Subj ect: Property Inventories

Recent information from the SUS Chancellor, Dr. Charles B. Reed, (CM-87-21), indicates that all items less than $200 on the Property Master File are to be purged.

Specifically, the instructions are to: (a) mark, assign property control numbers, and maintain a formal property inventory record on only those items whose acquisition cost exceeds the threshold of $300, and has a normal life of over a year or more.

As yet, we have not received a data for the purges of existing items valued at less than $200; it should, however, occur sometime between now and June 30, 1988. Please be aware that no items with a value of less than $300 will appear on the inventory after the purge occurs even though they may be "attractive" in nature.

Sub ject: Research Proposal Submission Dead lines

Due to the large increase in the number of research proposals being submitted to funding agencies, the Division of Sponsored Research is requesting all proposers to be in our office 48 hours prior to the deadline for submission.

Although we will continue to do our best to help you meet agency deadlines, the Division of Sponsored Research will not be responsible for missing deadlines, delays in grants in lateness, non-compliance to agency requirements, or poorly prepared proposals, if the 48 hour deadline is not met.

Please help us to help you by the very best chance to obtain external funding for your research programs.

Sub ject: New Area Code

On April 16, 1988 our area code changes from 305 to 407.

This change will accommodate growth well into the next century. Your local telephone number will not be affected even if you live within the new Area Code 407.

If you live outside the new Area Code 407, we recommend that you develop a checklist of "things to do" involving your own personal or business communications. For example, you will need to change your directory listings, replies, basic cards, and other items on which your area code is printed. You also will need to notify family, friends and business associates who use your long distance numbers.

If you live outside the new area code 407 but make calls to people within 407, you will use the new number.

Evening students surveyed want more class offerings

A survey of evening students shows that more than half those sampled would like to have more evening class offerings. Of those wanting more class choices, 33 percent are interested in business, 30 percent in engineering, 11 percent in arts and sciences and seven percent in education.

Of those wanting more graduate level classes, three percent finance, two percent computer science and electrical engineering, while one percent would like more courses in English, biological science, psychology and health.

The level of needs survey was conducted by the Office of Evening/Weekend Student Services in the 1985 fall semester to learn what evening students felt they needed most in terms of programs and services.

The survey was distributed to 600 randomly selected UCF evening students and 239, or 39 percent, responded.

After ranking choice of classes their first concern (51 percent), evening students showed a 42 percent concern for flexibility in scheduling, 34 percent listed professors' office hours, 30 percent student financial aid and 29 percent academic advisement for course selection.

Among undergraduate evening students 64 percent said they needed registration assistance, while 36 percent graduate students thought they could use help registering.

The need for health services related programs was 14 percent, on-campus evening child care was 18 percent, public transportation, athletic services, ticket information and counseling all came in at 13 percent.

An evening student newsletter rated 11 percent, academic skills assistance, CLAST test information and preparation nine percent, student government affairs, recreation and intramural programs eight percent, veterans' affairs four percent and minority affairs three percent.

In addition 28 percent felt more campus security was needed in which student escort services ranked 33 percent, more lighting around cars 11 percent and increased visibility of campus police after classes ranked 10 percent showed safety concerns.

One-fourth of the evening students responding to the poll felt a need for improved parking procedures, 24 percent would like increased job placement activity and 23 percent showed interest in more career counseling.

Theatre guest offers look at Canadian stage

The UCF Theatre will offer a bonus to local performers and theatre buffs in conjunction with its production of "The Ice Wolf" with programs April 6 and 7, featuring Canadian actress and educator Jacqueline Dunckel.

The play, which follows the fortunes of a young Canadian Eskimo girl in her battle against intolerance, will be staged at UCF from March 24 through April 6.

Dunckel will conduct a voice and diction workshop for performers from 1 to 3 p.m. April 6 in the UCF Black Box Theatre. There are a limited number of openings for observers.

Canadian theatre is the subject of a "Conversation with Jacqueline Dunckel" at 8 p.m. the following day in the Black Box. There will be a reception at 4 p.m. The public is invited to both.

There also will be a "Canadian Night" performance of "The Ice Wolf" that evening. For information regarding special group admissions and for reservations at the April 6 workshop, call x2861.

'Best Senator' a UCF student

One of four UCF political science students taking part in Stetson University's 17th annual Model U.S. Senate March 8-9, won a "Best Senator" award.

The winner, Robert Trimble, portrayed Senator Malcolm Wallop (R-Wyoming). The other UCF students and their roles included Anita Drummond as Senator Daniel Moynihan (D-N.Y.), included Anita Drummond as Senator Daniel Moynihan (D-N.Y.), and John Sips as Senator Bill Bradley (D-N.J.).

One hundred students from 10 universities simulated the daily affairs of the Senate by debating current legislation, enacting or defeating legislative proposals at committee hearings and in floor sessions.

Theatre for teachers offered this summer

The who's, what's, where's and how's of theatre production will be presented this summer in two workshops at UCF.

The two-week programs, which begin June 13 and July 18, are geared toward high school teachers either new to theatre production or needing a refresher, plus anyone interested in producing on a limited budget.

Marilyn McKay and Joseph S. Rusnock, both assistant professors of theatre at UCF, will teach the afternoon and evening classes.

Spreading the word

Associate Vice President for University Relations Dan Holsenbeck (right) and chair of the 25th anniversary committee, let the listeners to radio station WORL know some details of one of the early events in the series of celebrations that mark this 25th anniversary of the founding of UCF. With him while he gave a live account was Bob Belle, director of Minority Student Services, that on Feb. 28 held open house for Black History Month.

Memorable performance

It was not only a great performance of classical music, the piano concerto by Klaus Hellwig of the Berlin Conservatory of Music, was a fitting beginning for the series of musical performances planned for this anniversary year. Hellwig (center) is congratulated by Ed Neighbors (left), associate vice president for Academic Affairs, and Bruce Whisler, chair of the Music Department. An anniversary-decorated cake was served at the March 15 concert reception.

High-flying award

Any one of 12 UCF alumni may be the lucky winner of two round-trip tickets to New York City, being given by Pat Bishop, district sales manager for Eastern Airlines. "It has been a thrill to prepare a research paper for the UCF Department of Anthropology, has received a Fulbright award to spend 10 months in Japan. He will also do research on sources of timber-cutting operation there."

Area parents and their children are in for a special treat when they attend any of the nine performances of "The Ice Wolf," presented in late March and early April at the UCF Theatre. The unusual drama, which in turn is the playwright's version of an Eskimo legend, relates the story of a young girl who was mistreated and cast from her village, and is changed into a wolf by a forest god.

"It depicts how intolerance, bigotry and revenge are handled by a particular culture," said Dr. Marilyn McKay, who is directing the Joanna Kraus Play. "It plays a message, but certainly not an overt- bearing. It's a play I think children and parents will enjoy."

David Jones gets Fulbright award for 6 months in Japan

David E. Jones, associate professor of anthropology, has been awarded a Fulbright research and lecturing award to study religion and American history and culture though religion and folk music in Japan. He will lecture on American culture, the American Studies Program at Kyushu University, and spend 10 months in Japan. He will also do research on sources of timber-cutting operation there."

UCF student of anthropology awarded national study grant

Dr. Jones will be associated with the American Studies Program at Kyushu University and Saltani University in Fukuoka on the island of Kyushu. He will lecture on American culture, the native peoples of North America, American Indian religion and American history and culture through religion and folk music.

He will also do research on sources of Japanese male values and begin work on a study of "Warrior Societies." He will also travel to Korea and China during his appointments.

Course to explain Artificial Intelligence

The Management Institute will present a three-day, all-day course in Artificial Intelligence, on campus, March 25-27. Dr. James Ragusa, professor of Management at UCF who spent 22 years in a variety of technical and managerial positions with NASA, will instruct the sessions in Education Room 125 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Special treat for the family coming to the UCF Theatre

The UCF Alumni Association offers scholarships worth $9,400. The call is out to applicants for $9,400 in scholarships to be administered this spring by the UCF Alumni Association. In addition, the group seeks applicants or nominations for annual distinguished student and distinguished alumna awards.

Six of the scholarships worth $1,000 each will go to the top seniors of each of the college communities located in UCF's service area: Valencia, Seminole, Brevard, Daytona Beach, Lake-Sumter and Central Florida.

Three $800 awards will go to UCF students junior or senior year, and $1,000 will go to this year's Millikan Scholar, honoring UCF's first president, Dr. Charles N. Millikan.

The distinguished alumna and student awards consist of plaques that are presented at the annual alumni banquet in June.

Information on any of the alumni association awards may be obtained by calling the UCF Alumni Office at x2032. There is an April 1 deadline on applications.

Kappa Sigma seeks adviser

Kappa Sigma, the oldest fraternity on campus, has started a search for a new faculty adviser.

Ed Knight, director of Records and Registration, has been the adviser to the undergraduate chapter for the 17 years of its existence. Knight, however, has had to ratio in August and spend a part of the year in the mountains of North Carolina.

Hank Costello (UCF '76), past president and current treasurer of the alumni chapter of Kappa Sigma, is heading the search and asks that anyone on faculty, or among A&P or staff personnel, who has been a Kappa Sigma and is willing to serve as adviser to 25 active members and 13 pledges, call his office at 725-7798, day or night.

Knight also can be called at x5012. The fraternity has its house on Roese Rd. at University Boulevard.

Quotable

"Politeness costs nothing and gains everything."

Lady May Worthy Montagu

"The ice Wolf" was written in 1963, when Kraus was a graduate student at UCLA. She based her work on the artist's own experiences of being followed by a wolf with a young girl's face she saw while working with a theatre group in Ottawa. While this has been presented in the U.S. and Canada over the years, the play has never been performed in this area. The "Ice Wolf" begins March 24 at 8 p.m. Other 8 p.m. curtain will be on March 25, April 6, 7 and 9. There are 2 p.m. matinees March 23 and April 17, and 7 p.m. performances March 25 and April 6. Tickets are priced at $5 for adults and $2 for children under 12 and 75 for adults.

The April 7 performance has been designated Connoise Night, and special group rates will apply.

For information and reservations, call x2852 between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays.

FSEC architect starts design on UCF/BCC site

Architects Design Group (ADG) of Winter Park has been awarded the contract for the Florida Solar Energy Center on 20 acres adjoining UCF/Brevard Community College. Stone continues to design two projects on campus site in the works.

The ADG contract was executed earlier this month by the Board of Regents. Jerry Osterhuis, UCF's Facilities Planning director, said the lack of space for growth and military requirements in the area make it necessary for FSEC to move from its original Port Canaveral site next to the south gate of Kennedy Space Center.

The move, however, will not be a last one, Osterhuis said. The design for the new site and another 10-acre site three miles away, could take a year.

Another Winter Park firm, PDR Architects Inc., should have a contract with the state within 30 days to design an on-campus fieldhouse and world class track.

The site has not been fully selected, he said, and specifications for the fieldhouse depend on financing by the legislature.

On another campus project, the Fine Arts complex, Osterhuis said the BDIP's final site approval is expected within two weeks. Osterhuis said it would be a four months' process to pick an architect and it would take nine months to a year to design a $75,000 square foot building.

UCF/UFF CONSULTATION MINUTES
Feb. 2, 1988

Attendance: Trevor Colburn, Richard Astro, Frank Juge, Mark Roberta UFF: David Hammette, Mark Everts

1. The issue of overload assignments to faculty in the College of Business Administration was discussed. Dr. Hernandez asked why UCF would not allow faculty overload courses. Juge said that he would not approve overload courses in the College of Business to teach overload courses. Juge indicated that he understood that the college did not allow overload courses.

2. President Colburn indicated that AACSB accreditation requires a faculty teaching load of 15 hours undergraduates and 9 hours graduate. Hernandez indicated that he understood that the faculty should be encouraged to participate in Fall and Spring graduation ceremonies. The administration is looking into a need for the college to institute a plan for faculty overload courses. Hernandez asked to put this on the agenda for the next meeting.

3. Mark Roberta reviewed the health insurance programs. A cafeteria plan of insurance is being developed which would provide the best plan for employees. Hernandez asked if it was agreed that faculty should be encouraged to participate in Fall and Spring graduation ceremonies. The administration is looking into a need for the college to institute a plan for faculty overload courses. Hernandez asked to put this on the agenda for the next meeting.

4. There was a brief discussion of the budget process as it relates to faculty access to high level personal computers. Rich Astro responded that we are developing a plan so that faculty access to personal computers will be available. Rich Astro said that the plan needs to be implemented. Hernandez said that personal computers should be a priority. He said that they are not as informed.

5. Juge explained that the University appears to meet the 12-hour work load requirement, but that we may need to change our audit unit system in accordance with a statewide format.

6. President Colburn indicated that AACSB accreditation requires a faculty teaching load of 15 hours undergraduates and 9 hours graduate. Hernandez indicated that he understood that the faculty should be encouraged to participate in Fall and Spring graduation ceremonies. The administration is looking into a need for the college to institute a plan for faculty overload courses. Hernandez asked to put this on the agenda for the next meeting.

7. Hernandez indicated that the UFF supports a college-level approach to addressing the lack of health insurance and funding in the College of Health. Astro indicated that there is no plan for health insurance or layoffs and that the faculty will be involved in the final decision concerning the future of the College.

8. President Colburn indicated that the UFF was interested in the new program in art therapy. The UFF supported the appointment of a faculty member who would be in charge of the program. Hernandez indicated that the UFF supports the idea of interested faculty being included in teaching awards for excellence. Juge agreed that this was reasonable and that he would bring it to Dean McConnell for consideration by the Learning Resource Council.

9. President Colburn raised the question of whether instructors in the Department of English were being treated differently than faculty in other departments. Juge indicated he would check with Rich Schab.

10. Hernandez raised the question of whether 5000 and 6000 level courses could be combined. Astro said that he would defer to the Faculty Senate for a recommendation on this matter. Hernandez agreed.

11. Other - Hernandez objected to the allocation of 5000 and 6000 level courses to the Department of Business and Finance. Juge indicated he would check with Mrs. Allison to clarify this point. Hernandez agreed to meet with Mrs. Allison to discuss a possible solution.

Comparing notes

Dr. Kristin Congdon (right) shares a moment at Creade School of Art with founders William and Alice Jenkins, who established the chair in community arts at UCF which Congdon has been selected to fill temporarily in order to develop curriculum plans for a program that will concentrate on bringing the arts to the people.

Expert in community art starts endowed program

Plans for a one-of-a-kind academic program to bring art to the people of Central Florida received a major boost with the arrival on the UCF campus of an expert in community art activities.

Dr. Kristin Congdon brings with her nearly two decades of experience as an art teacher and facilitator of community art programs. During a temporary stay at UCF through June she is developing plans for bachelor and master degree programs that will prepare graduates to serve the community.

Congdon is the first appointee to the William and Alice Jenkins Chair in Community Arts, funded in 1986 by the Winter Park couple and matched by the state to establish a $1 million endowment. The endowment allows the University to bring to campus annually a notable scholar to work in developing community arts.

As a first step, Congdon and Dr. Maurice Whiteman, who chairs the UCF art department, have summarized the needs and mission of the new program. As Congdon explained, the needs are wide-ranging across the community. "Existing arts programs often leave out large segments of a community's population. UCF plans to rectify that gap by reaching out through its graduates who in turn will be charged with developing programs for specific groups."

Students will concentrate on community-based aesthetics in terms of multi-cultural education, and the relationships of art to politics, economics, mental health, occupations, age, and ethnic backgrounds, said Congdon. A proposed three-phased academic plan will focus on the visual arts, to be followed by degree programs in music, dance and theater, and eventually a master's program in art therapy.

With approval from the board of Regents, the program will begin with courses in introductory art therapy, community arts theory and methods, and a practicum in which students will work in a variety of settings in the community, or, as Congdon noted, "anywhere that art happens. I want to see this as a program that anyone can become involved in."

Business journal helps two student economics majors

The editor and publisher of the Orlando Business Journal were hosted at a luncheon on campus Monday that brought together two students assisted by Journal scholarships.

The College of Business staged the gathering at the President's Dining Room for Editor Bill Warner and Publisher Bill Tupkin and the senior economics students they helped, Laurel A. Adams and Jim van Putten.

Adams received a $500 assist from the Journal last fall to help her pursue her majors in license and economics and attain a degree this May, while maintaining a 3.5 grade point average. Her objective is to work for the increased development of Third World countries. She worked as a bookkeeper in Jamestown before moving to Orlando.

Van Putten is a native of Western Michigan and now lives at Titusville. He has maintained a 3.9 GPA at UCF while serving for a baccalaureate degree in economics next December. Concurrently he pursued other studies in mathematics, philosophy, fine arts and natural sciences. He plans to attend graduate school after working. His $500 scholarship was for this spring.

Two orchestras offer scholarships for music majors

The Central Florida Community Orchestra and Brevard Symphony Orchestra will fund a unique scholarship program for UCF music majors starting in the fall. Four students will be selected to receive full tuition scholarships, said John G. Whitney, conductor of the UCF ensemble.

"Students who have been assisted by Journal scholarships," said Whitney, "need to work for the increased development of Third World countries. Van Putten is a native of Western Michigan and now lives at Titusville. He has maintained a 3.9 GPA at UCF while serving for a baccalaureate degree in economics next December. Concurrently he pursued other studies in mathematics, philosophy, fine arts and natural sciences. He plans to attend graduate school after working. His $500 scholarship was for this spring."
