Minority award

The office of minority student services is accepting nominations for the 1991-92 Dr. John T. Washington Commemorative Award that will be presented to an adult and youth exemplifying the qualities of the late UCF sociologist for whom the award was named. A $200 savings bond and a plaque will be awarded to a youth, and a plaque to an adult. Those receiving the award must be residents of Orange, Seminole, Osceola or Brevard County. The deadline to apply is Feb. 7. For information, call x2716.

Visiting lecturer

Chia-Shun Yih, professor of fluid mechanics, will be the guest of the departments of mathematics and mechanical engineering as part of the Distinguished Visiting Lecturer program.

Yih will give two lectures while at UCF. The first will be on "stratified flows" and will be Monday, Jan. 13, at 3 p.m. It will be of interest to students and faculty in science and engineering. His second talk is titled "Internal Solitary Waves and Their Interactions," and will take place Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 11:30 a.m. Both lectures will be in PH 409.

Distinguished author

UCF has named novelist Joseph Heller its 1992 Distinguished American Author. He will speak in the Student Center Auditorium on Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. There will be a reception for Heller in the Faculty Dining Room at 6:30 p.m. that day. Tickets for the reception are $8, and may be purchased from the English department. Those purchasing tickets to the reception will have reserved seating for the lecture. Heller is the author of the novel "Catch 22." He is also the playwright for a successful play, "We Bombed in New Haven." For information, call Barbara Stevens, x2212.

Budget hot issue for Congress

UCF officials hope legislators can solve state's money problems

When legislators meet in Tallahassee next week, the issues of most interest to UCF will be those concerning Florida's fledging budget.

"The number one issue this year is the budget. The number two issue is the budget. And the number three issue is the budget," said Dan Holsenbeck, senior counsel to the president and UCF's director of government relations.

After two years of budget cuts and hiring freezes across the state, legislators appear willing to start talking about tax reform as a way to generate more funds, said Holsenbeck. The other good news, he said, is that the revenue shortfall for December does not appear to be as severe as once feared.

"I'm optimistic that maybe the revenue slide has stopped and we'll be able to get the budget we need this year," Holsenbeck said.

Earlier this month, he and President Robert Bryan flew to Tallahassee and along with four other university presidents made a presentation explaining the problems facing higher education as a result of budget woes to members of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Holsenbeck said the committee was sympathetic, and "very well aware of what is happening," but he compared the state's budget to that of a household. If a family only has $50 in the bank, but needs to pay the electric bill, water bill, food bill and rent, it has to cut back somewhere, he explained.

"We can't just say we need more when they don't have the money," he said. "Until legislators as a whole address

CGNI links agencies with grants

The University of Central Florida is providing some 30 community service agencies in Orange, Brevard and Osceola Counties with a powerful tool for quickly identifying potential funding sources and grant opportunities made available by the federal and state governments and private foundations.

UCF's Division of Sponsored Research, encouraged and supported by Rep. Jim Bacchus (D-11th District), the Florida Board of Regents and its chancellor, Charles Reed, has developed a pilot Community Grants Information Network (CGIN) that enables participating municipalities, social service agencies and other non-profit organizations to electronically access information on available grants through phone-linked computer terminals in agency offices. The data bank, which is built from a variety of sources ranging from the Federal Register to solicitations for grants from such state agencies as Florida's Departments of Health and Rehabilitative Services and Natural Resources, is updated and maintained by UCF on its main campus.

The aim, according to Bruce Furino, grant development manager who was instrumental in configuring the system, is to give local agencies immediate access to grant information so that they might gain a greater share of available grant dollars. The system began operation on a pilot basis this fall.

The 30 participating agencies are: Metropolitan Orlando Urban League, Marine Resources Council of East Florida, Jewish Family Services of Greater Orlando, Orlando Science Center, Mental Health Services of Orange County, Mental Health Services of Osceola County, Spouse Abuse, Youth Services Center, Spaceport Florida Authority, Sexual Assault Victims Services, Association for Retarded Citizens, Brevard Regional Arts Group, Brevard Cultural Alliance, Brevard Family of Housing Authorities, Alzheimer's Respite Care Program.

Also: Christian Service Center for Central Florida, Center for Independent Living in Central Florida, COPE of Brevard, Circles of Care, Child Care Association of Brevard County, Center for Drug Free Living, City of Titusville, City of Kissimmee, Coalition for the Homeless of Central Florida, Community Services Council of Brevard, Weiss Foundation, Community Coordinated Child Care for Central Florida, Space Coast Early Intervention Center, Crisis Services of Brevard, AIDS Resource Alliance.

Memorandum

To: All employees
From: Jackie Callahan, Staff Council
Subject: Employee of month

UCF Staff Council would like to make you aware of the process for selecting the employee of the month. Any employee, including faculty and A&P personnel, can nominate anyone who has been a USPS employee at UCF for at least two years and has a current performance appraisal of "effective" or above. The nominee will then be notified of his/her nomination, and the individual who made the nomination will be asked to submit to the EOM committee a list of the nominee's co-workers and supervisors, some of whom will in turn be asked to evaluate, anonymously, that individual, thus determining the employee of the month. All EOM nominees' ratings remain confidential.

Each month's winner receives an award certificate and numerous gift certificates. He/she is honored not only at that month's Staff Council meeting, but also at the council's year-end banquet, when an employee of the year will be chosen.

Please watch for the ballots in The UCF Report and nominate any co-worker you feel deserves this honor.

From: Jim Moharam and Michael Bass, Research Council
Subject: Celebrate Excellence Student Research Awards

With support from the Central Florida Research Park, the Division of Sponsored Research is pleased to announce that it will be accepting nominations from faculty for the annual "Celebrate Excellence Student Research Awards." Each year four awards of $500 each are made. The awards are available to both graduate and undergraduate students who have conducted research at UCF.

To be eligible, a candidate must have been a full-time UCF student while conducting the research and be nominated by a faculty member who is familiar with the student's completed work. The research must have been conducted during the 1991 calendar year. Faculty members may nominate multiple candidates.

Consideration will be given to the quality and degree of the student's contribution to the research. Selection of student research awards will be based on the following suggested materials the candidates may submit:

- Nomination form containing an evaluation of the student's contribution to the research.
- A summary of the student's precise contributions to the research prepared by the student. (One page, typed and double spaced.)
- Student vita.

Deadline for nominations is Feb. 24. Awards will be announced on Founder's Day.

To: All departments
From: Larry Friedt, property and inventory control
Subject: Capitalization policy

Due to recent and previous audit criticisms regarding the deletion of non-tagable items purchased with other capital outlay (OCO) funds, it has been mandated that all such items are to be decal and a property master file maintained for inventory purposes.

If your department purchases an item which costs $500 or more, and, as in the past, it has been deemed non-tagable (software is exempt), this item will now be assigned a decal number. The inventory custodian for your department is to maintain a file for all assigned numbers. This file should include the purchase order number, a description of the item, the cost of the item, the assigned decal number and the location of the item.

If an item is purchased as an enhancement for an existing piece of equipment, please use the decal number already assigned. If the item purchased is a part of another non-tagable item, assign only one decal number for all components.

During the processing of your annual inventory, all assigned decal numbers will reflect on your inventory. Your departmental record of the items previously considered non-tagable, as well as the item, are to be presented upon request for inventory or audit verification. Your cooperation is appreciated.

From: Mark Johnson, search committee
Subject: Interim chair for the department of psychology search

Applications are being sought for the position of interim chair for the department of psychology, which becomes available in August. The department is comprised of 23 full-time faculty and several adjuncts. The new chair will be selected from senior faculty members of the department of psychology. It is expected that the candidates will have a Ph.D. in psychology and significant teaching experience and scholarly activity commensurate with the rank of full professor. No specific area of teaching and research interest is specified. It is desirable, but not necessary, the candidates have some knowledge of or administrative experience with budget, faculty leadership, and program development. Applicants should send a letter of interest, vitae, and the names of three references to Mark Johnson, department of statistics, search committee chair, by Thursday, Jan. 23. EEO/AA; women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply.

Subject: Availability of 16mm films

The office of instructional resources has lost its storage space for its 16mm film collection. As a result, we will permanently transfer films to any department requesting them, with the signed approval of the departmental chair. A catalog of titles and film descriptions can be viewed in classroom support, library room 155. Any films not requested by Feb. 28 will be turned over to surplus property for disposal.

The films will be apportioned on a first-come, first-serve basis and the office of instructional resources will keep a file of where films have been distributed in the event of duplicate requests. It will be the requesting department responsibility to pick up the films that are available to them.

News To Note

LIFE opens doors to public on Jan. 16

The Learning Institute for Elders (LIFE) at the University of Central Florida will hold its second open house at the UCF Arena on Thursday, Jan. 16, 10:30 a.m.-noon. Seniors interested in the program are encouraged to attend.

LIFE offers courses of interest to seniors. Courses revolve around political, physical, literary, historical and other topics.

The university program is unique because it receives input from LIFE students when planning courses and scheduling classes, and it views in class, mutual sharing between its members as part of its everyday curriculum.

Lecture classes are held Tuesday and Thursday mornings, and afternoons are reserved for small discussion groups, field trips and other campus activities. A $125 annual membership fee allows members to attend all classes. However, occasionally there are some additional materials fees and costs associated with field trips.

As LIFE members, seniors are given special students I.D. cards that allow them to make full use of UCF facilities, including the library, and to attend sporting events.

LIFE is an independent, non-profit institute that is affiliated with the national Elderhostel Institute, an organization that networks with similar programs throughout the country.

For information on LIFE's open house, call x5433. Those attending are asked to RSVP.

that issue, there's very little even our best friends can do for us." Until the state finds way to generate more dollars, "we're not going to do any better," Holsenbeck said.

Just giving back the dollars that had been sliced out of UCF's budget may not be enough because of growth. UCF was already having a difficult time meeting the needs of the booming student population prior to budget cuts.

"The only way to address the growth issue is to produce more revenue," Holsenbeck said.

To demonstrate that point, Gov. Lawton Chiles plans to submit two budgets to legislators, Holsenbeck said. One will be a "reality budget," outlining what will occur if there is no tax reform. The second will show what is possible with more revenue. Holsenbeck feels legislators will be impressed with Chiles' proposal.

"Our delegation is a very supportive, thoughtful group. I'm sure they'll listen and consider any fair proposals," he said.

Though the budget is by far the most pressing topic during this year's session, there are other issues of interest to UCF, though there are no individual items for UCF. There is an effort to streamline matching gift programs, which could make it easier for universities to match donor intentions with state dollars. Also, universities may be impacted by existing growth management laws that could have a significant impact on campus construction if legislators determine that universities should be treated like developers.

Despite the budget, Holsenbeck said he is pleased with news out of Tallahassee that Chancellor Reed has recommended several campus construction projects be fully funded with PECO dollars, among them: the Downtown Center renovation, Computer Center expansion, and Gemini Boulevard extension, which will give the campus a circular look.

Orlando Shakespeare Festival

Agreement between actors' association, OSF adds to festival's credibility, image

Orlando Shakespeare Festival and Actors Equity Association have announced the inauguration of an Equity Letter of Agreement for the festival's upcoming season.

Orlando Shakespeare Festival, a classically-based repertory theater affiliated with the University of Central Florida, is the first not-for-profit theater in Central Florida to become a professional equity theater company. The letter of agreement brings OSF into the Developing Theater Program at Actor's Equity, the 39,000 member Union of Professional Actors and Stage Managers, where it will progress year by year toward full Equity contract.

OSF's change in status comes after just two performance seasons and reflects the organization's philosophy and commitment to offer the community high-caliber, professional theater. During its 1991 season, OSF hired three Equity performers under the guest artist agreement, a contract often employed by community and educational theaters to enhance a particular show with professional actors. Now, after six months of discussions between OSF managing director Elizabeth Wills and AEA representatives in Orlando and New York, the festival will begin using a letter of agreement reference to the League of Regional Theatres contract. OSF will employ six Equity members under contract during the 1992 season.

"This is a significant move for the festival, one which I believe will have a positive impact on the theater community as well as theater patrons in Central Florida," said Wills.

"Our first two seasons have been tremendously successful from an artistic standpoint," he said. "Now, as an established professional theater, we'll have the ability to attract professionals from an even broader cross section of the theater community — directors, actors and designers — who will take a more serious look at the quality of the festival's production and where we're headed.

"It's an exciting time for us. I'm pleased with the working relationship established with Equity, and I look forward to a long, mutually beneficial association."

Equity executive secretary Alan Eisenberg said,

Classical agreement

"This is the beginning of a very exciting time for theater in Orlando. We're pleased that this quality classical company chose to lead the way in Orlando cultural evolution."

The Orlando Shakespeare Festival, founded in 1987 by artistic director and UCF professor Stuart Omans, will present 28 repertory performances of "Romeo and Juliet" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" beginning March 20 at the Walt Disney Amphitheater at Lake Eola Park in Orlando.

Tickets may be charged to MasterCard or Visa, paid by check, or purchased in person at the festival office, 30 S. Magnolia, Suite 250, in Orlando. Single tickets will be available beginning Feb. 3 through Ticketmaster.

The Orlando Shakespeare Festival, a not-for-profit theater affiliated with UCF, employs a professional company of actors, directors, designers and technicians drawn from throughout the United States and England. "Romeo and Juliet" will be directed by OSF artistic director Stuart Omans. Robert Hall, artistic director of the Nebraska Repertory Company, will direct "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Volunteer helpers sought for various theater duties

Have you ever wanted to be a part of the exciting world of theater? The Orlando Shakespeare Festival is looking for volunteers to help get its 1992 season off to a start. Volunteers are needed in all technical areas.

Baltimore Consort to perform, give workshop

The Orlando Shakespeare Festival Guild will present a concert by The Baltimore Consort at the First United Methodist Church, 142 E. Jackson St., Orlando, on Saturday, Jan. 18, at 8 p.m.

In addition, the consort will conduct an all-day workshop that day at UCF's music rehearsal hall for musicians, students and others interested in the history and performance of early music, 10 a.m.-3 p.m. During the morning, participants will be grouped according to interest with consort specialists and will focus on a particular period instrument or vocals. In the afternoon, the consort will present an open rehearsal, discussing and demonstrating how they select, arrange and refine the interpretation of early music. The workshop is sponsored in part by the department of music.

The Baltimore Consort consists of five instrumentalists and a singer who perform on instruments from the Elizabethan period: fiddle, and recorders. Many of the tunes in the concert will be familiar to today's audience as those same melodies played by old-time bands and country fiddlers. The popularity of this music has endured from its beginnings in the Renaissance to the present day. To complement the popular music, there will be selections from the sophisticated European court music of day as well.

Concert, workshop

viol, flute, lute, cittern

The repertoire of The Baltimore Consort includes not only extant arrangements of popular music from Shakespeare's time, but also the group's own settings of popular melodies and part-songs found in other sources. In the tradition of Elizabethan theater musicians — the jazz artists of their day — consort members have mastered the techniques of earlier compositional practices to create their new arrangements.

The Baltimore Consort is in residence at the Peabody Conservatory of Music, where it presents an annual concert series.

Tickets for "Heart's Ease" are $8. The workshop is $15 (workshop participants receive a $3 discount on tickets to the evening performance).
