NEW CHAPTER OF SIGMA NU INSTALLED SATURDAY

MARTIN TALKS ON JAPANESE-CHINESE WAR

Sees Challenge to America in Far Eastern Situation Unequaled in Decades

IS MEMBER OF FACULTY

Speaks Every Thursday At Auditorium

Lecturing on "The War in China", Dr. John Martin, L.L.D., presented his first of ten lectures on international relations at the Winter Park High School, January 6. Dr. Martin, a Rollins faculty member for the winter term, sees a challenge to America in the Far Eastern situation unequaled in decades with far-reaching implications for the future. To us, he said, is the understanding of the conflict between China and Japan is of particular significance.

Under Chiang Kai-shek, the national leader and Generalissimo, China's policy a year ago was a peaceful one but not for long as pressure was exerted on China through argument and demonstration of force to adopt a policy of resistance, armed and determined against the aggressions of Japan.

Japan Stiffles

Then the war was undertaken on a vast scale. Japan poured troops and implements of war into that vast, fertile country, and, as you know from the newspapers, has gone from victory to victory. The world was astonished that at Shanghai the Chinese troops resisted for thirteen long, bloody weeks. The Generalissimo's new troops in that position were better trained, better equipped, and more numerous than the others. The provincial soldiers proved little better than they had on previous occasions. The army was ill provided and ill led. An army of great size needs hundreds of officers and subordinate officers to lead the troops in mass and in detail. And these are lacking. Training and experience were lacking. More Chinese planes were brought down by Japanese pilots than by Japanese anti-aircraft.

HACKNEYS DONATE LAND TO COLLEGE

To Be Used Preferably For Museum

20 LOTS GIVEN

Judge and Mrs. L. J. Hackney have given to Rollins College a deed for twenty lots in Rollins Shores Addition to Winter Park, officials of Rollins announced today. The property is situated across the street from the Hackney home at 1461 Via Tuscony.

Judge and Mrs. Hackney have indicated in presenting the deed that "the uses contemplated are educational, preferably a museum of art and history."

Recognizing that Rollins is in a period of development and growth and owes its first obligations to its original and principal plant and must therefore defer expenditures for collateral educational purposes, Judge and Mrs. Hackney have imposed no limit of time or amount of expenditure in making use of the property.

In the event that the college desires after five or six years that it cannot enter upon the development preferred by the donors, or some other substantial educational tenure upon the property, Judge and Mrs. Hackney have suggested that Rollins may wish to "construct residence for its officers and, or its professors thereof or it may sell and convey the lots to another who will construct residence of a creditable character."

The 20 lots, it is understood, are valued at about $7,000.

REGULATIONS FOR INITIATION

The Faculty Committee on Student Standing wishes to call attention to the following regulations with regard to initiation into the fraternities and societies at Rollins College.

The candidate must have completed one full term of work as a regular student at Rollins College with a satisfactory rating in each course taken.

No student on probation will be permitted to be initiated.

At least forty-eight hours before the time set for initiation, the fraternity or society must present to the college registrar in writing the names of candidates for initiation and receive from the registrar a written certificate of their eligibility.

Fraternities and societies will be held responsible for complying with these regulations.

MRS. C. CAMPBELL DIES ON MONDAY

Private Services Held at House Thursday

FAVORITE POEM READ

On Monday night of last week, Mrs. Charles A. (Caroline L.) Campbell, wife of Dean Campbell, died at her home "Green Shadows", after an illness of several months.

Private services were held at the home on Thursday afternoon, with the Rev. William Henry Denney, Jr., and the Rev. Thomas Henry Sprague, D. D., brother-in-law of Mrs. Campbell, officiating. Included in the quiet and impressive service was the reading of her favorite poem, written by Edward Taylor-Luttrell, "There is No Death"—a poem which so beautifully echoes the credo of Mrs. Campbell's life with its high note of eternal spirit progression.

Mrs. Campbell, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Allen Lovell of Philadelphia, was always deeply interested in Rollins and active in the college community.

Ever a source of comfort and help to her beloved husband, the passing of Mrs. Campbell has also brought sorrow to her many devoted friends of the Rollins group. Her sincere and helpful interest to the students and in their many activities had always been a source of deep satisfaction throughout the twelve happy years she lived in Winter Park; her cheerful courage and Christian fortitude throughout her illness will be an unforgettable inspiration to all who knew her.

Bearded Gentlemen Have Good Reason To Ask Way To Knowles Or Pinehurst

By Bold Howland

Many of us have wondered, I am sure, why so many people are seen strolling around outside of the Annie Russell Theatre on Mondays at eleven—why so many of our Senators are liberally provided with beards and mustaches.

For several years Rollins has offered lectures by experts. For many friends and has sent its faculty members to various parts of the state on speaking tours for clubs, civic organizations, and schools. This led to the creation of an Adult Education Program which was first offered by Rollins in 1904. It met with such enthusiasm from the outset that it was enlarged upon the following year, and this year Rollins offers more than it ever has before. Many lectures are offered free, while others a silver collection is taken.

SOLOISTS FOR BACH PROGRAM MADE PUBLIC

Three Soloists Are From Bethlehem Bach Festival Group

400 SPONSORS WANTED

Fritz Lechner Featured Soloist Last Year

Five featured soloists have been engaged to assist in presenting the third annual Bach Festival at Rollins College here on March 8 and 9 according to an announcement today by the Bach Festival Committee of Winter Park.

They are Louise Lerch, soprano, and Arthur Kraft, tenor, both from the Bethlehem, Pa., annual Bach Festival; Fritz Lechner, baritone, who was a featured soloist at the Bach Festival of Winter Park last year; Lillian Knowles, contralto, who has also appeared with the Bethlehem, Pa. Bach Festival; and Max Morgan, bass, who is a native of Jacksonville, Fla., and now a pupil of Arthur Kraft at the Eastman School of Music.

Engagement of these five soloists is made possible, it is announced, by a sponsorship fund contributed by music lovers throughout the country. The Bach Festival Committee of Winter Park, which secured a list of 100 sponsors last year, is endeavoring to increase the number to 400 and reports that the list now represents sponsors in 26 states.

An announced purpose of the committee is "to give to the South a familiarity with the works of the great masters and deep understanding of their spiritual significance—works that are recognized by foremost critics as the greatest devotional music ever composed."

In preparation for the third annual festival, which will be presented in three programs in Knowles Memorial Chapel at Rollins on March 8 and 9, units of chorists in several Florida cities have been in rehearsal for the past several months under the general supervision of Christopher G. Thomas, chairman at Rollins College, and director of the Bach Choir of Winter Park.

Nature of the Bach Choir of Winter Park is the Rollins College a cappella choir of sixty student and faculty voices. The most recent unit is the Orlando-Winter Park group of 57 singers. Other units have been organized in Jacksonville, Daytona Beach, Tampa, Gainesville, and Leesburg. Professor Thomas is directing the rehearsals of the Rollins choir and (Continued on page 2, col. 2)

New Flagship of Far East Fleet

The converted yacht Isabel, shown above steaming under forced draft up the Washington river at Shanghai, has been made the flagship of the U. S. Far Eastern Fleet. Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, in command of the fleet, transferred his flag to the Isabel when his former flagship, the U. S. S. Augusta, sailed for Manila.

Headlines

By FRED LIBERMAN

Have you seen Norman Allen's film of the bombing of the Pacific? If you have, you must remember the cruel and wanton bombardment of Nanking. You must recall the horribly mangled bodies of Chinese civilians, men and women, as they lay, with their guts torn out, in the blood-soaked streets of the city, while the flying bombs of what had once been quiet homes and shops filled the air above them.

These pictures, brutal and terrifying, are but an indication of Japan's destructive invasion of China. What is to be done to keep Japan from trampling upon human rights?

Japan cannot herself produce the materials she needs for war. She must purchase them from the outside and must purchase them with cash. We, of America, unconsciously have been supplying her with this cash.

On December 18, 1937, a group of thoughtful American citizens, members of the Committee of the Conference on the Consumer and Peace, offered a resolution calling for the establishment of a Committee for a Boycott Against Japanese Aggression.

The movement recognizes that "every individual carries a responsibility for maintenance of peace and the checking of aggression," and that, therefore, as the buying of Japanese goods gives support to Japanese aggression, Americans are called upon to cease buying these goods.

This boycott, it was further pointed out by the committee is not directed against the Japanese people, nor inspired by hatred or nationalistic considerations. It will be lifted as soon as Japan lives up to its treaty obligations and evacuates China.

The movement has been advocated by civic and peace organizations all over the country. In New York, it is not uncommon to see placards in windows of shops which once sold Japanese goods reading: "We do not handle Japanese products" or "No Japanese goods sold here."

Stores in San Francisco, a conservative Boston, Chicago, and our own Ocala, Fla., have joined the move to stop sale of Japanese goods, while pickets in cities, large and small, have staged demonstrations against stores which sell Japanese products.

American students have not been backward in joining either. The American Students Union met at Poughkeepsie, New York and wholeheartedly backed the boycott. The girls at the meeting burned their silk stockings into a huge bonfire as an indication of their sincerity.

ALLEN ANNOUNCES "HIGH TOR" CAST

Fuller, Morgan, Backwater Have Leads

GIVEN IN FEBRUARY

With a competent cast finally assembled rehearsals started last week for "High Tor" destined to be the most ambitious production of the Rollins Student Players this year. Already rumors are circulating that this will prove the most unusual and delightful play given in the Annie Russell Theatre. Professor Allen, the director and designer, is confident that this production will do full justice to the text and spirit of Maxwell Anderson's beautiful fantasy.

The model of the set was completed during the Christmas vacation. Professor Allen and the stagecraft class started construction immediately last week. The action of the play takes place on different parts of the summit of the mountain, "High Tor," overlooking the Hudson River. The success of the play in capturing the proper mood will depend largely upon the lighting effects. Professor Allen and Miss Davis, the new assistant in the Drama Department, are spending much time experimenting with various light combinations.

"High Tor" will be presented February 17 and 18 in the Annie Russell Theatre.

INSTALLATION OF EPSILON TAU IS CLIMAX OF WEEK

CAST OF NEW RUSSELL PLAY IS ANNOUNCED

Julie Trowbridge and George Holt to Play Leads

MRS. SMITH TO DIRECT

Other Old Favorites To Be In Cast

From Rollins' comedy, "The Guardian", which will open the Annie Russell Series at Rollins College on Friday and Saturday evenings, Jan. 21 and 22, in the Annie Russell Theatre, will be presented with a cast composed of familiar favorites of the Winter Park and Orlando audiences.

In "The Guardian", Rollins has written a decidedly different love story. The plot deals with the clever strategy employed by a jealous husband to hold his wife's wandering affections. Both husband and wife are popular, temperamental box-office favorites in Vienna, where the heroine's husband plays the most important role of his colorful career by impersonating a Guardsman of the Russian Army to test the faithfulness of his actress wife.

Julie Trowbridge and George C. Holt have been cast as the actor and the actress. Both players have appeared in prominent roles in previous Annie Russell Company plays. Julie Trowbridge will be remembered for her outstanding portrayal of Laura Seward in "Men Most Faithful" which opened the Series last season, and Mr. Holt played the leading role in "Private Lives", the final play of the year. Mr. Holt will make his only appearance of the season with the Annie Russell Company in "The Guardian".

The role of the Creditor is to be played by Ernest Kileas, who has distinguished himself in the Rollins theatre by many outstanding characterizations in various plays presented by the Annie Russell Company since its organization six years ago.

Second Division Convention Held in Chapter House Saturday Morning

COATES IS COMMANDER

Florida Chapters Officiate at Ceremonies

The White Star of Sigma Nu National Fraternity new shines officially on the Rollins campus.

Kho Lambda Nu Fraternity, founded locally in 1936, in active petition to Sigma Nu since October 1937, became the Epsilon Tau Chapter, the one hundred and eleventh to be founded, and the ninety-sixth active, of the Second Division. It is the third chapter in Florida, the sixth in the Second Division. Other chapters of the Division may be found at Stetson, U. of Florida, University of Georgia, Georgia Tech and Emory University.

Culminating a week-end of activity, the official installation took place on Saturday afternoon, January eighth, in the Annie Russell Theatre. Delta Mu Chapter of Stetson, performed the rituals of the Pledge service, which was followed by the installation and formal initiation ceremony, officiated by the Epsilon Tau Chapter of the University of Florida.

The series of events was begun by an informal smoker held in Rollins Hall, the Chapter House, on Friday evening, January seventh. At this time many of the Sigma Nu alumni of Ocala, active collegiate members from the various chapters in the state, and members of Kho Lambda Nu, gathered to discuss the plans for the following day. Bud Draper entertained the group by showing pictures taken with his "movie" camera. A general discussion followed.

Division Convention Held

Second in importance to the installation, was the annual Convention of the Second Division. This was held on Saturday morning, opened by the Chairman, Raymond W. Blacklock, special inspector of the Second Division, in the Chapter House. A representative of each chapter of the Division was called upon to make reports on finances, planning, academic records, Fraternity House conditions, intra-mural progress, etc. Max Harrington, past president of Kho Lambda Nu, reported briefly on the progress made by the fraternity since the last Convention.

D'ESTOURNELLES TALKS

The first all college assembly of the semester was held this afternoon at 2:00, in the Annie Russell Theatre. A moving picture program was given, the feature being "Louis Pasteur", and the shorts "Colosteur Adventure" and "Fictitious Ureter". A talk on "Louis Pasteur and his times" was given by Mr. d'Estournelles.

As set forth by President Holt in his talk, this picture, and the ones to follow are made possible by the generosity of Mr. Warner of Warner Bros. Studios.

Eleven other programs of this type are planned by the committee on Visual Education. The program is to follow the general plan of the one today, with suitable talks to be given by the members of the faculty most concerned by the subject.

The program today commemorated the Birthday of Annie Russell, in whose honor the theatre is named, and in honor of her the Theatre Guild put on an exhibit in the Green room, after the morning pictures.

Student Conferences And Political Conventions Have Great Resemblance

By DON BRADLEY

Between December 28 and January 2, at Albuquerque, on the campus of the University of New Mexico, the National Student Federation of America held its annual conference, with representatives numbering one hundred and fifty from colleges all over the country.

This is the thirteenth time this organization has met for the purpose of beginning the cause of student government nationally, and according to the reports of our own delegates, "High Tor" there was some argument as to what was good for all sections of the country. As usual the South stuck together, like good politicians, and nearly started another war, but it came out agreeably in the end with each side compromising to the tune of "Isolationism" in world politics.

The main body of reports have not as yet been published but from Don's few remarks, I gather that they will be well worth reading, when they do appear.

From listening to Don's description of the whole trip I found that it closely resembled that of a delegate to one of the National party conventions, with all the excitement and color of lobbying, speech-making, hot-headed outbursts, and

Finally the battle for next year's President and the next conference site, which will be at Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana.

Don left here on Christmas afternoon with Mink Whitaker who accompanied him as second delegate. The train trip was a long one, and the boys did not arrive in Albuquerque until the morning of the twenty-eighth. The time was not all taken up with business, for the first night there was a waltzing dance, and during the following six days there were trips to Indian Pueblo and other places of interest. Don mentioned visiting the T. B. Sauerbrey in Indiana, adding that it was the best of his type he had ever seen.

The University of New Mexico came in for its share of praise, with one building in particular being described as a good example of what we need here at Rollins. This was the Student Union, with a dance hall, bookstore, soda fountain and barber shop, all student operated.

The Convention ended with the election of the president for 1938. For her excellent work as Chairman of the Conference, Mary Jean McKay, of Florida State College for Women received the presidency, and as Don says, "she deserved it."

FELLOWSHIPS ARE OPEN TO SENIORS

Scholarships Are Given For Foreign Study

CHOICE OF 7 COUNTRIES

A number of fellowships and assistantships are administered under the international student exchange of the Institute of International Education for American students to pursue graduate study abroad. In addition, the Institute administers special fellowships as given below. The following descriptions are based on past experience in the expectancy that the opportunities available will be substantially as listed for the next academic year.

General Requirement for Eligibility

In order to qualify, a candidate must:

- (1) Be a citizen, native-born or naturalized, of the United States or one of its possessions.
- (2) At the time of making application be a graduate of an American college, university or professional school of recognized standing, or a senior who will have met this requirement before entering upon the term of the fellowship;
- (3) Be of good moral character and intellectual ability, and have suitable personal qualities;
- (4) Be in good health;
- (5) Possess ability to do independent study; and
- (6) Have a practical reading, writing and speaking knowledge of the language of the country in which he wishes to study.

Exchange Fellowships or Assistantships

Although a majority of awards cover board, room and tuition for the academic year, there are a limited number of tuition fellowships. Inasmuch as tuition fees at foreign universities are relatively low, fellowships covering tuition only are considered honorary awards. Not all these fellowships and assistantships are open to general competition. A number of the fellowships providing board, room and tuition, are set aside for candidates from colleges or universities offering similar opportunities to foreign students in exchange. Tuition fellowships are open to general competition. It is advisable for a candidate to ascertain whether the institutions from which he has graduated, or at which he has done graduate work, has entered into an agreement with the Institute of International Education for such a direct exchange of students.

These fellowships and assistantships are open to both men and women. Preference is given to unmarried candidates under thirty years of age; only in exceptional cases can married candidates be considered. Awards are made for one academic year, subject to renewal in exceptional cases.

Appointees must have sufficient money of their own to cover traveling, vacation, an incidental expense ($500-$600), and, in case of tuition awards, correspondingly more to provide for living expenses.

Special Fellowships

American Field Service Fellowships.—For advanced research work in France, the American Field Service offers a limited number of fellowships for one year. These fellowships, open to men only, and carrying a stipend of $1400 each, are not open to direct application.

The Foundation Scientifique de Lyon du Sud-Est offers a fellowship of 10,000 francs for nine months at the University of Lyons to a graduate student of chemistry. Applications close March 1st.

The fellowship is open to both men and women. The successful candidate receives free tuition for two consecutive semesters through the American German Student Exchange. Applications close February 1st.

The Cesare Alfieri Institute of the University of Florence offers several stipends of 2000 lire each for post-graduate study at the Scuola di Perfezionamento in Studi Pubblici Internazionali, for the period January to June; candidates must have completed one or two years of post-graduate studies and those preparing for the foreign service are preferred. The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has supplemented the fellowships by a grant to each student of $300 to cover the cost of the trip to Chile and return. Preference is given to candidates who have had at least a year of graduate work before entering upon the fellowship. Applications close October 15th.

CHANTER DEMANDS "WHO ARE YOU?"

Questions Listeners at Chapel Sunday Service

DEAN OF WESLEYAN

"Who Are You?" was the subject of Dr. William Chanter's sermon at the Sunday morning service in Knowles Memorial Chapel. Dr. Chanter is Dean of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut.

The sermon was based upon a passage from the twenty-second chapter of the Book of John. "Then who are you, they said. Tell us so that we can give an answer to those who sent us. What have you to say for yourself?"

Dr. Chanter said that we can all stand being attacked, persecuted, praised, but we cannot stand being ignored. We want to be taken seriously. But if we make a claim to any authority we must face the question, "Who are you?" And this question cannot be answered unless we have the secrets of our hearts. We must reveal our personalities. Yet we must not be so personal, so private in our answer that it cannot be shared by the world. The answer must be general. Yet we are prone to fall back too much on generalities. "I am an American." But there are other—greater Americans. What do we mean by saying this? Or, "I am a Christian." "I am a student." There are plenty of these. What an obligation it places on the student to be a student! Young people who come to college to stand around for four years learning how to do nothing at all as

Four Arts Society Holds Art Exhibit In Palm Beach

On Sunday, January second, we had the honor to be present at the tea which opened the Modern Art Loan Exhibition at the new gallery of the Society of the Four Arts in Palm Beach. The tea was doubly important in that it opened not only the exhibition, but also the new gallery which has just been completed. Many important and influential members and friends of the Society were present on the occasion. As we mingled in the crowd, talking to our friends, we saw such notables as Mrs. Maynard Eliott, author, honoree president of the Society, and daughter of Julia Ward Howe; Mr. Alfred G. Kay, the president; Mrs. Frederick Johnson, formerly Mary Macdonell, the noted artist, third vice-president; Mr. C. Perceval Ditcher, sculptor and fourth vice-president; Mr. Frank G. Macomber, consulting director, for twenty-five years curator of art at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and noted authority on textiles and tapestries; and Mrs. Lorraine E. Woodhouse who has been the leading spirit since the inception of the Society of the Four Arts. She has given "Gould Hall", a stately institution in East Hampton, Long Island.

The exhibition itself was a retrospective survey of modern art. The representation was fairly inclusive for a loan exhibition. It excerpted only a few important figures like Manet and Seurat. The artists and their work are examples of personalities and basic theories which have influenced and will affect coming generations of artists. All of the artists represented have had their work accepted by the great museums of the world.

The exhibition was the first to give people the opportunity to see the origin and development of work by artists who have caused controversy and excited comment wherever their compositions have been shown. It was a privilege to see the pictures and to note the influence they have brought to bear on many phases of life today.

CAMPUS Personalities

Inability to find a 44 Draper caused an hour wait on the steps of Rollins Hall but finally he burst in all his snail-crawled glory, as he saw as he muttered something and attempted to escape but it was futile.

Had it been one of those unique individuals who had passed his entire collegiate life at Rollins, after such attempted evasion he finally said:

"Last year I was forced to make a rather quick trip up north for my initiation into the Masons and so, for the sake of saving as much time as possible, I decided to go by plane."

"The plane left the Orlando airport on schedule and everything appeared to be fine but soon after we left we ran into such a fog that we were forced to return as far as the Titusville airport where we landed. From Titusville we took the bus to Jacksonville to make plane connections there but also, trouble was not yet over. But a short way out of Jacksonville the differential of the bus broke down and they had to call out an emergency bus to take us the rest of the way. Although no injuries were sustained by the passengers, time suffered a horrible marker and we missed the plane connections for Washington and were forced to wait for the next."

"From here on our trip was fairly uneventful until we were forced down by sleet at Akron and forced to rely again upon the bus lines. Even then we were affected by the sleet storm and so, after a two and

675 DOLLARS RECEIVED

The Annual Rollins Christmas Fund Drive sponsored each year by the Kappa Kappa Chapter closed on the Wednesday before vacation. At that time six hundred and seventy-five dollars has been collected, and with a few late contributions it is expected that this year we shall reach the seven hundred mark.

Budd Howland, general chairman of the Drive, wishes to take this opportunity to publicly thank those people who worked with him during the Drive and help to carry it out so successfully.

First, Dean Campbell whose guidance and unending enthusiasm served as a constant stimulus throughout the three weeks' time.

Second, The executive committee made up of Dr. Smith, Dr. Newman, Miss Trout, Jack Rick, Bob Van Buren, Emily Sherrill, and Helen Brown who gave uncompromising of their time in the organization of the Drive.

Third, The group of forty-four students who made up the list of customers who worked faithfully and diligently in making the collections and were directly responsible for the success of the Drive.

A half hour bus ride we finally arrived in Cleveland, having taken three hours longer than the train trip would have been. This ended my great idea of saving time."

SANDSPUR SCRATCHES

By BILL BINGHAM

As a holdover from the old year we would like to bring up the always delightful subject of the cross-country race. It seems to us that it is about time this growing event was abolished as a team sport. It is perfectly alright to have an individual race and award a trophy to the winner, but to expect fans from each fraternity, most of whom have done little training for the event, to go out and run three miles is as silly as expecting a Model T to cross the continent without repairs.

The race comes at the close of the fall term when every one is busy cramming for tests or doing a final term report. Any running event is hard on the heart even when a person has trained steadily. The cross-country event is the one sport on the intramural program which does more harm than good. After watching for three years spent boys cool over after crossing the finish line, we feel that it would be better for every one if the race were abolished.

If this cannot be done, the quota for a team should be lowered. The football men who have been in training for three months usually have little trouble completing the distance, but the others begin lagging after the first mile and many a boy finishes on quite alone. If the fraternity men wanted to race it would be different, but so in a way, the final entries are those who could think of no way of getting out of running. Our suggestion is that the race should be an individual one with anyone entering. If a team trophy is to be awarded, give it to the fraternity with the three lowest men finishing. With no objective of filling out a four-man team it would be interesting to see how many entries there were.

Recently Edward J. Neil, a correspondent for the Associated Press, was killed while reporting the civil war raging in Spain. Before he became a war correspondent, he was an ace sports writer. He was considered one of the best boxing writers in the business because of his ability to transcribe blow-by-blow descriptions.

The story, however, which won him honorable mention from the Pulitzer prize committee was his graphic account of his first job in the ring. He was sent to the Olympic ring at Mount Van Heusen. Probably you read the story at the time, but didn't pay particular attention to the author. He tells of all the other bobbers shaking hands with him at the top of the ring, including the German team, and of the fatalistic attitude of the driver.

Whirling up a big wall of ice, leaning hard, and then straightening out at seventy miles an hour, gaping for breath, aware of your utter helplessness, then the final slip-sag turn at the bottom is the story in brief. Five minutes later the German team jumped the bank and four unconscious farmers were hastily picked up and headed into an ambulance. "That's the way it goes," says his driver. Mr. Neil had the power to express his feelings and sensations and that's what makes the great newspaperman. It is with regret that we write of his loss.

The intramural basketball league opens this week and we're taking the E. A.'s to win, Theta Kappa Nu to place, and the Phi Deltas to show. Sigma Nu and the X Club are about on a par with the independent aggregation's strength unknown. If the latter team would get all its available men out for every game, it would offer surprisingly strong opposition.

Sidelights: The funniest hole-in-one of the year was made by Jimmy Thompson, 300 yard closer, who pounded a ballpuncher all of sixty-eight yards for an ace. It was made while he was shooting from a ladies' tee, while he was instructing a lady in the finer points of the teeth-creasing game. . . . not that it matters, but perhaps the ladies didn't hear that the "Oogrates" (Walruses) skied out a victory over the "Algrites" (Reindeers), 7-4, in the Ice Bowl classic. . . . the Rollins Rafting Bowl game ended in a 30-20 draw. . . . things are coming to a pretty pass when the Tare like to play football against each other so much that they play in Cuba during the Christmas vacation. . . . We lost on Alabama in the Rose Bowl game. . . . we doubt if any of the Rollins students are interested, but we wish to remind you that there is dog racing every night out at Longwood. . . . Lefty Gomez wants a divorce and is in a hurry. . . . he's got to get to Florida for spring training, but he has to reside in Nevada six weeks. . . . Temple spot Stanford's high-scoring basketball five. . . . Hank Luisetti, Stanford ace, rolled up 50 points against a strong Duquesne team. . . . final score . . . 97-47. . . . Bill Hagmann, who went to Stanford last year, is a Luisetti fan. . . . say's he's even better than his write-ups.

Hank Luisetti, Stanford's Star Forward, Headed for All-America Third Year in Row

By IRVING DIX

A VERY good way to score up a hot argument is to find someone who has seen Angelo Henry Luisetti in action, and then try to convince that person that Stanford's sensational forward is not the greatest basketball player in the world.

For Hank Luisetti is just that. Of course, that covers a lot of territory, but every body who has seen him, and who has seen the Cardinal star pop "ten in, agree that the title is rightfully his.

No college player in the history of the sport has caught the public fancy as has this sharp-shooter from the west coast. A unanimous choice for All-America during his sophomore and junior seasons, Hank is needed for the honor for the third year in a row—despite the fact that he has missed an opportunity just a few weeks before the current season started.

HIS scoring spree is becoming legendary in the Pacific Coast Conference. In his first year of varsity competition he posted in 426 points in 39 games. In his junior year he tallied 419 points in 37 games.

But it was his almost unbelievable feat, recently, of setting a new world individual scoring record for a single game, with an even 50 points against Duquesne, that left everyone gasping.

There is a little more to that particular night's work than most folks know, however. Hank

Angelo (Hank) Luisetti, Stanford ace who set new world individual record by scoring amazing total of 50 points against Duquesne.

Luisetti, as captain of the Stanford team, is more than anything else, a great team player. So when he noticed that substitute, pouring in from the Stanford bench late in the game, were trying so hard to pass the ball to him that they became all sighted, Captain Hank took time out to discover the reason. Luisetti had scored 27 points that first half. The world individual scoring record was 41 points. So Coach John Dunn and the boys thought it would be wise to feed him the ball and let him aim for a new mark.

THAT infuriated Luisetti. He ordered them to shoot whenever they had an opportunity and not pass the ball to him, yet when he was all through that night he had scored 52 field goals and four foul shots in the hoop.

Coach Dunn says he is the greatest basketball player to ever come from the west. His balance and coordination are perfect. And he has developed a one-handed shot that is almost impossible to stop. Luisetti feels he can get his shots off much faster with one hand—it makes no difference which—because he doesn't have to take that extra half second to get set. He can let fly while still in motion. And that's just what he does.

Pro basketball is out for Hank. He's making it at economics at Stanford, is working his way through school, and has a job all set for him with a large oil company just as soon as he leaves the Stanford campus next June.

Next June can't come any too soon for Stanford's cogs because who have tried desperately to stop the slender San Francisco sharpshooter—and failed.

INTRAMURAL PLAY OPENS IN BASKETBALL FRIDAY EVE

Theta Kappa Nus Are Defending Titleholders; Kappa Alpha, Led by Phillips, and Phi Deltas Show Promise; X Club, Sigma Nus Are Stronger

By WENDY DAVIS

There will be no more of trumpets, no high buzzards hurried Friday night when Theta Kappa Nus meet the Independents and Phi Deltas clash with X-Club in the 1938 inaugural of the Intramural Basketball League; yet before long, heated enthusiasm appears in itself among the six quintets in quick time and the most competitive intramural sport at Rollins is underway.

Three nights each week, Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays, four rubber-soled quintets meet in the battle of switching strings.

Theta Kappa Nu, undefeated champions of 1937, are favored to repeat their triumphs of last season. The T. K. N.'s are again guided with the high-scoring Joe Brythlen, Joe and Jack, and a classy supporting cast. With the addition of several likely-looking pledges, Clyde James, Jack Lingerfelt and Sam Hardman, their chances for another undefeated season seem secure.

Kappa Alpha Improved Kappa Alpha should be an improvement over last year when they finished third. With Len "Shirley" Phillips using his huge frame to good advantage under the basket, the K. A.'s are likely to force the longer leaders when the two from the top-off later in the season.

The Phi Deltas, runners-up last year and champions the year before last, seem destined for third place in the pre-season rankings. Bolstered in reserve strength through themselves by promising pledge material, the Phi Deltas are ready to do battle but do not seem to have the class of its two major rivals.

Rembeck Leads Sigma Nu Sigma Nu takes its bow on the basketball floor this year for the first time. Little is known concerning their material, but led by Joe Rembeck, freshman, they will present some opposition and likely prove troublesome to the leading contenders for the court throne.

X-Club is a decided improvement over last year's Club. Aided by a pledge, Bill Daugherty, Earl Blanker, and Dick Redd, the Club, too, will be scalp-hunting.

Independents, at this point, appear safely enclosed in the cellar.

Fine Material on Hand The league this year is sprinkled with more star material than ever before. Theta Kappa Nu, besides its scoring twins, the Juncos, present Rick Gillespie, Ollie Daugherty, and even from last year.

K. A.'s are once again blessed with the return of "R" Little, rated as one of the best under-the-basket men in the league. Their club suffers with the loss of both George and Elmer Miller, but makes up in promising pledge material. Joe Rembeck is another standout left from last season.

The Phi Deltas will again be led by its "big three", Don Hurray, Ed Levy and Gerard Kirby. Those three, along with the Justice boys, were first string members of the All-State quintet picked by this column, and will again be vying for that honor.

X-Club's lineup of last season, Brooks McKinnis, the "mullet" from Palmerton, will again operate from his forward post.

Basketball Courtings One of the features of the 1938 basketball season will be the picking by this column of an All-Star

TARS SPLIT TEAMS AND PLAY IN CUBA DURING HOLIDAYS

Battle to 26-26 Tie; Players Are Royally Feted; Divide Time Between Sightseeing And Playing

Although darn glad to get back to native soil, the thirty-odd members of the Tar football party that trickled to Havana, Cuba, as guests of the Cuban government, to play a New Year's day game enjoyed five days of interesting sightseeing, excellent Havana, beautiful Serranias, lovely food, and warm hospitality. They played a game, too.

NOTICE

There will be an important meeting of the Rollins Rifle Team at 7:30 Tuesday evening to be held in Rollins Hall. It is requested that all persons interested in rifle attend the meeting which will be held for the election of officers.

TAR FENCERS BEAT GEORGIA TECH, 14-3

Teams Meet in Atlanta During Christmas Vacation

CETRULO WINS FIVE

Townsend, Ehrlich Also in Good Form

Displaying marked superiority with every weapon, Rollins College fencers swept to an easy 14-3 victory over a determined but outclassed Georgia Tech squad at Atlanta during the Christmas holidays.

The Rollins fencers won seven of the nine foil bouts, captured all four epee clashes, and took three of the seven sabre.

The most was the initial one of the season, as the Tar fencers began their third year in succession without a defeat by a southern fencing opponent.

Captain Don Cetrulo and Manuel Ehrlich led the Rollins fencers by scoring nine victories without a defeat being chalked up against them. Cetrulo won five of those and in four of the bouts prevailing his opponents from scoring a single touch.

Gene Townsend won three out of four while Jack Hagentrub won the hard luck man of the team, dropping two out of three. Of the two foil bouts lost, both were by five and four decisions.

Rollins will stage a return match in Winter Park in February. A definite date has not yet been set.

The results by touches.

The game, played Sunday afternoon, was an addition. The day before the S. S. Cuba decided in Havana, seven Cuban Naval fencers were killed en route to Columbia on a good voyage. Through respect to their dead comrades, the Naval eleven could not play. Efforts to secure another opponent fell through. "El Jocker" McDowell divided the squad into two eleven-man teams, naming one eleven the "Cuban Navy" and the other "Rollins College". The closing gun found the score deadlocked at 25 all.

Squad Trained Royally From the minute the squad landed in Cuba, they were continually on the go. Seven government cars with drivers were placed at the party's disposal. If they missed anything, it either wasn't worthwhile or just happened to be overlooked in the rush.

It would be hard to put a finger on the highlight or the highlights of the Cuban sojourn. However the grandeur of the Cuban Capital Building stands out. The madcap driving of the Cuban autoists in Havana turned hairs gray on everybody's head. The morning spent as guests of the Barenzi Bar was a live one. The Havana Club Bar's hospitality wasn't to be sneered at in the afternoon either.

On Go Sightseeing Tours Havana's narrow streets and yet narrower sidewalks first impressed the Rollinsians as they were whisked from place to place. Most of the time prior to Sunday was given just to general sightseeing over Havana's country club, the Cuban Olympic swimming tanks, the Franklin and Jai-Alai, the Frigida, the Army quarters, etc., were all done before the game Sunday.

From the minute the game was over, the squad and a few of the other members of the party just "let their hair down" and enjoyed the quiet, but gay Havana. When the chiding white hair, two legs of beer appeared on the beach. Dipping of the beer and about half of each player's uniform to Cuban souvenir hunters didn't take long.

The next official act of the party was Thompson's going down and out with a valid case of chickenpox. The poor old "College-head" bit the dust in the midst of the holiday.

From that point on, recollections became a bit hazy. Each of the seven cars loaded up after every meal and tore off in several directions. Between trips to bars, Morris Castle, the Tropical Garden, a supervised sightseeing point through the Capitol building, and the Navy's fortress at the entrance to the harbor, were sandwiched.

"College" (in sooting mode of Coca-Cola and Borden's to you) became the drink of the moment. An evening at the "Shanghai" added intellectual zest to the visit.

However, when Tuesday morning rolled around, those same thirty-odd members of the Tar party were doggone glad to drag their weary bones back to the S. S. Cuba for the return trip. Except for a few life-baited Runners and Mc Miller's and Sock Solatti's assistance on the way down, the best trips proved to be only necessary interludes in the journey.

The other details of the trip were strictly "off the record". Adios. . .

THE Inquiring Reporter

What do you think of the Rollins girls, in general, boys? Bill Weber: There's no half way about it. They are either attractive or awful.

Yed Reed: Women are women in any country.

Matt Ely: I don't dare say, but with a little persuasion, I would venture to add that they are a trifle on the gold-digging side.

Bob Kurrein: The Rollins girls are a bunch of catty individualists.

Dad Folders: They look pretty darn good to me after being in New Mexico. (But, please, don't send this edition of the paper to New Mexico.)

Oliver Whitmer: It would be much better if some of the girls at Rollins were more like Bailey.

GRADUATE SHOWS TWO PAINTINGS

Work To Be Exhibited In New Hampshire

GRADUATED IN 1926

Two paintings by Lois Bartlett Tracy of Venice, Fla., a graduate of Rollins College in the class of 1926, are included in the exhibition of contemporary painting arranged by the Studio Guild, 100 Fifth Avenue, New York, for the opening of the Ellen Lambert Murphy Memorial at Winchester, N. H., January 17, according to information received here.

The paintings by Mrs. Tracy, and one by Jane Peterson and three by Collier Baskeland, of Palm Beach, were selected, according to an announcement from the Studio Guild, as "representative of the best in present-day American art."

The two pictures by Mrs. Tracy, "Jungle Culture" and "The Farm," are both landscapes, one of the Florida jungles and the other of New England. Mrs. Baskeland's canvases are likewise landscapes. The painting by Jane Peterson is "Tulips," similar in technique to the pictures by this artist which last month won the prize for the best of flower painting in the annual exhibition of the Florida Federation of Art.

The Murphy Memorial, which is the gift of Gov. Murphy of New Hampshire to the town of Winchester, his birthplace, will be dedicated on January 17th at a banquet in the presence of the Governors of Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island and New Hampshire. The selection of paintings for the important opening exhibition was made at the invitation of Gov. Murphy by the Studio Guild of New York, a national clearing house for the arts with members in all parts of the country.

CONSERVATORY NOTES

It is with the greatest of effort that we disentangle ourselves from the mass of books, scores and recordings that have just come from the Carnegie Foundation, to jot down a few notes which will probably be most interesting to our reader. This very high-spirited gentleman has thought to feed us when he sent a packing slip with the shipment which says that the items checked are the ones included — but we laughed and laughed when we found some he didn't check (Joke).

Prof. Bureau, while-aided it during vacation — he is no longer hatching it. Welcome to our city, Bureau! The Block's entertained daughter June, over the departure of which many tears — as to speak — were shed. Miss Mason and Mr. Boston celebrated under the lights in N. York.

There is a plot afoot involving a Britishish sketch to be given sometime in the future. It is a French version of the story which may or may not have any bearing on the presentation — it will be given by the Full-Dancing department.
