Graduation time

Another wave of students graduate on Monday, May 6. Four commencement ceremonies will take place that day. All will be held in the gymnasium.

The ceremonies are:
- The College of Arts and Sciences, 8 a.m.
- The College of Business Administration and Liberal Studies, 11 a.m.
- The College of Education, 2:30 p.m.
- Colleges of Engineering and of Health and Professional Studies, 7 p.m.

The procession line-up begins in room 174, multipurpose room of the education building, 20 minutes prior to each ceremony.

Benefits, health fair

The Employee Benefits and Health Fair will be held in the Student Center Auditorium on Wednesday, May 1, and Tuesday, May 2. Faculty, Administrative and Professional employees, and USPS members are invited.

It is sponsored by personnel services, and is 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. each day.

For information, call x2771.

Good deed

Alpha Phi Omega, the national co-ed service fraternity, will assist the Alzheimer Resource Center during a lawn party to benefit the center.

It will be held at the historic Webster-Wagner House, 433 New England Ave., East, in Winter Park, on Saturday, May 4, 4-6 p.m.

Now in its fourth year, the fundraiser's theme is "Derby Do," and winners receive donated merchandise.

Donations are tax deductible. Corporate tables for eight are available at $200. It is $50 a couple.

The Kentucky Derby Do is hosted by the Board of Directors of the Alzheimer Resource Center. A light buffet will also be provided.

For information, call 843-1910.

Building a future

Student union facility launched

Officials formally break ground on $10 million structure

Shovels flung dirt. A crowd cheered. And construction on the University of Central Florida's new student union facility was formally launched, April 10.

Officially, construction on the $10 million project began early in the spring term. Land in Pegasus Circle for the 108,587 square-foot, three-story building had been cleared months ago. And workers had already started pouring concrete foundations.

Nevertheless, the ground-breaking ceremony marked the continuation of a building boom on campus that is expected to continue into the next century.

The student union facility, which will be in the geographic heart of the campus, is a vital link in the university's growth, UCF officials said.

Expected to be completed in 1992, the brick and glass sheathed structure will house banquet rooms, meeting rooms, a computer/typing room, a large

Top faculty, students recognized

Seventy faculty members and 92 students were honored at the University of Central Florida's Founders' Day Achievement Convocation on April 17.

Among the most prestigious of the awards, chemistry professor John Gupcham was named teacher of the year, Jeffrey Sowder librarian of the year, and CRLD's Eric Van Stryland researcher of the year.

President Steven Altman told the estimated 500 people attending the ceremony in the Student Center Auditorium, adding that the union facility was formally launched, April 10.

President Steven Altman told the estimated 500 people attending the ceremony in the Student Center Auditorium, adding that the union facility was formally launched, April 10.

"We are honored individually for accomplishments. The convocation, in its third year, recognizes faculty and students for their academic accomplishments. "Our founding sponsors had a vision," President Steven Altman told the estimated 500 people attending the ceremony in the Student Center Auditorium, adding that the union facility was formally launched, April 10.

A message in the Founders' Day brochure said: "As we recognize these recent achievements, we remember the efforts of those men and women who made this university a reality and we prepare for the accomplishments of the future."

Others recognized for their teaching excellence were: Karl Heirich Barsch and Alvin Wang, from the College of Arts and Sciences; Patricia Fandt, College of Business; Timothy Sullivan, College of Education; Schell Khajoomer, College of Engineering; and Eileen Abel, College of Health and Professional Studies.

Bill Nelson accepts position as distinguished fellow of the Space Education and Research Center

Bill Nelson, former U.S. congressman and the only civilian to fly in the space shuttle, has been appointed to a newly created post of distinguished fellow of the Space Education and Research Center at the University of Central Florida.

"I am honored with this appointment, and I believe the university has to be one of the nation's centers for excellence in space."

― Bill Nelson

National organization grants UCF $120,000

English professor Stuart Omans, artistic director of the Orlando Shakespeare Festival, received confirmation on April 8 that UCF will receive a $120,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. It is the only NEH award in Florida this year, and is the largest NEH award ever received by the university.

The program, "Hamlet: Exploring the Renaissance Mind in Action," was written and will be led by Omans and Sidney Homan, English and theater professor at the University of Florida and director at the Hippodrome State Theatre in Gainesville.

The grant provides funding for 17 faculty from five Central Florida community colleges to study "Hamlet" during an intensive five-week period this summer.

Omans said that the program is unique in that it allows the study of seminal documents from the Renaissance and connects these to active performance of scenes in the play some have called the greatest drama in the English language.

Nationally recognized artists, scholars and directors from throughout the United States will participate in the program. Among them: John Andrews, former associate director of the Folger Library in Washington, D.C., and currently editor of the Shakespeare; A. J. Slavin, Renaissance historian and distinguished professor of humanities at the University of Louisville; Bud Fisher, head of the acting program at Northwestern University; Dennis Huston, of Rice University; and Marvin Rosenberg, of the University of California at Berkeley.

Library faculty, staff volunteer

Twelve of the university’s library’s faculty and staff served as ushers at the March 24 performance of “Macbeth.” The Orlando Shakespeare Guild has been responsible for lining up groups from within the community to host the annual, month-long cultural event at the Lake Eola Park.

Saving money students' goal

The University of Central Florida senior design class in industrial engineering is helping UCF help itself.

As its class project, it has offered to help any department design a money-saving technique as part of the State University System’s Incentive/efficiency programs. The program rewards employees and departments in cash for money-saving ideas for the campus.

“We used to do this with industry, but (UCF) is a multimillion dollar business, too,” said William Swart, industrial engineering chair.

Swart worked with Mark Roberts, director of personnel services, to develop the program to benefit UCF. Current projects underway are with physical plant, environmental health and safety, and personnel.

A cash award of 10 percent of the first year’s net savings or generated revenues are awarded to the suggesting group.

Swart said money "won" would be split between the industrial engineering department and individual departments. The industrial engineering money would go to the industrial engineering scholarship fund.

Veteran in TV Commercial to speak at UCF banquet

More than 200 black students from Central Florida who have earned "A" averages in school and who also serve the community as volunteers will be honored for their accomplishments at the first awards banquet of the University of Central Florida McKnight Center for Excellence at the Peabody Hotel on Saturday, May 4, at 7 p.m.

Bill Demby, the Disabled American Veteran’s "Outstanding Disabled Veteran for 390," who plays basketball on two artificial legs against non-disabled competitors in a DuPont TV commercial, will address the students.

The students, designated McKnight Achievers, represent grades kindergarten through 12th, and participate in educational preparation and community service programs offered by the center.

The center also runs a variety of community-based tutorial and educational enrichment programs for minority elementary, middle and high school students throughout metropolitan Orlando.

The awards banquet is a key fundraiser for the McKnight Center, which, according to Cecelia McKnight, McKnight Achievers program are truly distinctive, and we welcome him into the university community as a key resource in the development of our space-related programs.

Altman said. "We look forward to his advice and counsel on matters relating to the university's space research and education activities. His expertise and visibility will be major assets to these developments."

Among Nelson's duties as distinguished fellow will be to help prepare proposals and work with scientists, external agencies and private industry to expand the university's space-related work.

"... we welcome (Bill Nelson) into the university community as a key resource in the development of our space-related programs."

― Steven Altman
Education professor Donna Baumbach had two chapters published in a new book from Libraries Unlimited, "Instructional Technology: Past, Present, and Future," titled, "The School Library Media Specialist's Role in Instructional Design: Past, Present, and Future" and "Professional Organizations," co-authored with Gary Anglin. The text contains a collection of articles for students and practitioners by prominent instructional technologists. Baumbach has also been named to serve on the board of the newly organized Society of Technology and Teacher Education. She served on the national planning committee for the April conference to be held in Greenville, N.C.

Associate electrical engineering professor Glenn Boreman was named outstanding engineering Educator by the Orlando section of the IEEE.

Assistant music professor David Brunner was the featured clinician for District 2 of the Florida Elementary Music Educators Association in Venice in March. He spoke on "Encouraging the Young Singer," and demonstrated vocal techniques and rehearsal procedures with an ensemble of 40 children from Gloria Musicus's Young People's Chorus. He also appeared as conductor, lecturer and harpsichord soloist in a "Celebration of the Baroque," which was co-sponsored by the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art and Gloria Musicus. Brunner also presented a lecture, "The Uniqueness of the Voice as an Expressive Instrument," for the Sarasota Opera Guild in March.

Research assistant Myoungik Ch. was selected for a division of sponsored research enhancement award for the 1991-92 academic year.

Timothy Daly, assistant education professor, was to attend the American Association for Counseling and Development Convention in Reno, Nev., late this month. He also has been involved with the Guidance and Career Advisory Committee with counsellors from Orange County Public Schools and business leaders working on the promotion and advancement of developmental school counseling programs.

Robert Davis, associate communication professor, was recently recognized by "Quotes," the student chapter of the Florida Public Relations Association, for his dedication to that organization. He was awarded a plaque of appreciation.

Pete Fisher, associate director of the Counseling and Testing Center, presented a one-day workshop, "Realizing Human Potential," to the Orange County Association for Counseling and Development, in March.

Karl Guenther, engineering science professor, has been named to serve on the program and organizing committee of the fifth topical meeting in Optical Interference Coatings, to be held in June 1992 in Tucson, Ariz.

Assistance education professor Marie Sommers Hill presented "Expanding Vision of Student Achievement" to the Florida Education Research Council Brevoort Conference at the University of Southern Florida, April 12.

Research assistant Thomas Kimble was awarded third prize in the student poster paper presentation at the 23rd annual meeting of the Florida chapter of the American Vacuum Society. The poster addressed "Measuring the Attention of Thin Waveguides Using a CCD Camera," and was co-authored by professors Karl Guenther and Marc Hime.

William Lawler, Litchon Fellow and research assistant, was chosen outstanding electrical engineering student of the year by the Orlando section of the IEEE.

Altman named recipient of 'Tree of Life' award

University of Central Florida President Steven Altman and Rollins College President Rita Bornstein have been named as Orlando's recipients of the Jewish National Fund's "Tree of Life" award.

Altman and Bornstein will be presented with their awards at a dinner to be held at the Peabody Hotel in Orlando on May 15, at 6 p.m. Leonard Rabinowitz, president and CEO of the New York Yankees and a past JNF honoree, will present the awards. Paul Josef, JNF national campaign director, will be the speaker.

The Tree of Life, the JNF's highest honor, is a humanitarian award. It is given in recognition of outstanding community involvement, dedication to the cause of American-Israeli friendship and devotion to peace and the security of human life.

Altman and Bornstein were named as this year's local honorees "to publicly acknowledge your outstanding contributions to the advancement of higher education in Florida and to the Greater Orlando community," wrote Samuel Cohen, JNF executive vice president, in a letter to the recipients.

PBS special on ancient city has heavy link to university

An engaging look at one of the most remote archaeological sites in Central America at the ancient Maya city of Caracol will soon air on local PBS stations. But this isn't just another PBS special. This one has a University of Central Florida twist. Its producer is instructional resources director Robert Arnold. And Gary Twitchell is its producer-director. Twitchell was a TV producer and director for instructional resources before leaving the university a month ago to shoot footage in Belize for another program.

The program is scheduled to air on WMFE-TV on Friday, May 3, at 6:30 p.m., and on WCEU-TV (Daytona Beach) at 6 p.m. the next day. Cocoa station WKEQ-TV also had planned to broadcast the program, but has not scheduled a time.

The program, which was sponsored in part by instructional resources, is being sold to colleges around the nation, and the U.S. Department of Education is expected to make the video available to school systems.

The 27-minute, 40-second program looks at the warrior residents of Caracol, a city of 200,000 that existed for more than 200 years with the defeat of Tik'al in AD 552. Caracol remained a dominant force until AD 900 when it was mysteriously abandoned. Many discoveries here have changed the thinking about the Maya.

The program takes viewers into the Maya Mountains with husband and wife team Diane and Arlen Chase, professors of anthropology at UCF. Documenting the work of the 1989 season, the video also shows what it's like to live and work in a remote site where rain provides the drinking water; bath water comes from an ancient Maya reservoir.

The nearest town is a two and a half-hour, bone-jarring ride through dense jungle.
Employee of the month

Numbers, people figure in reasons she loves job

Every day on her way to work, Jill Swenson mentally plans her day. In her mind she checks her desk calendar. She tries to figure out exactly what tasks are waiting for her at the office and how much time is necessary to accomplish each one.

Then she lets the whole agenda slip away.

"I make all these plans, but I really don't know what's going to happen once the day begins," said Swenson, an administrative assistant in the College of Education. "There never is really a typical day around here. These little crises just come up, and we just do what we have to do."

And that, Swenson said, is one reason she loves her job so much.

"I really like what I do here," she said. "I get to spend eight hours a day here."

Swenson, whose duties involve making sure the College of Education's budget balances, has been working at the university seven years, the first three at the Brevard campus and the rest at the College of Education. And with luck — barring any major crises — she will retire from her job.

"I hope to be doing the same thing in the future as I'm doing right now," Swenson said. "I'm really happy. I enjoy working with figures. The people in this department are terrific; they're really a fine group of people here," she said, as if to confirm that any suggestion of her leaving is ridiculous.

Although, Swenson admits that at times her job can be stressful. Like, for instance, when law makers decided to take a chunk out of the university's budget. It's times like that when Swenson earns her paycheck.

"It can be very difficult to get everything right and for us to still come out in the black. I'm real proud of us that we were able to do it after the budget cuts," she said.

"We have to be so careful with the budget and be sure we don't over-spend the college."

Swenson does work hard. Still, being named employee of the month was a shock. I had no idea they were going to choose me."

Writer shares poetry with students, fans

Pulitzer Prize-winning American poet W.S. Merwin spoke at UCF and Valencia Community College last week as part of the UCF World Writers Series.

He won a Pulitzer for “The Carrier of Ladders” (1970), the National Book Award for “Tarot” (1991), and the National Book Critics Circle Award for “The Sun in a Cloud” (1992).

Merwin has two children, enjoys cooking and plays the ukulele. He is also interested in animal rights and is aghast at the rate humans are destroying it.

Linda Anderson, senior secretary for the Counseling and Testing Center, comes to UCF from the University of South Florida in Tampa, where she was a senior secretary. Anderson, who has two children, enjoys outdoor sports and shopping.

Margaret Brock, telephone systems operator supervisor, may be bringing luck to the university. The mother of two won a 1991 car on “Let’s Make a Deal,” recently. Her favorite hobby is walking.

Frances Demetree, director of the Winter Park Center, was owner of Demetree School of Real Estate and Securities before coming to UCF. She attended Rollins and Barry colleges. She has three children, and her hobbies include traveling, reading and decorating. She is also interested in mental health and women’s issues.

Debra Huffman, senior laboratory technician in the hospitality management department, comes to the University of South Florida in Tampa, where she was a microbiologist and lab technician. Huffman has two children.

Richard Metzger, landscape and grounds superintendent, will be in charge of all landscaping projects and ground maintenance on campus. Before coming to the university he was owner and general manager of R/M Irrigation and Landscaping. Metzger, who enjoys bowling, gardening and church work, became a father for the first time on Feb. 23.

Linda Miller, a research associate with educational services, will coordinate activities of the uniform database project. Before coming to UCF, she was a reference librarian with the Seminole Community College Library System. She graduated from the University of Michigan, and is the mother of two. She enjoys reading and receiving company from the North.

Vereta Powell, a secretary in electrical engineering, will be working with undergraduate students. She was a secretary at the State University of New York before coming to UCF. The mother of two enjoys cooking and plays.

Peter Wigley, post doctoral fellow working in CREOL, will do research in ultrafast nonlinear optics. Before coming to the university he was a postdoctoral research assistant at Imperial College, University of London, where he graduated.
