Freshman Class Votes in Run-Offs for New Officers

Large Number of Nominees Necessitates Several Election Sessions

On Friday, November 19, the first of the freshman elections was held at the Center from one until four o'clock. Those nominated for the office of president of the class were: Molly Rugg, Janet Haas, Betty Rosenquest, Andy Brainard, Babe Wolf, and Anita Rodenbaeck. For presidential nominees were: Pat Bastion, Barbara Stanley, Priscilla Castle, Jean Pritchard, and Jim Robinson. Pat Coerper, Charlotte Cranmore, Marilyn Miller, Elizabeth Hensen, Ann Le Duc, Ann Howell, Vera Wagner, and Billy Mansfield were nominated for the position of secretary-treasurer.

Following this election and the counting of the votes, several eliminations were made. The remaining candidates were Betty Rosenquest, Babe Wolf, and Anita Rodenbaeck for president, Pat Bastion, Priscilla Castle, Jean Pritchard, and Jim Robinson for vice-president, and Marilyn Miller, Elizabeth Hensen, and Ann Le Duc for secretary-treasurer.

At the second run-off on Monday of this week, further eliminations resulted, leaving as candidates for the next election Betty Rosenquest and Anita Rodenbaeck for president, Priscilla Castle and Jim Robinson for vice president and Marilyn Miller, Elizabeth Hensen and Ann Le Duc for secretary-treasurer.

The final results will appear in next week's issue.

Mme. Boecop Authors Book Called 'Kingtree'

Question: What does Baroness Glette Van Boecop do in her spare time?

Answer: She writes The Kingtree, her latest novel which will be published by Doubleday Doran on January 7.

The action of the whole book centers around a kingtree, a mass tree which grows only in the Dutch Indies. This history of three generations of Dutch planters in Holland and The Indies is full of love and adventure, murder and music. It begins in the latter eighteenth century and continues till the present day, although no reference to the war is made.

The heroine is an American girl, while the hero, Dirk, is Dutch, but with much of the American quality, the Baroness tells us. The other main character is Evert, Dirk's best friend, son of a wealthy baron and grandson of a scoundrel who made the fortune of the family.

The rest the reader will discover for himself. Those who have read and enjoyed Roots, will look forward to The Kingtree, published January 7.

Festival Society Announces Soloists

Bach Rehearsals Continue Under Direction of Honaas

Work on the Bach Festival, to be given February 24 and 25, after having made such an early and promising start, continues as Christopher O. Honaas each week conducts his choir of one-hundred thirty voices through successive choruses of the b minor Mass. This great work, considered Bach's masterpiece, has already been presented at four of the annual festivals, and after this, its fifth presentation, it is to be a permanent part of future festival programs. The other work so far decided upon for this year's festival is Sleepers, Wake! one of the most famous of Bach's short cantatas.

Each of these works contains arias and recitatives which are sung by experienced concert singers. Excepting Lura Stover, who is appearing with the Winter Park group for her first time this year, all these singers have participated in several festivals and have become favorites with both the choir and the audiences who have heard them.

Lydia Summers, contralto, will appear here for her fifth consecutive year. Since her first appearance here interested observers have seen her make a successful debut at Town Hall in New York, and later become a member of the Metropolitan Opera company. Harold Haugh, tenor, will sing here for the fourth time. He is now director of the music department at Oberlin College. J. Alden Edkins, baritone, made his Winter Park debut last year, and his return in February is also eagerly anticipated.

"The Mollusc," which was originally scheduled to play this week, has been postponed until December 9, 10, 11. This, incidentally, will give Rollins students another week to exchange student association cards for reserved seat tickets. Even before "—days til Xmas", the usual cry of this time of year, becomes a marmur, "9 days before The Mollusc," will be the password.

Art Gallery Exhibits Watercolors of Mary Louise McCombs

Rollins College announces the opening on November 26 of an exhibition of paintings and drawings by Marie Louise McComb.

The paintings, mostly watercolors, depict scenes in and around Nantucket, some of old Philadelphia streets, and a few familiar Winter Park themes. Character sketches, hastily jotted down at odd moments, add a note of humor.

Miss McComb studied drawing with Gilbert Gual, N. A., and then entered the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia under Henry McCarter who received his training under the French masters Toulouse Lautrec, Purvis de Chavannes, Bonnat and others.

Miss McComb was awarded a Cresson Scholarship which enabled her to travel through England, France, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Italy. On her return she did many sketches of old Philadelphia streets, which were exhibited a number of times at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. (Continued on Page 3)

STAR Unit Carries on in Starzapoppin'; All Soldier Revue is Undisputed Success

When this country's army sets out to do something it does it well. This fact is being proved daily on the battlefronts, and in a slightly different vein, was reaffirmed last night when the Rollins unit presented Starzapoppin', an all-soldier revue at the Women's Club.

From the moment the audience entered till the final curtain call, no dignitary, either of the civilian or military audience, was spared the playful jesting of the STAR Unit cast. In true Olson and Johnson style, action took place everywhere conceivable in the room, but not before fair warning from Captain Kimball, who also proved to be on the receiving end.

Emceed by the, shall we say, imitable Sergeant Wolfe, the program was presented admission-free to those brave souls who dared to venture in. Suffice it to say that the SRO sign made its appearance long before curtain time, and the well-known sardine didn't stand a chance.

Fifteen numbers in all constituted the revue—a skillful balance of the bawdy and the serious. Scriptwriters who may be held responsible for what continuity such a show may possess were Privates Alan Goldstein and Stan Romaine and Corporal Harry Kirshner.

While it is impossible, and at times inadvisable, to describe each act in its turn, perhaps it is a safe statement to mention that each performer was clearly talented in his own right.

The musical offerings verged closely on the professional side, and in the case of Sol Berkowitz, pianist, hit the nail on the head. Because of the nature of the show, both Pvt. Berkowitz and Pvt. Vladislav Gazik, violinist, confined themselves to music of the lighter type, but it was obvious in both cases that accomplished musicians were at work.

Vocal offerings by a quintet composed of Privates Szabo, Cassidy, and Cohen, and Corporals Hill and Meier consisted of old-time favorites handled in a forthright and harmonious manner. Pvt. Alan Rollin-stones' Goldstein and Pvt. Joseph Corhan rendered vocal solos that brought forth cries for more.

Pvt. Stan Romaine contributed the burlesque element with his "this is none too laughable" parodies on both army and civilian life, which fortunately were subtle enough to permit blank looks on the part of the female contingent in the audience and produce knowing looks and guffaws from the Joes present.

Eight Seniors to Appear in 1943 Collegiate Who's Who

Several Freshmen Rate Superior in Achievement Tests

The Rollins freshman class of this year have made some very good ratings in the testing program being given this term to the freshman class. The program has two main purposes. The first is to derive an understanding of each student in order to aid him in planning his college plan of study, and the second is to discover the outstanding abilities of some of our students. The three types of tests given—achievement tests, aptitude tests, and psychological tests—have been used for freshmen in hundreds of colleges throughout the country.

The results of the tests are determined on a percentile rating. Each score is from 0 to 100 in terms of the percentage of students making scores below this particular score. Students are grouped as "above" the 99th percentile of the country, "very superior" in the top 10 per cent, and "superior" in the top 25 per cent.

The following table of various tests shows the number of "very superior" ratings of Rollins freshmen:

Test	"above"	"very superior"
Linguistic thinking	3	18
English	3	16
Foreign Language Achievement	5	5
Foreign Language Aptitude		11
Social Studies	7	12
Contemporary Affairs		15
Natural Science	2	6
Chemistry Aptitude	2	4
Quantitative Thinking		6
Mathematics Achievement		3

Conservatory Students Offer French Program

Le Cercle Francais will give a concert of French Music at the next meeting which will be held on Friday evening, December 3, at la Maison Provencale. The program starts at 4:30.

An ensemble will be played by Miss Lorraine Crittendon, violinist, and John Carter, pianist.

Miss Lorraine Crittendon, a graduate of Yale University School of Music, was for six years a member of the New Haven Symphony Orchestra and played solo twice. She also played in a quartet coached by the composer, Paul Hindemith. Her violin teacher is Hugo Kortochak.

John Carter, is associate professor of composition and theory, at Rollins, where he received B. M. degree. He has had graduate work a pupil of Roy Harris in composition.

Three Boys and Five Girls Qualify for Nationwide Publication of Records

Each year 600 American colleges and universities select the names of its most deserving students for inclusion in the official Who's Who Among Students In American Universities And Colleges. Students are selected, usually five men and five women, for their high scholastic standing and academic achievements, and leadership in campus activities. All students must be in their senior year in order to be considered for a place in this famous year book.

This year Rollins has selected the names of three men and five women. Dean Cleveland remarked that the college should be proud that it could select eight students of such significance when the registration, especially of men, has been so lowered due to the war.

The eight students selected are: Walter C. Beard, Jr. During 1942-1943, Walter Beard, a science major, was a member of the Chapel staff, and an undergraduate assistant. This year he is chairman of the Chapel staff, chairman of the Chapel ushers, a member of the student-faculty discipline committee, and a fellow of the Scientific Society.

John Bistline, a member of the choir during 1941-1942, this year is president of the Scientific Society and president of the choir. He was also an undergraduate assistant during 1942-1943.

John M. Harris, a member of Kappa Alpha, is this year's president of the Student Association. He has participated widely in fraternity work and many intramural sports.

Lucille David is a member of the choir, the Phi Beta, Key Society, Libra, and a permanent name on the honor roll.

Sarah Ann McFarland Yopp is a member of the International Relations Club, served on the Tomokan staff, is president of Pi Gamma Mu, president of the Florida Student Government Association, comptroller of student funds, vice-president of Kappa Alpha Theta, and is a member of the student-faculty discipline committee.

Jean Hamaker an honor-roll student, was publicity chairman of the French Club, belonged to the International Relations Inner Council, is president of the Florida Intercollegiate Press Association, is vice-president of the Key Society, historian and registrar of Phi Mu. Jean is a member of Libra, a member of the Tomokan Editorial Board, and chairman of Publications Union and is the editor-in-chief of the Sandspur.

Marjorie Hansen, former news editor of the Sandspur, this year is advertising commissioner-business manager of the paper. She belongs to the chapel publicity committee, serves on the Tomokan editorial board, was temporary vice-president of the Student Council, is vice-president of Gamma Phi Beta and is its rush chairman Marjorie.

No Thanks, We Don't Touch the Stuff—

Through the largest and dirtiest crack in our establishment's floor this week came what is generally termed a gossip column of the more venomous variety. Carefully sandwiched in among its vindictive statements was a pseudo-compliment directed at your editor, who nevertheless interpreted it as an insult to her intelligence. Since it was the only halfway decent sentence in the article, it was obviously designed to flatter her into publishing the rest of the tripe. Not very clever, we'd say. That the author is unknown precludes the possibility of printing it, but the other and more important reasons are that it is unkind, highly personal with its author, and badly written.

Gossip columns in college newspapers, aside from being the bane of most editors existence, form a hotly debated topic. Two weeks ago, Furman University, whose Hornet is a really fine paper, outlawed such columns. A furor resulted, with an indignant letter from a still-adolescent alumna and campus opinion forming the major part of the opposition. The Hornet, contrary to its principles, reinstated its column, much to our disappointment. We had hoped that it would win out in its effort to educate the tastes of its readers. However, the column in question at Furman is quite harmless in comparison to those which our student body has been able to produce in many a year.

We of the Sandspur have tried in various ways to substitute for gossip columns. Our ideal column would be a witty, well-written, constructive campus commentary. We have yet to see such a column in our time. "Man's reach must exceed his grasp", yes, but the harder he grasps, the nearer he approximates his ideal, and this week's contribution misses the goal by far. Unless some one comes forth with a column of merit who is not ashamed to affix his signature to, this paper will maintain its unpolluted (which in some minds is synonymous with dull) status quo.

Unassuming yet mighty, sharp and pointed, well-rounded yet many sided, assiduously tenacious, yet as gritty and energetic as its name implies, victorious in single combat and therefore without a peer, wonderfully attractive and extensive in circulation: all these will be found upon investigation to be among the extraordinary qualities of the Sandspur.

What They Think—

Who do you think is the most amusing person on campus and why?

Hannah France: Mackenzie Reid. I've seen her at 12:30 at night.

Marjorie Hough: Hannah France, she walks, she talks, but is she real?

Molly Rugg: The queerest people live in Lakeside. I think there's something funny about everyone.

Eileen Lawless: Mr. MacVeah. I'm worried about him.

Pat Bastian: Sudie is, from heresay, but Jean Ort is just plain crazy. She'll do anything anytime.

Ann Mogford: Nick and Larry. All you have to do is look at them.

Nancy Ragan: Sally Hazelet. She appeals to my kind of humor.

Your Chapel Tower

By DEAN HENRY M. EDMONDS

"What We Have"

Those about the Manger brought what they had. The Wise Men brought rich offerings befitting the station of kings. There is a tradition that the Shepherds brought lambs from their flocks. Mary and Joseph brought love and care.

In Rostard's play, Chanticleer, the old rooster, thinks that his song is the most beautiful in the world—and the most important, since it makes the sun rise. In the forest one night he hears the nightingale for the first time. All life is drawn towards the leafy covert where Philomel is pouring out his limpid notes. Chanticleer finally stands below, bathed in the moonlight and the music. He says:

"Since hearing you I shall never sing again. Oh, to have a song that puts the world to sleep!"

The nightingale replies: "Oh, to have a song that wakes the world!"

"Alas!" says Chanticleer, "My song is too raw and too red."

"Alas!" says Philomel, "My song has always seemed too frail and too blue."

So it is with so many of us. We want some other voice, some other song, some other gift than our own. God wants simply and only what we have.

General Delivery

Members of the Pan-American League, put away your shoes, for the Pan-American League party will not be on December 3 but on December 10. Any resemblance between this change and a week's postponement is entirely intentional. The party is still confined to the members of the Pan-American League, and will be at 8 o'clock in the KA house. And please give Barbara Cheney your dues, or a reasonable facsimile!

Perserverance wins out, and so we herewith print in its entirety the poem so magnificent, allusions to of the Flagpole column.

"A smear of lipstick sur la bouche is not so bad when seeking pleasure;

'Tis quite accepted by the boys, But not in a vicarious measure. We like the lip rouge straight from the lasses, But not when found on the dining room glasses. You see what I mean? Let's have our dishes clean—"

Christmas is coming, and in order to assure a cheerful aftermath, it is the advice of the registrar's office that you contact your adviser as soon as possible and make academic plans for the oncoming slaughter—pardon, term. It will be necessary as usual to register for your courses before you begin your vacation.

Riley Jones, for the first time in history, has asked for column space—for a worthy cause. He wants three volunteers from each dormitory to serve as air raid wardens and first aiders. Previous experience in the former is helpful but not obligatory; in the latter, it is vital!

Who placed the tiny empty cart-ridge atop the base of the vandalized Peace Monument? It was pathetic, though a noble try, Andy and Sebastian.

Who blacked out the first half of the word service in the loggia "Life is for Service" plaque? It was also pathetic. How some persons' minds do work!

More soldier cut-ups: It was in the early hours of the morning, when only soldiers and foolish civilians are astir that one section took advantage of the obscurity to plague its leader. By mixing up marching orders, talking in ranks and so on, they succeeded in arousing his ire. Thinking to cure them of their perversity, he barked out an order to double-time, and being a good fellow, trotted ahead to keep with them. Imagine his frustration when he looked back, panting, and saw his section twenty feet behind!

Contributions to the Chapel Fund Drive are coming in too slowly if the $750 goal is to be attained in the one week set aside for it. Collectors are urged to contract their subscribers and turn in their contributions daily to the Chapel office.

STAR Five Passes AAFTAC Marines With 50-34 Score

For the second time in a week, the Silvi's STAR Unit quintet defeated the Marines of AAFTAC in the Rollins court, taking a comparatively easy but very rough tussle, 50-34. Individual scoring honors for the night went to Sagar of the visitors, who came through with eight buckets for a total of sixteen points. Martinez and Knoller were Star's leaders with seven and five goals each.

Starting off at a fairly even pace, the STAR unit led by two points, 12-10, at the quarter, but began to pull away more and at the half-time led 26-16. In both quarters of the last half the STARS tallied twelve points each with Breene and Fritzinger coming in with several nice buckets to add to the lead.

The usefulness of the Who's Who cannot be overemphasized. It constitutes a record of the best of American college youth, and it has been proven they are the best material for key positions in the cultural and business world. The advantages of being listed in this publication are numerous. Those men who are looking for trained college graduates look to this volume and find by reading the biographical material just which students might satisfy the requirements for important jobs.

Faculty to Gobble Turkey at Tombstone

The Tombstone Club will hold its second meeting of the year on Thursday, December 2, at 6:30 o'clock. Approximately thirty of the club's members will be present at the meeting which is to be held in the Florida Public Service Room in the Watermoure Building of Winter Park. Riley Jones, president, announced Tuesday that a turkey dinner will be served by Mr. Trovillion, and that the place cards will be in the form of tombstones, each bearing an appropriate epitaph taken from an old tombstone.

The Tombstone Club is an organization for members of the faculty. At the outbreak of the war the club ceased all activities for the duration, but the members have revised their decision and the club is once more operating actively.

Bachelor Short Story Contest Announced

Announcement of the annual Irving Bacheller Short Story contest, sponsored by Rollins College, has been made by A. J. Hanna, chairman of the committee. The purpose of this contest is to promote interest in the history of Florida and creative writing among high school students of the state. The stories are required to deal either directly or indirectly with Florida, past or present. It is open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors in the preparatory and high schools of the state.

These stories, not exceeding three names of eight Rollins students, now graduates, may be seen in the college library.

Kappas Down Chi Os 16-8; All-Stars to Meet WAC Team

In the only women's intramural basketball game of the week, the Kappas defeated the Chi Omegas, 16 to 8. It was a hard played game, with the guards of both teams continually intercepting passes and breaking up the plays of their opponents. Marnie Knight was the outstanding guard, and Jocelyn Bower was the high scorer.

On Monday, December 6, the Rollins girls' All-Star basketball team will play the WAC's team from AAFTAC. This game will be held in Rec. Hall at 8:00 with no admission charged.

Record Crowd Participates in Second of Monthly Rollins Days at AWVS Center

The second of the monthly Rollins Sundays at the recreation room of the local AWVS was a pronounced success. The drenching rain that teemed outside dampened not one whit the spirits of the large crowd of girls and soldiers who participated in the day's fun. True, one amiable soldier was put to work mopping up the ever-increasing puddle under the hole in the roof, but it was a step towards self-preservation.

With over sixty Rollins girls acting as hostesses throughout the afternoon and evening, card games, bingo and other games were played. Some of the men entertained themselves with the plentiful supply of magazines, though the ping-pong tables were never deserted by the hordes of round robin fanatics.

The vital attraction of any service center, and this information was volunteered by a soldier, is its letter-writing facilities. The stacks of stationery at the AWVS shrank and were replenished frequently as the men engaged in the soldiers' essential business of writing letters.

Following the serving of a buffet supper, at least one of the ping-pong tables was abandoned in favor of dancing. Another outstanding feature of the evening's entertainment was the analysis of character through handwriting, by which many interesting things were learned!

All those who cooperated in making this day the success it was are to be congratulated. The turnout of Rollins girls was larger than ever before. The only criticism voiced by the soldiers came in the form of this question—"Why can't every evening here at the AWVS be like this?" Professors may direct their answers to the Shrug Shoulder department of this publication.

Edgar Bergen would have found a serious rival had he appeared when Pvt. Joe Connors brought forth his own sassy and sophisticated dummy, who declared that Connors could "yank that string all evening and he still wouldn't apologize to the audience."

Cpl. Ken Adolf Hitler Jackus, replete with moustache and Seig Heils was spinning his spiel with satisfactory response until carried away by two psychiatrists indulging in wishful thinking.

Space limitations prevent the commendation of individual performers, each of whom contributed greatly toward making the evening one of the most enjoyable of the fall term. The publicity and the properties showed cleverness and originality. The point was stressed that the show was organized under the pressure of time. If such was the case, Broadway would do well to polish its penpoints and sharpen its wits, because apres la guerre a great deal of talent is going to be at liberty.

Foolish civilian that this reporter is, and unversed in military procedure, she would advise a fifteen day furlough for each person on the program, as a reward well earned. Certainly the college is grateful to the STAR Unit for providing it with a howling good time.

Conservatory---

Kerr, Alton Jones and James Friskin, was coached in German Lieder by Cooenrad Bos, served as a professional accompanist for many singers of concert, radio and opera in New York City, and was a former member of the Delious Chamber Music Group.

The program played by the ensemble will be the following:

Leclair	Sonate
	Sarabande
	Tambourin
Ravel	Habanera
Debussy	La Fille aux Cheveux
	de Lin
Debussy	En Bateau

Miss Barbara Balsara, student of Madame Louise Homer, who has been awarded the scholarship offered by Madame Homer, will sing French songs.

Students of Dr. Honaas, who have been trained by him, will sing French Christmas Carols.

Members of the French Club are asked to bring their membership cards. There will be a small entrance fee for non-members.

Annual Christmas Chapel Service to be Presented Twice

December 12 is Date Set For Traditional Program; Music Will Be Featured

That the annual Christmas service at the Knowles Memorial Chapel is one of the most outstanding events of the year is well known, and this year will be no exception. The reputation of this service has grown with each performance, each year attracting more and more spectators from greater distances, until this year it was decided to present the program twice the same day, to take care of the overwhelming audiences, which in later years have overflowed to the aisles of the Chapel, impeding the processions of candlebearing choirs.

The service will take place on December 12 in the late afternoon and evening. Those familiar with this service will find it essentially the same as in former years. Four blonde "angels" will lead the procession through a darkened Chapel, the candelabra borne by them and the single candles carried by the choristers providing the only light.

Music forms the largest part of the program. The first half of the program will be taken in the presentation of excerpts from the "Christmas Oratorio" of Bach, and the latter half of the music program will be the traditional group of carols, representing Czechoslovakia, Germany, Italy, France, Russia, England, and other countries which have provided such a wealth of beautiful seasonal folksongs. The choir will be augmented by a string ensemble, Mrs. Hila V. Knapp at the harp, and Herman F. Siewert, organist.

An impressive feature of the service is the growing to shining brilliance in the darkened Chapel of the Star above the altar as the choir sings "Silent Night."

Next week's Sandspur will carry the complete program of the Christmas service.

Lt. Jerome to Be Guest Organist At Tonight's Vespers

Lt. Reed Jerome, U.S.A., at present stationed at AAFTAC, will be the guest organist at Organ Vespers this evening. The program, which will begin at 8:15, gives promise of excellent entertainment for music lovers of Winter Park.

Lt. Jerome has had extensive experience as a church and concert organist. He began the study of the organ at the age of eleven, but his formal career was not launched until much later, for it was not until he was thirteen years of age that he secured his first position as organist in a church in his home town, St. Clair, Michigan. This position he held for four years, then he went to Northwestern University, where he won a degree of Bachelor of Music in organ. He studied two summers in Paris with Marcel Dupre, and also did graduate work at the University of Michigan.

Lt. Jerome has been organist at churches in Port Huron, Michigan, Chicago, Tulsa, Detroit, and last held the position of organist and choirmaster at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Buffalo, New York, a post he left to join the Army, and which will be waiting for him upon his return to civilian life.

In addition to his appearances in organ recitals in central Florida, Lt. Jerome is adding his musical talent to the Bach Festival, in which his voice is a welcome addition to the bass choir.

Farr-Bills Wedding

A Rollins romance of several years' standing was climaxed November 30 at 6:00 p. m., when Edith Norine Farr, Rollins '41, and Douglas G. Bills, also a former Rollins student, were married in the Frances Chapel of the Knowles Memorial Chapel.

The candle-lit, single ring ceremony was conducted by Dean Arthur D. Enyart and Dr. Hamilton Holt, who bestowed the Rollins blessing on the couple.

The bride, an attractive blonde, chose for her wedding costume a dark blue dressmaker suit with which she wore brown accessories. A corsage of white, purple-throated orchids completed her costume. Her only attendant, Daphne Banks, Rollins '41, wore a pink suit, with accessories and corsage of the same color.

•Mrs. Bills was given in marriage by her father.
