Greek Park fills, overflows—expansion under consideration

Interest in on-campus sorority and fraternity housing has accelerated in recent weeks with eight of the nine Greek Park building lots taken by sororities, while two fraternities have been put on a waiting list. The administration has presented plans for an eight-lot expansion.

One of the first nine lots platted proved subject to flooding and has been bypassed in present building plans.

Convocation draws national educator authors

The Faculty Convocation today (Wednesday, Nov. 2), prepared especially to mark the 25th anniversary of the University, brings on campus two nationally recognized speakers and authors.

The sessions will begin in the Student Center Auditorium at 11 a.m. and end with a 3:30 p.m. reception for distinguished guests at the University Dining Room.

The 11 a.m. speaker is Dr. James MacGregor Burns, author of several acclaimed books on leadership, including two biographies of Franklin Roosevelt. "Piovert.: The Soldier of Freedom" earned him the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award. He has also written books on John and Edward Kennedy. He is a Woodrow Wilson Professor of Government at Williams College.

At 1:30 p.m. the speaker will be Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and former US Commissioner of Education during the Carter Administration. He is a Senior Fellow of the Carnegie Foundation, a Professor of Education at Princeton, and a contributor to the London Times. He is the author of widely acclaimed books "High School and College: The Undergraduate Experience." There will be an open forum with the guest speakers at 2:30 p.m. The convocation will move to the University Dining Room for the closing reception.

UCF friend Bill Davis dies at 77

One of the earliest friends of the University and a continuing contributor, William E. "Bill" Davis, died of a heart attack on Oct. 27. He was 77.

Davis and his wife, Mary Jo, owned a cattle ranch that extended from Alafaya Trail to Rosewood Road and their home was on a lake they owned completely. Superseded is a state university for Central Florida from the first they joined other Orlando community leaders who put together the fund to buy the present campus site before state funding, speeding up the process of building the new university.

They made a special contribution by financing a land exchange that was key to acquiring a small lot subdivision located where it had to be acquired to put together the campus.

Davis was a pharmacist and owned several drugstores, including the one on the ground floor of the First National Bank Building in downtown Orlando where UCF began originating.

Eventually the Davises sold their ranch to Westinghouse and moved to the city, but retained their interest in the University, taking part in special ceremonies, including the 25th anniversary ribbon cutting at the original groundbreaking.

He was a Foundation director. He is survived by his wife, Mary Jo; sons Joseph William of Gainesville and John Barry of Orlando, and a sister, Sy- leen Davis Hamilton. Winter Park, and seven grandchildren.

Rep. Buddy MacKay, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, takes a spin in a tank simulator at UCF's Institute for Simulation and Training, while President Colbourn looks on. MacKay's visit last week to IST and the Center for Electro-Optics and Lasers involved briefings on how federal research dollars were being employed. Sen. Lawton Chiles (Fla.), Sen. Bennett Johnston (La.), Sen. Sam Nunn (Ga.) and Rep. Bill Nelson accompanied MacKay.

PCs to access research $ reports

Desktop computers offer a major new window of opportunity to faculty looking for research funding.

The Division of Sponsored Research brings the Commerce Business Daily (CBD) on screen for anyone who can access the UCF mainframe. Marty House, director of Research Information Systems, says this means the daily updates of CBD, plus 10 days of storage, can be viewed by faculty without leaving their own offices.

If you are involved or interested in using emerging communication technologies, you are invited to attend.

In order to receive payment for legal, classified or display ads in commercial newspapers, all such ads shall be placed by the Purchasing Division. As you know, the Campus purchase order number refers to the purchase order number authorized by ad.

Requests for advertisements are to be submitted to the Purchasing Division on the Purchasing Request Form. The classified ads placed in the Orlando Sentinel , Purchasing will issue a special order form to that newspaper. A copy of the completed special order form is then sent to the negotiations and Financial Accounting. Financial and Accounting uses their copy to payment authorization of the subsequent invoices. Regular purchase orders are issued for all other advertisements in commercial newspapers. If you have any questions concerning newspaper advertisement contract Kar-en Smith at x2651.

Architects invited for Student Union

UCF has extended invitations to architectural firms to submit letters of interest on Nov. 7, 1989. The design of the Student Union will be awarded to the firm. Facilities Planning Director Jerry Osterhaus said Phase I is funded at $23.2 million for planning, building and equipment of 18,000 square feet of meeting rooms and offices.

Another major Osterhaus said the University has finished negotiations with the Orlando architectural and planning firm, Eric Anderson. The firm will be asked to prepare a campus master plan. He said the firm will deal with on-campus technical and steering committees to gather the necessary information for the first commercially prepared master plan since the one developed before campus construction began.

State of Florida Internal Auditors have recently brought to our attention that some UCF research officers have been in completing all required reports in a timely manner. We remind all researchers that all reports must be submitted in a timely manner according to the requirements of the award documents.

Any conditions that might impact the schedule of required reports must be formally relayed to the funding agency and a revised schedule of reporting requirements must be negotiated by the UCF Division of Sponsored Research. This action is not taken, you will not be held in default with your research obligations. Please work with your contract grant manager in the Division of Sponsored Research to ensure compliance with all reporting requirements.

Many colleges and universities are finding interactive video, distance learning, teleconferencing and other video-related technologies to be useful tools for presenting educational material. Because of cost and time factors, it is important that faculty interested in these new technologies have a forum for sharing information, expertise, hardware and software.

The Interactive Video Users Group will meet to discuss:

What is being done on campus

Who is involved

What is available in hardware, software, design tools, etc.

How these technologies can assist faculty

If you are involved or interested in using emerging communication technologies, you are invited to attend.

Music aplenty in a free concert

Student musicians will serve up a horn of plenty Thursday, Nov. 3, for the eighth annual Band Knight in the UCF gymnasium. The 8 p.m. concert, which is free and open to the public, will feature a variety of sounds, from stirring marches to cool jazz.

Groups to be heard include the Symphonic Wind Ensemble, conducted by Jerry Gardner; John C. Whitney's Jazz Lab that played a European tour last summer, and the UCF Marching Knights, making their first concert appearance with new director Richard Greenwood.

CIVIL ENGINEERS

The role of microcomputers in civil engineering will be explored at Orlando's sixth annual conference sponsored by UCF and the American Society of Civil Engineers for the purpose of matching computers with engineering. The conference from Nov. 6-11 will be held at the downtown Radisson Plaza. Vincent Amico at College of Extended Studies is coordinating information and registration.

Faculty Senate eyes president's appointment

Chair Rosie Joels said that she will bring to the floor of the Faculty Senate meeting on Thursday, Nov. 3, a discussion of how a new university president is appointed.

Former state law stated simply that a president of a university in the state system would be appointed according to rules adopted by the Board of Regents.

The amended law that took effect Oct. 1, 1988 adds details of how the selection process shall work.

The process becomes relevant because UCF President Trevor Colbourn announced on Oct. 18 that he will resign as president, effective at the end of his current year's contract next August.

In a special meeting on Oct. 20 the Faculty Senate adopted Resolution 88/89-3 that provides a recommendation to the provost on how to handle faculty tenure review of faculty engaged in interdisciplinary/joint research and teaching whose line is not formally located within an academic unit.

The resolution calls for a committee of five to seven members selected by tenured members of the departments or areas in which the interdisciplinary courses are taught. When the interdisciplinary area crosses college and department the committee shall be drawn from the focus of the faculty member's assigned responsibilities.

For future joint appointments, the faculty member's departmental affiliations would be specified in the initial contract.

National honors await Jenkinses for art support

William and Alice Jenkins, of Winter Park, who contributed $600,000 to UCF two years ago to establish an endowed chair in community arts, will be honored nationally Nov. 17 in Chicago for their contributions to art and art therapy.

The award will mark the first such honor by the American Art Therapy Association, meeting in its annual conference, to anyone not a practitioner in the field.

The award recognizes a strong advocacy of art therapy by the Jenkinses, who are founders and chief patrons of Crealde Arts, Inc., Winter Park, and activists in promoting art for self-expression among all ages.

Their earlier gift to UCF, which when combined with state matching funds totals $1 million, has enabled the University to appoint Dr. Kristin Congdon to the eminent scholar chair and set in motion the actions necessary to offer undergraduate and masters degree programs in community arts.

18 law schools to show programs

Any interested UCF student will have the opportunity to gather information about programs of study offered by 18 law schools at the 15th annual University Pre-Law Day to be held in the Student Center Auditorium on Thursday, Nov. 3, beginning at 11 a.m.

Law school representatives from Florida, Florida State, Nova, Stetson, Miami, Mercer, Golden Gate, St. Thomas, New England, Vermont, South Carolina, Washington of St. Louis, Cumberland, Delaware, Western New England, Loyola (New Orleans), Bridgeport and Mississippi will be present to provide information and answer questions.

Student interviews with specific schools will be between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Fundraising returns to UCF ranks

Emma Lee Twitchell, former director of the annual fund at UCF, has returned to campus as director of University Development after a 4-year absence. During that time she served as executive director of the Orlando Regional Medical Center Foundation, Inc. She brings with her more than a decade of annual fund raising experience at the non-profit level.

Prior to joining UCF the first time, in 1983, she served as executive director of development at WMFE-TV, Orlando. She previously had served as an account executive for the Orlando Sentinel in St. Louis following graduation from Indiana State University.

She was named 1986 Outstanding Professional Fund Raiser by the Orlando chapter, NSPARE, and appears in the premier edition of Who's Who and Why of Successful Florida Woman.

Fraternity stays golf tournament

The first annual Beta Alpha Pi scramble golf tournament will be held Saturday Nov. 19. The tournament is open to persons of all golf skill levels. A barbeque and awards presentation ceremony will be held after the tourney.

UCF Epsilon Gamma chapter of the national accounting fraternity, Beta Alpha Pi, is the sponsor. For information will be held after the tourney.

Analyzing the PC lab led to a better operation and a Local Area Network Institute for research

“Evaluating Database Update Schemes: From one machine to another causes quantile frictions and hard feelings,” said Dr. Hale Pringle, the author of the paper entitled "Time-stamped copies of papers and programs can be submitted electronically. Moving students from one machine to another causes quantile frictions and hard feelings."

Karl Guenther (CIREL) led an active role in the first European Congress on Optics (ECoO) held in Hamburg, Germany, in September. "The lab assistants are able to devote themselves to making certain that all students make the best use of their lab time."

Those responsible for the LAN can create a complete “computing environment” rather than depending on standalone packages. This environment includes interactive helps, on-line tutorials, on-line manuals and demonstration programs. All this is available in addition to the standard word processors, compilers and spreadsheet. Students are able to devote themselves to making certain that all students make the best use of their lab time.

Library Friends pick new slate, build treasury

Friends of the Library began their fourth year on Oct. 20 with a new president and a rapidly growing list of friends who have accounted for a steadily growing treasury to buy more books.

Bob Buckner, owner of Hayes Engineering and Contractors in Orlando, was elected president, even though he was not present at the annual luncheon held in the President's Dining Room.

Buckner was home recovering from a recent illness and is eager to begin leadership duties in behalf of the University.

Dr. Rex Brown, associate dean of Library Services, gave the address of installation.

Buckner has served as a "friend" on Orlando and Winter Park library boards, but plans to give priority to the UCF Friends of the Library, of which he has been a member since 1986.

The past president is Tom Moses, professional planner and administrator for the Reedy Creek District that handles basic construction and services for Walt Disney World.

Others elected for two year terms were: Bob Fox, first vice president; Sue Anderson, second vice president; Mariam Peice, secretary, and Ell Stein, treasurer.

Stein's report showed 43 "friends" in 1988, who accounted for $5,956, and 88 in 1987 who raised $14,037. In 1988, he said, there are 159 "friends" and their efforts have brought in $15,408 in contributions.

Special Christmas cards bearing a color photograph of the stained glass window in the Library will be offered for sale by "friends." Rus Anderson and Brown are in charge.

Institute receives cash from Canada

UCF's Florida-Canada Institute has received $17,000 from the Canadian government to assist in carrying out research and instruction programs, reports Henry Kennedy, director of Canadian Studies.

Kennedy, who shares directorship of the institute with a counterpart at Palm Beach Community College, said that he anticipates another helping hand from the annual golf tournament scheduled for February.

CLASSIFIED

Three of a kind

What do retired librarians talk about when they get together? Whatever it is, the subject must be hilarious, as evidenced by the reaction of Claire, right. The occasion was a reception Oct. 28 when the trio was recognized for "lifetime service to the UCF Library and the library profession."

A plea for understanding

Nobel laureate Elie Wiesel was the guest of honor Oct. 24 at UCF where he delivered two lectures, was awarded an honorary doctorate in humane letters, and met with area Jewish leaders. The visit, sponsored by the UCF Judaic Studies program and members of the community, was in conjunction with the University's 25th anniversary celebrations. In his talks to a dinner audience and later to a public gathering, he pointed to the need for world-wide recognition of human rights.

Bill Golsby, 52, dies at Old Town

Charles William "Bill" Golsby Jr., former associate director of University Business and Financial Services, died Oct. 19 at his home in Old Town, on the Suannee River. He was 52.

Burial was at Woodlawn Cemetery where grave-side services included a eulogy by Jim Cherepow, assistant director of University Personnel Services, who referred to the deceased as "my best friend," and said that in his last months of a seven years' illness Godisby was "contented, living a rural life and raising livestock." Marcus Michaels, a former UCF employee, also gave a eulogy, and Don Moya, accountant in Student Services, read scriptures.

From April 1977 until his retirement in June 1988, Golsby held positions on campus of stock clerk, administrative assistant, business manager, athletics manager, assistant to the vice president, associate director of Business Services, and executive director of University Business and Financial Services. He earned a bachelor's degree in Psychology from UCF in 1972.

He is survived by his wife, Carol; sons, Charles William III, Fanning Springs; Donald Raymond, Old Town; daughter, Marque Steepland, Orlando; mother, Ruby Bernardini, Orlando, and four grandchildren.
