerce Commission in Chattanooga where he and his wife are now making their home. MISS GREENUP AND MISS ROUS IN FOUNDER'S WEEK RECITAL

One of the brightest spots in the gala week just past, was the joint recital given by Miss Greenup, violinist, and Miss Rous, pianist. This recital took place in Knowles Hall Thursday evening, February 19, before a large audience gathered to hear the artists. Miss Greenup opened the concert with the first movement of the Vieuxtemps Concerto. This was followed by a Romance by Prochazka. Miss Rous played the following numbers: Bourree in G Minor, by Bach; Capriccio, by Scarlatti; On Wings of Song, by Mendelssohn-Liszt; and Shepherd's Hey, by Grainger.

The entire program was extremely well chosen, each number bringing out the talent and ability of the two artists.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

(Winifred Stone)

The regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held Tuesday evening in Cloverleaf. Vesta Higginbotham was the leader and introduced Miss Heller the speaker of the evening. Miss Heller is Student Y. W. C. A. Secretary of the South Atlantic Field. The main thought of her talk was, "Are we, as college women taking advantage of our opportunities, and are we capable of becoming women citizens, or are we sitting back and letting the girls in industry take the lead in the great social issues of the time?" Miss Heller explained how interested the industrial girls of the large cities are in taking up the new social and economic problems.

It was a delightfully informal spread and the girls enjoyed it to the fullest extent. Those present were: Mary Knoske, Helen Hanna, Olive Bedilion, Marion Wood, Isabel Edwards, Ruth McKee and Pauline Phelps.

In the mixed doubles, Byrd and Salisbury were forced to fight hard in order to win out over Phelps and Hill who finished close behind them with less than a canoe's length.

PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION A GRAND FINALE TO FOUNDERS' WEEK

Dr. Ward Unable to Attend

(Lucy Anderson)

Foremost among those events which made Founder's Week one to be remembered was the President's reception tendered to the faculty, alumni, the senior class, and all friends of Rollins. The reception was held in Carnegie Hall and proved to be a grand finale to Founder's Day.

The natural dignity and beauty of the hall was much enhanced by artistically arranged ferns and magnolias, and so many distinguished guests were present that the walls echoed with brilliancy and wit.

Among those receiving were Chancellor and Mrs. James Brooks, Mr. William C. Comstock, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil, Mr. Hamlin Garland, the Rev. Vincent Ravi-Booth, Mr. Richard Hagerty and Mr. Harold Hill. Mr. Irving Bachelor was one of the guests present.

Delicious punch and cakes served as refreshments.

One regret was felt by all,—that President and Mrs. Ward were not present. This, however, was much lightened by the knowledge that the best wishes and affection of both are ever manifest.

REINSTATEMENT OF WAR RISK INSURANCE WITHIN 18 MONTHS STILL HOLDS GOOD

To relieve any confusion that may exist in the minds of former service men on account of the special provision of lapsed War Term Insurance which authorized reinstatement up to December 31, 1919, regardless of date of discharge, announcement is made by Director R. G. Cholmeley-Jones of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance that the provisions for reinstatement of lapsed or cancelled insurance, within 18 months from date of discharge, upon payment of only two months' premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated, provided the insured is in as good health as at the date of discharge or expiration of the grace period whichever is the later date, and so states in his application, still hold good.

The provision that discharged service men are permitted to reinstate at any time within three calendar months following the month of discharge by merely paying the two months' premium, without making a formal application or a statement as to health is also still in force.

The provisions for reinstatement do not protect a man until he actually reinstates. If he waits he may not be in as good health as he was at the time of discharge and consequently may not be able to secure reinstatement.

Don't put off reinstatement. Do it now!

by Afro-American talent. Prof. Munson recounts that Rollins items were inserted in this paper, and that during his stay here an account of the dedication of the Lyman Gymnasium was reported with a great deal of gusto, the account ending with the assertion that "the splendoration was ethereal." After expressing a wish that the tone of the Sandspur Banquet might be quite as enthusiastic, Mr. Hill introduced Dr. Charles Kimball Hoyt, professor of English and Biblical Literature and Chairman of the Committee on Student Publications.

DR. HOYT.

Dr. Hoyt is a greatly loved and respected member of the faculty. His influence has done much to raise the level of work in composition at Rollins. Dr. Hoyt congratulated the Sandspur upon the quality of the work done this year and upon the regularity and consistency with which the paper had been published. He said that the realm of college journalism was a very important factor in the life of the school and that not too much emphasis could be laid upon the constant improving and strengthening of the work. As illustrative of the brightness of college writing and the wit of college journals, Dr. Hoyt read several choice selections from an anthology of college journalism.

In introducing the editors of the other college papers who were present as guests of the Sandspur, Mr. Hill said that their presence came as the culmination of a long-felt, but heretofore unexpressed desire on the part of the college papers of the State to get together on a closer and more fraternal ground of friendship and mutual helpfulness. He said that the Sandspur considered it a great honor to have brought together for the first time the editors of all but one of the college papers of the State and trusted that it would be the beginning of the formation of closer bonds of co-operation and that there might be many more such gatherings in the future. It was a matter of regret that Mr. Dewey A. Dye, of the University of Florida, could not be present.

Miss Bryan, of the "Flambeau"

Miss Marie Bryan, Editor of the "Flambeau," spoke enthusiastically of the spirit that had brought together the editors of the college papers of Florida. She urged that advantage be taken of this splendid opportunity for the commencement of some sort of permanent work toward inter-collegiate journalistic co-operation between the schools of the State. Miss Bryan expressed a wish that the getting together of the editors might be made an annual affair, and said that Dr. Conradi and the Florida State College for Women were greatly interested in such student co-operation, and that they were willing to back it up as furthering the mutual interests of the institutions.

Mr. Blackburn, of the "Southern."

Mr. Henry W. Blackburn, Editor of the "Southern," at Sutherland, responded with a tribute to the worthy and age-mellowed traditions of Rollins, to her pioneering instinct in the Florida field of higher learning, and to her leading position in the advancement of collegiate ideals in the state. Mr. Blackburn spoke highly of the Sandspur, as a paper, and complimented the staff upon their work. In hearty accord with the spirit of the evening, Mr. Blackburn stressed the growing importance of "getting together" in the matter of the college papers of Florida, and trusted that this banquet would be the beginning of a lasting co-operative effort on the part of the college press of the state.

As Mr. Blackburn finished, a toast to this spirit of co-operation in the college press and to its speedy crystallization into some tangible form of mutual help was proposed by the toastmaster, to which all the banqueters responded with an enthusiastic flourish.

Former Editors Speak.

Four former editors of the Sandspur were introduced in turn. Mrs. Cornelius Christiancy, of Allandale, Society Editor of the Sandspur in '03 and '04, spoke of the happy days she spent at Rollins. She said that at that time social notes were especially hard to find and that she could heartily sympathize with present editors for she had once had the misfortune of handing in her notes just before going to press at commencement time when they were all very busy—and the editor lost them!

Mr. T. W. Lawton, '03, of Sanford, now Superintendent of Public Instruction in Seminole County, but commonly called "T. Willie" when he was head of the Sandspur Staff, spoke very effectively of the province of the public school in making real Americans of the boys and girls of our country. Mr. Lawton held up a high ideal for the schools of the country, and stated that the press of the United States, as a whole, was not doing its share toward obtaining that goal. He believes that every immigrant should be required to learn to read and write OUR language, and that they should be influenced by good, clean American journalism, and not by the foreign language yellow sheets prevalent today. Mr. Lawton touched convincingly upon the necessity of a living wage for common school teachers, a wage commensurate with the responsibility that is theirs in the molding of true Americans.

Mr. Arthur L. Slater, '09, of St. Augustine, spoke of the progress of the Sandspur since the time when he edited it as a yearly publication over ten years ago. He said that it was a great paper and predicted that some day the Sandspur would be a daily.

Miss Mary Branham, '11, of Orlando, editor of the Sandspur in 1910, responded with encouraging words to the present staff and a pledge to the future of the paper.

Announcing that, following a very old custom, he had saved the best till last, Mr. Hill introduced Mr. Doubleday, whom all had been waiting to hear.

Mr. Doubleday—Ideals in Journalism.

Mr. Doubleday is a man with an ideal. That, perhaps, is why he can say of his business, as so many business men do not say of theirs, "I think my business is the best business in the world."

"Publishing," says Mr. Doubleday, "is a great business, and not enough young men of the right sort are going into it. It is one of the finest businesses in the world, and I have not done so badly in a financial way either—I've made enough to come to Florida!"

The great publisher was loathe to speak of himself, but consented to say a few words about his entrance into the profession of publishing. "I did not have near the chance that every one present here tonight has. I had only three years of schooling, and at the age of fourteen I was thrown on my own resources, so I got a job in a publishing house." (Mr. Doubleday spent 17 years with Scribners). When he started the firm of Doubleday, Page & Co., Mr. Doubleday had only $1,200 "and a big and expensive family," and so "of course," he says, "I couldn't use any of the money for the business." But he admits that what he did have was a good supply of a fair brand of "hot air." This he "sold" to a banker for the small sum of $5,000.00, which sum gave him a start. "Since that time, I have owed a million dollars and haven't been afraid—and if my creditors were afraid they were too polite to mention it to me."

"In our plant today," continued Mr. Doubleday, "We use thirty tons of paper, print 250,000 magazines, and make twenty-eight hundred books every twenty-four hours. The paper we use every day would stretch for a distance of thirty-two miles."

Mr. Doubleday has been a close friend of Rudyard Kipling for over a score of years, and tells an interesting story of the time that he took Andrew Carnegie to meet Kipling at the latter's hotel. Upon being presented, Mr. Carnegie bowed respectfully and said, "Mr. Kipling, this is the proudest moment of my life. As Bobbie Burns says in that immortal poem,—As Bobbie Burns says,—As Burns says—, As Shakespeare puts it," (He was quite evidently confused beyond all hope of saying what he had rehearsed for this coveted meeting). "As Shake—" Here Mr. Doubleday broke in with, "Say, Mr. Carnegie, how is the steel business?" and saved the day.

As Mr. Lawton has an ideal in education in public schools, Mr. Doubleday has an ideal in publishing. In speaking of this ideal in journalism, and of the tremendous responsibility of those who spread printer's ink over vast quantities of paper in this country, Mr. Doubleday turned to Mr. Lawton and said: "Mr. Lawton, if you only knew how many lectures along the lines you have just spoken that I have given to my editors! And, to my sorrow, it is very hard for them to see it."

Attacks William Randolph Hearst and Characterizes Arthur Brisbane as "Crook."

The great publisher told of the immense resources and of the vast potentiality of the Hearst interests. He outlined the power for good that lay dormant in that great press association under the control of William Randolph Hearst, and characterized Arthur Brisbane, chief editorial writer for the Hearst interests, as a "crook."

"To my mind," said Mr. Doubleday, "the ideal publishing house would be run by Dr. Lyman Abbott and Andrew Carnegie." Constructive journalism coupled with financial strength is an ideal about which Mr. Doubleday dreams. "There has never been an Andrew Carnegie in journalism, there has never been an Armour. My ideal of a publishing house," continued Mr. Doubleday, "would make its own paper and its own ink, it would control its materials at the source, so that there would be no question of its strength. It would be run by the right kind of men and would be a constructive power in the land. And I believe the salvation of the American people lies in their inherent desire for that which is good—the best that can be had. I believe in the ultimate victory of conservative journalism over the flaring, insidious, yellow sheets of the syndicates and bolshevists."

Mr. Doubleday concluded amidst a storm of applause, offering to answer any questions that might be asked. In reply to a query as to how he avoided labor trouble, he replied, that he ran an open-shop and believed in treating his men in a rational way, paying them for what they did, not for what some Union said they did. Not a member of an employers union, but an exponent of practical sociology and practical economy, is Mr. Doubleday.

His factory and the homes of his men at Garden City, New York, are heralded afar as models of efficiency and congeniality. Though the city did not take its name from the beauty of the factory grounds, Doubleday, Page & Co., might be called the "Garden City" of the world of publishers.

"I believe in putting a premium upon effort, and in paying in proportion to what is done," said Mr. Doubleday. "The Unions want more pay for less work, and limit the individual in his productiveness for the sake of uniformity. What chance is there for the man who is a genius under such rule? Men are content to work for me because I give them a square deal."

After the banquet at the request of members of the staff, Mr. Doubleday consented to meet with them some time for an informal talk upon the various phases of his work in which they might be interested.

It is generally felt that this banquet marks the beginning of great improvement in conditions surrounding the work of the college papers of the state.

REX BEACH

Being Chiefly Episodes of His Days
at Rollins

(Read by Ruth Waldron before the Delphic Literary Society)

Rex Beach, the well known author, was born in Atwood, Michigan, in 1877. Very little can be obtained from the library concerning his boyhood, but since he was, for some years, a student at Rollins, we are especially interested in that part of his career. Dr. Baker was a member of the faculty when Mr. Beach was a student here, and it is from him that I received the greater part of my material.

When Dr. Baker became a member of the faculty of Rollins College in 1892, Rex Beach had been in the college for about a year. Rex was a big, healthy boy, strong, vigorous, and full of energy—interested in everything of which boys with his fine physique, and exuberance of spirit are fond.

He liked the girls and was disciplined sometimes for unallowed association with some of them, as well as for some other violations of college rules.

He was a fairly good student, and while he could tell an interesting story at this boyish period, he showed little or no ability as a story-writer.

Rex, as is natural with most boys, liked good things to eat and these in one incident in the last few minutes of play. The Carlstrom coach became dissatisfied with the referee and asked that he be removed from the floor. This same coach was in evidence during the Arcadia-Rollins football game in Orlando, Thanksgiving day, where he also made himself prominent in a disagreeable manner, by continually entering the field and questioning the decisions of the referee.

Although Rodenbaugh, the basketball referee, had handled the game in a creditable manner in making the game snappy, up to this point he offered to leave and the Arcadia coach was substituted. The remainder of the game was greatly slackened by the decisions of the inexperienced referee.

abundance. When the Hon. Ward Caldwell, now of Honolulu, but then a lively juvenile, would return from week-end visits to his home in Sanford, with his traveling bag stuffed with rich cake and other products of the home oven, Rex would be among the first in Caldwell's room to share in the spread and the associated jollification that followed and continued to the end of the hilarious performance.

Rex roomed in "Lakeside" during his entire stay at the college, occupying the two small rooms over the porch. He had a roommate most of the time.

His furniture was the substantial kind found then, as now, in the college rooms, but the chief occupant had a rocking chair to which he became much attached, and he occupied it most of the time when he was in the room. He would rock and think and study, and his rocking speed and mind-running seemed to keep at an even pace.

Rex's mind was full of adventurous ideas. While still at college, the notion came to him one early Spring-time that he would like to make a gold hunting trip to Honduras during the coming summer vacation. But he was too young to go alone, in the opinion of his parents, so he suggested that Dr. Baker accompany him. The two spent many an idle moment in arranging the details of the proposed trip. Part of the plan was to begin explorations at the mouths of rivers and follow them towards their sources among the mountains of the interior.

But the ambitious adventure faded from sight as the vacation approached, and eventually became as so many similar ones do, an episode of the imagination.

Rex was Physical Director and Instructor here for several years and his work was excellent. He led in every feature of the work, which won applause and many prizes for its excellence. He was probably the best swimmer that ever attended the college, and after he left, his swimming feats in Chicago and elsewhere were heralded throughout the country.

After leaving Rollins in 1896, Mr. Beach attended the Chicago College of Law for a year. In 1899 he spent a year at Kent College of Law. But he is not known as a lawyer; it is as an author that we know him. Some of his books are: The Partners, The Spoilers, The Barrier, The Silver Word, Going Some, The Ne'er-do-well, The Iron Trail, and The Heart of the Sunset.

Mr. Beach has two homes, one in New York and the other in Millionaire's Row, Pasadena, California.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED AT ANNUAL MEETING OF ALUMNI ASS'N

CLASS OF '09 GETS ALUMNI PRESIDENCY: ARTHUR L.
SLATER OF ST. AUGUS-TINE ELECTED FOR
1920-21

Miss Branham, Vice-President; Mrs.
Yothers, Secretary; Miss Mc-Knight, Treasurer.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the Alumni Association, the principal event of Alumni Day of Founder's Week, was held on the morning of Saturday, February 21, at ten o'clock in Carnegie Hall. It was by far the most successful meeting of the Association and was comparatively well attended.

In the absence of President James
I. Noxon, '18, Miss Mary Branham,
'11, Vice-President, took the chair.
Following the roll call and reading of minutes a telegram was read from President George Morgan Ward expressing his great regret that he was unable to be present at the meeting and wishing the Association every success in its work. Chancellor James Brooks spoke briefly representing Dr.
Ward and the college administration and expressed the hope that the important assistance of the alumni would be greatly increased within the next few years.

After hearing the reports of officers and committees the annual election of officers was held with the following results: President, Arthur L.
Slater, '09; Vice-President, Miss Mary
L. Branham, '11; Secretary, Mrs. W.
W. Yothers, '05; Treasurer, Miss Ada
McKnight, '19; Executive Committee:
Miss Mabelle O'Neal, '11, Miss Eva McQuarters, '11, and Ernest Missildine,
'95.

Under the heading of new business a committee was appointed to draw up a new article to the constitution providing for life membership.

Under the efficient direction of Miss Annie Stone, '18, the Alumni Treasury has surpassed all previous records in the collection of funds to be applied to the Baker Chimes. Not only has the Liberty Bond which was contracted for during the early part of the year been entirely paid for but all expenses have been covered and there is a small surplus left over for the new treasurer. When it is realized that the duties of the Treasurer require much time and exacting detail work Miss Stone's splendid donation of effort to her alma mater will be fully appreciated.

The new officers of the Association are splendid representatives of Rollins alumni and are among the foremost citizens of the state. It is expected that many new additions will be made during the year to the Thomas R. Baker Chimes Fund which is the Associations' object.

Isn't It So?

"God created man a little lower than the angels," observed the sage.
"Yes," replied the fool, "but you can't make some men believe it."

ROLLINS GIRLS LOSE TO STET- SON

(P. Phelps)

An interesting game of basket ball was played with the Stetson girls Saturday, Feb. 14th, in the Lyman Gym, by the girls' team of the College. Due to other affairs off the campus the crowd was not large but those who were present did their part in backing up the team. In the second half the Rollins girls showed some real stuff and kept the baskets evenly balanced, but lost to Stetson by a final score of 25 to 8.

Clean play was the most notable feature of the game and fouls were comparatively few. Very few line fouls were called. The good sportsmanship shown on the part of every player attracted no little comment.

Douglass, forward for Stetson, made some pretty shots as did the other forwards for both sides. Pat Richards, out of the game for some time, renewed her old standing on the team and made up for lost time
as center and forward.

The line-up:

"R's" IN AQUATICS AWARDED AT ANNUAL ATHLETIC BANQUET

(Katherine Barnes)

The first day of Founder's Week, or rather the day of the regatta proved to be a brilliant success for Rollins.
The annual Athletic Banquet in the dining hall came as a fitting conclusion to this eventful day.

At the request of Ray Greene, the toastmaster, Chancellor Brooks awarded the prizes. He first awarded the felt "R's" to the war canoe race winners, then the silver "R's" to those winning more than one point. The two fortunate students winning the silver cups were Mary Salisbury, who made eight points, and Wallace Byrd, winner of fourteen points.

The prize awarding was concluded by the presentation of a spade and pail to David Crockett, the proud winner of the tub race.

The banquet came to a close with a speech by Dr. Vincent, who spoke impressively concerning the advancement of athletic team-work at Rollins. He said that Rollins was just entering the athletic field in earnest, and with good practice could easily become highly successful.

The average tuition fee paid by college and university students is $83.24, according to Association Menguage.

VESPER SERVICE (Winifred Stone.)

The Founder's Week program came to a very fitting close with the Vesper Service, Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. Mrs. Brooks gave a very beautiful vocal selection, with Miss Lotta Greenup playing the violin obligato and Mrs. C. R. Harcourt as accompanist.

The address of the afternoon was given by Rev. Vincent Ravi-Booth, his subject being, "Spirit of Babylon." He compared the spirit of the ancient city with the spirit of the Germans, and also compared it with a spirit that, even in our own country, is trying to prevail. He spoke on the other hand of the righteous spirit, the spirit of God, that was exemplified in the lives of such great men as Washington and Lincoln. At the close of his address Rev. Ravi-Booth requested his audience to stand while he read Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

THE ACADEMIC PROCESSION AN INSPIRING SPECTACLE

INTERESTING SPEAKERS DELIGHT AUDIENCE

(Easter Russell)

The annual academic procession of speakers, trustees, faculty members, and seniors was held on Friday afternoon at three o'clock. The procession proceeded from Carnegie Hall to the chapel in Knowles, for the exercises of the afternoon. The following were included in the line of march:

Warren M. Ingram, Marshal.
Chancellor Brooks, Mr. Comstock, Mr. Hamlin Garland, Dr. Baker, Mr. Irving Bacheller and Rev. Vincent Ravi-Booth. These men were speakers at the college during Founder's Week.
Mr. Morse, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Fuller, and Mrs. O'Neal, all of whom are trustees of the school.

J. Haold Hill, Richard Hagerty, and Sexton Johnson this year's graduating class.

The following faculty members: Professors, Hochstetler, Hoyt, Boggs, Dresch, Blair, McGlashen and Hazlett; Mme. Glatz; Misses Dyer, Rous, Watkins, Waterman and Greenup; and the Mesdames Harcourt and Krauss, Messrs. Hanna and Greene; Misses O'Neal, Barrett, Bellows and Edwards.

Chancellor Brooks opened the program of the afternoon by introducing a well-known and highly esteemed personage, Dr. Baker, who for almost thirty years, was a member of the college faculty in the capacity of professor of science. His address, "Reminiscences," was all which the name implies. Dr. Baker told many interesting and delightful experiences during his long period of residence here. His address was brimful of the happenings of the days of Rollins' infancy.

Following Dr. Baker, Mr. Comstock, one of the college trustees gave a short address in which he dwelt at length on the significance and great importance of the college motto, "Fiat Lux."

The last feature of the program was a splendid lecture on the League of Nations, delivered by Dr. Vincent Ravi-Booth who came from his home in Vermont for this occasion. His address was excellent, being a concise treatise on the various phases of the league and treaty as regards the position of the United States upon this question among the other world powers.

of these individuals had boarded a naval vessel at Philadelphia and had told the sailors that Government Insurance would not be good after five years.

"Government Life Insurance for veterans of the great war is a permanent proposition," said Director Cholmeley-Jones. "Misleading statements have been made to the effect that Government Insurance will cease at the end of five years after the war, or that it will be turned over to private companies. Such statements are absolutely false and without foundation. There is, however, a requirement that the temporary term insurance held during the war which increased in cost from year to year, be changed or converted into one of the six permanent forms of Government Life Insurance, (ordinary life, 20-payment life, 30-payment life, 20-year endowment, 30-year endowment, or endowment at age 62) within five years after the formal declaration of peace by proclamation of the president, if the insured desires to continue to be protected. This permanent insurance does not increase in premium cost as the insured grows older.

"Improper conduct by the individuals I have referred to is in direct opposition to the attitude of the great life insurance companies, which is embraced in a statement by the secretary of one of the large companies, who recently said:

"Of course, a life insurance company cannot grant insurance at less than cost, but the Government offers insurance to soldiers and sailors at less than it would cost the Government to grant that insurance (that is because the Government bears all expenses of management, etc.) The government is justified in this liberality in consideration of the fact that these soldiers and sailors have risked their lives, or have been willing to risk their lives, for the benefit of the Nation. All this being so, it is obviously expedient for soldiers and sailors to take all the insurance offered by the Government at the low rate charged.

"The company whose secretary made the above statement has instructed all its agents to refuse to take applications from soldiers and sailors until they have taken the full amount of the new Government Insurance to which they are entitled."

WORLD'S GREATEST FANCY SHOT EX- HIBITS AT ROLLINS

School and Guests Enjoy Demonstration by World's Greatest Fancy Shot

"Ad" Topperwein, the world's greatest fancy shot, and a member of the Shooting Promotion Division of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, was a big feature on the Founder's Week program of the school. On Saturday afternoon, February 21, before a large crowd of students, alumni, and people of Winter Park, Mr. Topperwein, assisted by Boyd F. Duncan, of Lucy, Tenn., the youngest professional trapshot in the world, demonstrated the remarkable proficiency of the modern firearms. Duncan, two years ago, won the amateur trapshooting championship of the State of Tennessee, and is a southpaw shooter.

Mr. Topperwein first made a short speech, explaining the object of his tour, which began at Ocala, Florida, and will end in Atlanta, Georgia, on April 3. The American nation is a nation of shooters, said Mr. Topperwein, but nevertheless over one half ance, was so well arranged that no time was lost in the procedure. The various styles of Winchester rifles were demonstrated, including the old style .32 soft nose. Mr. Topperwein would throw two, three, and even four objects in the air at a time, and hit every one, when demonstrating the repeater. Such "stunts" as shooting through the hole in a washer, whirling through the air, shooting two objects, thrown into the air at one time, with two different guns, and shooting the outlines of the head of Uncle Sam in a large sheet of tin were features of the exhibition.

"AD" TOPPERWEIN

Mr. Duncan demonstrated the Winchester Junior trap shooting outfit. After the performance, ladies and gentlemen in the audience were allowed to try their hands at the shooting game.

Among the prominent visitors present were Mr. Bartlett, a former Winchester exhibitor, whom Mr. Topperwein met twenty years ago at San Francisco, and whom he introduced to the audience; and Captain Jenkins, editor of the Outer's Book magazine, who was recently overseas.

The following biography of Mr. Topperwein, and account of his work, taken from a Winchester pamphlet is of interest since it gives one an idea of the exhibition which took place upon the shores of Lake Virginia Saturday afternoon.

"Ad Topperwein, the greatest living fancy and flying target shot with rifle, pistol and shotgun, is a native of Texas, his home being in San Antonio. Texas is a state long noted for its good shots. Being brought up in such an atmosphere, it is not surprising that Topperwein was given the stimulus to develop a natural skill for shooting possessed by him in an unusual degree. This is marvelously displayed in his exhibitions. He uses no special equipment, but ordinary Winchester guns and Winchester ammunition, the regular ammunition such as is sold everywhere. He shoots at objects of varying sizes, such as oranges, apples, bits of coal, walnuts, small marbles, empty cartridge shells, etc., which are thrown into the air and hit with bullets from his rifle or revolver, held in every conceivable position. On thirteen occasions Mr. Topperwein has broken the world's record, shooting flying targets with a rifle. At one time he hit 4,954 1 1/4 inch targets out of 5,000 thrown into the air at a distance of 25 feet; and on another occasion he hit 9,999 out of 10,000 2 1/4 inch blocks thrown at the same distance, missing only one out of the entire lot. In the most marvelous exhibition ever attempted by him or anyone else, Mr. Topperwein shot for ten successive days at 2 1/4 inch blocks thrown into the air at a distance of about 25 feet and missed only four out of the first 50,000 and only nine out of the entire lot of 72,500. During the exhibition he made straight runs of 13,219, 13,292, 13,599 and 14,540. Such a feat seems impossible and shows his extraordinary skill. Another wonderful performance of Mr. Topperwein's which brings out a different phase of his skill and never fails to hold attention, is the drawing of pictures in perfect outline with bullets shot from his rifle. This he does in rapid time—just as fast as he can pull the trigger of his Winchester automatic. It is fascinating to watch the picture grow as the bullets piff, piff all over the target.

During the war period Mr. Topperwein was instructor of trap shooting at the School of Military Aeronautics at Austin, Texas, where his knowledge of fire arms was of great service to the Government."

Boyd Duncan, Youngest Professional Trapshot in the World of the men who went overseas in the war, knew nothing at all about shooting, or at least were ignorant of how to shoot properly. It is as much up to the father of today to teach his son how to shoot as how to swim. He also remarked that ladies, nowadays, are much more interested and proficient in shooting, than heretofore. It is especially necessary that a lady know how to handle a revolver in a business-like manner. In addition to many apparent advantages shooting takes one out of doors. One does not have to be born a genius to shoot well. Proficiency and skill in the handling of firearms comes merely through practice.

Mr. Topperwein commenced the exhibition by shooting at a few small objects. Mr. Duncan held a cigarette in his mouth, and "Ad" shot the cigarette in half. He also shot at a few objects with his back turned to them, using a mirror to see the position of the objects. He repeated this performance with a revolver.
