Mendell, Waite, and Wetherell Shine in Bailey-Bloch Production of "Gondoliers"

Alice Cooper Wins In Atlanta Debate

Fruin Places Second in After- Dinner Speaking

No. 12 Mendell, Waite, and Wetherell

By Alden Manchester

Howard Bailey and the Bloch family proved once more last Friday night that they are masters of Gilbert and Sullivan. The presentation of "The Gondoliers" on behalf of the Central Florida Symphony was a masterful and delightful experience for both audience and cast, and, although we have not consulted him, we are sure also for Director Bailey.

The world has long recognized Gilbert and Sullivan as the peers of the English-speaking world in the field of comic operetta. In "The Gondoliers" we have an operetta which, while it is perhaps lesser-known, is nevertheless one of their most delightful compositions. In some ways it is definitely superior to many of the other, more-often-performed Gilbert and Sullivan pieces. None of the attire of "The Gondoliers" goes over the heads of American audiences, as does much of that in "Iolanthe", for instance. It is very evident, very biting, and very pleasant to a rock-bound republican audience such as was found last Friday night in the Winter Park High School Auditorium.

The Duke of Plaza-Toro is a peer in Gilbert and Sullivan's large field of stuffy aristocrats, one or more of whom is to be found in every operetta. His esteemed wife The Duchess is likewise a beautifully-drawn caricature of an even-more-stuffed aristocrat, who can be quite meanly domestic on occasion and often is.

We might mention that the set, while strangely reminiscent of bygone days in the history of local drama, was one of the best sets that we have seen in a Gilbert and Sullivan production. While not elaborate, it was wholly in keeping with the prescribed atmosphere of the play and held up well as a background for the swirling mass of color and action that "The Gondoliers" put in front of it. The Messrs Buckwalter and McDonald, constructors thereof, are to be congratulated.

Charlie Mendell was our favorite of all the cast. As the Duke of Plaza-Toro, he carried off full honors as altogether the stuffiest, most penniless, most mercenary, and most ingenious aristocrat ever to grace the stage. Blessed with a part that fitted his talents to a T, Mr. Mendell made the most of every opportunity, including a dance that for sheer absurdity took every honor.

Eddie Waite had another comic role, and gloried in it from first entrance to last exit. The Grand Inquisitor Don Alhambra de Bolero was a most remarkable man, and became even more remarkable in the skillful hands of the esteemed Mr. Waite. We might add that those monstrous feet protruding so obviously from under his robe added no little to the characterization—just what they added we would hate to say. That deep bass voice of his was no mean asset in such a role, either.

In almost a dual role, Pres

Rollins Girls and National Defense

Wetherell and Ernie Walker upheld with expert skill the tenor side of the ledger. Their characterizations of Marco and Giuseppe Palmieri were all that even the most particular could have demanded. Lucy Marshall, Gloria Mastrangelo, Virginia Shaw, Marcelle Hammond, and Lamar Simmons likewise demonstrated that they have qualified themselves much more than merely "adequately" for classification as veteran troupers of Gilbert and Sullivan.

A continental accent didn't seem to have hindered the Miller Costumier of Philadelphia from doing an excellent job of costuming. Altogether it was one of the best costuming jobs that we have seen in quite some time; and what's more they seemed to fit!

Being unversed in the ways of music, we shall not attempt any comment on purely musical aspects of the production, beyond saying that we liked orchestra and the chorus and we didn't hear anyone else say anything but nice things about them. Any expert music critics can ignore this paragraph, however, as we really shouldn't venture any comment whatsoever on anything musical.

No 5—FIRST AID STORY NO HEAD IN SITE

L

By Jack Liberman

The first term of First Aid has just come to an end. Without reservation, it can be said that it was a complete success. A great deal of credit can be given to Doc Adams, who taught the course in both sessions and did a very good job. Gordon Apgar, Hugh Ross, and the student helpers must also be given credit for their help. Now that Doc is recovering from an appendicitis attack, Gordon Apgar and Rachel Harris are temporarily teaching the courses.

About 50 percent of the student body took this course in an effort to be of some aid in case of possible raids by enemy countries.

However, the possibility of such an event happening might make the taking of this course seem a waste of time, but of all the so-called defense courses offered by the school First Aid is the most useful. The war has merely been an instrument to bring the usefulness of knowing First Aid to the majority of students. It is not necessary to quote figures to acquaint you with the number of accidents occurring daily, most of which need real emergency treatment. Lack of correct knowledge in such treatment often results in serious injuries or in some cases death. First Aid, therefore, is something that well could be a required subject, but since it isn't, all we can do is urge all Rollins students to take this course, not to get credit, not a patriotic gesture, but in order to learn a subject which is always helpful.

This term, the beginners' course is being conducted. In addition, there is an advanced course, which besides teaching the first aider more about his subject, is required for auto mechanics and nursing. So come on, Rollins students, and join the First Aid classes.

NO 12—ROLLINS GIRLS AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

by Dodo Bundy

Several groups on campus have been on the mum side regarding their activities toward National Defense and we feel that someone should take it upon himself to bring their noteworthy deeds to the attention they deserve. Quite some time ago, for instance, and very little was said about it, both the Kappa Alpha Theta, and the Kappa Kappa Gamma, sororities generously donated a large sum of money to the Winter Park Red Cross headquarters where it was effectively used for National Defense measures. Sacrificing their savings which had been set aside for their annual college Dance seems to be a swell gesture on their part and certainly shows their spirit in Uncle Sam's Defense emergency.

Of more current action, another contribution toward National Defense which I know of, was done by the campus group of Alpha Phi's. They were interested in doing something for the partly furnished Recreation room in the new Hospital at the Orlando Air and four chairs to help make the soldiers' leisure hours more comfortable.

The Chi Omega's recently put on an activity for the benefit of a Defense organization right here on home grounds — the student unit of "Bundles for America". The Chi Omega sorority sponsored a Bridge Tea which was well attended and the profits of which were donated to the Rollins "Bundles" unit. This was a mighty nice thing for them to do, what with putting so much time and energy into the occasion and I know that the "Bundles" group is grateful. Members of the Sorority served a very delicious tea and the successful affair wound up with the awarding of prizes to the bridge winners. Several residents of Winter Park who were unable to attend the Benefit purchased tickets just the same, which goes to show the spirit the townspeople have in wanting to support student activities in behalf of Defense.

No doubt most of you already know about the very fine Radio Program which was so effectively presented by Pris Thompson, Mary Jane Metcalf, and Philippa Herman. Well, their fine presentation of an account of Rollins' participation in National Defense was so well done that Mrs. Latham, prominent member of the Defense Council in Washington, who heard the program during her recent visit to Winter Park, made a special request for a copy of the script. Nice work, Pris, Jerry, and Philippa!

As a result of the heavy studies which always accompany the end of a term, activities in the "Bundles" sewing room in the Alumni House suffered a brief let down but now that term papers and exams are a part of the dark past, activity is getting under way again. The group is having difficulty getting more wool for knitted garments but there are still several garments which require sewing. It is very simple work to do so remember — if you have the urge and the time to help, a few minutes of sewing each afternoon will all add up to a completed garment for some needy member of Uncle Sam's service.

NO 3—ALICE COOPER WINS

Alice Cooper, freshman member of the Rollins speech department, tied for first place in the extemporaneous speaking contest held in Atlanta, at the conference of the Southern Teachers of Speech. Tom Fruin won second place in one afterdinner speaking contest and fourth place in another. All in all, Rollins representatives gained as many victories as losses in the contests which they entered.

Although the number of first places might not be as high as desired, the conferences offer excellent opportunity for speakers to gain experience unobtainable at home. Contests are given in all types of speaking—debating, extemporaneous, and after dinner speeches.

Dr. Pierce, head of the Rollins speech department, accompanied the ten debaters from the college. About twenty-five other universities and colleges of the South were represented.

The program ended in a banquet after which Tom Fruin told of his escape from Europe in the path of the Nazi conquerors.

WEINBERG DENIES MURDER

Prexy Holt Drafted; No Successor Named Yet

Sudden Call was Unexpected, Kept Secret Until Yesterday's Departure

The Call of Duty has come to Rollins' first citizen and he has answered it unflinchingly. President Hamilton Holt has received his call from the Orange County Draft Board No. 49, and will report to Camp Blanding to enter the U.S. Army tomorrow morning.

A gigantic parade of all Rollins students, faculty, staff, alumni, and trustees accompanied the College's beloved "Prexy" to the station this morning to give him a send-off in fitting tribute to his many years of devoted service to Rollins. Led by the Central Florida Symphony Orchestra, a long train of humanity moved from the Great Outdoor Amphitheatre in the Sandspur Bowl to the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad station. Saddened students and faculty held their heads high and eyes bright with just the suggestion of a tear, sad at the parting but happy that Prexy had had his opportunity to do his patriotic bit for his country.

At a gigantic assembly held in the Sandspur Bowl before the parade, the regrets of the whole Rollins "Family" were expressed at Dr. Holt's departure. W. R. O'Neal, chairman of the Board of Trustees, expressed the official regret of the College's governing board at losing the man who had been so influential in building Rollins up to the position that it holds today. Student President A. Carload Tolson likewise expressed the extreme sorrow of the student body at losing the invaluable guidance and

Beanery to Procure Vault to Protect Vital Sugar Supply

Foolproof Dispensers For Tables Also Obtained To Stop Sugar-Snatchers

Ass't. Commons Director Mrs. Haggerty announced this week the purchase by the College of a concrete-and steel vault to be installed in the Commons and to contain the College's carefully-conserved supply of sugar.

The vault was constructed by O'Rourke, O'Callahan, O'Halloran, O'Clock, and Smith and Company of Louisville, Kentucky, the contractors who provided the U.S. Government with the safest vaults in the world for the storage of the Treasury gold supply. It will be installed as soon as Finkelstein and Company finish work on the air-raid shelter for the White House in Washington. Mr. Smith will then be made an honorary alumnus of Rollins.

The vault is to have twelve-foot-thick walls of concrete, which will enclose a chamber of two-foot-thick case-hardened steel alloy. Between the two walls there will be a 6 inch space containing lethal gas, which if it were released by some criminal or saboteur attempting to raid the Beanery sugar supply would instantly kill anyone within a ten-mile radius. The door, also of twelve-foot-thick concrete, will

Wilhite Gives New Dorm to Grace the Rollins Lake Front

Holt Announces Coed's Gift To Delta Chi's at Daily Press Conference

A grateful student of Rollins today announced that, in appreciation for all that Rollins had done for her, she was going to donate to the College a new dormitory, to be named after herself, in memory of many happy times spent here.

Miss Jenelle Wilhite of Atlanta, Georgia, made the announcement from the office of President Holt this morning, saying, "Rollins has done so much for me in my six years here that I feel I owe something in return for all joys and benefices that I have received. I have thought long as to what would be the most appropriate thing that I could do for the College and have finally decided that a new men's dormitory to house the only remaining unhoused fraternity on campus is the most appropriate gift. I am therefore presenting Rollins with a new dormitory to be known as Wilhite's Woo House, and to house the Delta Chi Fraternity." Miss Wilhite then broke into tears of joy and could not be reached for further comment.

According to President Hamilton Holt, who gladly accepted the gift on behalf of the Board of Trustees and the students and faculty, the new dormitory will be on a grandiose scale and will be built on the present site of the rifle range and telescope, extending out over the lake for several hundred yards.

The chief feature of interest in the exterior of the building will be a gigantic statue of Miss Wilhite, clad in shining armour, and carrying a torch of liberty, riding a flaming white charger madly across the roof of the building, which will also be used for sun-bathing. The building will be built of purple stucco, in keeping with the style of architecture of the rest of the campus, and will be the largest building at Rollins when completed.

On the first floor there will be seven drawing rooms for the use of the members of the fraternity during the day time, a recreation room containing ping pong tables,

Buckwalter Named Head Sugar Warden

New Appointee Sets Up Elaborate System of Deputy Wardens

Colonel John J. Thomas, civilian aide to the State Director of Civilian Defense, announced last night the appointment of John Henry Buckwalter III of the Rollins College Faculty as Chief Sugar Warden for Rollins College, and as Coordinator of Sugar Ration for all of Orange County. Mr. Buckwalter will be in charge of direct rationing for the College and will supervise the activities of local boards in every community in the County.

In making his announcement Col. Thomas said, "Mr. Buckwalter has been chosen for this highly-important post because of his indefatigable interest in and devotion to the ideals of democracy and sugar-rationing. He was the most eminently qualified man available and we have fullest confidence in his ability to carry out his mission."

Mr. Buckwalter's new duties will be in addition to his already arduous ones as chief cook and bottle-washer of the Dramatic Department. He will serve with only nominal compensation of $1.00 per year.

His first official act was to appoint a corps of deputy district sugar wardens whose duty it will be to supervise all precinct sugar wardens in the district of the College Commons. Precinct sugar wardens will be selected by deputy wardens,

Reilly's Wardens Driven Off After Vain Attempt To Rescue Him From Jail

As agents of the FBI, local and state constabulary, and members of Dean Enyart's private gestapo investigated every nook and cranny of the campus today, seeking frantically for any clue to the perpetrator of this vile crime, Reilly Weinberg continued to deny emphatically and without hesitation all accusations of guilt in the blood-bath killing of a Rollins student here last week.

FBI Agents had kept the whole affair highly confidential up until press time, but diligent investigation by Sandspur reporters brought to light the facts in the case so far. A virtual press blackout of the whole matter was broken through this afternoon when the Rollins Sandspur "broke" the story, revealing to the public for the first time the facts of the case.

Late last week, Dean Arthur D. Enyart called in the local police, when it was found that his personal bodyguard of elite troops could not handle the situation. The Winter Park constabulary, bewildered by the innumerable angles to baffling problems offered by the case, called in members of the district office of the state police, who in turn turned the whole matter over to the FBI. FBI agents arrived from Pahokee last Saturday morning where they had been engaged in the investigation of the sabotaging of a large secret war-production plant, which was producing red tape for Congress to

"Beautiful People" Opens Tonight Despite Bombing

Buckwalter's Laboratory Players Give Saroyan Play Wed. and Thurs.

A bomb of undetermined origin exploded last night at eleven o'clock in the Laboratory Theatre following the final dress rehearsal of the Rollins Laboratory Players production of THE BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE. At the present writing there is only one known casualty although several of the cast are still suffering from shell shock. The casualty, Tad Cist, was taken immediately to the Rollins Infirmary where he was given treatment for an injured foot. There is danger of spread of the infection.

A Sandspur reporter rushed to the scene of the catastrophe and found Director John Buckwalter wandering around amid the ruins of his setting. One entire section of the house had been blown away. Director Buckwalter had this to say, "THERE WILL DEFINITELY BE A PERFORMANCE OF THE BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE" TONIGHT AND TOMORROW NIGHT AT 8:15, IN THE LABORATORY THEATRE. I do not know who is responsible for this outrage, but our show is going on even if I have to play all the parts myself and be the audience at the same time. The F.B.I. is already at work on the case and they have several leads which cannot be given to the papers yet. As soon as an arrest is made, the police will let you know.

"Tad Cist's injury will make it impossible for him to appear in the play tonight or tomorrow, but P. Richard Kelly has consented to step into the part at the last minute and is now learning the lines. I have nothing but admiration for the fine spirit of the cast and crew who insisted in going ahead with the play as scheduled. I express their sentiments in saying that we are looking forward to the privilege of presenting this Saroyan play to local audiences for such a nominal admission. You know, of course, it's only 20c for the college and 35c for the general public. These prices include tax, too."

James Niver was asked to give his account of the accident. Niver was confined to his bed suffering

Norwegian Luminosity Replaces Yust

Another famous author has graced our midst. He is Peter Ibbetson, famous Norwegian playwright, who is taking over the library position held by Mr. Yust for the past few years. Mr. Ibbetson has written over one hundred and fifty plays in his native tongue, many of which have been translated into English and have become smash hits on Broadway. Among these are "A Doll's House," "Peer Gynt," (which he later made into a symphony), and "Hedda Gabler." These plays are almost always based on social problems, with love as the final solution; his works in general are characterized by hatred of sham, hypocrisy, and at times become bitter and cynical. One of his little known works is a broad farce in the Kaufman-Hart style "No Beer Today"; it was written and produced on Broadway in 1897, starring the Gibson girls, and closed after the third performance. Buckwalter is considering it for the next Laboratory Theatre production, if the Student Players don't put it on first.

Stone Warns Housemoms Of Impending New Order

Dean-elect Wendell C. Stone prophesied "bigger and better things to come, in spite of, or perhaps because of the sacrifices we are making to win this war," in his talk before the Tuesday evening meeting of the Housemother's Bridge Club last night. Outlining the New Order for Rollins, Dr. Stone began with the particulars and worked over to the general in his four hour talk last night. He revealed to an avid, eager audience that his studies of the history of philosophy, especially that of the Greeks and of the thirteenth century western Europeans, had convinced him that modern education, while valuable in its psychological aspects, is not stressing the right subjects.

"Take rhetoric, for example; here at Rollins we relegate it to a wooden shack down back of Cloverleaf. And take the philosophy. That, too, is relegated to a wooden shack at the far end of the Horseshoe, while the sciences, which are not the cultural subjects of a dilettante, are housed in a large brick building with tiled roof over-

There will also be a kitchen and dining room for the use of the members desiring to arise later in the morning than the Beanery provides for, and to provide refreshments during the day time. No provision has been made for study rooms.

On the second floor will be the living quarters of the members. Separate suites containing living room, bedroom, study and bath have been provided for each person. Miss Wilhite felt that this would not allow sufficient space for freedom of action, but Dr. Holt assured her that eminent psychologists assured him that it would be quite adequate.

The third floor will be given over to servants quarters and service rooms, such as laundry, dry cleaning establishment, post office, etc.

A separate annex has been provided for Miss Wilhite's personal use when returning to the College for visits. It will be known as "The Palace" and will be used exclusively by Miss Wilhite.

President Holt expressed his ex-

This week we have a story to tell. However, we find it very difficult to decide just how it should be told. You see, it's no ordinary story,—it's one of those stories that can be completely misinterpreted if the reader gets himself into the wrong frame of mind. So, dear reader, please disabuse yourself at the start, of any notion of irregularity of behavior in the tale that we are about to tell. You see, it happend this way . . .

Once upon a time, not so very long ago, just last week in fact, one of our local celebrities decided that a little picnic in the country might be an interesting and enjoyable way of spending the evening. So, he set forth with his lady fair and ventured far out into the wilderness to some god-forsaken spot where even the names of the rivers can't be pronounced. By the time that he got there, you must realize, he was what the poets of yore would have called "far from the beaten track." In fact there was very little track at all, and absolutely no beating of it. It hadn't even been walked on in years.

He finally parked the car, gathered together food, companion, etc., and set out for the banks of the turbid Amazon, or whatever that river was called. Arriving thereon he and his lady pitched camp, so to speak, and proceeded to make the best of their little meal. So far, everything was in order you see.

However, this peaceful state of affairs did not long endure. Pretty soon it started to rain, or at any rate that's the story we are told and expected to believe. It rained so hard that the road, such as it was, just washed away, and, can you imagine it, there they were miles and miles from nowhere with a perfectly good car and no road to run it on. A very precarious position you can see. And one which might prove embarrassing. It did.

By this time it was naturally late at night. It always is at that point. What was our hero to do? Take his lady fair upon his back and strike out across the wilderness? Rebuild the road with only the strength of his bare hands? Build a raft and float down the river? Or just sit and meditate in the faith that God would provide?

Well, what would you do?

That's what he did, too. At any rate they got home by noon the next day, so what's anyone to complain about?

In case anyone is still with us, and just in case he has some spark of curiosity left in him, we'll give you a hint as to who it might be: Along the Sidelines was very late coming in this week.

We understand from usually reliable sources that the Deans' Rule forbidding women to enter men's dormitories except when the Resident Head is present has been repealed. At least that's what we hear. We are relieved to know that no longer will Profs. Steel, Forte, and Weinberg have to dash madly from their classrooms, so that somebody's girls-friend can come in to make a fourth for bridge.

This column was censored the last time it appeared in these waters, and we wish to register a journalistic protest right here and now. We not only object to censorship on the grounds of freedom of speech, but also on the grounds that that was the only good thing in the column last week so they had to cut it out. It's very discouraging.

5-GOOD FRIDAY and EASTER SUNDAY Services

CHOIR CONCERT

Sunday, March 29, 1942, the Rollins College Chapel Choir made their second appearance of the year away from Winter Park, presenting two services at the First Congregational Church in St. Petersburg, Florida. This trip has become almost an annual tradition in the choir's several appearances throughout the state, having been repeated for the last five or six years. This year proved no exception as a proof of the choir's reputation and popularity as near capacity congregations attended both the afternoon and evening service, instituted last year in place of a single service in the evening to accommodate the increasing attendance.

The Chapel Choir under the direction of Christopher O. Honaas sang two chorals for The Passion According to St. John, "Jesu Thou My Consolation," and "Lord Jesus, Thy Dear Angel Seed" by Bach, "Tenebrae Factae Sunt" by Palestrina, and "Ave Verum" by Byrd. The Male Chorus sang another chorale "O How Shall I Receive Thee" by Teschner and "Landsighting" by Greg. The latter, a stirring piece of choral literature especially suited to men's voices, will be sung as one of the contest numbers by the male chorus in the Fred Waring "Pleasure Time National College Glee Club Competition."

Dr. Hamilton Holt, President of Rollins College, gave a brief address concerning the Choir and the College, and the Choir concluded the service with four anthems. "Blessed Is He Who Cometh"—Gounod, "Praise Ye The Lord"—Arensky, "Salvation Is Created"—Tschernokoff, "A Poor Wayfaring Stranger"—Jackson-Gatwood, and looking beautiful Lake Virginia." Dr. Stone said that a long study of educational methods through the ages had shown him what he believes is the best kind of institution for higher learning. That is the reason, he explained, that he is now working toward making Rollins a model of a medieval university, where students may come to study the trivium and quadrivium. "The college of tomorrow," he boomed in his stentorian voice, "especially Rollins, will be based on the medieval style, but with better toilet facilities."

Dean-elect Stone concluded by outlining the New Order thusly:

get involved in. Dropping all other matters, they rushed here to take over the case, because of its definitely national aspects.

G-men soon uncovered the few facts in the case which are as yet unknown to anyone. According to reports of the matter which the Sandspur has been able to assemble from eye-witnesses and others connected with the crime, early Saturday morning sometime between 3:30 and 4 a.m., Carl Jones, a member of the Dean of Men's private investigating force, while on his regular nightly patrol of dormitories, slipped when coming up the stairs of Hooker Hall and fell, breaking both his legs and his pimento fracturus. This, of course, made it difficult for him to walk. Coordinator Hugh Ross and his First Aid Squad arrived on the scene in a trice, it being necessary to travel in such a manner due to the tire shortage. Finding Mr. Jones lying uncomfortably draped over the front of Ellie Wynne's car before Hooker Hall, they removed him forcibly from the car and reassembled his pieces in accordance with the best principles of medical surgery. It soon became evident that the blood that covered the sidewalk from Hooker to Rollins Hall could not all have come from Mr. Jones, as he was still alive, although protesting but feebly.

Aided by his troupe of bloodhounds, Campus Detective John Liberman, who had by that time arrived on the scene, followed the trail of blood into Hooker Hall. There flowing from under the first door on the right was a trickle of blood, such as Mr. Liberman had not seen since the last World Series when the Dodgers so unfortunately encountered the Yankees in the precincts of Brooklyn. Mr. Liberman wisely retired, considering with great logic that this was a situation calling for handling by higher authority.

Chief of Staff Robert Whiston then having arrived on the scene, he took command. The investigation was prosecuted further, but it soon developed that the door from under which the aforementioned blood was spurting was locked. Again Coordinator Ross was called into action. He hurled his massive bulk against the door, which opened obligingly in the face of overwhelming odds. Then the true extent of the crime was revealed!

There upon the bed lay Reilly Weinberg, sleeping — or so it appeared — soundly and innocently. From the wide-open bathroom door flowed the blood, upon which floated occasionally little wooden boats or a cake of soap. In the bathtub, just barely visible above the sea of blood, was the figure of a dead man. From the shower-curtain-rod hung a double-bladed woodsman's axe, covered with blood and with bits of flesh still clinging to it. In the corner a small cannon, a Browning machine gun, and an old machete, all of which had obviously been used.

The investigators began to realize that perhaps they were confronted with a situation that was somewhat out of the usual line of things, a situation that might even prove unique in their experience, past, present, and future. This they wisely felt called for expert guidance. Douglas Bills was called in.

Further investigation by Mr. Bills and The FBI established that the corpus delicti was the property of one of the local citizenry, although it was impossible to determine the exact identity without a careful examination of the bridgework. The head of the corpse was therefore removed and sent to the Department of Justice in Washington for expert analysis and investigation. The rest of the corpse was returned to Cloverleaf for safekeeping, as Mr. Weinberg objected to sharing his bed with it.

Through 65 hours of third degree by the authorities, Mr. Weinberg stoutly denied any knowledge of or connection with the awful crime. According to his story which is unsubstantiated by any external evidence as yet, he went to bed early on Friday night, being tired out from a long, hard struggle with a difficult problem in higher mathematics involving the addition of 2 and 2. Being naturally a heavy sleeper, he had not noticed anything until the investigators broke into his room at 4:23:37 a.m. according to his chronometer.

The police, however, were highly suspicious of this story, as all windows to the room are barred and the door locked only from the inside. It did not seem logical to them that the bathtub, which Mr. Weinberg claims was empty when he used it for its accustomed function earlier in the evening, should suddenly invest itself with a corpse spouting blood from out of the blue, blue beyond. They therefore continued the investigation.

A further grilling of Weinberg, including such extreme measures as exposure to Eddie Waite's highly-scented feet, failed to elicit any information from that source.

A search of Weinberg's room revealed large stores of arms and ammunition, all of it stamped with the legend "Made in Japan. No Scratchee Paint". Highly suspicious, the FBI demanded an explanation. Weinberg replied that the arms were for the use of his air-raid wardens corps in case of landings by enemy parachute troopers.

The Sandspur also learned that at a secret signal from Weinberg his select warden corp made a swift attack, similar to those of the British Commandos, on the Winter Park Jail in order to free him, but were repulsed by a squadron of Flying Fortresses from the Orlando Air Base and were also to be used to repel attempting raids by Phi Deltas on the Lambda Chi ice box and Reilly's sleep.

The FBI is continuing the investigation with great efficiency and application. The private corps of the Dean of Men's office is pursuing a private investigation. The Sandspur is doing its own investigating. Even Bundles for America is taking a hand, feeling that it's crocheting interests are being jeopardized by an attempt at slandering their mainstay Mr. Weinberg.

Mr. Weinberg is a prominent member of the faculty of Rollins College, professor of mathematics, Field Marshall in the Army of Lake Virginia, General-in-Charge of Air Raid, Fire, First Aid and Miscellaneous Wardens, Marshall of all Rollins parades, processions, etc., and the proud possessor of the largest voice in the smallest space of anyone in the South.

out just six spoonfuls of sugar during any one six hour period, so that each person at the table may have one spoonful of sugar during each meal. Special apparatus is provided for the apprehension of anyone attempting to fool the dispenser into any false donations of sugar.

Three armored cars have been provided by the contractors for the transportation of the sugar from the vault to the tables at meal times. A special corps of highly-trained sugar guards is also being imported from Puerto Rico for duty on these armored cars.

Sugar will be dispensed to each table only five minutes before Beanery opens and no one will be allowed to leave the premises until all Dispensers are returned to the vault. This is to prevent any attempts at sabotage or sugar-smooching which might otherwise occur.

Said Commons Director Stuart Haggerty after completing a survey of his new Sugar System: "We feel that this is the best method by which to handle the situation. It is expensive and entails much more work for us; however, we too are willing to do anything that we can in the prosecution of the war effort. It is our patriotic duty to conserve sugar and the College, and I will do all in our power to do so. No sacrifice is too great."

from shock and third-degree sun burn. He said, "I'd like to get my bunnies) who did this. As soon as the play's over I'm going to do a little investigating on my own. I know there are certain people on campus who would stop at nothing to get this part away from me. You can tell them for me that they can throw as many bombs as they want to and I'll catch them and throw them right back. Tell my public that I'll be there tonight and tomorrow night and I'll still be able to sign autographs after the show."

Presly Wetherell, who was walking past the Laboratory Theatre when the explosion occurred gave an eye-witness version of the story. "I was walking along singing that solo from THE GONDOLIERS which I do so well when all of the sudden I heard a terrible explosion and saw a tree shooting through the roof of the Lab Theatre with Bob Krell dangling from a stage brace. He had a horrified expression on his face which I'll never forget. I thought I heard him say something about back water, but, of course, there was such a din, I can't be sure. I waited until the explosions had stopped before I entered the building. The auditorium was a shambles with chairs and pieces of painted cloth everywhere. I approached Buckwalter who seemed unhurt and found him mumbling. 'Let's do that scene again and put feeling into it this time.' Tonie Knight was over in a corner applying first aid to Tad Cist. She was sitting on his chest saying, 'Out goes the bad air, in comes the good.' I learned later that they had to take him to the Infirmary. Dorothy Siegle, John Twachtman, and John Harris were gathered in a little group around Bob Hanna who had kept on playing WONDERFUL ONE during the explosion. He afterwards remarked that no one had given him his cue to stop and as the curtain didn't close he kept right on playing. I hear he may get a Congressional Medal for bravery under fire. That's about all I know for the air raid wardens descended on the building at that time. They thought

No two of the combinations will be entrusted to the same person, so that it will be impossible for anyone to do an "inside job" on the Rollins sugar stores.

A corps of armed guards is to be organized by Field Marshall Weinberg in charge of campus anti-sabotage activities, which will patrol all ground within a radius of 100 yards of the sugar supply 24 hours a day. Two 16 inch rifles have been obtained from the U.S. Navy with which to arm the guard company, and they will also be supplied with smaller arms.

The Orlando Air Base has agreed to maintain a constant aerial patrol over the sugar supply, and two squadrons of fighter planes have been assigned to this duty.

Sugar bowls will be replaced by specially-built automatic sugar dispensers made of six-inch armor plate. These dispensers will give

ALONG THE SIDELINES

By David Low

Dear Reader:

We promise we won't mix champagne, rum, vodka, Benedectine, and gin and tonics again. Throughout the dim mist along the sidelines we see that the faculty is finally coming into its own on the athletic forefront, and from now on will share top billing along with Alden in this column, as well as in the intramural race.

It seems that a number of the coeds on campus are up in arms over the fact that their usually dutiful swains spend their entire time on the golf course practicing for the intermural golf tournament while the girls are forced to sit at home and knit. Perhaps these lovely ladies might try taking up golf.

The old saying "Tell it to the Marines" may well be applied to our football team. Last week such of our stars as Grady Ray, Bill Justice, Billy Middlebrooks, and six or seven others of the stalwart crew signed up in the candidates for commission class of the Marine Corps. They will be called to duty as soon as they finish their college career.

It appears that another one of Rollins famous sports figures has declared that marriage is a great institution, for we saw in Sunday's paper that Tiny Phillips and Betty Bundeson are finally married. One of the Starlets on the renowned Delta Chi football team, upon hearing the news candidly asked "Who's that, that went wrong?" We do not feel quite as pessimistic on the subject and want to take this opportunity to congratulate them both.

We are beginning to wonder if there is much use in writing this column. Football comes but once a year and the rest of the sports world seems to center about the intramurals and Bobby Brokaw's dissertations on the New York Giants. Intramurals are pretty well covered in other columns and any sane person would rather hear Bobbie's opinions on her than see them in cold and very uninteresting print.

It appears that Bill Justice has fully recovered from the crew race in which he rode the runners all the way from the Cypress trees to the finish and is now seen on campus without the pillow of which we were all so jealous. We were awfully sorry to hear, speaking of sickness, that Doc. Adams was in the hospital with appendicitis. A large part of the intramurals rest on his shoulders and he has managed to be a friend of everybody on the campus in spite of it. We hope to see him around soon.

NO 3—BUCKWALTER AP- POINTED and approved by Mr. Buckwalter. There will be a precinct warden in charge of each table, whose duty it will be to see that no sugar is wasted at his table. Chief Warden Buckwalter has charged all deputies and precinct wardens that it is their duty to conserve the sugar of the nation, and that conservation must be practiced to the last grain of sugar.

Heavy fines will be imposed on anyone who drops sugar on the floor, and criminal prosecutions will be instituted against those who deliberately waste any amount of sugar, no matter how small. Those who are guilty of minor offences will be deprived of their sugar privileges for a period of time that varies according to the gravity of the offense.

Chief Warden Buckwalter has appointed the following as Deputy District Sugar Wardens: Monkey Wing, Henry Melhado; Football Wing, Barbara Brown; Main Dining Room, northern district, Carl

Fowler; Main Dining Room, southern section, Dorothy Robinson; Faculty Wing, Miss Ellen V. Apperson; Theta Wing, Janet Jones. Sugar Wardens for Waiters Beantery are John Powell and Mrs. Haggerty.

Complete instructions concerning the conservation and proper use of sugar will be issued through the Precinct Wardens as soon as they can be appointed and installed. All loyal citizens should be careful to obey implicitly the orders of the sugar warden.

NO 2

This week inaugurates the beginning of another sport, which will play a big part in the Gary Cup race. Volleyball will hold the athletic forefront for a short time and although it is followed by, and even perhaps overshadowed by the more popular sport of diamondball, may well decide who is to be the winner of the much coveted, and at last located Gary Cup. Last years winners of the Volleyball trophy, the X Club, face the onslaught of the other campus organizations with a very much weakened team. The K.A.'s on the other hand and some of the other houses should be even better than last year, and should be able to put up a pretty good fight. Tuesday the Phi Deltas and Lambda Chi face the Sigma Nus and Delta Chi respectively in the opener while the Delta Chi and Lambda Chi face

NO 2—LAMBA CHIS TIE

The K.A.'s have finally been overhauled in the race for possession of the Gary Cup. Overtaken, but still not passed. Last week the last doubt was erased as to the identity of the team which would threaten the recent leaders when a quintet of Lambda Chi stalwarts marched through to the semi-final round of the men's Doubles Championships. In the end it was the top Lambda Chi duo of McCluskey and Tolson that marched off the courts triumphant. These victories, combined with Clumsky's earlier solid defeat of Barker for the Singles title, clinched a tie for leadership with 851 points, thereby marking the first time since after the close of fall term's touch football league that the Kappa Alpha men have been toppled from their lofty perch.

In the Doubles tourney, old reliable Dick Kelly ambled onto the courts as a substitute for the ailing Bill Royall and, teamed with Hank Melhado, marched through two teams to reach the semi-finals against Tolson and Clumsky. It was this ability to come through after having been practically counted out that gave the Lambda Chi men the chance to pop through with enough points to overtake the leaders. Their teammates' victories were all the inspiration that Clumsky and Tolson needed, with the result that this duo went out in the final round against Phi Deltas Ollie Barker and Red Green and mopped up the courts with their opponents after four hard and heavy sets of the best tennis seen on Rollins' courts for some time. The Phi Delta team won the first set at 6-3 and took a quick 3-1 lead in the second before being taken over the hurdles in the final result. After this fourth game, Clumsky and Tolson awoke to the fact that the enemy was progressing much too fast for anyone's good and really opened up with their big guns for the first time in the match, with the result that the second set was won at 7-5 by McCluskey and Tolson. The final two sets were run off in hard-fought games but the outcome was never in doubt after that break through in the second set. The scores of the last sets were 6-4, 6-4.

This win of the Lambda Chi outfit proved once again that it will undoubtedly be this fraternity that will fight it down to the wire for the right to ownership of the Gary Cup with the K.A. men. The only time that K.A. hasn't led the race was directly following touch foot-the X Club and the K. A.'s respectively in the second game. After these games are played much more can be said about the probable outcome of the season. A large question mark on the schedule this year will be the appearance of the faculty club on the courts. Owing to the extreme importance of every point in the Gary Cup race this year, and also the number of houses standing a chance to win it, this may turn into one of the big sports of this year. Although this writer had some luck in his predictions of the tennis tournament, he feels that he should rest on his laurels and allow the reader to make his or her own predictions.

Termite Boring Power Harnessed to Defense

At the annual meeting of the "Preservation of Ancient Termites" Club last Wednesday at the Annie Russell Theatre Dr. Hepzibah Wood, founder and former chairman of the board of the Wood Exterminating Company of Boston, proposed six new resolutions to the Club's constitution, dealing with methods to harness to war work the tremendous boring power of the nation's termites.

"Intensive research over the past many years," stated Wood, "has definitely proved that the termite of the eastern species invariably bores holes in the shape of an epicycloidic inverted hyperbola on a parabolic bias. All we would have to do to harness this wonderful power is to build all our bolts in this shape. Then we could set all the termites which this Club has been training for the last ten years on pieces of wood and even soft iron through which we want to put bolts. The termites would eventually bore a hole in the desired place on the material even if they eat it all away first. In this way countless men and machines who are now boring holes could be released for other and more important work." This resolution was received with much enthusiasm and the club appointed a committee consisting of Alden Manchester and Dwight Johnston to take charge of the publicity and economics, respectively.

ball which the Lambda Chi men took. Ever since that time it has been K.A., K.A., and more K.A., so that this break through on the other team's part is more than welcome at this time. Even more dangerous for the K.A. outlook is the fact that volleyball, diamondball, and golf are all coming along with in the next week or two. In fact, the qualifying round for golf has been shot and it was Lambda Chi who started off well again. From this time until the final game of Intramurals in May, the race looks to be fast and close.

No 3—Varsity Rows Against

Brad will be under observation again next week when the Rollins Varsity Crew opens the season against American International Institute of Springfield, Mass. It is rumored that an eminent New York Psychologico — spiritualist has been summoned to watch for what is feared to be interstitial aqua-propelous. There has been increasing fear that Brad is a victim of this dreadful malady since his attempt to smoke two cigarettes at once down in New Orleans.

There was a shake-up in the boat last week as Brad tried to mold together the smoothest possible outfit. Bill Chadbourne came down to Rollins from the Yale Frosh Crew and is now in the number five seat pulling for all of his six feet six. Mickey Harmon is the stroke, Grady Ray No. 7, Buddy Bryson

No. 6, A. C. Tolson No. 4, Frank Grundler, the captain, No. 3, Red Harris No. 2, Bud Waddell No. 1 and Tom Royall is the cox. Buddy and Red are untried in varsity competition as they came up from the intramural boats to the varsity this year.

A. I. C. has succumbed easily in the last few years and Rollins is not expecting the opener to be very tough. However, Jim Nesworthy, who has rowed the last four years for A. I. C., has started a crew at Tampa this year. He proved that he has a crack bunch by trimming the Asheville School by two lengths on Lake Maitland a week ago last Saturday. Asheville had previously downed the Rollins J. V. by about 2½ lengths.

Tampa looked very strong and there is good chance that they may be able to hand Rollins her second defeat in four years on Lake Maitland when the two eights stroke it out April eleventh. In any event this race promises to be one of the best in this year's abbreviated war schedule.

THIS IS GHASTLY

By Gordon Laughead
WHEN IN ROME . . .

"All is fair in love and war!" This is the basic theory behind the Axis warfare. But even today the United States doctrine as stated in the Field Service Regulations is: "Absolute good faith with the enemy must be observed as a rule of conduct." "The rules of war are legitimate so long as they do not involve treachery or perfidy." These two statements which are supposedly taught to our fighting men, must bring at least a grin from the toughest sergeant in the whole blessed army. Haven't the invasion of Austria, of Poland, the attack on Pearl Harbor and a hundred other treacherous deeds committed by Hitler and his gang of cutthroats sort of disproven this theory of honor among enemies? The Russians, masters of the art of deception, have a nice little answer for this question: "When you live with wolves, you must howl like a wolf!"

Commandos!

If Hitler can have his dive-bombers and parachutists to surprise the enemy and create havoc behind the lines, then Britain counter-attacks with her famous Commandos. This small well-trained army has a two-fold purpose. Their daring attacks on German-held coasts bother hell out of Hitler's men. Also these heroic raids are fuel for war-weary England. We have our MacArthur and the fighting Marines, and Englishmen have that tiny group of dare-devils. The world loves a hero, even a foolish one. So more power to you fellows with your explosive-loaded destroyers, your hit and run tactics and your diehard spirit. You're a shining light to the battered old empire!

Hitler's Bid

The Germans have opened up with fierce counter-attacks in an effort to smash the Russian's advances. This is a costly move. So far these counter-attacks have been repulsed with heavy German losses. This is an indication that Hitler is getting rather desperate.

News of Tomorrow

There are definite signs that a Russian-Japanese war may not be far off. Nothing could be sweeter for the United Nations right at this point than to have Japan tangle with the big bear right in her own back yard. This would relieve the pressure on Australia and Burma to a great extent. This would give us time to get our own war machine moving. Personally, I think Japan is too smart to start any trouble with Russia. But if the Reds could hold off Hitler this summer without too much trouble, they might start to work on Japan near the end of the coming summer. Of course this is a lot of wishful thinking. Somehow, we can't quite swallow the idea that Japan was foolish enough to start a war against Britain and the United States without making definite plans for taking care of Russia in the event of any grief.

There's an outside chance that Japan may try a naval invasion of India if her land army can't get there on schedule. They are collecting material and ships at Singapore and Rangoon. This may indicate a change in the Japanese timetable. They may put India before Australia on their list of future knockouts. But as usual, we're just looking into the old crystal ball and making wild stabs in the dark. This would be a hell of a dull war if the enemy ran true to form every time.

Too Little, Too Late!

The great bottleneck in our war production effort for our far flung troops and allies is the shipping situation. From Washington have come glowing reports of stepped up shipbuilding, way ahead of schedule. But the dark side of the picture is the fact that U. S. ships are being sunk faster than they are being built. That is the real measuring stick to the success of our shipbuilding program.

Today, with our government's taking on the offensive policy in this war, the army is becoming the center of attraction. This war is and will continue to be a land war. Therefore men are needed. Men registered between the ages thirty-six and forty-four may get by this year, but next year the army will get them. Men from forty-five to sixty-four were not registered for the fun of it. Women may even be called. In sort, the government is really going to crack down. It has to in order to win this brawl. The sooner America forgets this "They can't do this to me" attitude the better off we'll be. Because, buddy, they can, and by damn they're going to in the near future!

inspiration of the man who had served Rollins so well and faithfully for 17 years. Professor Audrey Packham of the Education Department spoke for the Faculty and staff.

As Dr. Holt rose to reply to the tributes of students, trustees, faculty, and staff, a thunderous ovation rent the Great Outdoor Amphitheatre and he found it impossible to make himself heard. He stood for five minutes and finally sat down, having been unable to say a word. Then the giant parade formed and wended its way to the station, with members of Jack McDowell's football team carrying Pres. Holt on their shoulders. Winter Park police cooperated by re-routing all traffic off of Park Avenue.

Dr. Holt's ambitions for his military future were disclosed to a Sandspur reporter just a few minutes before he left Winter Park.

His hope was, he said, to become a parachute trooper in a ski battalion, as he felt that there he would see the most action.

The Board of Trustees will make no statement concerning a possible successor for Dr. Holt, but several candidates were considered likely. Most prominently mentioned was the late Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. However, it was considered that it was extremely unlikely that he would accept the position. Also mentioned frequently was Gen. Douglas MacArthur; however, many felt that he would find that he was too busy at present to accept the responsibility. Others considered as likely prospects for the position were: Wendell Wilkie, Carl Fowler, Abe Simon, P. Richard Kelly, Buddha.

NATION'S FRONT

It's Chesterfield

WHEREVER YOU FIND A BLUEJACKET
YOU'LL FIND CHESTERFIELD. On PT-boat, sub or battle-wagon, they give smokers
a lot more pleasure.
