Foreword

We come to the end of another school year; existing part in war, and part in peace, with the changing and unsettled conditions of both, and present to you, your year book—The Oshihiyi.

We have here and there gathered fragments of your college life, that your "Mocking Bird"—The Oshihiyi—might once again sing her song. It is not a new song that she sings, neither is it quite the old, but a song which we hope will in the years to come recall to your consciousness some pleasant memory of your college days.

We realize that the song that she sings is not quite as melodious, not quite as harmonious as it might be, but it is a mere prelude to the new song of progress which will be sung by Stetson University in the years to come.

LINCOLN HULLEY: "I believe in co-education, but I believe in co-education under proper restrictions." "We are more anxious to have quality at Stetson than quantity."

The law is divided into: I. Private Rights. II. Private Wrongs and Remedies. III. Public Rights. IV. Public Wrongs and Remedies.

CHARLES S. FARRISS: Alpha, beta, gamma, delta— Yes, I always thot so; but

G. PRENTICE CARSON: "The barbaric Teuton became a Roman school boy and he went to school for a thousand years." "The price of bread is determined by the price of the last loaf." "I'm a very nervous man."

J. ARCHY SMITH: "The stewdent that's elert, an' awake, an' intelligent, will git into that, and git it." "Yis, the wideawake stewdent, the stewdent that means business will git that sort of thing." "First state please number 23, a simple little problem in quadratics."

ELLEN WEBSTER MARTIEN: "Good evening! Young Gentlemen! I hope you will call again." Genesis, Exodus, Le-e-e—. I wish I had taken your Bible Course.

JOHN F. BAERECKE: "Dot vus very g-oo-d, I'll gife you a g-oo-d mark." Cenozoic, Mesozoic, Palezoic, Proterozoic, Archeozoic. Thallophytes, Bryophytes, Pteridophytes, Spermatophytes. Protozoa, Coelenterata, Echinodermata, Vermes, Molluscoidea, Mollusca, Arthropoda, Vertebrata. And all Primates including those educated in the upper branches.

WARREN STONE GORDIS: "This paper of yours is very creditable in lots of ways, but you still have what is known as the "comma fault." See Woolley 231(a). Shelley was a poet of extreme imaginative power. The "Ode to a Sky Lark" is the most perfect lyric of modern literature.

RICHMOND A. RASCO: "You didn't get that; class." "Somebody didn't get that tho' he's trying to as hard as he can." "That's a good question and you want to know the law on it; here is your answer."

WILLIAM Y. MICKLE: "I have been trying to instill in these students a few business principles." "With a trial balance of $2,545. I have $15,000 on deposit. Wish I did."

DANIEL J. BLOCKER: "Yes, and no." "Name all the philosophers from Aristotle to Kant." I can't. "We have no moral right to be any less moral than we are capable of being." "I want you to write me a term paper on 'The Reasoning Process.'" "What's your major premise?"

WILSON G. S. LOWE: "I have framed 231 questions in this lesson, I have 25 here in one paragraph." "A man died out at Levenworth a few years ago and left his will unsigned. Was that will good?"

The Faculty

IRVING C. STOVER: "People, are you willing to work for me this morning?" "Ah ah, ah, ah, cupped tongue, exhale quickly drawing up the uvula and exercising the diaphragm."

* LITCHFIELD COLTON: "Turn that casting down on the big lathe." "Be sure that you have all those measurements right before you ink that plate." "Get off the field before you get hit with the ball."

EDWARD PARK BARRELL: "Yes, that's true." The volume which a given mass of gaseous substance occupies is inversely proportional to the pressure under which it is measured, provided the temperature remains constant.

HARRY DAVIS FLUHART: Expression is as changeful as the clouds that move in mysterious majesty across the surface of a summer sky. And yet artists have caught expression and held it captive.

MARIE WAHLE: Que comptez-vous faire l'ete prochain? Est-ce que vous allez a Paris? A vuestra salud.

ANNIE NADINE HOLDEN: Dum spiro, spero. Principia, non homines. Suaviter in modo, fortiter in re. Finis coronat opus.

FRANCIS MOORE MILLER: Audita querela. Capias ad respondendum. "The declaration has been filed; what must you do? You come in and demur to his declaration or you plea by way of traverse or by way of confession and avoidance."

EVAN ALMA BAKER: I heard a great rumble and then the strains of the organ gradually died away.

ZOE VIRGINIA SINNOTT: Then I heard a strain of music,
So mighty, so pure, so clear;
That my very sorrow was silent,
And my heart stood still to hear.
Chopin is often considered the most famous composer for the piano.

OLIVE BELL LORD: Do, re, me, fa— Listen to the mocking bird.

MABEL GLENN: "I want nothing more like this to happen at this table." "Take this dictation." asdfg ;lkjh.

CARL TURNQUIST: "Cut those pieces out on the band saw and drill three little holes in the end for your screws."

MARION POWELL CARSON: Too many cooks spoil the broth.

REBECCA M. PEEK: A stitch in time saves nine.

CLIFFORD B. ROSA: "The three dollars is for incidental fee."

Mr. Cox is right on the job when it comes to science, he has specialized in Chemistry and had the war continued a few months longer he would have had a commission as a graduate chemist in the Navy. He has been offered several other good positions, one of which he will probably accept this summer.

The Seniors' Farewell

BY HENRY LOFQUIST.

"To leave thee, dear old Stetson,
Yet come what will, what'er betide,
Tho' friends may fail, the world deride,
And all seem lost in broken pride;
There will with me for'er abide
Fond thoughts of thee, dear Stetson.

"I bid farewell to friends and foe
That I have met at Stetson,
The friends so true in weal or woe,
The friends of youth who really know
The passions of my heart. But, lo,
I know not one to term my foe,
Among the folks at Stetson.

"For they are good, and they are kind,
Who walk thy halls, dear Stetson,
And looking forward or behind
There are many things which do remind
Me of the pleasures I did find
Here in the halls, and they shall bind
My soul to thine, dear Stetson.

"Yes, now the swift school years are spent
And I must leave thee, Stetson,
To earn my living, board and rent;
To face life's task where'er I'm sent;
Obey commands— but ne'er repent
That long years, sweet with sentiment,
I've passed with thee, dear Stetson.

Somewhat talented. Arthur Moor has honors galore.

The Seniors Speak for Themselves

Public Opinion may adhere most religiously to the doctrine that one should not talk too freely of himself or herself (of course we think it good ethics, tho', to talk about others); but, as our good friend, Dean Carson, tells us, there is something stronger, more imperative than Public Opinion. And that is—Truth. We Seniors believe that this Truth should assert itself, and as we are the only ones who can reveal it properly, you see the reason for our writing about our Hopes, Intentions, and Aspirations in regard to the future. Therefore, for the information of all friends:

I, Linton L. Cox, do solemnly swear and affirm it to be my honest intention to benefit the world and serve my fellow men thru the medium of Chemistry. It is my sincere hope in the near future to get Fuller—and more intimate knowledge of this great science, so that I may perform my obligation to the world.

I, Mary C. Hulley, do intend to study and practice the art of speech, action, and impersonation, so that I may some day appear behind the footlights of the world's greatest theater; all for the glory of my Alma Mater, the old Green and White.

I, Eugene J. Bugg, faithfully promise the generation behind me that I will do all in my power to secure justice for them in the courts of our land, and in order to prepare myself for this holy labor it is my expectation to study law at the University of Michigan next year.

(Ruth Haynes could not be induced to tell definitely what she intends to do. We have heard her say that she wants to be a housekeeper very badly, but since she came to Florida the "prospect" is absolutely "sandy.")

We, the undersigned, make it known to our undergraduates that we have decided to become teachers, for the purpose of bringing up "our boys" in the way they should go.

MINA BATES,
ALICE SARVEN.

I, Arthur P. Moor, shall take an intensive course in the music schools of the north, that I may be qualified to be a great leader of my country, when occasion calls.

"To be, or not to be" Lillian Fuller is my great perplexity, but I've about decided to be Lillian Fuller not much longer.

We, Enid Heimie and Edith Selter shall devote our lives to the securing for ourselves and sisters our full right to vote for Dr. Hulley to be our next Governor.

(Elizabeth Gregory could not be induced to write about herself, but we understand that she doesn't like the idea of being a farmerette so has decided to be a gardiner. Henry Lofquist is another modest one, but from the fact that he is always singing old ballads like, "In the Blue Mountains of Virginia," and "Carry me back to old Virginia," we take it he aspires to be an opera singer.)

I, Bernalyn McBride, intend to devote my time to the writing of plays, appropriate for college Seniors to present before their friends.

We, Edna Hefner, Curtis Gardiner, and Carl Little Dickey, inform the school body that it isn't any of their business what we are going to do, but if they really want to know, we will tell them that we shall go as missionaries to the benighted peoples of Germany.

Old Stetson U

Wasn't it pleasant, O school-mate of mine,
In the College days of the lost sunshine
Of youth—when the Summer's vacation was thru,
And the friends at home we'd bid adieu,
And we went back again, "me and you,"
Back at old Stetson U.

It all comes back so clear today!
Tho' I am miles and miles away.
There is the same old Elizabeth Hall,
With the chimes and the ivy on the wall
Where the profs delighted to flunk us all,
Back at old Stetson U.

Then the Science Hall with the old wood-shop,
And old DeLand Hall with the bell on top;
Stetson Hall with its famous Ell—ah, me!
Wasn't it good for a fellow to see—
And wasn't it good for a fellow to be
Back at old Stetson U.

And Conrad Hall with the same old boys,
With its fun, its laughter, its shouts and noise,
And now and then some rat we met,
Who always saluted or knew what he'd get;
These old memories stay with me yet,
Back at old Stetson U.

And old Chaudoin Hall in the cool shade
Of the whispering pines—where "cases" are made;
Where beautiful lasses and dames are kept;
Where the Dean of Women with anger slept,
And the ladies grumbled, and laughed, and wept,
Back at old Stetson U.

Virtus Semper Viridus

By JACK A. AVRACH

A somewhat joyous hour like this,
Tells me it would not be amiss
To speak some honest words of cheer,
And place it in our souvenir.
For through my young life I have sailed
Where raging tempests have prevailed.
I spent most all my days in school
And kept a thinking I was a fool.
But as the years swept swiftly by,
Life beamed with more tranquil eye,
And, with each swift returning day
Poured out her gifts to smooth my way.
It is a pleasant cast of thought
To live for purpose, where our lot
Finds compensation every hour
In some detail of life—a power,
The child of wisdom always heeds
When he life's puzzling riddle reads.
Oh! but Nature is peculiar, too.
She aids us, but demands her due.
Far better live like some still clam
Than have your life a life of sham.
The world needs men and women brave,
Who learn to conquer and to save.
And thus life is but an ocean trip,—
The massive infinite surrounds the ship,
And while earth is a halting place,
A little spot far out at sea,
We take our lead unconsciously,
And act our noblest in the race.
All turns out well—flesh has pains,
The spirit, more triumphant, reigns.
But growth, that God-essential thing,
Is ever with us on the wing;
And though a million years may fly,
Progression is our firm ally.
Onward and upward from the sod,
Onward and upward unto God.
Yes, here's the crowning glory, then,
God in the soul abides with men.
And though thoughts differ, and disease
Is borne upon the hurrying breeze,
And pessimistic vapors fly,
And mar the glories of our sky,
And fools go reasoning all round
That man ends life within the ground.

No greater truth dawns on mankind
That this—man was for life designed;
That here we just begin to frame
Our alphabet; and as we came
Unconscious of our hour of birth
So falls our dress; but all the worth
Of mind and genius brighter glows.
The mind triumphant o'er its woes,
Goes soaring on its upward plane
Not a spectator to remain
In but one field, but tour abroad
And view the harvest field of God.
Instinct—how beautiful the thought!
A planetary need; and wrought
By Nature everywhere we go
Till Reason's aid asserts her glow,
And shines with lustre more intense
From past life and experience.
The spirit flies and takes the dress
Material in her waiting place,
Consorts awhile, then, as she flings
Her mantle down, she gaily sings
Of mansions on her way,
Where she may make a fitting stay.
Analogy, too, has her say;
From watching Nature's common way,
While on the leaves of sacred lore
This precious thought is found in store.
And, of course, some theory there is here.
But better this than tons of beer,
That empty heads keep pouring in,
And make this world as black as sin.
And of course the world is filled with fools.
Bad habits are their sharpest tools.
Just true to Nature—with no fear
Now, but a word—be plain, sincere
That circumstances will make you poor
You carry this within, and more,
That bids you live a wise, wise life,
While sailing through the floods of strife.
This is your warrant, this your claim;
The fight and friction are the game.
And we can win it, and sail on,
And never say our work is done—
No, never! In the vast, profound
Eternal life and joy are found.

A Business College Farce

ACT I.

Time, the present. One early day in April.
Costumes a little ahead of the time.

CAST.

The Teacher	Mabel Glenne.
The Flirt	Marie Adamse
Kid Murry	Floyde Murrie
A Friend of the College	Ira Englishe
His Wife	Ovillett Phillips
The School Pest	J. Humpback Coopre
The Landlady	Louise Bosanquack

CHORUS GIRLS.

Virgia Johnston, Lillian Carlton, Locile Boyre, Marie Floods.

BALLET DANCERS.

Janese Phillippes, Miss Wittle, Gethence Cruise.

The curtain rises. Marie is sharpening her pencil by the window. (Enters Kid Murry.) Looking toward Marie he calls: "Hello, Adamse, old girl."

Marie—Who said you could call me Adamse? It is Miss Adamse, (Murry moves over to the window and places his arm around her.) You stop that. Oh, Miss Glenne is coming, she does not allow this.

(Enters the pest.) Hello, Marie, old girl. I catch you again with Murrie. (Murry throws a short-hand book at the pest. The pest retires to his seat.) (The door is opened very softly and Miss Glenne enters very softly.) Murrie still has his arm around Marie and Miss Glenne sees it. (Miss Glenne is an elderly spinster who wears pink and lilac, wears her hair done in knots on top of her head.) "Mr. Murrie and Miss Adams," she calls, "you just stop that awful behavior at once; you know I don't approve of it and take your seats at once, and don't you leave them once."

The Pest—Miss Glenne, they do that all the time. Gee, you ought to see what I have seen, you must be getting blind, that is nothing new.

Teacher—Mr. Coopre, this is none of your business, so hush talking.

The Pest to the Others—You better stop your love affairs in here as you see you get me into trouble, so cut the rough stuff right away.

The Kid—Shut up, Coopre. No remarks from the peanut gallery (a smothered laugh is heard from the direction of Marie—the flirt).

Teacher—All you take your proper seats, it is time for classes.

Pest—Please stop Marie sticking me with pins, this ain't the first time.

Teacher—Cut that everlasting talk out and get to work at once.

Enters the Landlady—Good morning to you all. Miss Glenne, I have come for the rent which has been due for some time, and also to complain about the noise up here. The ceiling of my room is badly cracked.

Pest—Oh! Miss Bosanquack, it must resemble your head.

Landlady—You are the one that is causing the noise down here, you petrifed ostrich, you just cut this racket out. You understand?

Teacher—Miss Bosanquack, here is your rent. Good morning. (Landlady leaves.)

Teacher—Mr. Coopre, I have told you for the last time that you have to get quiet and stay quiet. Not another word from you this morning.

A Business College Farce

Pest—Then I don't have to recite—that is good, for I do not know my lesson this morning very well.

Kid Murrie—That is fine, no more out of you this morning, good. (There is heard a knock on the door—Miss Glenne goes to it and opens it, and admits Mr. Englishe and his wife, who are friends there.)

Mrs Englishe—I have just dropped in for a few minutes to tell you a surprise we have planned for you all tonight. We have arranged with some of the girls of the Business Seminary to come over tonight and act like chorus girls and ballet dancers for you all. Then afterwards, we have planned for light refreshments for the crowd.

Pest—I am strong for the cats, so I won't eat any supper tonight.

Teacher—Mr. Coopre, leave the room at once for your rudeness to our guests, and don't return till they leave—go at once.

Mrs. Englishe—Miss Glenne, I know that you will allow us to do this for the students. Will you not?

Teacher—Yes, under the circumstances I will permit it this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Englishe—Thank you very much. We will be around this evening about 8, with the girls. Good day to you all. (They leave.)

(The pest enters the room again from the open window and takes his seat and pretends to get very busy with his shorthand.)

Teacher—What letters do we have today's lesson in shorthand?

Marie—Letters 24-25 on page 64 of the book, Miss Glenne. (Miss Glenne dictates the letter to them, when through asks if they can translate it into English.)

Pest—Oh, Miss Glenne, let me read first, please do.

Teacher—All right, Mr. Coopre, you may read first this time. (Pest begins—Dear Sir: Please send us—)

Teacher—Is that send? It is ship. (This kind of recitation follows to the end; when finished Miss Glenne says: "Mr. Coopre, don't you ever come to this class again with such a lesson as you had today, you understand? To the rest of you. Your conduct this morning reminds me of a class of primary children, you make me feel ashamed of you all." She then leaves the room for another class.)

Pest—Oh, Kid Murrie, I guess I will study now and you all will behave yourselves better in the future.

Marie—If I had been Miss Glenne I would have just chased you out of town. Oh, it is awful how you cut up at times.

Pest—She would have a job, for my legs are longer than hers.

Kid Murrie—Yes, you long-legged galoot, shut up.

Pest—Go to—where you belong—go home.

Kid Murrie—I don't go to your house when you are not there, and besides, your mother threw dishes at me the last time I was there.

Pest—Is that so? When I was there last, your father told me that all his family had the rooms and that there was not any room for me. (The bell rings for dinner—all the students rush out of the room for dinner.)

The End.

Music

Although the usual Glee Clubs were not organized this year, yet Stetson has not lacked for music in either quality or quantity.

The Vesper Choir, under the skillful direction of Miss Olive B. Lord, instructor in voice, had a year of complete success, rendering at each and every Vesper service on Sunday afternoon a beautiful musical program. These programs reached the height of their splendor on Easter Sunday, when the last of the Vesper services was held.

Miss Eva Baker, instructor in pipe-organ, opened the program with a masterful rendition of "Easter Morning," by Malling. The unusual combination of harp and flute followed, "The Palms," by Faura, played by Miss Lane and Mr. Price. Miss Lane's harp solo was one of the sweetest numbers on the program. Miss Ejda Stenwall sang, "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Knapp, with full rich resonant tones and gave true religious interpretation of the number. Miss Stenwall was accompanied by Miss Lane on the harp, and Mr. Katz on the violin.

No Easter program is complete without Handel's great solo, "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth;" Mrs. H. Blaine Peacock, an Alumnus of Stetson, sang the solo with sweet, true dignity which this solo calls for, and seldom has her powerful voice been heard to better advantage. The latter part of the program was "The Resurrection" and "The Ascension," from the "Redemption," by Gounod. The soprano solos to "The Redemption" were sung by Mrs. Louise Watts Miller, a graduate of Stetson Conservatory of Music. Mr. Irving C. Stover and Mr. G. Monroe Patch sang the duets in fine voices. The trios and quartets as sung by Miss Stenwall, Miss Siviter, Miss Cain and Miss Glenn were charming. Miss Zoe Virginia Sinnott, instructor in piano, was at her best in the piano selections.

The operetta "Priscilla," put on during the Winter Term, by the Green Room Club, was a great success, with Miss Stenwall as Priscilla, the leading lady.

A Stetson orchestra, led by Harry Katz, violinist, rendered beautiful music at the different plays and entertainments.

There has been several famous quartets at Stetson, but perhaps none have attained so much favor on the campus as the Waiter Boys' Quartet, in its numerous serenades at Chaudoin Hall.

EJDA STENWALL

Miami, Florida

Graduate in Voice

Miss Stenwall has been the leading soloist for the Vesper Choir for the past two years. The full rich resonant tones of her beautiful voice attracted wide public attention in the "Chimes of Normandy," given at Stetson last year. She came before the public this year as Priscilla, the leading lady in the operetta "Priscilla," by which the public was greatly charmed. She is also noted for her oratorio work.

Home Economics

Dear Editor:

The course in Home Economics offers instruction in both theory and practice in subjects fundamental to a competent knowledge of Domestic Science and Domestic Art.

All this means that by the time a two years' course is finished, we are the best cooks and dressmakers there are to be found. Our biscuits, bread, pies and cakes and all the other things we make, can really be eaten, and nobody is made sick, either. You just ask someone who has attended our luncheons and see what remarks they make about our cookery.

And our dresses—they can be worn with the greatest of ease and comfort, beauty and grace. Then, too, we learn all about the kinds of cloths and where they come from; the meaning of colors and how to use them; about our homes and how to furnish them suitably and beautifully. There is a great deal more that we accomplish that can never be told, but that you must see for yourself.

Very truly yours,

Evalena Dougherty,
Annie Cameron,
Elizabeth Moseley,
Eleta Padgett,

Marion Hanne,
Leah Bauman,

An Hour

By J. HOWARD CARPENTER,
Junior Law, '19.

I've resting been for one full weighty hour—
A space of time so great, that idly spent,
Can never be o'erbridged by future toil;
When rightly, growing into years of grand results.
And yet—so small it is, that unperceived,
'Tis shuttled thro' the hoary warp of "Time,"
And lost it seems to him who wove it in,
But 'tis not thus: the weaver may forget;
But work well done will pay a thousand-fold;
And some day, when the tempests howl him round,
And all seems cold and drear and desolate,
This little thread—this hour long forgot,
If, woven well, will prove a flaxen cord
To draw him from the whirlpool of despair;
But if with careless hand, 'twill break itself,
And rend what was, perhaps, a better warp.

We all are weavers: and our work shall be
Examined by the ever watchful eye
Of Him, who notes a sparrow's fall to earth,
And counts the very hairs upon our heads.
And with the hand that decks the lily fair,
He will our work unravel, and sure find
Each faulty thread—each hour thrown away—
Or dyed, perchance, in sin's dark stagnant pool,
Which will the whole a tinge pernicious give,
And lose to us the labor of long years.

Our lives are looms;—our talents form the warp,
The woof is spun from many precious hours;
O, let us catch each minute as it comes,
And weave it, spotless, into virtue's warp;
And then our King shall say, when He returns
To judge the world in truth and righteousness,
"Well done, thou faithful servant; this, thy web,
Perfection is; and henceforth thou shalt wear
A garment royal—not like earthly robes—
Of texture fine, and purple, red and gold;
But washed to snowy whiteness in my blood.
And on thy head shall rest the victor's crown;
And thou shalt take a scepter in thine hand,
And over many things prefer thy rule,
Because in few things thou wert diligent."

Senior Law

Now that we have finished our prescribed law course and thereby have learned all the law to be learned, nothing now remains for us to do but apply our legal knowledge and reap immense financial rewards. As we stand on the topmost pinnacle of success and gaze out into the vast field of practicing attorneys and compare their insignificant knowledge of the law with ours, we cannot but attain an attitude of complete self-confidence and determination to immediately rise to the uppermost position in the valley of accomplishments. We have mastered Common Law and Equity Pleading and Practice, Evidence naturally comes easy, and we can define and discuss fully anything from an "Infamous Crime" to the "Rule in Shelly's case."

Ere we start out into the world to set our individual marks, it probably would not be amiss to leave with our dear friends some information regarding some of our notables. The first comes to us in the form of a decision handed down by Judge Price at a recent sitting in Moot Court. The cold-hearted judge decreed that Evans (Sister) should suffer the extreme penalty of losing his lower left rib, the execution of the judgment to take place at Jacksonville, Florida, the early part of June, 1919.

It has been pre-arranged by the members of the law class of nineteen that there shall be a general uplift in this State, to commence as soon as school closes for the year. To carry out this great work the members will scatter over the entire State: Aronovitz, Katz and Evans will go to Jacksonville; Pencke and Rippa to Tampa, the Harris brothers to St. Petersburg; Wilson to Miami; Murrell to the Celery City, where he will earnestly fight against the soulless corporation until it shall cease to operate in the State; Dowda to Palatka; Mohr to Pensacola; Jackson and Landis will remain in the city of DeLand, while Roseborough and Smith will take care of all other parts of the State not covered by the above committee-men.

Judge Price will sit on the Supreme Court bench of Illinois, while Dr. Kindred will again represent and serve his people in the United States Senate.

The Uncaged Nightingale

By J. HOWARD CARPENTER,
Junior Law '19.

And art thou free again sweet nightingale?
And did thy heart go with thee in thy flight?
And is thy song attuned to grander scale?
And is thy bosom throbbing with delight?

Is there no minor chord in thy glad song,
In memory of him who loved thee so?
Who loves thee still; who never meant thee wrong;
Whose hand broke down the bars and let thee go?

Art thou completely happy, though afar
From him who sits in loneliness and night;
Still waiting, watching for the morning star,
To flood his heart and heaven again with light?

Ah, thou canst never know, what he has known,
Of midnight vigils, penitence and prayer;
With other songsters round him—yet alone—
Because the One sweet singer was not there.

The door is open still for thy return;
The nestlings need the shelter of thy wings;
The rose leaves fall and cover deep the urn—
Because the mother-bird no longer sings.

Some day, when thou shalt find thy freedom pall
Upon thy spirit,—so long linked with his;
And, through the distance, hear his plaintive call;
Reminding thee of other days of bliss,—

Wilt thou not spread thy pinions quick in flight,
Nor hear, nor heed a single plea to rest;
Till thou shalt bear back to him peace and light,
And find thy truest freedom on his breast.

As this page dedicated by his Brothers of Brewer Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity

Born July 4, 1897, at Sanford, Florida. Became a Brother in Phi Alpha Delta in his Junior Law year, 1917-18. Enlisted in the United States Marine Corps and was called for duty October 15, 1918. Died of pneumonia at Paris Island, S. C., on November 12, 1918. Buried at Sanford, Florida.

Joe was loved and esteemed as a true man by all who knew him.

My Welcome Beyond

Who will greet me first in heaven,
When that blissful realm I gain,
When the hand has ceased from toiling
And the heart has ceased from pain;
When the last farewell is spoken,
Severed the last tender tie,
And I know how sweet, how solemn,
And how blest it is to die?

As my barque glides o'er the waters
Of that cold and silent stream,
I shall see the domes of temples
In the distance brightly gleam,—
Temples of that beauteous city
From all blight and sorrow free;
Who adorn its golden portals
First will haste to welcome me?

Ah, whose eyes shall watch my coming
From the other fairer shore,
Whose the voice I first shall listen
That shall teach me heavenly lore;
When my feet shall press the mystic
Borders of that better land,
Whose face greet my wandering vision
Who shall clasp the spirit hand?

Who will greet me first in heaven?
Oft the earnest thought will rise,
Musing on the unknown glories
Of that home beyond the skies.
Who will be my heavenly mentor?
Will it be some seraph bright?
Or an angel from the countless
Myriads of that world of light?

No, not these, for they have never
Gladdened here my mortal view;
But the dear ones gone before me,
They, the loved, the tried, the true,
They who walked with us life's pathway,
To its joys and griefs were given,
They who loved us best in earthland
Be the first to greet in heaven

Young Women's Christian Association

"The purpose of this Association shall be to unite the women of the institution in loyalty to Jesus Christ, to lead them to accept him as their personal Saviour, to build them up in the knowledge of Christ, especially through Bible study and Christian service, that their character and conduct may be consonant with their belief. It shall thus associate them with the students of the world for the advancement of the Kingdom of God. It shall further seek to enlist their devotion to the Christian church and to the religious work of the institution."

Young Men's Christian Association

With the opening of school this year, the Y. M. C. A. organized, but was soon disbanded when the S. A. T. C. started. Under the inspiring leadership of Rev. C. E. Wyatt, who was sent here by the National War Work Council, the work progressed very rapidly, until nearly every man in the S. A. T. C. was a member of the Y. M. C. A.

The signing of the armistice, brought the disbandment of the S. A. T. C., but the Stetson students determined to continue the work that had been started, and organized under the skillful leadership of Mr. Arthur P. Moor. Every man at Stetson is now enrolled in the Young Men's Christian Association. The men have been organized into four groups, and meet every Tuesday, with their leaders, for study. Several entertainments have been held, and plans are being made for a strong Y. M. C. A. next year.

Dedicated

To the Memory of My Class-mate

Sergeant Paul Levering Hon

Died in Action, July 22, 1918

Our hero is dead. He died for liberty—he died for us. He is at rest. He sleeps in a land he helped make free, for a flag he rendered stainless; beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of sunshine or storm, in a windowless palace of rest. In the midst of battle and the roar of conflict he found the serenity of death.

Earth may run red with other wars—he is at peace.

Our Soldier Dead

In the fields where poppies blow,
In France where beauteous roses grow,
There let them rest—forever sleep,
While we eternal vigil keep
With our heart's love—with our soul's pray'r.
For all our fallen "Over There."

The sounding sea between us rolls
And in perpetual requiem tolls—
Three thousand miles of cheerless space
Lie 'twixt us and their resting place;
'Twas God Who took them by the hand
And left them in the stranger land.

The earth is sacred where they fell—
Forever on it lies the spell
Of hero deeds in Freedom's cause,
And men unborn shall come and pause
To say a prayer, or bow the head,
So leave these graves to hold their dead.

Let not our sighing nor our tears
Fall on them through the coming years,
Who on the land, on sea, in air,
With dauntless courage everywhere,
Their homes and country glorified—
Stood to their arms, and smiling died.

Great France will leave no need nor room
That we place flowers on their tomb—
And proudly o'er their resting place,
Will float forever in its grace,
O'er cross, and star, and symbol tag,
Their own beloved country's Flag.

The morning sun will gild with light,
The stars keep holy watch at night,
The Winter spread soft pall of snow,
The Summer flowers about them grow,
The sweet birds sing their Springtime call,
God's love and mercy guard them all.

The Alpha Phi Epsilon is a National Literary Society that upholds the very highest standards for Public Speaking; among other things, it makes a specialty of Oratory, Debating and Parliamentary Law.

While the male student who is in earnest may be associated with this organization, yet no one is entitled to full membership until he meets certain stringent literary requirements, thus making a high standard for the organization and branding every man who wears the emblem as a man who can speak fluently on his feet.

Mr. Arthur Moor, who attended the National Convention during the Spring Term, reports flourishing work being done in a number of the different Chapters. Among other things, the Chapters are arranging for a number of Inter-collegiate Debates.

The Kent Club of the College of Law has been for years the strongest Literary Club on the Campus. And from the rough material that is taken into this organization are made some of the best pleaders in the State. Many of its members have gone out and made themselves famous as judges and legislators.

It is here that our lawyers learn to express themselves on their feet, and produce their evidence in such clear logical form that it is bound to stick with the judge and jury, carrying their point and winning their case.

"The power to speak well is the power to rule," so we may look for these orators that the Kent Club produces to take their places, in these years of reconstruction that are to follow.

The year of 1918-19 showed an increased interest in dramatics throughout the school, thus aiding the Green Room Club to make the year a complete success.

"The Amazons," was given in the Fall Term, and although several of the members were in the S. A. T. C., and unable to participate, the play was exceptionally well produced, Mary Hulley, Beatrice Tanner and Marjorie Bryan presenting their parts in a creditable manner.

Harold Wilson, who starred as "Touchstone," in last year's Shakespearean play, and as John Alden, the leading man in the operetta "Priscilla," gave an excellent portrayal of the Frenchman.

"It Pays to Advertise," was given in the Winter Term. This was said to be the best production ever given at Stetson University. It was a strictly modern, up-to-date play, that appeals to the public. Marjorie Bryan, as leading lady, proved that she is one of the best leads that Stetson ever had, while Robert Welsh, who played the part of the ardent rustic lover, Silvius, in "As You Like It," was leading man opposite Miss Bryan, and handled the part like a professional. Arthur Moor, Beatrice Tanner, Mary Hulley and William Pencke presented their characters in a way which is a credit to the club.

Baseball

What at first seemed an impossibility on account of the war conditions, and what later proved to be a reality, was inter-collegiate baseball at Stetson this Spring. Backed by the Athletic Committee and supported by the wonderful assistance of Captain Henry St. Cyr, Stetson fans again had an opportunity to cheer for a team representing their college. Although the team displayed no wonderful calibre of baseball, yet its efforts were none the less supported and appreciated by the fans and backers, who always turned out in large numbers, and brought with them the proper kind of spirit. The team was greatly handicapped by the absence of a coach, but there are prospects for a more successful season next year, when there will be an athletic fund and an athletic director in charge.

The first game, played between the Aviators of Carlstrom Field, Arcadia, Florida, and Stetson, drew at least a thousand fans who rooted long and loud for victory, but victory followed for the Aviators. The second game, between Winter Park and Stetson, resulted in a more favorable score, this time in favor of the Green and White. At the time this writing goes to press other games are scheduled to be played, among which are games with the Aviators at DeLand, Winter Park at Winter Park, St. Augustine at St. Augustine, and the University of Florida at DeLand and return games with Florida at Gainesville.

The games with the University of Florida being the first between Florida and Stetson in the past six or seven years, the great enthusiasm already manifested will naturally increase to an even higher degree. It is to be hoped that these games will be the means of again bringing into friendly rivalry on the Athletic Field the two foremost institutions of learning in the State of Florida.

Stetson Students Army Training Corps

On November 11th, 1918, at exactly 11 o'clock, the World War became history. There was a cry of who has done his share to help the Allies achieve this great victory, to make the world safe for democracy, to stem the advance of the terrible offspring of Attila. Then the answer came. We have all done our part. Stetson was not behind anyone else in this great achievement. Stetson was preparing and in preparing she was doing the part that was required of her. She was preparing her noble sons to face the hell of another Chateau Thierry; to stand the shock of another St. Mihiel drive.

October 12, 1918, the Stetson Unit Students Army Training Corps was founded. The purpose of this Corps was to prepare men to lead our great Army. It is unnecessary to go into the purposes of the organization any farther, for it was only one of the great branches of the fighting army. It was patriotic, and Stetson showed her patriotism. In this Unit were enlisted 174 physically fit to fight young men. These men came from all over the State and the country, of their own free will, and were inducted into the service of the United States.

Captain H. R. St. Cyr was placed at Stetson as Commanding Officer, assisted by Lieut. Wm. B. Loving and Lieut. Wm. T. Malery of the Line. These men were well trained instructors, and from the first, although in spite of many difficulties they worked their hardest to prepare the men for officers.

The Students' Army Training Corps was short lived as a branch of the Army, for on December 1, 1918, orders came from Washington to demobilize. December 9, 1918, the first men were discharged and by December 21, the J. B. S. U. S. A. T. C. was history.

Before the discharge, orders for ten men to go to Camp Gordon to the Central Officers' Training School were issued, and the men were selected, but on account of the Armistice these orders were rescinded and these men never left DeLand. They should feel highly honored to have been the first to be selected from this Unit, to become officers.

Immediately after the Christmas holidays another branch of the Army was established at Stetson. The new branch is for the preparation of Reserve Officers and is known as the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Captain St. Cyr was detailed to take command. Two companies were formed and immediately went to work under the instruction of Captain St. Cyr and the Cadet Officers appointed by him. The Unit is to be permanent at Stetson and will mean a great deal to all the male students of the institution. The Unit has not been equipped as yet, but a great deal of work has been accomplished, thanks to the untiring efforts of Captain St. Cyr and his capable Cadet Staff Officer.

What Happened at Chaudoin

It was just after eight;
 The young spooner was late,
 And she kept working her thumb;
 Her nerves were a-thrill,
 She couldn't sit still—
 "Oh, why! Oh, why! Don't he come?"

She'd rush to her room,
 For a touch of perfume,
 Or to straighten a lock gone awry—
 Then she'd pick up a book,
 Give a glance, and a look,
 Then back down stairs she'd fly.

It was a few minutes past,
 When at last, and at last,
 He finally came in the hall—
 And from the stairway she said,
 As she blushed rosy red—
 "I forgot you were coming at all."

What?

Though college days
 Have their delights,
 They can't compare
 With college nights.

Peaches and Pairs.

The Ten Commandments of Chaudoin

1. Thou shalt obey no other law but that of the Law of Hulley or the House of Martien.

2. Thou shalt not make unto thee any rules but those of Chaudoin Hall. Thou shalt not break them nor despitefully use them, for I, Dr. Hulley, am a jealous President, visiting the iniquities of the girls unto their sisters, even unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and shewing mercy unto them that love me and keep these rules.

3. Thou shalt not take the name of the Dear Dean in vain, for Dr. Hulley will not hold her guiltless who taketh that name in vain.

4. Five days shalt thou study and get all thy lessons, and on the night of the fifth, after 10 p. m., shalt thou wash all thy hosiery and clean thy room. On the sixth shalt thou rest. The seventh shall be a day of imprisonment; in it thou shalt not walk abroad, neither thou nor thy room-mate, nor thy friend, nor any thing that is in Chaudoin.

5. Honor Grits and Potatoes, that thou may fatten while in Chaudoin. Neither yearn after the fleshpots of the Crescent or the Daylight Cafe.

6. Thou shalt not scrap with thy room-mate.

7. Thou shalt not let thy lights be seen after 10 p. m.

8. Thou shalt not steal away.

9. Thou shalt not develop a sense of "Christian Duty."

10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's date. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's box from home, nor her shoes, nor her smock, nor anything that is thy neighbor's. Amen.

M. GLENN,
C. BEERS,
B. TANNER.

What We Hope Will Make You Sore Laughing or Otherwise

Q. When is a joke not a joke?

A. About ninety-nine times out of a hundred.
So don't expect to find any here.

Waiter Boys: So the Chaudoin girls said our singing was heavenly, did they?

Town Girl: Well, no, not in so many words, but they probably meant that.

Waiter Boys: Well, what did they say?

Town Girl: They said it was unearthly.

Typical Sophomore: When I came to college I made a resolution that I never would allow my studies to interfere with my college education, and so far I have kept it splendidly.

Dr. Hulley (in chapel): "And Moses opened his mouth and spake saying—now put away all those books."

AT CHAUDOIN.

He: You are gladness, you are sunshine,
You are happiness—I trow;
You are all to me, my darling,
That is lovely here below.

She: You are splendor, you are glory,
You are handsome, you are true,
All there is this side of Heaven
I behold, my love, in you.

Dean of Women: I am lightning, I am thunder,
I'm a roaring cateract,
I am earthquakes and volcanoes
And I'll demonstrate that fact—!—!!!

IN THE DINING HALL.

"Smitty" had walked around the dining room visiting the different young ladies, finally he came to a certain table and said: "Miss Siviter, you certainly look well in that new dress;" then as he glanced across the table at Miss Straw, he said: "And Marguerite, you always look well."

AND SHE DIDN'T SEE THE JOKE.

Miss Martien in Bible class of girls: "Imagine the terrible hardships of Paul in that Roman prison, chained to a soldier day and night. Just think, girls, how would you like to be chained to a soldier day and night?" A titter passed over the class and she never knew why!

CHAUDOIN CASE.

He: "Dear, do you suppose anyone will ever come between us?"

She: "They'd have to be pretty thin if they did."

MISCELLANEOUS

IN LOGIC.

One of the students in logic class had put a series of propositions on the board. Uncle Dan said: "Now, class, if you will give your attention I will go up the board."

(Buddy and Bee, on St. Patrick's morning.)

Buddy: "Gee, Bee, I sure want to go fishing."

Bee: "Well, go ahead. I'll bite. What made you think of fishing?"

Buddy: "I just thought of that old saying, 'In the Spring a young man's fancy turns to love and fishnig.' You see, I was coming to school this morning and the trees were so bright and green in their new leaves, that they made me think of you. Then thinking of you made be think of Spring and love. And then in the end I couldn't help but think of fishing."

Bee: "You don't seem to agree with Heinie. You know he told me the tackiest thing the other day."

Buddy: "He'd better be careful what he says. What did he tell you?"

Bee: "He said that I reminded him of Autumn. Wasn't that awful?"

Buddy: "Yes, it was pretty bad. But you mustn't be too hard on him, Bee, for you know you didn't have this green skirt on then, and besides, he doesn't know you like I do."

Bee: "All right. I got to go to Ana Lit. You make me late every morning, but Dean doesn't know so it doesn't matter."

Last Friday morning—

Dean Smith was looking through the set of cards that Doctor Gordis sends around each week, when two "bright ones" entered the room. One of the "bright ones," seeing Dean with the cards said, "Got a Full House, Dean?" Dean, picking out Griggs' and Braddock's cards, "No, I've got a pair of Jacks."

"You know it's funny that Miss Martien hasn't found out about the regular "dates" going on in Ana Lit. class. There is Eva Welsh and Curtis Gardiner, Bee Tanner and Henry Lofquist, and Catherine Beers and Wendell Rascoe, besides the down-town folks, like Margaret Woodall and Gordon Northrop, Ruth McNeff and Francis Griggs, etc. The other morning Catherine and Curtis were absent so Wendell slipped up and sat with Eva. Dean, who always notices such things with a witty word, said, "When the Gardiner is away the weeds will grow." (Who did he mean by Weeds?) Then a subdued voice from the back row said, "Yes, if Wendell can't get his Beers he takes Welshes."

Dean Smith had drawn a queer-looking curve on the board for his Ana Lit class. Bill Howard seemed to be a little interested in it and asked, "Dean, what would you call that?" And of course the Dean said, "I wouldn't call it, I'd go after it."

Just before the banquet Edgar asked Bobby, "Say, Bobby, I've never worn a dress suit before, and what in the world do you do with this long coat-tail?" And Bobby said, "Why, Edgar, the girl holds that up while you sit down." Then at the banquet all had gone very well for Edgar until the finger-bowls came around. He didn't know exactly what they were, so he asked Miss Daugherty, "What are these things?" "Why, Edgar, they are individual punch bowls." Webb was sitting across the table and hated to see Edgar get imposed on, so he said, "Nothing of the kind, Edgar, that is your wash basin."

Mostly wears a pleasant smile,

Does our Dean.

Yet, "He's a very nervous man;"

So break it gently as you can,

Don't disturb his palm leaf fan,

Please the Dean.

Tell you how to make a hit,

With the Dean.

Study Polly Con a bit

With the Dean.

The Philadelphia Ledger read;

Talk about his Saxon's speed;

When he lectures you take heed,

You got the Dean.

The Half Written Annual

We put by this half-written Annual,
While the pens idly trail in our hands,
Writes on, had we words to complete it,
Who'd read it, or who'd understand?
But the class-mates that helped us compose it,
And all others, who answered our call,
And the loyal old spirit of Stetson,
Cries up to us over it all.

We gather them up—these loose pages
A terribly, jumbled up theme,
Telling of happenings at Stetson,
Of things that are not what they seem.
Only a scattered expression
Of stories that might have been told
Of the glories of co-education,
Blue eyes, and hearts true as gold.

God pity us, if any we offended,
And wash all their heartaches away,
And help them to pardon our fumbles,
Make us all friends here today!
Yes, Lord, make friendship at Stetson
Among faculty, students and all,
A fellowship devoted and true,
That shall last 'till we hear Thy call.

We put by this half-written Annual,
While the pens, idly trail in our hands,
Writes on, had we words to complete it,
Who'd read it, and who'd understand?
But the class-mates that helped us compose it,
And all others, who answered our call,
And the loyal old spirit of Stetson,
Cries up to us over it all,

SHOW THEM "IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE"

Students, It's up to you
To give these business men your patronage.
They have supported you.
They have made it possible for you to have this Annual
Look through and see who they are,
And then say:
"They advertised in our Annual,
So we will deal with them."
