The Oshihoyi 1921

Volume Fourteen

Published by the Junior Class of John B. Stetson University

DR. JOHN F. BAERECKE, PH.D., M.D.

Dedicated in loving memory to
Dr. John F. Baerecke
who was for twenty-six years head of Department of Biology of John B. Stetson University.

Foreword

Believing firmly in Stetson, and thankful to her for what she has done for us, we have labored to publish this year's Oshihiyi.

We believe that Stetson has had one of the best years of her existence and we hope that we have pictured the life at Stetson as it is. If you find that things could have been otherwise, will you be kind enough to make allowances.

We are indebted to the classes and organizations for their hearty cooperation and willingness to help.

We are both grateful and indebted to Miss Jane Abbott, Mr. Ernesto Casaus, Miss Lillian Wells, Miss Merle Stevens and Miss Eleta Padgett for the excellent art work which has added much to this volume.

If, dear reader, this book serves to bring back to you pleasant memories, and a year of profit to yourself, we will be satisfied.

THE EDITOR.

CLASS SONG

I

The dear familiar faces and the old familiar halls,
The dear familiar classmates and the old familiar calls
Around our heart like ivy—ivy never sere—
Have twined fair deathless memories; memories held dear.

Chorus:

Stetson we'll ever sing thy praise, wherever we may roam,
And come what may, our thoughts for aye, will turn to you and home.

II

We've fought for you, your honor is foremost in our sight,
We've won and lost and fought again our spur, the green and white.
And with the same brave spirit, we'll not the future fear,
Though hard be strife and toil in life, we'll go on with a cheer.

III

Oh Stetson dear, we love you; we've worked for you and prayed;
And you are what we've made you, as we are what you've made.
To you, our Alma Mater, exultant praise we raise,
And pray your blessings on us all throughout our college days.

To the Long-Leafed Pine

Bow low your majestic head, long-leafed pine,
Breathing fragrance of cleanliness,
Tell me what the wind whispers in your ear,
Green-cowled sage of the wilderness!

Pine! teach me to live in the out-of-doors,
Where pure thoughts with the breezes blow.
Teach me to find in the blue of the sky,
The secrets that wild flowers know.

Teach me to toil in the light of the sun,
To bathe in the showers of rain,
To exercise robust body and soul,
And rest e'er fatigue reaches pain.

Then, childlike still, in mother nature's arms,
My trundle bed some cozy nook,
I'll cuddle to sleep, my head on her breast,
As you read from her story book.

Sophomore-Freshman Banner Fight

Last year this write-up began, "As usual, the Freshmen won," etc.—(That was us!) But now we have to have an entirely different story to tell. For the first time in many years the Sophomores won the annual banner fight.

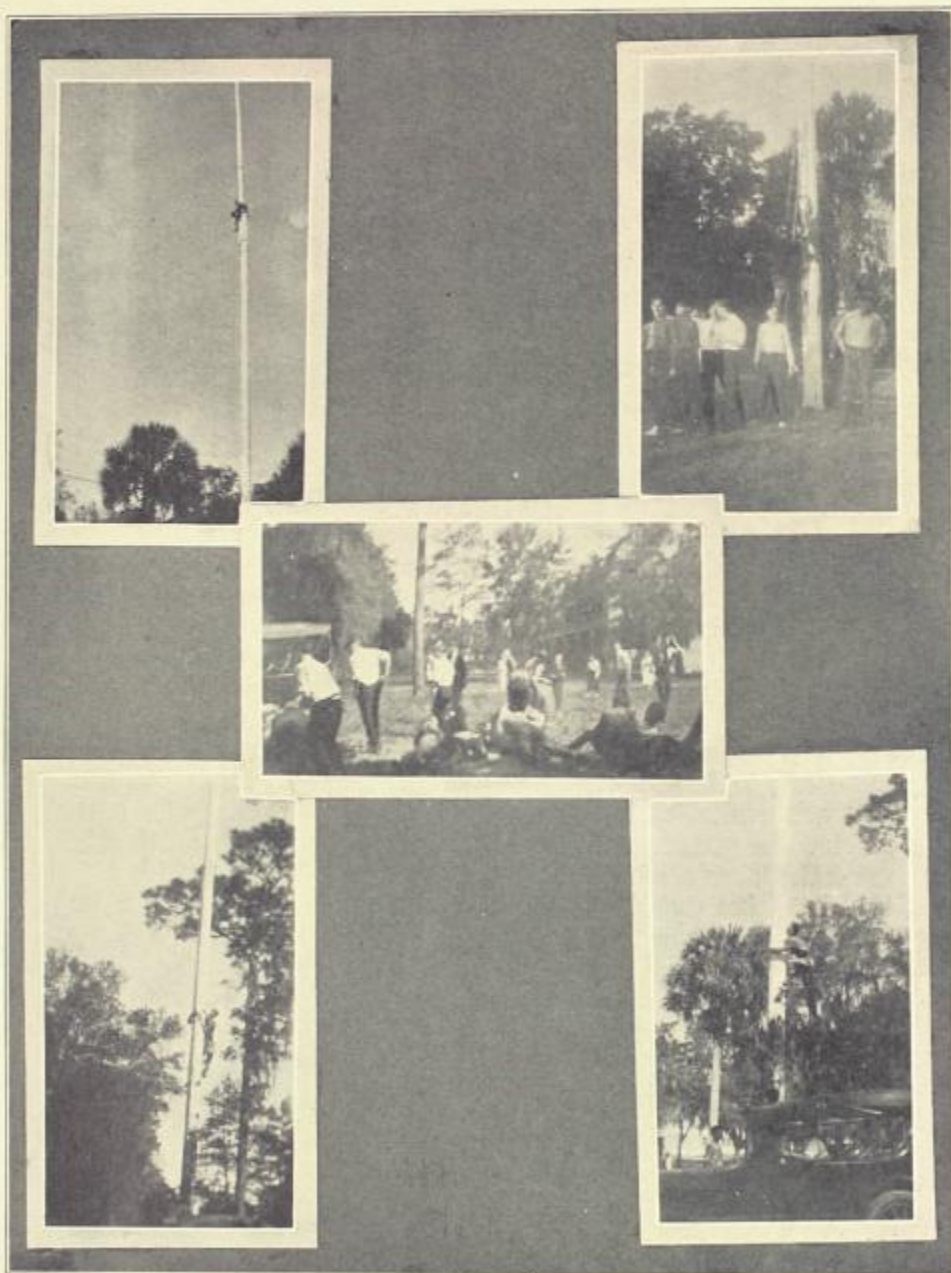

The Freshmen surprised the fellows in the Phi Kap house in the wee small hours of March 18. The Sophomores were greatly outnumbered, but they knew how to fight, and kept the Freshies off till they could get the rest of the band together. After the longest and hardest struggle ever known in the history of the banner fights, the Freshmen succeeded in tying up a number of Sophomores and taking them for a ride. But you can't down a Soph.

Early in the morning they appeared ready for more. The flag pole was rushed with cars and Theo Hon started up the pole. Neither the grease nor barbed wire stopped him from bringing down the banner, which by the way, was so small he could hardly find it. That was the signal for the Freshies to retire from the field!

In Memoriam

To our beloved classmate, Aileen Decker, who has gone from among us to the Great Beyond, we dedicate this page. Aileen spent her short life bringing sunshine and happiness to this hard old world. She always was smiling and had some cheerful word for those with whom she came in contact. Even when she was so sick that she had to wait in Elizabeth Hall until someone would kindly help her up the stairs to her classes, she was not cross or melancholic, but cheerful and smiling. When she could no longer go to her classes but was confined to her bed, she still was cheerful. When at last she knew that death was inevitable, she looked forward to the time when she would go to her Maker. Finally, on Friday evening, December 3d, 1920, at 9 p. m., she passed on to be with her Lord and Maker.

Sunset

Written on Sunset of January 12, 1921, at DeLand, Florida.

The moon, a silver crescent in the sky,
Rides o'er a field of pale green—blue and white
Framed by bands of gold and orange light,
A picture wrought on High for mortal eye.
And as the rays of silver light pass by,
The trees stretch forth to catch the gleaming light,
And stand the torches of the coming night;
On that side light, on this the shadows lie.

The shades of night, the shades of earthly life
We know too well. We miss the radiant gleam
That lies beyond the things of mortals seen,
We miss the thing that human life may mean,
Our souls too weary with the constant strife
To gain the light that beckons in our dream.

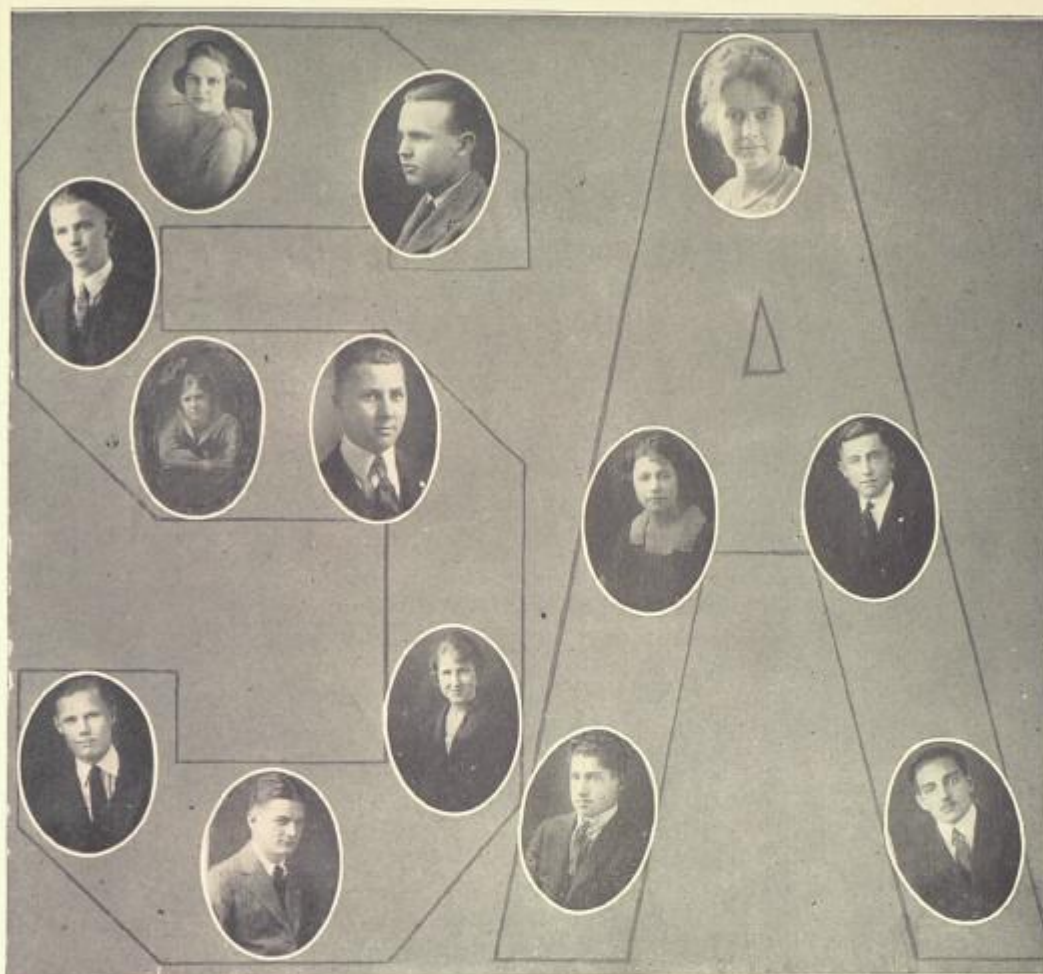

AUGUSTA B. COLTON.

The Business College

In the great fields of endeavor, in all walks of life, but more especially in the financial, industrial and commercial vocations, the broad-minded, far-seeing and efficiently trained business man or woman gains merited recognition for systematic work from men and women, great and otherwise, in all professions. They command respect and confidence, demand the utmost of themselves and others in the thoroughness and the systematic and efficient performance of the endless duties involved in solving the problems and overcoming the obstacles in the march of peoples and nations onward, and build the foundation of progress and future prosperity with unerring exactness and accuracy.

The opportunity of acquiring the necessary business training to fit one for his life vocation is offered by the Stetson Business College, whose reputation and popularity for efficient business training has rapidly advanced the last several years. Today it is admitted to be Florida's best Commercial school and one among the best in the South.

The following well planned courses are offered: The Commercial Course, which includes Bookkeeping, Business Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Penmanship, Business English, Rapid Calculation, Office Practice, Commercial Geography and Spelling.

The Advanced Commercial Course includes Advanced Bookkeeping, Auditing and Advertising.

The Shorthand Course includes the Benn Pitman system of Stenography, Fuller Touch System of Typewriting, Business Letter Writing, Office Dictation, Manifolded and Spelling.

The Special Banking Course includes a complete study of National, Federal Reserve, State and Private Banks.

The two-year Cost Accounting Course includes Elementary Bookkeeping, Rowe's Cost Accounting Budget, Kester's Theory and Practice Volume I, and Contracts and Bills and Notes from the Law College.

The three-year Cost Accounting Course requires in addition to the second year course, Kester's Theory and Practice Volume II, Original C. P. A. Problems, and a required amount of original work which includes Income Tax Returns of the various forms.

The Department of Business Administration leads to a Ph.B. degree in the College of Liberal Arts. A diploma from the Commercial Course is a prerequisite.

The enrollment in the Business College has steadily gained and this year's enrollment has broken all records. The training acquired here enables one to successfully meet all competition for the most desired and best paying positions in the business world.

THE COLLEGE OF LAW

The College of Law

DEAN RICHMOND A. RASCO, A.M., LL.B.

The year of 1920-21 has been a profitable one for the Law College. The registration has been the largest in the school's history, and more and better courses have been offered than in any previous year. The total enrollment has been sixty students carrying full work and ten or twelve students who have taken some of the Law courses. More and more is the fact being impressed that the Law College is a most vital part of the University, and its service to the young people of the State who desire thorough equipment for the practice of their chosen profession is a growing, ever-progressive service.

In all justice, much of the credit for this happy result should go to Dean R. A. Rasco, who has striven all the time, often in the face of considerable obstacles, to make the work of the Law Department all that it should be to reflect credit and dignity upon the coming bar of Florida. In the accomplishment of this end Dean Rasco has had not only the substantial support of his faculty but the enthusiastic co-operation of his students as well. And much of the success of any school is determined by the favorable opinion and spirit of helpfulness manifested by the students.

Early in the year Maj. W. G. S. Lowe, professor of Law, who had endeared himself to the students by his frank helpfulness and ready wit, was stricken with rheumatism and forced to forego his work of instruction. His retirement has been keenly felt, and all his friends—and they are all who know him—are hopeful of an early restoration to his former good health. A fine compliment was paid to the Major during the winter by the people of DeLand when they voted him the most polite man in the city.

Prof. J. A. Scarlett, Ph.B., from Yale University and a graduate in Law from Stetson, a practicing attorney of DeLand, took over the work of Maj. Lowe. To Prof. Scarlett members of this year's graduating class will be indebted for a very excellent course in Income Tax Law and the intricacies of making out income tax returns. In this work Prof. Scarlett is particularly skilled.

Prof. Francis M. Miller started the year as joint author, with Mr. Fred R. Wilson of the DeLand bar, of a valuable little book entitled Examination of Title to Real Estate in Florida, which has met with favorable reception by Florida attorneys. Prof. Miller gave a most acceptable course in this subject, which was added to the curriculum only last year; strengthened his other courses, particularly the difficult subject of Common Law Pleading; and contributed much to the value of the year's work to the Senior Class by conducting a course, offered this year for the first time, in How to Find the Law, whereby the students were made fully acquainted with the important art of legal search in a most practical way.

Dean Rasco, as has been his custom for many years, gave a most thorough course in Problems, the purpose of which is to make profitable application of the work in How to Find the Law, but greatly increased the number and variety of the problems of law. Of the Dean's other courses, nothing need be said. His work has a way of demonstrating its own value.

In addition to the prescribed courses of the year some very helpful lectures have been given for the benefit of Law students. Attorney Fred R. Wilson talked on Examination of Abstracts, which is his forte; Judge Isaac A. Stewart of DeLand, lectured on Criminal Procedure; Dr. J. J. Kindred, a Law graduate of Stetson, a noted insanity expert of New York, and now for a second time Member of Congress from New York City, lectured on Medical Jurisprudence; Hon. George W. Anderson of Boston, Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the First Judicial Circuit, and formerly a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, delivered a most able address on the Railroad Problem of the United States; and Judge H. F. Atkinson of Miami, whose wife is a member of the Junior Law Class, addressed the classes on Riparian Rights in Florida, a subject to which he has devoted considerable attention.

Valuable new books to the amount of five hundred dollars have been added to the Law Library during the year; so that all the reports of the courts of last resort of the States and of the United States, are up to date, and further additions of useful law books are contemplated.

The history of the Law College is one of achievement, and many of the most successful Florida practitioners are Stetson graduates. It is so recognized that, upon the satisfactory completion of the prescribed course of study for which the degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred, Stetson graduates are admitted to practice in all the courts of Florida, including the United States District Court, without bar examination. As its past has been brilliant, so is the future of the Law College more promising, for Dean Rasco's guiding hand and heart will continue to be felt in the direction and supervision of the work of the members of the future bar of the State of Florida.

The Junior Law Class on the twenty-third day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and twenty, was first ushered into the forbidding inner portals before the presence of his most honored and exalted Majesty, the Law. As our curious gaze wandered over the serried ranks and numbered tiers of ponderous sheepskin tomes, which seemed to elbow each other for breathing space, a feeling of awe and reverence for their vast legal lore and illustrious authors long since claimed by the dead, dim past overcame us. Little did we realize that here lay in mute and silent obedience the accumulated result of painstaking toil and research; the efforts of such geniuses as Coke, Blackstone, Littleton and so on down that illustrious line; or that this was the product of the trials and logic of man stretching over hundreds of years. The true import of the solemn charge of his most honored and regal Majesty had not as yet made itself known to us that, "Verily, he who would pass behind the veil of my vast, mysterious and boundless kingdom appears to enter upon an arduous adventure."

Laboring under the kind patience and understanding of our preceptors, learned in their profession, common facts and principles began to assert themselves under various headings and classifications. No longer did we stand in awe before these formidable and cold repositories of the Law, but boldly and unabashed did we seize, and notoriously open; gaze upon and delve into the mysteries of this mute object in the form of a book, in search of that elusive personage who had the peculiar desire and craving to be known to the world as a one and certain "Mr. Case." We found much to our surprise that a swift left jab to the liver and a right hook to the jaw wasn't a knock-out but a "Tort;" that a fieri feci wasn't a South African fruit or that an "easement" wasn't a new brand of foot powder. Thus in multifarious instances we were led on through the mazes of an apparently uncharted sea of legal lore of his all omnipotent Majesty, only to find the wilderness becoming more vast and boundless. We began to view common sets of facts and principles in a new light and from a new perspective, and to think in that peculiar style known to be "legal." A feeling of con-confidence reposes itself in us in our newly acquired method of dealing with various problems and we feel strongly the impulse which bids us to try out these results of hard toil and labor.

To our teachers and preceptors do we feel greatly indebted, and especially to our "Dean," who has thus far labored with us; who has won our hearts by his personal sacrifice for our interests and by his glowing smile, and kindly interest and help in our troubles has he endeared himself in the memories of those who have come in contact with him.

The members of the Junior Law Class are well represented on the campus and have taken an active and leading part in student activities, whether it be in athletics, debates, literary or dramatic productions.

Feeling more secure in our intended profession it is with interest and avidity that we look forward to an even more successful era.

ON THE ROAD TO DELAND

(Tune: Mandalay, With Apologies to Kipling.)

In the Ancient Stetson College not far distant from the sea,
There's a Yankee girl a studyin' and sometimes she thinks of me,
For the chapel bells are ringing and to me they plainly say,
Come you back, Miami lawyer, come you back up here to stay.
Come you back to DeLand
Where they work to beat the band,
Can't you see the squirrels jumping from the oak trees to the land?
On the road to DeLand
Where the food is mostly canned
And the dawn comes up like thunder crost them rolling hills of sand.
Her pleated skirt was white and clean and her little hat was blue
And she gives you the impression she is making eyes at you.
When I seen her she was poundin' on a clickin' type machine
And a cov'rin' good white paper with some briefs to show the Dean;
A wastin' paper ruled and plain,
With briefs 'bout peoples raisin' Cain;
Precious lot she'll care for briefin'
When I git her home again.
On the road to DeLand—

When the wind was in the pine trees and the sun was settin' too,
She would bring her little law books and she'd read 'em thru and thru;
Then she'd ask me puzzlin' questions 'bout the things the writers said,
Equity and torts and pleadin's and suits by people long since dead.
Questions that I could not answer
About the law and 'bout the facts,
About the Federal Constitution
And the Legislative Acts.
On the road to DeLand—

But that's all past and shove' behind me, I must make a livin', and—
There aint no free busses runnin' from Miami to DeLand;
What I seen there oft reminds me of the tales the Alumni tells
Of Co-Eds with shining tresses and them lusty college yells.
No I can't think of nothin' else
But my girl with workin' spells,
And thin shirt waists and short dresses,
And them chiming college bells.
On the road to DeLand—

I am sick of wastin' leather on these slip'ry pavin' stones,
And the humid, torrid weather wakes the fever in my bones.
Tho' I could go with several girlies to the Airdrome and the Strand,
And we might talk a lot of nonsense, wot would they understand?
Silken skirts and jeweled hand,
Lor' how could they understand?
I've a neater, sweeter maiden
In a peaceful, pious land.
On the road to DeLand—

Ship me som'ers north of Cocoa, where the best ain't like the worst,
Where the people don't get loco about taxes, land and "thirst;"
For the Stetson bells are calling and it's there that I would be,
With the blue hat and the white skirt and no one to hear and see.
On the road to DeLand,
Where the music is so grand,
And the orange trees are bloomin'
All the way to DeLand.
On the road to DeLand,
Where the air is soft and bland,
And the dawn comes up like thunder
Crost that wooded stretch of sand.

FOOT BALL

Foot Ball

A casual glance at this season's scores would seem to indicate that the foot ball team did not do very well. Regardless of the scores, this season has been the most successful in several years. As usual a very large squad reported for practice at the beginning of the season. Outside of being very light, the material looked very promising. "Pug" Allen, the former Georgia Tech star at fullback, and baseball star, immediately took the squad in hand and at once a rigid training was instituted. All phases of the game were taught them, thus enabling them to take advantage of their light weight. The squad was too large for one man to handle so the assistance of a former S man was secured as assistant coach—Neil Jackson. The perplexing Georgia Tech shift was again used with great success. By the use of it, the heavier opposing teams were often so completely bewildered that before they were able to recover from the surprise of it, our man would have made a very substantial gain. Manager Gardiner deserves credit for his work, due to the many cancellations. "Bus" Rasco, the captain of the team, also gave valuable assistance in whipping the squad into shape.

The first game was played at Jacksonville against the American Legion team, composed of former college stars and others. Despite the fact of being overweighed and opposed to a team of men who had years and years of foot ball training, our team work and speed enabled us to win with a score of 7-0.

The team next journeyed to Tampa, where it was defeated by the Southern College team. In this game the only thing which defeated our team was the overwhelming weight of the opposing team. However, on Turkey Day, Stetson redeemed herself by defeating Southern 20-7 in a sensational game.

The first game at home was played against Mercer. The reputation which this team had, seemed to indicate that we would be overwhelmingly beaten, but when the final whistle blew, the score stood 21-6 in their favor. In view of the strength of the opposing team, we consider this a very good showing.

The next two games were played with Florida. Last year they won from us by a very large score and our goal was, if not to beat them, at least to hold them down to the lowest score possible. The first game was played at Palatka in a heavy rain and on a muddy field. They finally beat us by the score of 26-0. When we journeyed to Gainesville to play them on their own field, they anticipated an easy victory, but the game at that time proved to be one of the best that had ever been played on that field. We were beaten by the score of 20-0. As in other games, the extreme light weight of our team as opposed to the heavy team of our opponents was the only element in our downfall. The game-ness, speed, and team work displayed in this last game, showed that all our team lacked to make it a championship team was more weight. In these two games, Florida scored less in both games combined than they did last year in the single game played. In view of our handicap, we can be very proud of our work.

In a brief outline of the individual work of the team, Captain "Bus" Rasco deserves first mention. He was probably the hardest fighter on the whole team, as all the opposing centers found out, to their sorrow. He was especially good on defensive work. He was the oldest foot ball man on the team, having played on the famous team of 1916.

Captain-elect Davis comes next. He was by far the most consistent ground-gainer. He was undoubtedly the star of the backfield on the offensive. His runs for material gains are responsible for much of our success. We feel sure that next year's team will succeed under his leadership.

In reviewing the line, we shall first consider the guards, Schubiger and Bozermeny. Schubiger being the heaviest man on the line, rendered valuable assistance to the team. He was always sure to open a hole for the backfield to pass through. Although it was Bozermeny's first year in foot ball, this little guard did such good work, both on the offensive and the defensive, that before long he will take his place among Stetson stars of the gridiron. Next are the tackles, H. Hon and Booth. Hon proved to be the sensation of the line. His defensive work is inestimable. It was due to his punting ability that the University of Florida was held to such low scores. Although handicapped with a fractured shoulder, Booth rendered even more assistance than last year. His work on the defensive is especially noteworthy. The ends, Bradley and F. Fowler, are conceded to be the best ends in the State. This holds true on both the offensive and defensive, due mainly to their speed, which enabled them to cut down their opponents. Their ability in completing forward passes made them invaluable to the team. This was Fowler's first year in college foot ball, and we look to him as a means to future success. Whitehair's work at quarter back was a great improvement over last year. He did most of the forward passing and was also good in running back punts. Russell at halfback was extremely good in interference and on the defense. Buddy Rasco's work at halfback was also a remarkable improvement over previous years. He starred especially on the defensive. H. Turner and T. Hon were extremely capable of filling in any position in the backfield. During the absence of Booth from tackle, his position was capably filled by W. Gunby.

To the scrubs much credit is due. Day after day they reported from practice. Their fighting qualities did much to develop the Varsity and so they deserve no less credit, even though they did not get their letters.

Next year the team of this year will remain intact with the exception of three men. This indicates a good team. In fact almost every man on the team will be at Stetson for several more years and we feel confident that we will soon be able to turn out a team which will even surpass the deeds of the famous team of '16 and of previous years.

The following men were awarded the Varsity S and Gold foot ball: R. Rasco, R. C. Davis, G. Rasco, T. Hon, Whitehair, H. E. Turner, F. Fowler, R. Bradley, H. Hon, H. W. Booth, W. Gunby, H. A. Schubiger, Bozermeny, J. W. Russell, C. H. Gardiner.

THE ATHLETES BASKETBALL.

BASKET BALL

Basket Ball

For the second consecutive year, Stetson holds the State Championship. The record the team made is indeed an enviable one. During the season, but two games were lost. No collegiate games were lost during the whole season. The most noteworthy victories were the two defeats over U. of Florida by decisive scores.

This year no long trips were taken. At the beginning of the season we had a heavy schedule which included games with colleges in various states, but owing to the cancellation of some of the most important of these games, it was impossible to make the trips as planned.

Upon the commencement of the season, very many candidates reported for the various positions. Throughout the entire season every position was strongly contested for. Three old men returned and formed a nucleus upon which was built what was perhaps the strongest team that Stetson has ever produced. The three old men were Whitehair, Gardiner and Cox. In preceding years these men were largely instrumental in Stetson's success and their work this year has been of such a nature that their attainments will be the goal of future teams for years to come. The work of the scrubs is also to be commended. In fact they played harder against the varsity than did most of our opposing teams.

Whitehair, running guard and captain of the team, was largely responsible for the success of the team. He is considered to be the best running guard in the State. His ability to make goals made him one of the best point-getters on the team. In no game was he outscored by his opposing forward. His accuracy in shooting fouls is also to be commended, as very rarely did he miss. His floor-work was of the very best, very often taking the ball the whole length of the floor for a goal.

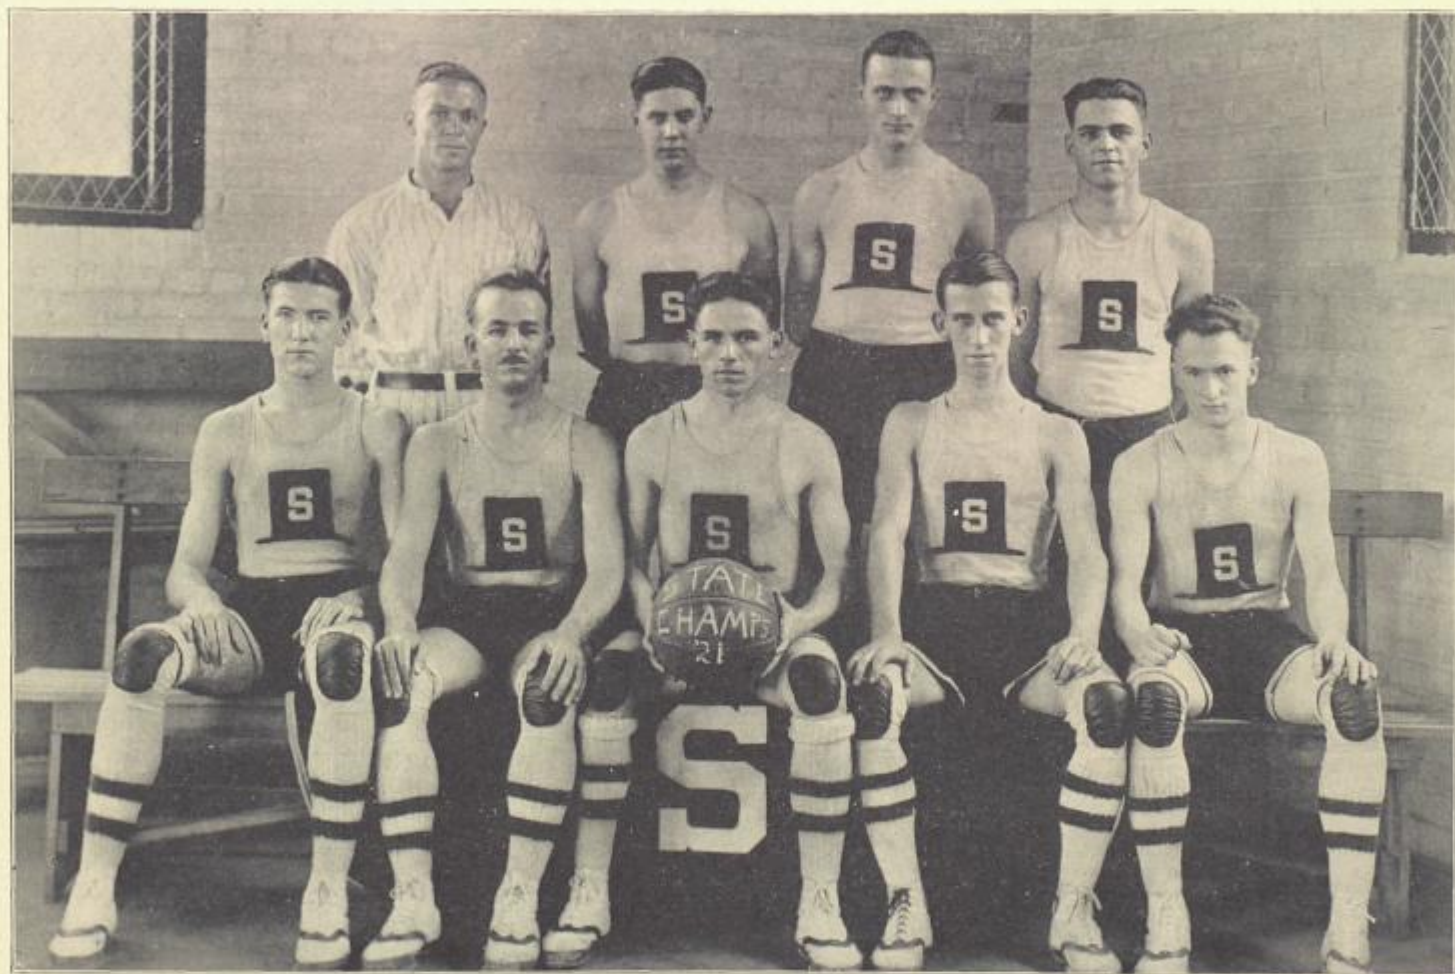

To Cox, standing guard, much credit is due. In that position he cannot be beaten in the State. Innumerable times when the opposing players had eluded our other players, Cox recovered the ball from them, thereby enabling our own men to shoot. His endurance was unsurpassed by any one on the team.

Gardiner, the veteran of the team, ended his last year in College basket ball in a creditable manner. As a forward, he was one of our best point-getters. His floor-work was also very good. On a pass, he was always at the right place at the right time to receive it. He can indeed be proud of his record in basket ball during his career at Stetson.

Ray, as a forward, sprang into the firmament of the stars in his first game. His uncanny ability to shoot from any angle or any position makes him the best shot that has ever been seen on the floor of Cummings Gym. His ability in eluding the guards of opposing teams is also to be commended. This is his first year in College basket ball, and we feel confident that in a short time he is bound to be among the best players in the South.

Collins, at center, did good work for the team. He obtained the jump the majority of times. His floor-work and shooting is also worthy of commendation.

Kunkel, also at center, whenever called upon, proved himself worthy of that position. Due to an injury he was prevented from playing in the latter portion of the season.

BASKET BALL.

BASKET BALL

Hamilton, by his excellent floor-work and shooting ability, proved himself to be a valuable utility man, filling any position on the team with equal skill and facility. His work was of such a nature that he also is due to take a prominent part on Stetson teams in the future.

Russell, another utility man, proved himself a valuable man to the team. He was handicapped throughout the season by injuries received in foot ball.

In addition to his work as a guard and captain, much credit is due Whitehair for his work in the managerial position. Owing to the various cancellations this position was an unenviable one indeed.

This year marks the close of the careers of Whitehair, Gardiner and Cox at Stetson. But due to the excellent material remaining, next year should again produce a championship team, thereby upholding our record of the past two years.

BASEBALL

Baseball

In line with all the other sports at Stetson, baseball was more of a success than last year. At the close of the season the record was six games won and six lost, with an average of .500. During the latter part of the season we were handicapped by the loss of Coach Pug Allen, thereby adding to the duties of Captain Murray.

The season was opened at DeLand, with the Ormond Professionals. We won this game, 4-0. This game was rather loosely played, due to the fact that it was played before team work could be developed, but at that time indications were such that it was apparent that we would have a more successful team than last year.

The next two games were played at Clearwater with Southern College. We won both of these games, the first, 6-3. The features of this game were the pitching of Gardiner, the fielding of Parker, and the batting of Murray. We also won the second game, 4-3, in a well played game, with Anderson and Kicklighter doing the twirling.

The Aviators from Carlstrom Field, were the next victims. We won both of these games, 9-2 and 14-8. The opposing team was so weak that the both games were quite listless.

The first set-back that we received was at the hands of Rollins at Winter Park, losing both games, 18-2 and 3-0. Rollins seemed to have a Jinx on Stetson and despite all efforts, we were unable to beat them.

The next series was with Daytona, and in the three games the best kind of baseball was played. We lost the first, 6-5 (10 innings), but came back strong and took the next two, 3-2 and 7-5. A few days before the first game, Daytona had held the Washington American League team to an 8-5 score, and so they were confident of victory. Upon the end of the last game the papers conceded Stetson to have the best team in Volusia County.

When Rollins came up to DeLand to play the two return games, we were determined to wipe out the sting of the two defeats administered at Winter Park. Nevertheless, the same Jinx seemed to be camping on our trail, and despite all of our efforts we lost both games, 7-1 and 8-1.

The season was brought to a close with two games with St. Augustine State League team. Due to errors, we lost both games, 12-0 and 3-2 (10 innings). This last game was probably the best game of the season and was marred only by two errors in the tenth inning, which were responsible for the defeat. Previous to the series with Daytona State League team, Daytona beat both Rollins and St. Augustine. Due to this fact and to the fact that our average for the season was .500, the season was the most successful one that we have had in several years.

Last year Higginbotham was elected captain of the team, but at the beginning of the season he departed from our midst and Murray was elected captain to take his place. The work that he did this year shows the wisdom of the selection. Mike played a good game of ball at second base, and in addition led the team in batting. He also deserves credit for his ability in handling the team after Coach Allen's departure.

The twirling staff consisted of Kicklighter, Anderson and Gardiner. If such a selection can be made, Kicklighter did the best work of the trio. The hard work of Anderson and the "smile that defeat could not chase," are to be commended. Gardiner started the season in great form, and was very successful except with Rollins, who seemed to have a charm over him.

BASEBALL

When we lost Higginbotham as catcher we thought we would be at a loss for a man for that position, but B. Turner showed that he was capable of handling that position in a creditable manner. He was exceptionally good at recovering fouls.

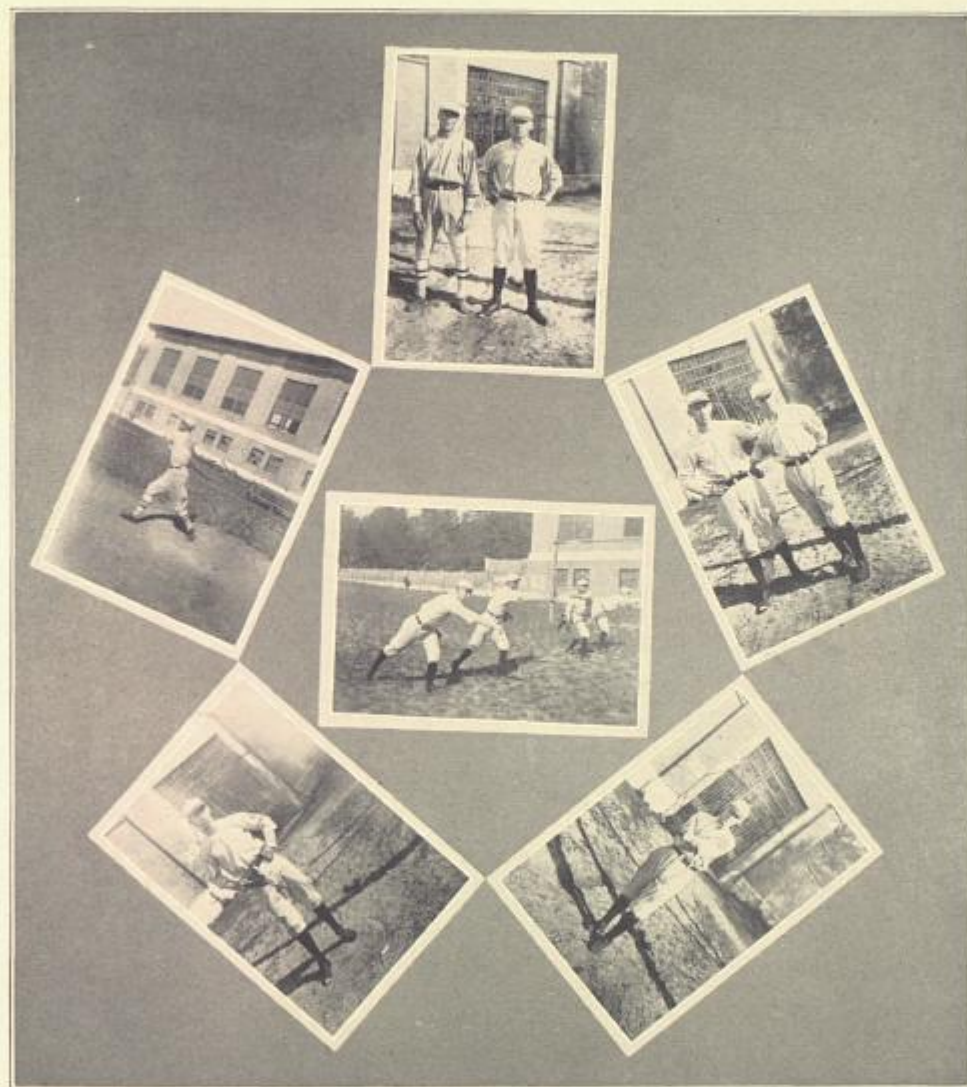

The infield consisted of Parker, H. Turner, Capt. Murray, Kicklighter and Gardiner. This year was Parker's first year at third base. His work there seemed as if he had been accustomed to playing there for years. His batting was also good. H. Turner at shortstop deserves much commendation. He is no doubt the fastest man on the team, many times recovering balls from the other men's territories. Kicklighter and Gardiner, in addition to their twirling, handled the initial sack in a creditable manner.

The outfield consisted of Whitehair, Hon, Lambert and Brooks. In every game they played a steady game of baseball. Brooks also deserves mention as manager. Due to the many cancellations, this position is always a very hard one to fill.

Stetsen had as good a ball team as any team in the State, but due to the inability to hit in pinches, we were not as successful as we might have been. However, there is so much old material left for next year, that we are sure that it will adhere to the slogan, "Beat last year's team's record."

TENNIS

Tennis

From the first day of school, tennis has been very popular with the students and also various members of the faculty. Due to the improvements made to the courts, they have been in continuous use.

Despite the fact that no inter-collegiate tournaments have been played, much interest was displayed in the matches for the singles and doubles championship.

In the finals for doubles, the contest was between Hays and Cox on one team, with Haynes and Edgar on the other. In a well played match Hays and Cox won.

In the singles, at the end of the semi-finals, Cox and Hays remained unbeaten and as each one of these men is a player of more than ordinary ability, an interesting match was indicated. At the time the finals were to be played it became impossible for Cox to play, due to incidents unforeseen; thereby giving the title to Hays by default.

At the present time a tennis team is being formed. The object is to promote inter-collegiate tennis. Hays has been elected president of it. We are glad to see this club spring into existence, as it will place Stetson on the map in tennis. We feel sure that our players are as good, if not better than those in the other colleges of the State. So next year we predict that not only will we have a foot ball, a basket ball and a baseball team to be proud of, but also a tennis team as well.

GIRL'S BASKET BALL

GIRLS' BASKET BALL

Girls' Basket Ball

This year the girls' basket ball team has completed the longest schedule ever had by any Stetson team. The team played eighteen games, winning fourteen, tying one, leaving one unfinished, and losing but two. As a result, the team secured the State Collegiate Championship. At the beginning of the season the outlook was far from bright, as but two of last year's team returned, but the new material was of such a quality that this handicap was soon overcome, and a team worthy of Stetson standards was turned out.

In looking over the work of the individual members of the team, we shall first consider the Briscoe sisters, star guards. Captain Gladys Briscoe, by her knowledge of the game, showed that no better person could have been secured for that position. The low scores of the opposing teams shows what efficient work these sisters did. Very seldom could their opponents elude them and in most cases when the ball came into their territory, they, instead of their opponents, secured the ball. We are glad to say that Edith will be with us for several more years and are sorry that we must lose Gladys by graduation.

The work of Thelma Phillips at forward cannot be too highly commended. In addition to her accurate shooting, her passing and her floor-work were features in all the games in which she played, and were one of the main factors in the success of the team. Combining her work with that of Louise Mosely, we have as good a pair of forwards as there are in the State. Miss Mosely's work being equally as brilliant as that of Miss Phillips. Her foul shooting has never been surpassed on the floor of Cummings Gym. Watching these two forwards in a game was like watching a piece of well oiled machinery in motion. This is one of those infrequent times when two star forwards spring into existence at the same time.

At running center, Frances Douglas showed by her knowledge of the game and her natural ability as a player, that she is sure to fill the position of captain of next year's team to the best advantage. Due to her efficient work, the ball was kept in Stetson's end of the court the greater portion of the time.

Helen Shirley, at jumping center, did much to make the work of the guards a success. Her ability to get the jump at the toss-up made it possible for the various plays to be accomplished successfully. She also was prominent in keeping the ball in our territory.

To Iris Battle, at forward, goes the credit of having the most pep. Whenever she was placed into the game she displayed so much of it that it infected her fellow-players. Her team-work in backing up shots and in passing the ball also did much to aid the team.

Mariorie Mallory, at jumping center, proved that she is a fit personage for that position. When she acquires more experience she too, will take her place on the list of Stetson stars.

To Pearl McWhorter much credit is due. At the beginning of the season she was handicapped by the fact that she had never played the game before. But her willingness and her natural ability as a player made up for her inexperience.

Miriam Connor proved to be a very good utility player, filling every position that she was placed in successfully. She deserves much credit also for her work in the preparation and arrangement of the northern trip. As manager of next year's team, she has already arranged an extensive schedule.

Much of the success of the team is due to the efforts of Coach Carl Farriss and Asst. Coach Rawdon Bradley. Not only is their work in imparting their knowledge of the game to the players to be commended, but also their work in keeping up the spirits of the whole team.

This year we hold the State Collegiate Championship. The outlook for next year is very bright, as but one member of the Varsity graduates, and so we are looking forward to attain still greater success next year than was attained this year.

FRATERNITIES

John Marshall Chapter of Sigma Nu Phi

The Sigma Nu Phi Legal Fraternity was installed in the Law School of the University on the 20th of April, 1921.

This Fraternity is one of the younger ones of the many in existence. It was founded in Washington, D. C., in 1902, by George L. Whitaker and twelve associates.

During the World War the fraternity lay in a dormant condition because of the fact that eighty-two per cent of its membership was in the service. Since the close of the war the fraternity has rapidly come into its own.

Sigma Nu Phi is one of the more conservative fraternities and is not a seeker after chapters in great numbers. Its policy is to install but three chapters annually, and Stetson is indeed fortunate in the granting of its petition.

The charter members of the local chapter chose for its name that of one of the most eminent jurists and Chief Justices the United States has ever had; one who was from the South, and whose heart and sympathies were with it, one whose fame will forever remain in the front rank of the annals of the law—John Marshall.

At present there are ten active chapters in the fraternity. Among the ten are chapters at the University of Southern California, Georgetown University, University of Texas. All chapters now in existence are in their own houses. It is the ambition of the John Marshall Chapter to house itself, in the near future.

Alpha Chapter

The Alpha Chapter of the Alpha Phi Epsilon Honorary Literary Fraternity was established at Stetson University in 1916; it is solely a literary and debating society, composed of students of College rank.

The Alpha Chapter, commonly known on the campus as the Varsity Club, has shown extraordinary activity this year. Although we were somewhat late in starting, we endeavored to make up for lost time.

The weekly meetings have been regular and well attended. Good live programs have been enjoyed. On March the 1st our debating team composed of Smith, Schultz and Dougall, met the Kent Club Debating team, and in a hard fought battle our team brought home the Silver Cup, previously held by the Kent Club.

There is now a Chapter in the University of Florida, established largely through the efforts of Messrs. W. Rasco and Pickens, who were sent there from Alpha Chapter, to assist in establishing a Chapter there. There is also another Chapter at Rollins College.

OFFICERS

Since it was founded in 1908, to fill a prominent need in the life of the University and its students, the Stetson Y. M. C. A. has been a veritable fountain of life to the many students who have enjoyed its favors. This has been a useful organization from its birth, and continues to be such. The membership has never been large, due more to the number of other activities on the campus to engage the attention of the students. There has always been a group of young men who feel the need for the training in Christian service and spiritual aid which the Y. M. C. A. takes pleasure in administering. The work of this organization is extensive and of great variety.

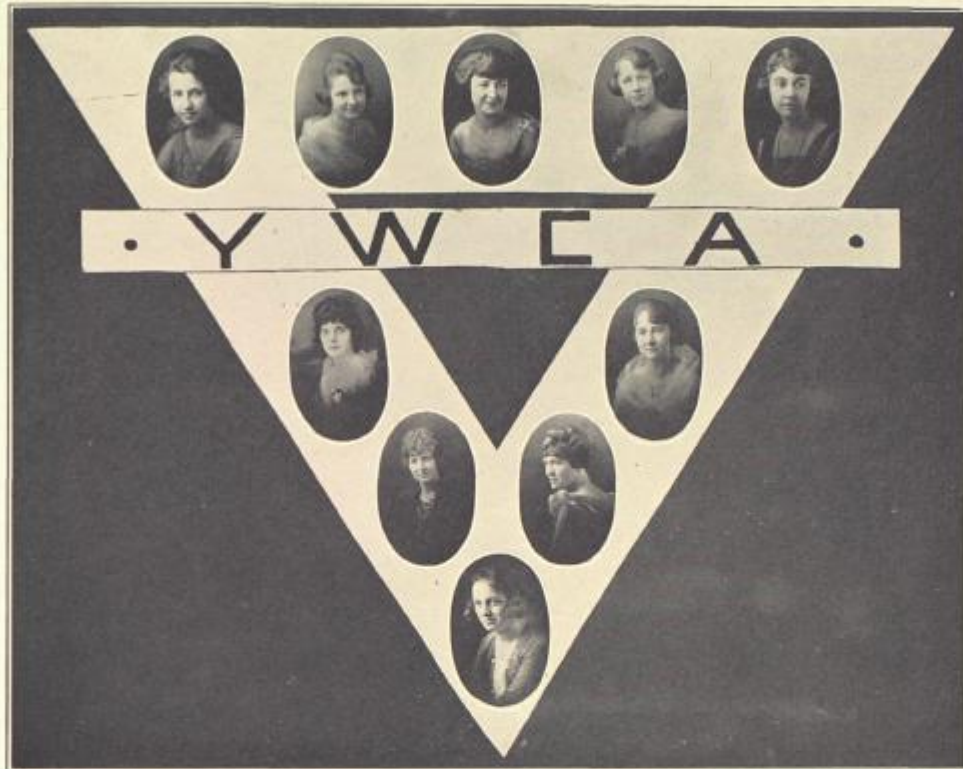

This year the officers named below took hold of the association with a determination to make it of most service to the students whom it touched. Instead of the usual Thursday meetings, a new method was put in action. A number of study groups gather in various rooms in the dormitories and discussion of great life problems is the order of the evening. The principal text book used is "How Jesus Met Life Problems," by H. S. Elliott. These discussions are then followed up by sincere personal work. This way, much good has been accomplished. A number of students have been enlightened and the hopes of the leaders in this work are being slowly fulfilled.

It is the custom in this University to send a few Y. M. C. A. delegates to the great student convention at Blue Ridge, N. C. This year we are hoping to send at least three earnest young men as official representatives. The officers are anticipating a little financial aid from the University, and from the student body. This seems to be the most pressing need of this institution, that there shall be a number of students on the campus who will be active, live, energetic forces for good. The Blue Ridge Conference will make such men out of those who attend, if they will but apply themselves aright. Next year, when Stetson shall be overflowing with new and old students, the Y. M. C. A. will have its hands full, and will need the co-operation of all the old students and the Faculty. A great rally will be held during the first week, and new students may align themselves with this useful power for the advancement of the better things of life—the Y. M. C. A. The following are the new officers for 1921-1922:

J. C. Massee .....	President
W. M. Larkin .....	Vice-President
M. E. Bozermeny .....	Treasurer
G. C. Reed .....	Secretary

The University Five is a dance orchestra whose members are all college students. Their reputation for good music, pep and jazz, has spread over the entire State and has helped advertise Stetson more than any other organization.

The University Five has been an important factor in social life at Stetson and in DeLand and everyone hopes to see them back next year.

The Ministerial and Missionary Club

The Ministerial and Missionary Club was organized in the winter term of school, 1919-1920, with C. E. Saunders as president. It was composed of nine ministerial and missionary students then attending Stetson and its purpose was to "foster mutual helpfulness, a right Christian spirit and Christian activities in this institution by personal example." Anyone engaged in any form of Christian work was also eligible to membership. At the opening of school this year it was continued under the same officers with a membership of eleven. During the fall term this was increased to fifteen and in the winter term the young ladies who were interested were allowed to become members. Seven of them have joined with us.

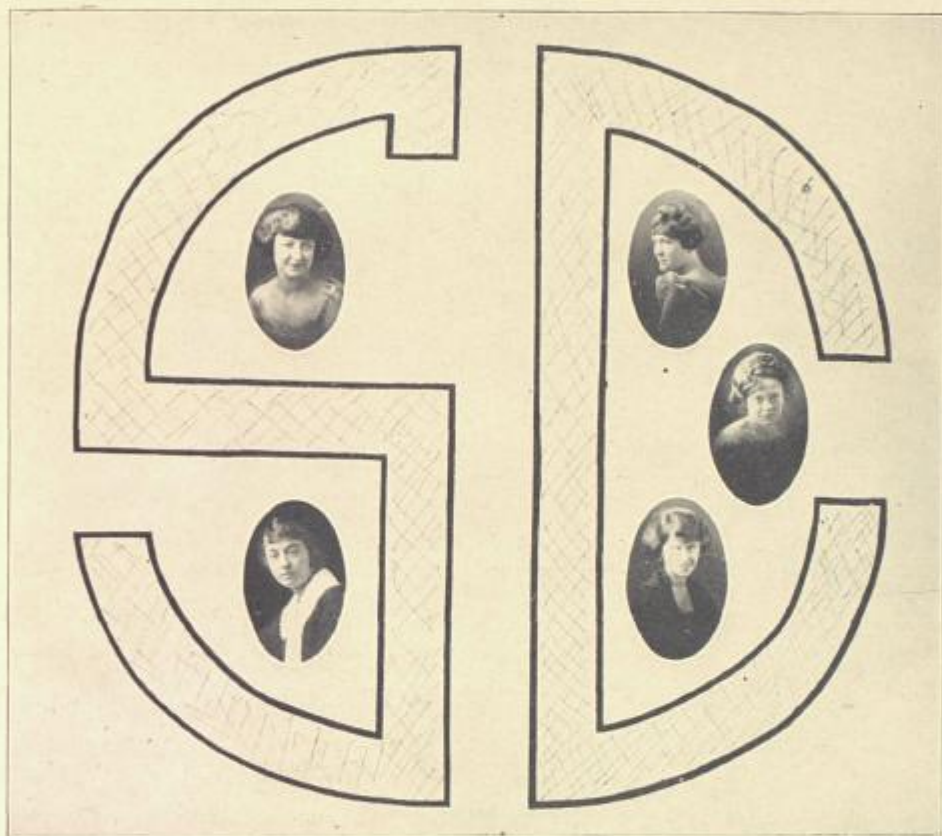

As we are expecting all our members back next year, with many new ones, the club is going to be one of the liveliest and most influential organizations on the campus.

FRATERNITIES

Of course, I'll have to ask you not to mention this because it was told to me in secret; but how can a girl help telling her roommate a few things, and especially when she has experiences like these.

The first night he was like this: Of the type generally known as "Horse Shoe"—patent leather hair and a specialty for leading yells, only he never got there until the game was half over.

You know that line they always hand out about their own frat? Well, this is what he told her:

"Of course I never would have been anything but a Phi Kap. Fact is, I never would have felt at home any place else, for they're all such speed demons, you know. For instance, Brother Hart and I took a trip to Tampa. While there, we accidentally got pinched and fined, but owing to financial embarrassment, the judge simply asked us to leave town. But Brother Hart doesn't have to go to Tampa to get fined, he can do that in DeLand.

"Have you seen the collection of stray Fords and wheelbarrow tires at the Michigan side of our house? We'll all be mechanics by the end of the year. Indeed, Brother Booth has remarked that we would do well on a desert island—we're all so cosmopolitan, but of course our specialty is dramatics."

And the next night, he was like this: One of the nice Sigma Nus—no criticism whatever, except that he is a little lengthy and has the bad habit of forgetting what he has done with his frat pin. He has a specialty of making convention banquet speeches and telling stories in the full of the moon. Still, you'd never consider him worldly, for they call him "Sky." And thusly he spoke:

"Quite naturally, I am a Sigma Nu. There were a number of things which drew me in. First, the house is a real den of mystery. For instance, we discover a new stairway every day; and there are secret rooms which resemble anything from a clothes closet to a den. Then of course, we have the vine arbor at one side and the reception room in the rear. Then the fellows are all so legally minded. You would expect that, since they all take law. Too, they have a keen appreciation for high class literature and new styles—especially the Chapter hat, made conspicuous by Brother Senn.

The number of Chapter cars rather impressed me, too. We never borrow from anyone but 'Sister Nell.' Our real specialty, of course, is handling athletic elections."

CAMPUS LIFE

And the following night he was considerably like this: A man whose tom-cat days are over and a real Stetsonite since he's been here three years. For the last two terms he has been a shining light in Dean Carson's Poly Con—especially on test days. Some people call him small; but he's mighty. Judging from his conversation, his inspiration comes from Niagara Falls. And he said this:

"Yes, I'm a Phi Psi. Some people speak of us as the ministerial fraternity, but whoever started that forgot about Ben Ketchum and Bill Graham. We all have an eye to business. For example: take the location of our house there, next door to Stetson Hall. Moreover, we always plan to be at Lake Lindley in a body the days the gym classes hike out there, and we usually get the lake first, too. The faculty and student body act on our suggestion in case of which hymn shall be sung in chapel, but of course our specialty is along orchestral lines."

SORORITIES

Now a real story always has a girl in it. So here's the feminine side of this one.

One night she was like this: A nice child with white gloves and darkey dialect down to a fine point; and very fond of asking questions in astronomy observation classes. But don't be mistaken, for she's right competent, even if she does have the fickle-blond hair—and this is what she privately told him:

"I'm a Tri Delt because B Tanner asked me to join. Then, of course, the Tatums have lots of cars and we can all go to DeLeon whenever we want to. We are recognized as the dramatic, artistic, and studious group on the campus, even if some of the girls do break over and talk in chapel every morning. We believe there's strength in union—any fighting is always done on the outside. Oh, yes, we have a limit to the number of pledges we can take in a year; but we never reach the limit."

Another night she was like this: A charming little thing who wore a Phi Psi pin the first week of school. She is chief musician and conspicuous dancer in Chaudoin parlors, and is never without a man, even on basket ball trips. Her specialty is lattice work hosiery and fancy shoes. And all in secret, she told him this:

"Alpha Xi appealed to me the minute I struck Stetson. We have such a variety of types—everything from the studious to the fickle, from the M. & M. Club to jazzettes and toddlers. We make it a point to stay on the good side of the authority in Chaudoin, and of course, this year we got a chance to set the pace in house parties."

And still another night she was like this:

A cute little thing, typically bobbed, and with a propensity for taking delinquents. She takes all the domestic science courses offerred and they say she likes them, although her main line is high class toe dancing for the benefit of the Athletic Association. She very, very secretly told him something like this:

"I'm a Pi Phi because they always have such high ideals. We are recognized as the spinster organization and of course, we hold the presidency of the 'Amalgamated Society of Gossip Mongers.' None of us ever lack clothes either, because there are plenty of good looking ones in the Chapter, and we never forget to whistle—especially when there is occasion for it. Most of our time is spent in going on early morning picnics to DeLeon and in taking walks in the woods after 3 o'clock on Sunday. Our specialty, however, is numbers."

My Dean

My Dean is the good shepherd; I shall not pass.

He maketh me to sit up all night; he leadeth me beside the ever-flowing stream of hot air.

He racketh my spirit; he leadeth me into the paths of throwing the bull for his name's sake.

Yea, even though I walk through the valley of inaptitude, I will fear not the consequences; for his principles of concentration and study from day to day, they comfort me.

He prepareth a schedule card before me in the presence of my classmates; he adorneth my grade card with hieroglyphics; my note book runneth over.

Surely, timely study and offering rewards shall follow me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in the home of the insane forever.

—ST. PAUL.

Si Jones' Trip to the Village

I was standin' on my front porch to Day, when I happened to look at my old Elgin, an' it was 3 o'clock. "Laws a Masse," I says, as Nancy came from the kitchen. She was a-goin' in with me, to her missionary meetin', an' it was to begin at 3:15. I couldn't hear the church bell a Tal, but I knew it was time for it to ring, so I hastened to Warn 'er.

Soon we wuz in the sleigh, an' I says, "Ge' up Maud;" sley it started off, an' Nancy an' I wuz on our way down the Knuckles.

"The way very Long?" says Nancy.

"About six miles."

"I didn't know it wuz that Farr." On we rode, over the Lea; it was the first snow in two Winters, so we wuz enjoyin' the sleigh ride immensely.

"What you goin' to Do (u) gal?"

"Oh, go on to the meetin', if I am late." So I left Nancy at the church. Also the horse, because I had to Parker away from the cars, then I walked over on Kit Ridge to Davis Brothers' Store where most of the men an' boys of the village loafed an' talked politics of a Saturday afternoon. It wuz purty close to the Ruthless Battle of the ballots, an' there in the store stood John's (s)on Jim, and Nell's (s)on Abe, makin' perlitical speeches. Nell and John are my sister an' brother; an' them there boys of theirs sure are Smart, an' the most Gallant in the village. Jim wuz a-makin' a speech for the Democratic nominee, Cox, an' had in his Han (a)-cock, that he made crow with much vigor and gusto. "Hirsh Alldis noise," I says, "your man won't Winn." Jim stopped, but the Fowl'er kept crowin'.

Abe was a sitin' behind the stove, very peaceful like, an' in his Lap(a)ham. I says to him, "Why don't J' cater?" An' he says cause he wuz goin' to take it to his maw, for her b'rthday. About that time Will Collins' dog came along to see what that cock was a crowin' about, an' before anyone knowed it, that cur had that ham and wuz jest a sailin' with it around the Connor of the grocery. Abe ran after him, but he wuz too slow; the cur had gone under the house. "Will kin(s) jest pay fer that ham," says Abe. "Come on out from under there," he says, as he Crane(d) his neck; but Cur say nothin', jest chaw on the ham. Abe see he can's coax the cur out so he came back in the store jest as mad as he could be. His Hair is a flyin' in all directions; an' he say if that dog ever did come out, he'd beat the L(e)ung out of him. Abe has Fitz some times and I was afraid he'd have one now, but I got him calmed down all right.

CAMPUS LIFE

CAMPUS LIFE

No sooner than I got Abe calmed down, here come that little Wong boy in the store, jest a cryin' as though his Hart would break cause his Ballou (he couldn't say balloon) wuz bursted, an' he thought he could Turner in for a new one.

Jest about that time I remembered Nancy had told me to buy her a Colander, so she could strain the Bryan-t off her kraut. Well, I bought it, an' wuz a startin' home, when a drummer, a Welsch man, who said his name was Rasco, came in the store. He had White hair, a Patch on his coat, an' h's Shubiger than any you even seen. He tried to sell the merchant some sort of powders. He said if you'd take a hen an' Cooper up an' feed 'er these here powders three times a day, she would Lay(a)ton of eggs a week.

I thought it wuz about time I wuz a goin' home, so I went over to the church an' Nancy and I wuz on our way in the sleigh again. We went to a sick lady's house to take some Flowers and a Story book of the Parson's the missionary society had sent. We didn't know where she lived, so we had to Hunter. From there we went to the postoffice Booth for some Sloan's liniment we had sent a Larkin order for. Then we tried to get some Graham bread from the Baker, but he didn't have a Crum left. So after going by to see the Tanner and the Harper on a little business, we started home. It wuz gettin' colder every minute an' the wind wuz Russ-tling through the dry corn stalks. I wuz a Holden the reigns tight, when Maud began to kick with all her might. "Turner out in that Rowe of corn," shouted Nancy, "and she'll Kicklighter." Jest as I started to, the Gardiner ran out an' says, "I'll Walker," and led her on through the Gates. I put Nancy out at the house, and I drove on to the Wells to give Maud a drink. Then I put her in her stall bedded down with Straw, and went in to supper.

The Wild Lily

"Oh, that I grew in a beautiful lake, where I could cheer those who come there!" sighed a lily that grew in a small pond near an unfrequented pathway.

"Would you did, ill-contented beauty," rebuked her Conscience. "Why are you not satisfied? You're queen of beauty in your own world. The robin sings over your head, the bee kisses you for your fragrance, the butterfly flatters you for your beauty. Man seldom wanders here. You live undisturbed."

There was a movement among the fallen leaves as if they were crowded against one another. Lily lifted her head gracefully to the sun and waited half-expectantly, half-impatiently. The wild grape vines, that embraced each other over the path, parted, and a young man stood in the opening. He swept his eye over the small pond, the over-hanging vines, the shrubbery and had half turned to go when he saw Lily floating on her green pad, attended by the bee and the butterfly.

"Upon my honor, a lonely nook for such a queen!" Crossing to the bank, he stooped to feast his eyes on the first thing of beauty that had cheered his morning tramp. The breeze hastily caressed her in farewell, the butterfly reluctantly flitted away, the gay notes of the robin became a shrill, impassioned warning. Lily's conscience held her breath, but Lily herself was enchanted.

The blonde head bent closer, the deep eyes stirred her soul. "Ligeia will love this," he mused as he severed the stem. Nestling against the hunter's coat, Lily forgot her pain. She was happy for the first time since she had contrasted her image with the dark gloomy ugliness about her.

"Now," thought she, "I'll cheer people, I'll be praised," and in gratitude she wafted her perfume to her benefactor.

Before Arlin had tramped long, the forest gave place to a much-traveled road with fields on each side. Occasionally they passed a snug farm house, be-shrubbed and old-fashioned-flower-adorned. Lily imagined she saw envy in the eyes of the flowers that nodded to them, and she smiled contentedly. But ere long the sun sent down his hot breath on them, the breeze fainted and a suffocating thirst seized the Lily. At first she quarreled with it. "Be off, cruel monster, why weary you me?" But he wilted her petals, and drank her freshness.

Arlin stopped at a cool, shaded spring to drown his thirst, refresh himself with his dainty lunch and scrawl a bit of verse in his note book, but gave no thought to the thirsty creature that drooped on his bosom. Lily's conscience, her constant tormentor, whispered in an I-told-you-so tone, "Fair one, thou hast thy wish, and yet methinks your lips droop and smile no more."

"Oh, I'm weary, rebuke me not," murmured the withering flower.

They entered a city. Arlin suddenly missed the perfume that had cheered him on his long tramp. He removed the lily from his coat and bent over it, but seeing the withered petals, and spots of decay, he threw it into the hot dusty street. "I'll buy Ligeia a rose," he concluded.

At 8 o'clock Arlin approached an humble little boarding house and rang the bell. Its jangle sent a flurry through a wisp of fluffy femininity standing before a mirror on the second floor. A maid appeared in the door. "Mr. West, Miss Glen," she shrilled with the air of half disquietude, half-indifference assumed by spinsters when Cupid comes nosing around.

Ligeia whirled herself about before the maid.

"Am I all right, Jane?" Then she tripped gaily down the stairs.

Arlin came to meet her. "This humble rose begs your enchantment," and he slipped the rare crimson blossom through the ribbon at her waist.

Ligeia gazed at it admiringly, then raising her eyes, said, "I wish it were a lily, a pretty pond-lily. I've wanted one so much since I left the old place."

For a moment Arlin saw a withered white form shrivelling in the hot dust of a street. But observing Ligeia's concern at his puzzled frown, he smiled.

"Come, there's no moon here. Let's walk," and he spread her flimsy scarf about her white shoulders.

"You tramped today?" asked Ligeia with feminine ingenuity.

"Yes, dear, but don't ask me about it this time," in a tone of finality.

"Something happened?" pursued the girl out of curiosity.

He nodded. "But I must think tonight, tomorrow I'll tell you."

You'd keep me wondering twenty-four hours?" petulantly queried Ligeia.

"Oh, you women!" he exclaimed, plainly annoyed. Perceiving his ruffled feelings, Ligeia wisely maintained silence.

"Here's our oak. Let's sit down. I've some verse to read to you. Ligeia clapped her hands and climbed up the little knoll. What could please her more than this knoll, the climbing half-moon, Arlin, and one of his poems?

A brooklet rippled at the base of the little hill, and bending over they could see their images mirrored in its limpidness. "We're ghosts!" laughed Ligeia, pointing at their reflections in the moon-glided surface.

"Ghosts? Don't you say that," Arlin begged, "even the word haunts me tonight."

Ligeia inclined her head attentively while the man read the melody in an almost impassioned tone. Something curiously pathetic was interwoven in its rhythm and meter that had not been evident in his previous work.

"How different! I love the second stanza—"

"I don't wish to talk, Ligeia," Arlin interrupted her. I feel exactly like hearing you sing—none of your new stuff—'Love's Old Sweet Song,' would be restful." He pillowed his head on the frills of her skirt as her low, sweet notes broke the stillness.

"What now?" Ligeia paused. No answer. She bent over him. "Sleep, poor tired boy," she whispered. Then mused—"I am glad I left that horrid old farm where I knew no one. How did I ever live before I met Arlin and came here? My friends say he's only playing with me," glancing at her ringless finger. "I don't believe he could be so base. Others might. I've known no others. Mama and Papa would not have wanted me to dry up on the stalk as Aunt Lugenia did. Besides, she had me to teach and vent her ill-humor on. And who would have been the live character in my book besides Aunt Lindy and Uncle Joe? I can see their kind, black faces now. How good they were to me! But until Arlin came,"—unconsciously she touched his hair lightly.

"Ligeia! Ligeia!" and Arlin sprang to his feet.

"Why, you poor dear, did the goblins chase you?" the girl said soothingly, as she rose.

There was a conquered fear in his eyes. Arlin loosened the costly rose from the ribbon and dropped it into the ripples. Ligeia raised her eyes questioningly, but he only kissed her and said, "It's 9 o'clock, let's go back."

"What is this mysterious thing gripping him?" wondered the girl, trying vainly not to worry.

As they walked Arlin slipped his arm about her, but neither broke the painful silence between them. Somewhere a whippoorwill was calling in its half-wierd notes. The moon appeared colder and Ligeia imagined it frowned on them. The lights from the houses flickered out. The wind stirred the foliage of the trees.

"Ligeia," Arlin began suddenly, "this morning while tramping through the marshes I found in an ugly unfrequented nook a beautiful lily growing in a small pond, so graceful, so fair that she rivaled even you in beauty. I picked it for you, but thirst soon withered it and I bought you the rose.

"Just now as I slept, a maiden beautiful in white and so like you, came to me and said, 'Oh, sir, I am the soul of the wild lily you left moaning, dying, in the hot dust. Many passed me, some picked me up, but seeing the black spots of decay and the droop of my petals, cast me back again to be mangled, to be trampled, under their hurrying feet. None heard as conscience groaned rebuke.

MISCELLANEOUS

MISCELLANEOUS

"But I am glad I cheered you a little while. I have come to warn you. You found Ligeia, as you found me, a beauty in a dreary place. You persuaded her not to be contented in her safe, quiet home. She came here. You enjoy her beauty, her youth and freshness, and now you would leave her as you left me, for the heel of the heartless multitudes. (Ligeia stifled a low cry.) I warn you! You'll never find happiness elsewhere.'"

They had reached home before Arlin spoke again.

"Ligeia, I admit I only wanted diversion, at first, but I never really intended to trifle with you. The wild lily has brought me to the realization of what you really mean to me. Can you forgive me, dearest? Can you?"

Ligeia's eyes told him what her lips would not. He slipped a ring on her finger and raised her hand to his lips.

"Oh, Arlin!" cried Ligeia joyfully.

"It was Mother's," he said simply.

Ligeia pressed her head against his breast.

"You little innocent beauty," exclaimed Arlin, happily, drawing her closer, and we'll have a whole pond of lilies. And, dear, let's name our cottage, 'The Wild Lily.'"

This is what it might say:
Where will I be tomorrow,
For I came back in the mail today.

Rules of old Chaudoin remind us,
We should always walk alone,
Or, as we leave the "Dip" behind us,
We'll soon be on the train for home.

THE SEVEN STETSON WONDERS.

I wonder whether Chaudoin rules will ever change?
I wonder how many more cuts I can take without getting kicked out?
I wonder if we'll ever have a meal without grits?
I wonder why every one else gets A and I flunk?
I wonder if English will always require library notes?
I wonder if finals will be as terrible as fall and winter exams?
I wonder if I'll ever get my degree?

Calendar 1920-'21

Sept. 17, Great epoch—first day of school. Great consternation at Chaudoin. No dates allowed.

Sept. 18-19-Oct. 1, Uneventful. No dates. Nothing but rules. Life one long agony.

Oct. 2, First big social in Chaudoin—DeLand Hall entertains.

Oct. 5, Foot ball practice very well attended. Looks well for the old varsity.

Oct. 8, Nine o'clock—"Say good-night now, girls"—a whole week before another chance.

Oct. 9, Sociable—in Chaudoin.

Oct. 10, Wonder why we see so many dates on the campus? Also wonder why so many boys are among the missing. Explanations are easily made—it's the Pan-Hell in full sway; they are having a kid party.

Oct. 10-22, One long round of rushing parties, banquets, picnics and other marvelous events.

Oct. 23, Pledge Day—'nuff sed.

Oct. 25, Foot ball getting in good shape.

Oct. 30, Hallowe'en ghosts! Spooks! Spirits and hobgoblins. All in Chaudoin—and sh—a secret! Some were masculine spooks!

Nov. 2, No more dates (or prunes) in the movies. Beware!

Nov. 3, Nobody home today—even the lights have gone out.

Nov. 4, Somebody needs alarm clock in chapel.

Nov. 6, Then old church bells,

Three old church bells,

How many a sad tale their music tells,

Of early hours and that sad time

When we rise up by their horrid chime.

Nov. 8, Some of the rude Stetson men held a rough-neck serenade this evening with a phonograph.

Nov. 10, Fair and warmer.

Nov. 12, Advice to the love-lorn—"The ancients believed the seat of the affections to be in the liver, then it was thought to be in the heart, but now some say it is in the head.

Nov. 13, Month and a week till vacation.

Nov. 16, Come all you loyal Stetsonites—basket ball practice begins tonight and are there only fifteen ambitious men in Stetson?

Nov. 17, Great rejoicing in foot ball squads. Gold foot balls loom up in the distance.

Nov. 18, Whence come so many crutches, canes and bandages? Quite a foolish question—foot ball.

Nov. 19, Stetsonites leave for Gainesville. The old green and white to meet the orange and blue.

Nov. 22, More dressed up ladies. We didn't know we were such a fashionable school till the Pi Beta Phi tea.

Nov. 23, Great many weary stragglers in to supper—"Pug" sho' puts our boys through signal practice.

Nov. 27, Who says our Y. W. is dead? Big hike today.

Nov. 28, Attention! Dean Rasco speaks to us today.

Nov. 29, Basket ball begins in earnest; 30 out for practice; that's the old Stetson pep.

Dec. 2, Basket ball uniforms ordered. Who says girls primp? Even the boys' team requires new stylish outfits.

Dec. 3, Three cheers for Capt. Whitehair!

Dec. 4, "Pug" has the old quintette whipped into shape for the first game of the season.

Dec. 6, We knew they could do it, and we are some proud of the old score, 36-10.

Dec. 7, All the "Piffies" smiling—and why shouldn't they be? They've just pulled a most successful party.

STETSON

After all, what you want in your hat is satisfaction—quality, genuine money's worth and real hat distinction.

Measured by quality, style and service, a Stetson gives you more value for your money than a hat of any other make.

You will be surprised with the way a new Stetson will tone up your whole appearance.

MISCELLANEOUS

- Dec. 8, Where are you going, my pretty maid? Headed for the Alpha Xi tea, she said.
- Dec. 13, We're giving 15 big rahs for Gladys Briscoe. If anyone can lead the sextette to victory, it is she.
- Dec. 14, What's the matter with our scrub team? It's all right. Why? They won against the High tonight.
- Dec. 15, Stop! Look! Listen! Girls' basket ball practice at 6.30 sharp.
- Dec. 17, We're plum proud of Capt. Briscoe's six—Rollins wasn't even in it tonight.
- Dec. 18, Varsity accompanied by the team—as far as the station—left for Palatka.
- Dec. 20, Too bad boys. We're sorry and we know you'll beat them next time.
- Dec. 21, That's the spirit! Thirty-six girls out for practice—6 squads—keep it up.
- Dec. 22, Xmas vacation—'nuff sed.
- Jan. 4-14, Where, oh where, are the Stetson folks, oh where, oh where can they be?
- Jan. 15, We knew you had it in you, boys. Stetson 68, F. M. A. 12.
- Jan. 17, Blow-outs in Conrad—quite a bit of trouble—not enough hdkfs. to go around.
- Jan. 19, We are sorry for you, Rollins, but we just couldn't help it. 62-19.
- Jan. 20, Did you ever see as many slick-headed, silk-shirted boys? We'll tell you a secret. They are "Sigs" headed for the home of Mrs. Ainsworth.
- Jan. 21, Gainesville, we hand you credit. We know our girls and 21-19 shows you have some team.
- Jan. 22, 55-16. Doesn't that sound well? U. of Fla. just is not in it with our boys.
- Jan. 22, "Sigs" have big dance for stray Greeks—more fun.
- Jan. 25, We're proud of the ol' Kent Club.
- Jan. 26, Phi Kaps—we had just a marvelous time at the reception.
- Jan. 27, We feel for you, "rats," and we are even willing to help out a little.
- Jan. 28, Jury declares Mrs. Johnson not guilty—was she pretty?
- Jan. 29, Stetson 27, Deaf and Dumb Institute 20. We know you are just the best ever, girls.
- Jan. 31, Another victory for Carl's sextette. Orlando just wasn't in it. 36-11.
- Feb. 1, Coach Allen gives the baseball men their first real work-out.
- Feb. 3, The day of long skirts. Ankle length. No need to hang out in front of Elizabeth Hall today, boys.
- Feb. 4, Phi Kappa Delta Fraternity pledges Robert Harkness and Bill Gunby.
- Feb. 4, Opera "Reidigore"—first of the Lyceum Course.
- Feb. 5, Phi Beta Psi Fraternity "open house" 4-6. Wonderful auction of feminine wearing apparel in Chaudoin.
- Feb. 6, Sunday—'nuff sed.
- Feb. 7, The "Hatters" lose their first game to all-star basket ball team in Jacksonville. Score 37-34.
- Feb. 9, Red Booth takes a long ride on a white mule wearing gold teeth. Delta Psi Kapps announce the pledging of their "worms."
- Feb. 11, Chaudoin gives to the world some remarkable ? talent—and thrills the listeners by their jazz melodies.
- Feb. 12, Stetson defeats Meminger 27-3. Chaudoin girls hang out the windows by their heels, charmed by the serenade.
- Feb. 15, Panhellenic reception. The entire school humbles Seniors in baseball, 5-3.
- Feb. 17, Freshman picnic at Blue Springs with a sad home- (? Chaudoin) coming. Ormond defeated by Stetson, 17-2.
- Feb. 17, Stetson loses Higginbotham, able captain of baseball team.
- Feb. 18, Founder's Day exercises. Dr. Sparks, president of Penna. State University lectured. Phi Kappa Delta holds twenty-third annual banquet at the College Arms. Alpha Xi Delta Fraternity enjoying house party.
- Feb. 19, Girls' basket ball defeats St. Augustine, 13-8. Bob Davis is away on his usual week-end visit to Winter Garden.
- Feb. 21, The "Hatters" resume their practice. Just why did they stop?
- Feb. 22, Gold foot balls presented to the boys. All of Stetson thrilled by the eloquence of Billy Sunday.
- Feb. 23, Tri Delt Fraternity announces initiation of pledges. Bob Davis elected foot ball captain for 1921. Freshman girls defeat Sophomores in basket ball, 33-8.
- Feb. 21, Pi Beta Phi Fraternity announces initiation of "Piffies." Miss "Lolly Pop Zelia's" ad for a husband answered by Conrad Romeo, alias Frank Pope. Sigma Nus initiate W. Fowler and Smart. Phi Beta Psis initiate Michael Schultz.
- Feb. 25, Moseley and Phillips star in game vs. Cathedral. Stetson victory, 23-1. Alpha Phi Epsilon renders snappy program.

- Feb. 26, Basket ball girls defeat Palatka 43-2.
Feb. 28, Rodeheaver and Matthews entertain Stetsonites.
Feb. 29, W. O. Merrill, Stetson's able student lawyer wins case in Jacksonville.
Mar. 1, Jimmy Gross, one of our ex-Hatters, reported today at Kansas City. You're a lucky town, Kansas.
Mar. 2, Thompson was indicted.
Mar. 3, Our Senior law class was right there in a game of the whole school. An extra inning was required to defeat them 4-3.
Mar. 4, In chapel this morning the names of those hard-working ambitious men who won letters in foot ball and basket ball were read.
Mar. 5, Mike Murray, we think our baseball team is mighty fortunate in finding such a worthy successor for Capt. Higginbotham.
Mar. 6, Church! Sunday school! Quiet hour! Tears! Vespers! Church!
Mar. 7, Green and white proves too much for the fast Tigerines of Jacksonville. Score 24-19.
Mar. 8, Uneventful—just work.
Mar. 9-12, Midnight oil burned very profusely—Exams.
Mar. 13-14, Exams—'nuff sed.
Mar. 17, Girls leave for Savannah and points north.
Mar. 18, Girls tie Savannah 18-18, and Savannah cages first basket. Sophs win fight.
Mar. 19, Charleston. The little Memminger girls defeat our weary team, 15-12.
Mar. 21, The green and white come back strong and defeat Shorter, 26-11.
Mar. 22, We surely must be a bunch of rough-necks; 42 fouls in 19 minutes of play. Carl gets 4 of those to his credit.
Mar. 23-24, Trip home by boat from big Jacksonville.
Mar. 26, Crinkle, crinkle little bill,
How I wish I had you still
Down among my debts you lie
Like a vision dim and shy.
Mar. 29, Antidote for Chaudoinite ills. Poise—for advance of boys. Emphasis upon "is" and final "g'S". Washing hands and avoiding kissing.
April 1, April Fool.
