Rollins student company under the direction of Dr. Earl E. Fleischman, will present "The Wind and the Rain" by Merrion Hodge in the Annie Russell Theatre next Friday evening, December 7. The curtain will rise promptly at 8-15.

Students should come to the Registrar's Office during the early part of the period and ascertain whether or not any changes are necessary. A few changes have been made since the schedule was printed in the fall, and these may affect those who were not contemplating any change.

The group will meet Friday evening in the Conservatory and discuss plans for the coming year. It was decided that it would be impossible to stage an opera this year due to the fact that voices would have to be borrowed from the choir and that this was too much to ask of Choir members who are already giving much of their time in the chapel work.

The special meeting called this morning by Dean Eynart was attended by only a small fraction of the students, of whom 70 answered the questionnaire regarding the trip. Only twenty cars were offered for the trip and it was decided that with this small turnout no arrangements could be made.

Unassuming yet mighty, steep and pointed, well-rounded yet many sided, unobtrusively insouciant, yet so gritty and unyielding as its name implies, victorious in single combats and therefore without a peer, wonderfully attractive and extensive in circulation; all these will be found upon investigation to be among the extraordinary qualities of the SANDSPUR.

That Sand Again

We recall the time when, not long before the present fifty-foot boulevard was laid in front of the campus, the big parking lot was little more than a sandhills. Its loose surface had been stirred up by fast-turning wheels, and skids from heavy tires constantly added to its unpleasant condition until it was at last impossible to walk from automobile to street and back without endangering the life of a pair of shoes.

Soon after our editorial outburst on that occasion, the bricks were laid for the new avenue, and with the advent of several hundred feet of angle-parking space, the lot was closed to parking. Not that we claim the distinction of instigating the noble gesture, nor that we desire credit for the reduced cleaning bills that came as a consequence, but we do feel inclined to express ourselves regarding a similar situation now existing, in the hope that the same Providence which once did away with the sand menace, will function again.

Our argument this time is with the campus drive as a whole, with that portion from Knowles Hall through the Cloverleaf turn in particular, and with the parking lot opposite Mayflower and Pagsley. As we distinctly recall saying on the former occasion, with delightful, if not precisely accurate results, a few hired hands and a few hours' hiring could remedy the entire difficulty.

Christmas vacation will offer a most convenient time to tend to the job, and if plans and things aren't already about to remove the surplus sod from its offensive site, we would like to suggest that the matter be looked into with intentions of the most serious sort.

Why?

It is difficult to understand the deplorable lack of interest in the Tampa trip. At the special meeting called this morning for the purpose of organizing a motorcade, there were not enough students present to form even a nucleus around which the organization could be built.

The explanation cannot be that Rollins students are not interested in doing things, for too many demonstrations of our strong spirit have already been made. It seems rather that the big-headed independence that grips the campus each year has arrived on the scene, and that we may therefore expect a lack of cooperation in general undertakings from now on.

Individualism is excellent in its place, but that place is not in a college where contacts between students, faculty, and administration are as strong as they are on this campus. Let us try to prevent the destruction of the commendable spirit which for a short while has become an integral part of the college.

THE BALLOT

The Sandspur Readers' Ballot, with the aid of a slight bit of artificial respiration administered in the form of a bulletin board edition, has supplied an admirable indication as to the most valuable features of the paper.

For the purpose of determining the actual value of each from the standpoint of its existence as a space-taker, the votes were weighted as follows: ALWAYS, 3; SOMETIMES, 2; NEVER, minus 1. This, it is felt, provides a fair index of the worth of each in relation to the others.

The results of this weighting place the features as follows:

The results of this weighting place the features as follows: Rat Squeaks and News and Views of Sports tied for first, with United Press articles next, or in reality, third. The remaining items were in the following order: Chapel Tower-light, News Spotlight, Exchange Editorials, Collegiate Digest, Benny Rotherothsies, How It Began, Rollinsiana, Everyday Movies, On the Air, and Crossword Puzzle.

The Sandspur expresses its gratification for the cooperation of its readers in this ballot. Their wishes will be taken into consideration so far as is practicable when plans are laid for the coming term.

Making Friends

No man can live systematically and effectively alone. Solitude is beneficial but solitariness is social suicide.

Every man needs sanctuary and seclusion—a fair measure of aloofness from mere things, freedom from the crowd, the confusion and the clamor, but we can not fulfill ourselves except by living and working with other people, and there is no substitute for the mystical power which is born in contact with kindred minds.

Making friends is a delicate art. Intelligence, understanding, generosity, frankness and patience—all enter into the technique of friendship, and years are needed for its perfection. Emerson said that he did not choose his friends: "They were given to me by the great God, but like all supreme gifts, friendship is realized only by experience.

When you have a friend keep him among the holy treasures of your heart. He will stimulate and cheer and comfort you like a shining stream flowing forth from a living fountain.

It is your privilege to make friends in the larger world of mind. Browning and Shakespeare, Whitman and Milay, Beethoven and Handel need not be far-off, historic names; they may be intimate companions of the way, quickening and enriching your spiritual resources as long as you live.

The American College a Sieve for Knowledge

American colleges are producing thousands of degree-holders; they are turning out few educated men. Seniors, exposed to four years of college curriculum, have gathered into themselves no more bits of wisdom than they originally possessed as freshmen.

In 1928 some 27,000 seniors about to graduate from high schools in the state of Pennsylvania were given certain tests. In October of that year the 49 colleges co-operating were requested to follow throughout their college career, with similar tests, all students who had been tested in high schools. The tests were devised not to measure what the student had done in the classroom, but to reveal the sum total of his experience with the ideas involved in each field.

Final compilation of the results of the tests show that not only on the whole was there no advance made by seniors, but in some subjects, such as spelling and English literature, the seniors actually knew less than the sophomores. After four years of college the senior had added only six words to his vocabulary.

For four years a student pig-choles credits that he has arrogated to himself by doing the minimum amount of work required to pass a course. And as long as he does just this everyone is happy. As long as he is marking time, no one bothers to see if he is marking milestones on the road to becoming an educated man.

American education is in a state of flux. Things are being done about it. Some institutions of higher learning are mapping out programs to abolish the grade system, to introduce orientation classes and to promote Honors work. In spite of all the polemics against it, American education is not ossified yet. Though many of its bones may rock of the past they are plastic enough to be bent by the future—Florida Flambeau.

There are two kinds of discontent in the world; discontent that works and the discontent that wrings its hands. The first gets what it wants finally, and the second loses what it has. There's no cure for the first but success; and there's no cure at all for the second.

Show me the man who knows how to take his linkings and I'll show you the man who will be ready for America's next prosperity era.

In every brave life there are a few tremors. Courage is not the absence of fear, but the conquering of fear.

ROLLINSANIA

By M. J. Davis

We have a feeling that we ought to apologize or make some excuse for that peculiar-looking hieroglyphic that was stuck into the top of last week's issue, but we can't do it. Must have been one of Editor Jones' brainstorm... Our first-string horn blower being out of town all last week end, Bob Morrow was responsible for all that Gaud-wail trumpeting. According to first-hand reports, Bob was "talking when he should have been listening," and acquired a pretty thickly-banded right hand. Personally, we think he blows better with his left hand... Prof. Roney opened up the new Rollins Rifle range at Alena last week, so we dragged out the old elephant gun and went out to win as a turkey. We whanged away about half dozen times at the target and after it was all over, was able to recall it for half price, as it was still brand new. Anyway the turkey looked as if it was about to die of hardening of the arteries at any moment, and besides, we'd rather eat in Economy. Incidentally, that was a real Thanksgiving Dinner.

"Bunny" Harris turned up as a stowaway just after we left for Leesburg last week and, despite the fact that about "The" Greeney played Cowboys and Indians all over the front seat, we managed to get there intact. Erskine turned out to be a real "All-American" team, as witness their immediate reaction to the playing of the National anthem. Says Soerates Chabakas, voicing the spirit of the Tors: "We ain't standin' up fer nuthin', see?" We hear that the City Commission of Winter Park has finally decided to pave the Kappa Alpha corridor, after we've dug our way through there for the past eight months. The K.A.'s were figuring on substituting the post office soon, if nothing definite was going to be done. Pretty prominent place to be seeing wild cats, but you never can tell what a fraternity man will do. To quote the Professor of Psychology at the University of Michigan, who says: "A fraternity grows through the loving of the brothers." Well, you ought to know, Prof!

Smartest Trick of the Season: Dick Whittemore, "The Two Million Dollar Kid"! We wish we could really tell "The Truth About Blades" but we're afraid we'd get folks to thinking we're anti-something or other. Nevertheless, it was the most un-English play we've seen in some time, unless they've moved it over since we saw it last. Interest in the play was continually being built up during the performance, first by the wind, the rain, and then the "Dinky," with the climactic point being reached when Leslie Bradford slipped off her box seat in the rear of the house and crashed to the floor. There's nothing like an informal get-together, after all!

We want to dish out just a heap of lazzie wrights to the Alpha Phi's for what we consider one of the smartest affairs we've been to in an age. "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Program Dancers?" was the theme song, and, much to everyone's surprise, not a soul was hurt... and liked it! We didn't dance with Dave Botbe at all, but he was all over our feet just the same, the aside from that, we had a swell time. Dora Snoddy's "coming out" dress was the most fetching of the evening, while "Aloha" Arryrra had more of a looks than any man on the floor.

With the holiday season appearing on the immediate horizon, many swains and damsels are being hard put to decide just what to give the local heart throb for Xmas. Not so here with us; Gwen, the Office Gal, just delivered her ultimatum... it's to be performed this year, but Ralph Clark says absolutely "No Soap." Says the official yellow journalist at Rollins College: "How'll I look when the clerk asks me what kind of perfume I want to buy, and I say, 'I wanna Macchabelli!'" And here's a new one from some unknown genius, who suggests that it's time the "Sandspur" was being inserted inside the "Collegiate Digest" instead of vice versa!

Olds 'n' Esler: George "Scraper" Gabriel giving Leah Jess Bartlett his place in line at Sunday night supper (And it begins at 8:00!)... Brock Mason back in town, plus a prominent boy who dows... Dean Anderson and La Belle Cushman discussing the successful business while trying the light fantastic Saturday night... Our promise to Sara Harbott that we'd keep her name out of this column... Ellice Craythol skipping about campus looking very grown up... "The Wind and the Rain" at the Annie Russell Theatre this week end... and the bottle for State Championship against Tampa U. on Saturday afternoon... The picture of the post, blades, best part of the production...

as is known, excluded everything else." Mr. Lyman does not mention a here, but for some time, the auditorium of the old Congregational church (now the parish house and Sunday school building) was used by the college. When classes were first held there, the pews had not been installed specifically for the college was the old Knowles Hall, the gift of Francis B. Knowles, one of the school's most liberal benefactors. This building stood on the site of the tennis court beside the observatory and was used for recitations, laboratory work, chapel services and entertainments. March 9, 1896 was a memorable day in the history of Rollins buildings. Knowles Hall was dedicated. And Mr. Knowles made an offer of $4,000 for the construction of a dining hall—a section of the campus which should perhaps have received more notice for its importance in college life. On the same day, $2,000 was raised for the furnishing of Ladies' Cottage, which was then ready for occupancy. This building was later called Pinchurst and has in recent years been given over to the work of the Conservatory. Lakeside, or Boy's Cottage, was built in 1896. And before 1900 both Cloverleaf and Lyman Corridor (now a recitation building) took their places on the campus and Pinchurst became a boys' dormitory. Lyman, like the present Recreation Hall, was used for all sorts of purposes including sports, dances, college entertainments and it contained the art department until 1900. At the beginning of the century, several additions were made to the campus. Mrs. Fredrick Billings presented the school with a music hall. Until that time Knowles, with its $4,000 organ and other facilities had been the chief center of musical activities. The library and school offices had been moved to Pinchurst by this time. The chemistry and physics laboratories were located in their present homes in the basement of the dining hall and the apparatus was increased. A museum, which had been steadily growing during its first few years was located in Knowles Hall. Sperrill, which was once used as the president's home was turned into a girls' dormitory, probably about 1908. An eye in use of the catalogues states that "These buildings (mine, in 1900) are all lighted by electricity. In all the dormitories, except Sperrill, the rooms are arranged for single occupants." In 1907, almost 25 years after the first buildings had begun to rise on the Rollins campus, the Sandspur described a "Campus plan," which had been adopted by the trustees and which would provide "for a half century of growth." Other plans provided for the removal of the dining hall, to be replaced by Chase Hall, "a new for young men." The removal of the Commons was, however, unnecessary by a fire, which destroyed it. Other plans are also mentioned in the article. One does not need to go into further detail to show how the campus has changed, but then as now, the one who directed her destinies was dreaming of the day when Rollins should have "a campus perhaps as approachable in the South for attractiveness and convenience." (Part II of this article will appear next week.)

Rollins Buildings Have Been Put To Various Uses

(This is the sixth of a series of articles which appear each week in the Sandspur as part of its observations of the coming Rollins Semi-centennial.) PART I By JOHN BEAUFORT The first Rollins "building" was an old sawmill which stood on the shore of Lake Virginia. For a number of years, its noisy drive was heard, as from the nearby woods when emergency into beams and other building materials. Whether it had been abandoned before the foundation of the school purchased the campus property, it is difficult to say, but it was probably never used for any of the college buildings. After teachers and books and students, the most important requirement for any school is some form of habitation. Rollins opened in November, 1885, with 60 students, and about 10 instructors. But still the only structure on the college grounds was the old saw mill. The classrooms and dormitories scattered throughout Winter Park were described by Frederick W. Lyman, first president of the Board of Trustees, as follows: "The Larabee House facing the boulevard to the West of the South Florida Railway Station was reserved for a boys' dormitory. A little cottage on Geneva Avenue was taken for a girls' dormitory. The unfinished left-over a store on Park Avenue (White's Store, used in recent years as a billiard parlor) was used for what is often spoken of as 'the classical halls of learning'—in other words, the administration and recitation building and chapel. The library consisted of the bills and a dictionary, and the physical and chemical apparatus included a ruler and thermometer, but, so far

MILLER'S RUNS GIVE TARS WIN

SIAA State Kept Clean By 27-13 Victory

(Special to the Rollins Sandspur) Leesburg, Fla., Nov. 28.—Rollins kept its SIAA slate clean by defeating Erskine last Wednesday 27-13 in a game that was marked by an effective Tar passing attack and several long runs by George Miller, including one of 97 yards in the third period when he caught a punt on his own three yard stripe and twisted his way through the whole opposing team.

Leesburg football enthusiasts, numbering about 2,500 turned out to watch Miller, formerly a local high school half-back, and to see Rollins train the South Carolina outfit. In neither case were they disappointed. For Miller again reached a peak in his first year of intercollegiate football although he looked as though he had been in the game for years.

Tars Play Hard

Lake county followers saw not only Miller at his best but an entire Tar backfield that was playing its hardest football. The line, though obviously handicapped, managed to withstand the attack of Erskine's forward wall to a large extent. Howe, Chakales, Powell and Murphy, starred for Rollins. Murphy, at tackle, in spite of being noticeably held back by the loss of Cleve Melvin, star guard, played exceptional football until the closing minutes of the game, when he was removed because of a troublesome leg injury.

Rollins scored in the first, second and third periods, gaining a large enough lead to hold a safe margin over the Dixie West team. The Tar tally in the opening quarter came after a series of line plays had placed the ball in scoring position. Chakales, Tar quarterback, carried the ball across the line on an off-tackle play. McDowell's men increased their margin in the next period, the first time scoring on a pass from the Tar hopster. In Bob Howe, and late in the quarter valving again after a shoddy pass from Chakales to Miller.

Final Score in Lone Run

The Tar first touchdowns came late in the third quarter when Erskine punted from Rollins' 48. George Miller caught the ball on his own three-yard line, started a wide sweep, was tackled, but broke loose, sidestepped and dodged the remaining defensive players and sped 97 yards to place the Tars well in the lead.

Whitlaine scored for Erskine in the second quarter after taking the ball on a lateral pass and running half the length of the field. The South Carolina team's entire tally was made in the closing minutes of play, when Leonard, substitute backfield man, hit the Tar line for about five yards and creased the strips for the touchdown.

Throughout the whole game both backfields were sensational, but received little support from the line. This was particularly true in Rollins' case. Both sides seemed to be much stronger on offense than on defense.

The Erskine contest was the Tars' fourth win in seven games.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF SPORTS

By Reg. Clough

Rollins closes its current gridiron schedule with the game in Tampa on Saturday. This, more than any other previous clash, is the contest toward which the Tars have lately been pointing. Uncertainty concerning what men will play for and against the Spartans is, at this period of writing, the by-word both a Winter Park and in the West Coast city.

Whether or not McDowell, or some other Rollins member, will investigate or protest Spartan gridiron remains to be seen. So far we haven't been able to ascertain whether Tampa will use its three "eligibles" or all of the forty players. But, from what we know of the Tar coach, and from our own personal views, we certainly hope that the Winter Park players won't oppose any purely athletic member of Tampa University.

One point that over the most indefinite circles should require is that its stars be academic participants, at least. The 3-0 drubbing handed by the Navy to West Point was last week-end's principal tilt. Others of importance both last Thursday and Saturday were Colgate's 20-14 win over Brown, Penn's victory over Cornell by a 23-13 score, Tennessee's 19-4 triumph over Kentucky, Tulane's trouncing Huey Long's Louisiana State coach 13-12, and Duke's decisive 35-0 margin over Anderson's North Carolina State team.

Tulane's victory over Senator Long's kindergarten may have been a bit sour to the I-trojan inhabitants around Baton Rouge, but it's our guess that it was a fortunate occurrence for Boss Bowdoin. For had Louisiana State won the game, the Kingfish might have threatened the California legislature to get his own "senators" and "college" on the West coast.

Sports writers the country over have been picking Colgate as the East's choice for the New Year's Day classic. However, reports run to the effect that Alabama has been invited and has accepted. We can't be positive yet, but it is a practical certainty that one of these two teams will be the choice.

The Associated Press published its All American team Sunday, and in essence the selections were overlooked, we are including a reminder. The ones are Larson of Minnesota and Hutson of Alabama; the tackle, Lee of Alabama, and Reynolds of Stanford; the guards, Hartwig of Pittsburgh, and Barclay of North Carolina; and Lester of Texas Christian is in the center. In the backfield are Grayson of Stanford, Borries of Navy, Wallace of Rice, and Lund of Minnesota.

Field hockey, the newest of the popular women's sports, is now played in 21 countries of the world. The University of Southern California coaches have winter football practice to prepare for spring football practice for next fall's season.—Brown & White.

The current golf matches will not be a warpage for the Fall cup race, as previously announced, but the winner will be automatic. The basketball standing shows that the Gamma Phi cages are tied with Cleveland, each contest having won two games. There are still eight games to be played, two this afternoon, two tomorrow night and two on both Monday afternoon and Tuesday evening. As these games will decide the championship, basketball enthusiasts are urged to support their teams.

TARS TO CLASH WITH TAMPA IN FINAL TILT OF SEASON

Whichever way one looks at it, the coming game between Rollins and Tampa U. in Tampa next Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m., is a "natural" in the opinion of the local grid fans.

Both teams, on paper at least, seem to be about as evenly matched as possible. Both have defeated Southern and Miami, and another common victim was Newberry early in the season. When one starts to figure up comparative scores it all simmers down to the one fact that neither team has shown much of an advantage over the other on the score.

Comparative Scores Unimpaired Tampa gave Newberry a much more decisive beating than did Rollins. On the other hand, the Tars' defeat of Miami by a 14 to 0 score is somewhat more decisive than Tampa's defeat of the Hurricanes by 7 to 0. The comparative scores of the Southern games are a standoff, the Tars beating the Moon 15 to 0 and Tampa winning from the same team 13 to 2.

Besides, comparative scores will count for little when those two teams take the field. Much will depend upon the mental attitude of the players and with both teams likely to be worked up to a feverish state of mind, anything may happen.

Both Teams Have Lost Men Both teams are weaker right now than they were when the season opened. Tampa has lost six or seven valuable men through ineligibility. At least they will be ineligible for the Rollins game because of SIAA regulations. Rollins has also lost six outstanding stars since the season began because of ineligibility. No sooner

They were pulled a fast one on this week. It had us all hot and blushing there for a while, but then we had absolutely nothing to do with it; so we can, we hope, comment on it. Yet, it had us baffled. We're still baffled, as a matter of fact. This voting ticket to eliminate the Sandspur, we refer to.

Can you imagine us coming around to everybody on campus and asking them to vote for us, or even asking them if they had ever read any of this stuff we turn out between two-thirty and four each Monday morning when our room-mate is trying to sleep?

We tried asking someone to criticize our column for us once. He hadn't the slightest idea what we were talking about (which may be mutual). "Bat Squeaks . . . Ha, Ha, Ha . . . Do you write it?" But then what can we expect from the Faculty. (Apologies). So we let the matter drop, and perhaps it was just as well.

If this thing is bad by anybody, we sure want to thank you all for admitting it. It's good the ballots didn't have to be signed.

We are sorry to be so agricultural this week, but we just couldn't help it. Harry Long turned us up and we were going to talk about him until we found that we were being reformed, which isn't really a bad idea. Next time we'll talk about the Freshman dance that is coming off Friday week. This time we leave the honors to the news boards.

Rats You Shouldn't Have Missed:
The Rat with lipstick all over his shoes.

The Cleverleaf Class putting around in classes advertising boy-friends' names all over the back. (Leave it out, you brute, leave it out!)

The Rollins Renegades who took the whole campus for a joy-ride with their two million song and dance, yodeling around on his nice new second-hand motorcycle.

The Rat who sneezes so loudly in class that he wakes up his neighbors.

The Cleverleaf Class who lost her man a while back and was soon seen out horse-back riding.

The first-base that doesn't work and the Chase Chapelle trying to explain how he does.

The Chase Chapelle who likes to play in the sand.

The Rat who admits he may not be able to make snowballs, but says there's plenty of pretty snow.

"Hey Twinkl! What's wind work?—Ask the new Madam." That's a Cleaver.

Presentations Marionettes

A marionette show will be presented at the Orchestra Gift Shop at 302 E. Park avenue at 3:45 this afternoon by Miss Severance and her assistant, Miss Allen.

The entertainments presented by Miss Severance are well known to the north, and she has come to Winter Park for the season. This is her opening show.

ALUMNI NOTES

Among those who watched the Erskine game at Leesburg last week were Bill Rice, leader of the Excelsior Boys' Band, and George Bailey, of Gainesville.

Effie Long and Lois Hancock spent the Thanksgiving weekend on campus. Miriam Marshall, now teaching in Hollywood, was also here.

Technical Director, Donald Allen; Technical Assn. Peter McCann; Staging, Leonard Biedeman; Costumes Assn. Dorothy Young; Lighting, Gekelma Davis; Sound Effects, Sally Linsorick and Narcis Clark.

Flowers sent to members of the cast at the performance must be delivered to the Green Room, as some will be received over the halllights.

English Majors Hold Discussions

Mrs. Jessie Bittanhouse Scullard held a meeting at her home, 216 Osceola Court, Tuesday evening, December fourth to which the members of the upper division of Rollins College majoring in English were privileged to come.

At the meeting, the works of Paul Engle, author of "The American Song" and those of Robert Hillier, Pulitzer Prize winner were compared by Mrs. Scullard. Dr. Evelyn Newman and Mrs. Scullard received the guests at this interesting discussion.

A meeting of the English Club is to be held at Jessie Bittanhouse Scullard's home, 216 Osceola Avenue, at 8:15 Thursday evening, December 4.

All faculty and student members of the English department are invited to attend.

To Hold Alumni Bridge Benefit

An Alumni benefit Bridge will be held on December 17 at eight P. M. at Pugsley and Mayflower Halls. The chairmen will be Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. West, and the vice-chairmen will be Mrs. W. W. Rose and Mrs. E. W. Greene. Admission will be thirty-five cents.

Museum Being Reorganized

The Thomas H. Baker Museum of Rollins College, under the management of Mr. Davis, has begun a process of reorganization. Most of the material in the museum will be relabeled and replaced, so that the average person will gain a better understanding of such articles. Louise Bradford and Richard Alter are compiling interesting material to be placed with the various items.

ALPHA PHI
Alpha Phi members and pledges entertained at a formal dinner Saturday evening at the Life I Grey House in Maitland. Attractive arrangement of fruit were used to center the tables and place were marked by created combination place cards and dance programs.

Faculty and chaplains attending were Dean and Mrs. Winslow S. Anderson, Dean Helen G. Sprague, Professor and Mrs. A. Bud Troutbridge, Professor and Mrs. Malcolm MacLaurin, Mrs. E. Ethel Ingersoll, Mrs. Eric R. Twachtman, Miss Kay Ewing, Miss Marcella Patterson, Mr. Hugh McKean and Mr. Harwood Peoples.

Covers were laid for eighty guests.

Miss Elsie Lee Shippey returned Sunday from St. Petersburg after spending Thanksgiving with her parents.

Out-of-town guests at the Alpha Phi dinner were Mrs. E. and Mrs. A. P. Phillips, Jr., of Gainesville; Mr. and Mrs. John Meisch, Jr., and Frank L. Woodruff, Jr., of Sanford.

The pledges of Alpha Phi were hostesses to their "pledge-mothers" Monday evening, November 26th, when they entertained with an attractive dinner at the Papyrus in Orlando, followed by a theatre party at the Beachline. Original songs written by Doris Sibley were sung by the pledges at the dinner and Natalie Harris was in charge of the arrangements.

Freshmen To Sponsor Break-Training Dance

The annual all-college Break Training Dance in honor of the football team will be given Friday, December 14 from 2:30 to 11:00 at the Dubuque County Club. It will be sponsored by the freshmen class.

The committees for arrangements are: "52" Varis, chairman; Carol Stanley, decorations; Mary Gohas, invitations; and Dori Rogers, refreshments.

All are invited to attend to make this the biggest and best dance of the year.

DEAN ENYART HAS GUESTS

Dr. Louis M. Westgala, professor of Biology at Ohio Wesleyan University, and Dr. Dan Bergberger, treasurer, spent the past week and in Winter Park with Dean Enyart.

The two visitors are old friends of the Dean, and their visit was of the nature of a reunion.

They ought to know—
MANY men of the South have been "in tobacco" for years—growing tobacco and curing it—buying it and selling it—until they know tobacco from A to Izzard.
Now folks who have been in tobacco all their lives, folks who grow it, know there is no substitute for mild ripe tobacco.
And down in the South where they grow tobacco and where they ought to know something about it—in most places Chesterfield is the largest-selling cigarette.

Harvesting tobacco and packing it in the barn for curing—and (below) a scene at a Southern tobacco auction.
