Coopers & Lybrand, an international accounting and consulting firm, has chosen UCF as one of 30 universities to share their programs in a new mini-venture for the stay, coordinating with Dr. Besos Wain Ruyee Lee, director of the Overseas Youth Service Department of the Chinese Youth Corp.

Patrick J. Knipe, managing partner of the downtown Orlando Coopers & Lybrand Florida office, said the 1987 classes at UCF were among the first to try the new video materials that put students into real-life business experiences.

The program cost $1.5 million to produce, but its firm, he said, feels so strongly about the need that it has committed $8 million over five years to enhance accounting and business studies.

"It is important that auditing instruction prepares students to deal with the real world of auditing before they leave the classroom waiting until they are on-the-job is simply too late," he said. Coopers & Lybrand is one of the "Big Eight" firms with 25 offices located throughout the country. It has had an Orlando presence for 22 years and last year absorbed Colony, Trombley & Howell, a local firm established in 1940. The Orlando office employs 24 UCF graduates among 500 UCF alumni.

In the UCF School of Accounting, Professor Gary Holstrum and Associate Professor Larry Salt accepted the video simulation into their auditing classes. Approximately 250 undergraduates (more than 200 in the first course and 126 masters students take the second course each year).

In January 1986 Coopers & Lybrand got together five professionals who chose an educational corporation in auditing education.

Holstrum was one of them and it was the sponsor's first visit to the Central Florida Research Park at the time, but in the process of transferring to UCF.

"Our association members were developing the idea of better auditing education when we came together with key people in Coopers & Lybrand, who had parallel thoughts and were willing to make a heavy investment in the concept," Holstrum said. He was chosen as one of six professors who became an advisory board for the project.

The program materials put together by a joint effort of these professors and Coopers & Lybrand personnel, professionally produced into a 90-minute show. Holstrum said the sponsor specified that the firm was not to be identified in the work examples so that as an educational tool the tape would be generic. Its own students at the integrated "UCF were very enthusiastic" about not only the use of humor in the presentation, but also with the depth of discussion presented in the four sections of the simulation.

The program that Coopers & Lybrand has made available to UCF was too costly for a single university to produce and could not be presented effectively in a traditional textbook approach. The video tape has been the best way to present the material, Holstrum said.

Representatives of the 30 selected universities will evaluate the first seminar results in February and in the spring faculty from 60 universities will be invited to a symposium so the usage can be extended next fall.

Coopers & Lybrand is committed to better education, not only nationally, but locally, where the firm looks to UCF to provide new talent each year, Knipe said.

Tuition educators to use UCF's hotel
during Florida visit

A delegation of six to eight Taiwanese educators will make the UCF Holiday Inn their headquarters while touring Central Florida between Jan. 10-22.

Dr. Dick Cornell, Educational Services, has assisted the group in making arrangements for the stay, coordinating with Dr. Besos Wain Ruyee Lee, director of the Overseas Youth Service Department of the Chinese Youth Corp.

Dr. Cornell plans to show the visitors the Central Florida Research Park on the afternoon of Jan. 21, then have a reception for them on campus, followed by a chance to audit his 6 p.m. class, and then dinner.

More definite arrangements will be made in New Orleans when he sees the Asian visitors during the Association for Educational Communications and Technology convention, Jan. 15-19.

Handbook rates UCF's research park in top 10

Central Florida Research Park has been named one of the 10 outstanding business parks in the US by the editors of SITE SELECTION HANDBOOK. The publication caters to corporate facility planning executives.

SITE SELECTION appraised the research park's "impressive track record" since its groundbreaking in 1981 and further recognized it as an example of how research parks are "uniquely positioned to capture corporations seeking to meet their critical R&D needs with research-oriented universities eager to strengthen their programs..."
Dailey returns to UCF to head CBA promotions

A UCF graduate and Fort Walton Beach native, Jay Dailey, has been appointed director of development and external relations for the College of Business Administration. His responsibilities will include fundraising, as well as providing newsletters and brochures and coordinating special events for the college, according to Dean Clifford L. Eubanks.

Prior to joining the University, Dailey was an account executive for the Orlando office of Y&R/CMF4Z Public Relations, a Young & Rubicam company. While working for clients such as duPont Centre, Stromberg-Carlson and Ernst & Whinney, she gained experience in all major areas of public relations, including media relations, video production and marketing support.

Dailey earned his UCF bachelor of science degree in marketing, and has been active in the Volusia Center of Central Florida, The Ivanhoe Foundation, Downtown Orlando, Inc. and the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce.

Overdue books free at University Library

Holding a library book past the due date will be forgiven for the rest of January at UCF's Library.

Other campus units whose accounts are receivable into conformance with those of the Library to the University will receive scheduling for the College of Business Administration that HMO Florida did not extend its current contract beyond Dec. 31, 1987, and pursuant to Section 240.247, Florida Statutes, each state university is required to undertake a program for the purpose of eliminating discrimination in salary based on sex or race, within certain job groupings. This study will involve ranked faculty and A&P personnel at the University of Central Florida with one of the following class codes: 9001-9004, 9005-9008, 9101-9105, 9106-9109, 9110-9114, 9115-9119, 9127-9133, 9167-9170, and all A&P codes (9200 and above).

We have been advised by the Chancellor's office that, "In any year, an employee may seek to resolve a salary inequity due to discrimination based on race or sex either by filing a grievance under Article 6 - Nondiscrimination - or by conducting a salary equity study according to this procedure. But the employee cannot do both."

The primary purpose of the study is to address inequities of those who historically have been victims of discrimination (i.e., female and minority group members). Individuals who participate in this study will be identified by one of the procedures. They are as follows: administrative selection or self-selection.

JOBS FAIR

The minority recruitment program at UCF will focus on campus career opportunities. The program, coordinated on-the-spot Saturday, Jan. 23. Campus office representatives will conduct individual career guidance appointments, conduct on-the-spot interviews for existing positions and outline benefits, academic programs and availability of public transportation to and from UCF.

FACULTY SENATE

The Faculty Senate meeting has been changed from Jan. 21 to Thursday, Jan. 28. The Steering Committee will meet on Jan. 19 to prepare the senate's agenda. Meetings of the committee and senate will be held in Room 115 of Mowad Phillips Hall at 4 p.m.
Helpful smile is natural for Barbara Sherwood

Being a minister's wife develops some special talents, as Barbara Sherwood, administrative secretary in the Counseling and Testing Center, will testify. She does not have to seek diversions for herself after work. The church provides them for her.

"If I can do other things because I'm expected to be at all church functions—everything but the deacon's meetings," she teaches an adult Bible class, leads in training workshops and clinics, makes hospital and house calls, helps with the benevolent ministry, helps the choir director with singing programs and, in general, provides a hand whenever needed.

Meanwhile, husband Larry is working on his doctorate from Southern Seminary, which requires an occasional month on the Louisville campus, as well as lots of hours of study.

Sherwood, Employee of the Month for January, presents an always smiling face where it's often needed. When students seek help at the center it's usually because of stresses in their lives, personal problems or the anticipation of a required test.

"She's friendly and efficient," says Dr. Paul Fish, one of six staff psychologists for whom she works, along with the University's test administrator.

"She is an indispensable person who deals very successfully with a cross-section of the University community," he added.

Barbara (née Ball) was born in Seneca, S.C. At an early age her parents moved to Sanford and she graduated from Seminole High School, promptly marrying her childhood boyfriend, Larry Sherwood. She lived and worked in Gainesville while he completed a degree. Larry taught school a couple years in Samincola County, then worked for a mortage company before he heard the call to the ministry. But when he did, he and Barbara and their young son, Flod, left everything behind so Larry could study at Southern Seminat Baptist Seminary, Fort Worth, for three years. She did office work at the seminary to help with the family's finances.

Canadian speaker views new directions

"The New Direction of Canadian-American Relations" is the subject of a talk to be given Thursday, Jan. 14, at UCF by Richard Price, a political science professor at the University of Windsor, Ontario.

His 10 a.m. appearance is under the auspices of the Florida-Canada Institute, in collaboration with UCP's Canadian Studies program under Dr. Henry Kenney.

The public is invited to attend, and a special invitation has been extended to Canadians in the area, Kennedy said. The program will be presented in the Administration Building Board Room.

Eitharong Gallery helps UCF program

The Eitharong Gallery of Orlando last month presented the UCF Foundation with a $1,000 check to help support the drawing program with a fund to buy supplies. The quality of teaching provided by Robert Frease and Steve Lozak was recognized by Tony Eitharong when he judged the student art show year ago.

"Since then it has been our desire to support the endeavors of these two teachers so that their students' work can maintain its high standard," Eitharong said.

Upon graduation Larry was called to pasture in a First Baptist Church of Gainesville and the family has lived there since the post-World War II era. Rod is close to an AA degree. He does not have to seek diversions for himself after work. The church provides them for him.

Barbara Sherwood plans to keep on working at least until the two younger family members complete their college studies.

"When that happens, maybe I'll think about going to college myself," she said. In addition to the recognition she appreciates, Employees of the Month are given a framed certificate signed by the University President and chair of the Staff Council, two free meals at the University Dining Room, a $10 gift certificate from the University Bookstore, two free pizzas from Pizza Hut, and a chance to become Employee of the Year, with further free gifts.

Employee of the Month Chair Kay Harward reminds the UCF community that any employee may nominate an employee classified as UCP for the honor. A nomination form runs on the back page of every issue of The UCF Report.

Directories: Get 'em now, check 'em now

The 1987-88 UCF telephone directories are still being distributed but some people are already planning the next issue.

Bill Morris, director of Administrative Services and Operations Analysis, asks all University employees to check their own listings. If there are errors in the current edition, Morris wants to know.

Photocopy the page where the error occurs, mark corrections and send to Ruth Galbraith, Telecommunications to be available for review by a committee, he said.

The reason for making corrections early is to try for an August distribution of the 1988-89 campus directory.

Student Government, which has the primary role in preparing and distributing the UCF directory, advises that there is an ample supply of the 1987-88 directories.

Copies are being distributed from the Kiosk, which is open 9 to 9 Monday through Friday. Each departmental administrator should send someone from their office to pick up as many copies as are needed.

UCForum lunches to bring together Orlando area grads

UCF alumni are invited to the first of four scheduled "UCForum" luncheons this year Jan. 22 in downtown Orlando.

The formal 11:30 a.m. gatherings at the Harley Hotel offer alumni the opportunity to review old friendships, and be brought up to date with happenings at the University.

The speaker at the January UCForum will be Dr. Richard Gilson, UCF psychologist, pilot, engineer and human factors expert. Last year Gilson retraced Lindbergh's 1927 New York-to-Paris flight with a solo trip that began in Orlando.

Alumni who would like to attend are asked to call the UCF Alumni Office to request placement on a mailing list for coming events. Other forums are planned for April, July and October.
Reception to draw attention to faculty incentive program

A reception in the Administration Building Board Room on Friday, Jan. 22, will honor the Fall 1987 recipients of the Office of Instructional Resources Council Grants. The reception and demonstration of grant projects will last from 9 to 11:30 a.m. It will also be an occasion for the Office of Instructional Resources to remind faculty that grant money is available to them for instructional development projects.

The grants are to assist in increasing POWER PLANT TALK

A remembrance

Calvin Miller, dean of the College of Education for 18 years and in service to the University for all 20 years of its operation, was given a reception by his colleagues on Jan. 5 to unveil this portrait of him that will hang in the main hall of the Education Building. Miller (white jacket) received best wishes in his phased retirement by, left to right, President Trevor Colbourn, former President Millican and the present college dean, William Johnson.

Pay from play

Service awards

Geologists say sinkhole up to nature

The future of the Winter Park sinkhole, or Lake Rose, if you prefer, lies in the hands of nature, UCF experts told area TV and radio audiences Jan. 6. A news conference at the site was conducted by UCF's Florida Sinkhole Research Institute.

Citing new evidence, the team consisting of institute director Barry Baskin, assistant Bill Wilson and UCF geologist Frank Koperna, indicated no present danger exists to nearby businesses, even though Lake Rose could fall an additional 20 feet in the wake of the sudden drop Dec. 28 that took everyone by surprise.

Stumping and erosion along the shore of the lake were caused by changing conditions in the sinkhole, and not by any problem from fill that was dumped into the hole after the May 1981 "grand opening" that swallowed five automobiles and a home.

The institute report continued that the most recent drop in water level was caused by groundwater flowing through the limestone aquifer that in turn undermined the sediment plug that had stopped up the hole for the past six and one-half years.

The latest study also speculated that heavy rains could erode the west and south banks of the hole without additional fill every few years.

Polish playwright to give readings at UCF Friday

Janusz Glowacki, a Polish playwright, will be the third writer to speak for the 1987-88 World Writer Series, sponsored by UCF's Department of English and the Orlando Sentinel.

He will give readings at noon on Friday, Jan. 15, in the Administration Board Room. The meeting is free and open to the public.

Glowacki was in London attending the opening of his play, Cinders, at the Royal Court Theatre, when martial law was declared in his native Poland in 1981. He has been in exile since and lives in New York where he has gained recognition.

The speaker has written 20 radio plays, six stage plays and several screenplays, all but four of which have been censored in Poland. Some of his titles include For tinbras Gets Drunk, Hunting Cockroaches, Hunting Flies and Give Us This Day, the last a novel that chronicles the birth of Solidarity.

Golf tournament a benefit classic for Business Ad

Marriott's Orlando World Center and Orlando Business Journal have joined as co-sponsors of the First Annual UCF Corporate Golf Classic.

The Classic, a benefit golf tournament for the College of Business Administration, will be held on Friday, Jan. 15, at Marriott's Orlando World Center. A buffet lunch and putting tournament begin at 11 a.m., followed by a "shot gun" start at 12:30 p.m. Awards will be presented at a cocktail reception immediately following the tournament, scheduled to end at 5 p.m.

Alumni, local businesses and the Central Florida community are invited to participate. Fees are $75 per golfer and hole sponsorships are available for $150. Non-golfers are welcome to attend the awards ceremony reception for $15.

For more information, contact the College of Business Administration Development Office at 32061.
Government workshop to attack stress

The correlation between stress, time management and management styles will be discussed at a workshop Jan. 30 presented by the Institute of Government at UCF. Topics to be covered by presenter, Dr. Shirley M. Willard, include sources of stress, avoiding negative stress, human relations and management skills.

The workshop is designed for those in public administration and supervisory leadership as a means to improve job performance and to assist others in more productive work habits. Willard, an organizational development consultant in Orlando, has worked with a multitude of public and private organizations in the U.S. and abroad. The workshop will get underway at 9 a.m. at the Park Suite Hotel, Altamonte Springs. The $15 fee covers all materials, breaks and lunch. For complete information, contact W. E. "Pete" Knowles, UCF Institute of Government, x2123.

Management classes start this week at UCF and Cocoa campuses

The Management Institute of UCF will sponsor classes in Capacity Management, beginning Wednesday, Jan. 13, in Orlando and Thursday, Jan. 14, at the UCF Brevard Campus in Cocoa. The course will prepare participants for the APICS Certificate in Production and Inventory Management examination.

The second course, Effective Contract Administration, will also be held on both the Orlando and Brevard campuses, beginning Feb. 8 in Orlando and Feb. 9 at Cocoa. This course will prepare participants for the National Contract Management Association (NCMA) test for the designation of Certified Professional Contracts Manager.

All courses will be for one night a week for 10 weeks; from 6 to 9 p.m., and are approved for GPM points and/or CEUs.

TRAINING SEMINAR

A four-day training seminar at the University Holiday Inn, sponsored by the Management Institute, ends on Friday of this week. Dr. Ed Jones, nationally known among train-the-trainer instructors, is in charge.

The first two days covered planning, designing and evaluating an effective training, while Thursday and Friday's sessions will be on developing classroom training techniques.

Official memoranda

To: Deans, Directors & Department Heads
From: J. Gomez, Controller
Subject: Available Balance Checking

Beginning the week of Jan. 18, 1988, budget balances will be checked for available funds before encumbrances or disbursements are processed. This procedure will prohibit debit carding and provide an additional measure of control over funds allocated to the University. Available balance checking will begin with all accounts in the General Revenue fund (accounts beginning with '01' through '26' in the first two digits and from '006' to '079' in the last three digits). Other accounts will be added during the next two months.

Invoices submitted to Purchasing or Finance & Accounting for encumbrance or payment will be returned to the Department if funds are not available. This includes Requisitions, TAPs, Short Invoices, Limited Orders, Reimbursements for Expenses or other than Travel, etc.

It is extremely important that your accounts are reconciled each month and carefully monitored in order to avoid unnecessary delays in processing encumbrances and disbursements. Your cooperation is solicited and necessary to achieve the proper controls and avoid deficit spending. If you have any questions, you may call Finance & Accounting at x2541.

Monday holiday to honor King Jr.

Monday, Jan. 16, is a holiday for state employees, honoring the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., whose "dream" speech in Washington 84 years ago signified all the hopes of minorities seeking full privileges of citizenship.

Jenet Bolanoff, director of the UCF Office of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action Programs, reminds the University community, "Laws such as the Civil Rights Act of 1964 stand as landmarks along the trail blazed by Dr. King. University programs of affirmative action are but one way to fulfill the dream, by implementing federal laws and guidelines."

The holiday occurs on the Monday nearest to Dr. King's Jan. 16th birthday.

The Dybbuk, a classic tale, comes to UCF

A classic tale of star-crossed lovers will be brought to the stage at UCF on Feb. 14, when the National Theatre of the Deaf (NTD) presents "The Dybbuk: Between Two Worlds." The production, which follows the fortunes of two lovers from an Eastern European village during the 19th century, has become "as timeless as the universe...one of the great theatre works of the century."

Audiences will both see and hear the performance, since the deaf and hearing actors comprise the troupe since its inception 20 years ago, the NTD has given over 4,000 performances in 26 countries. It became the first professional theatre company from the West ever to tour in Europe.

The Dybbuk was written by S. Ansky, a Russian-Jewish folk writer, and first performed in Warsaw in 1914, when the National Theatre of the Deaf with the National Jewish Theatre. The production was significant in that it was the first attempt by a Yiddish-speaking theatre company to produce a play that had a Hebrew dialogue.

The Dybbuk tells the story of a young Jewish couple, Chana and Jacob, who are soon to be married. However, Chana's father, Reb Meir, has forbidden the marriage due to previous family tragedy. When Chana defies her father, he curses her and her lover, and they are both killed. The spirits of Chana and Jacob return as "dybbuks," or ghosts, and haunt their father. The only way to rid the world of the spirits is to kill the father. The action takes place in a single day, with the dybbuks' final appearance in the middle of the night.

The production at UCF will be directed by Shoshana Rabinovitch, and will feature a cast of actors from the National Theatre of the Deaf. The performance will be held at the University Center Theatre, and will be preceded by a talkback session with the cast and director. The show is recommended for mature audiences due to its mature themes.

THANKS

As I leave the University of Central Florida, I wish to thank the faculty and staff with whom I have worked during the past 11 years. This is a difficult time and cooperation made my job a pleasure instead of a chore. I will miss the friends that I have here and I shall think about them often in the days ahead. To all of you, I wish good luck and a happy new year.
