Plan Thanksgiving Chapel Service for November 29

The annual Thanksgiving Service, sponsored by the Chapel Program Committee, will take place in Knowles Memorial Chapel Wednesday morning, November 29, at the regular assembly period.

Dean Edmonds will preside at the service, which will otherwise be presented by the students. George Moore will read the Invocation, and Professor Howard Bailey will read the president's Thanksgiving Proclamation. The scripture lesson will be read by Janet Haas.

The Chapel Choir, under the direction of Dr. Christopher O. Honaas, will sing the anthems Triumph! Thanksgiving, by Rachmaninoff, and the Netherlands Prayer of Thanksgiving. Come, Ye Thankful People, Come has been chosen as the congregational hymn.

The speaker of the morning will carry out the chosen theme of Thanksgiving and war. General House, commandant of AAFTAC, will provide a speaker from the Orlando Air Base.

The service is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of Rollins College.

Emil Ludwig, Noted Author, Speaks to Large Audience at Orlando on Post-War Germany

Monday night, October 20, a large crowd gathered at the Municipal Auditorium in Orlando to hear the noted biographer, Emil Ludwig. After an apt introduction by Dr. Hamilton Holt, for over an hour, Mr. Ludwig kept his audience eagerly listening, while he gave his views as to how to deal with Germany after the war.

In that time he showed that Germany as a nation, not just the Nazis, was responsible for the present war. Hitler was elected to office by a large majority in 1932; the people knew his platform and backed him wholeheartedly. The German people must have a "boss" ruling them; they are impressed by their militarism with all its goose-stepping and flashy uniforms. They dislike liberty.

Mr. Ludwig stressed an unconditional surrender. He said that if the Americans tended to be too "soft" and lenient with the Germans, the Russians and English should be allowed to deal with them.

Germany should be divided into two sections—the Prussians, who are largely responsible for wars, from Berlin.

Ludwig stated that it would be impossible to educate the German adults and he doubted if the youth of Germany could be taught the principles of democracy. Reeducation of the Germans will have to start with the five-year-olds and extend over a fifteen year period until the children are twenty; an Allied Commission should be present constantly to direct the teaching. If we deal kindly yet firmly with the children, in twenty years Germany will be a sound member of the world.

Senior Class Meets At Woolson To Elect Committee of Five

The senior class met in Woolson House last Wednesday at the assembly period to elect a senior committee. Dorothy Bundy presided over the meeting.

The class dropped a precedent of several years and decided that in the present time and with the activities of the senior class to be considered, a committee of five would be more effective as the governing body of the group. The group finally chosen after closely contested voting is Betty Fusfield, later elected chairman of the committee, Jack Duffy, Nancy Corbett, Peggy Tomlinson, and Betty Good.

Mr. Brown, treasurer of the college, discussed the Senior Loan Fund which he said has now grown to about four thousand dollars. An administrative committee has in other years been appointed to take charge of this fund, but the class voted unanimously to leave the responsibility in the hands of the senior class committee.

French Scientist To Speak Here On Thanksgiving Day

This Thanksgiving evening Lecomte du Nouy, one of the greatest contemporary scientists, is going to speak in Winter Park at the Woman's Club under the sponsorship of Le Cercle Francais. Winter Park is extremely fortunate in being able to hear this famous scientist and philosopher as he is now on a tour of service clubs in this country and is not speaking before civilian audiences. He is coming here on the invitation of Baroness Von Boecop between appearances in St. Augustine and Delrey Beach.

Lecomte du Nouy, a man of the caliber of Pasteur and Curie, has worked with the eminent American, Dr. Carrell, as an advisor at the Rockefeller Foundation, and is well known both abroad and in this country as an author of scientific and philosophic books and articles. His latest books are L'Avenir de l'Esprit and La Dignite Humaine, the latter being one of the books to be studied by the Rollins French seminar. These books have been translated into English by the Count's charming American wife, the former Miss Harriman.

Rollins students and Winter Park residents are cordially invited to attend Lecomte du Nouy's lecture which will be given in English, at 8:15 on November 30 at the Winter Park Woman's Club.

Chapel Staff Opens Drive For Funds; Set $1000 Goal

Order of the Libra, Womens' Honorary, Sponsors Bond Sale

The Order of Libra, Rollins' honorary organization for upper division women, opened its active work for the year yesterday, when the Sixth War Loan drive was begun. The society is sponsoring a booth in the Center, at which war bonds and stamps will be sold during the time that the drive is on.

Libra is the highest honor to which an upper division woman may aspire at Rollins. Its membership is based on scholarship, activities, character, and leadership. It corresponds to the organization on larger campuses known as Mortar Board.

Each year Libra plans activities for that year, which include college and community services, social activities, and in general any work which may build up the well-being of college and students.

The bond drive which the organization is conducting in the Center now is the first in a well-rounded list of activities for the coming year.

Second Week in Dec. Set for Next Play In Annie Russell

How many days till Christmas? It won't be long now, but just to help the gay holiday spirit along, the Rollins Student Players are presenting the rollicking comedy, OUT OF THE FRYING PAN, in the Annie Russell Theatre on December 7, 8, 9, and 11.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN is one of the most delightful dishes ever concocted by a budding young author, who is, in this case, Francis Swann. Mr. Swann received the inspiration from his sister's experiences as a young actress trying to crash Broadway. All this was brought to the attention of LIFE magazine and was prominently featured in several issues. The play was one of the liveliest, most hilarious productions on Broadway. The movies snapped it up and made a very successful film starring Paramount's most promising candidates for stardom.

To finish the quotation with "into the fire" would be a slight understatement. The story concerns six young theatre hopefuls who live rather hectically in a single apartment, three boys sharing one bedroom, three girls the other and visitors sleeping in the bathtub. This sounds rather risqué, but it was the only practical solution to their financial problems, and after all, there's safety in numbers. (Continued on page four)

Thomas Fruin, Drive Chairman, Asks for Student Support in Annual Rollins' Charity Fund Drive

The annual Chapel Fund Drive was opened at a mass rally of Rollins students held in the Annie Russell Theatre this morning. This is a repetition of the drive held every year for the purpose of collecting money to be used for charitable purposes. The drive, sponsored by the Chapel Staff and committees, has set as a goal this year the largest sum so far attempted. This goal must be met by the campus, since no outsiders are invited to contribute.

Le Cercle Francais Meets; Features Amusing Play

Under the leadership of Baroness Von Boecop, Le Cercle Francais got off to a most interesting and entertaining start at its first meeting of the 1944-45 season last Friday, following the speech given by the Baroness earlier in the afternoon at the Woman's Club in Winter Park.

Le Cercle opened with a repeat performance of the Marseillaise sung by the students in the classes of Mme. Boecop and Mme. Haussmann. The feature attraction was a short, very amusing play, "La Tyrannie de Mme. Beauvisage" presented by three students of French, Mary Elizabeth Campbell, Kaye Haenichen, and Ann Steinhart. After this, tea was served to the Winter Park residents and Rollins students present.

Future meetings of the club will present other student players as well as guest speakers.

Tom Fruin, chairman of the drive, stated, "Although we know that our 1944 goal of one thousand dollars is a high one, we know that in this, as well as in every other project we have undertaken, the co-operation and generosity of the students and faculty will result in an overwhelming success."

The one thousand dollar goal tops that of last year by two hundred dollars. In last year's drive the total went two hundred dollars over the expected total, and high hopes are held for the success of the campaign this year.

The money collected this year will be used to aid many charitable organizations. Among them are the Student Service Fund, an international service fund, which sends help and comfort to Allied prisoners of war in Germany and Japan; the Hungerford School and Library for underprivileged colored children; the Emergency Aid Fund for Rollins students, which provides funds for needy students in case of personal or family emergencies; local welfare work; and the Student Conference Committee, which sends delegates to national conferences for the purpose of keeping in touch with the activities of other college students.

Each dormitory will have a number of collectors in proportion to the size of the house. Head collectors will be: Janet Haas, boarding women; Jim Robinson, boarding men; Jille Fletcher, all day students.

A chart will be posted in the Center showing the daily progress of the drive among the three groups of sororities, men, and independent women into which the college will be divided.

Unique Exhibit to Be Given in Knowles

During the meeting of the Florida Academy of Sciences there will be a small but unique exhibit in the display case of the Science Library in Knowles Hall.

Radiographs, or X-ray pictures, of a tulip and a jack-in-the-pulpit will center the display. These pictures are the work of Miss Florence Hall, an X-ray technician of Utica, New York, whose hobby is the application of her professional skill to X-raying flowers. Miss Hall is a winter visitor in Winter Park.

Our International Students' Day

On November 17, 1939, in Prague, one hundred and fifty-six Czechoslovak students were massacred by the Nazis, and twelve hundred more were taken to concentration camps in Germany, the final result of a rebellion against the Nazi invasion. Since then, International Students' Day has been commemorated in all the free countries of the world, in the great cities as well as in the small towns and villages, and on every college and school campus.

This year, November 17 will stand as a reminder of the part all young people who have fought in the war-torn countries of Europe are playing. In recognition of their resistance it is fitting that we, of the free youth of the world, must make this day, this year, a dynamic commemoration with the most fitting tribute—one of acts, and action.

Some of the Rollins students, who in other years have participated in this tribute to fellow students of the world, have gone into the armed services, and are restating more effectively the protests they have expressed only in words before. Others of us are at Rollins still and it is we who must state the protests and make the promises of loyalty to the cause of the world's students.

Let's reduce this last to terms applicable to us. We must keep the role of the student an aggressive one, important to the college and in a longer view, to the country which someday our contemporaries will lead. The boys and girls who are off at war now will return soon and will expect to find that we have done our job as well as they have done theirs. They will expect a "business as usual" atmosphere to exist, as if we were able to carry on in their absence. They will expect to find us as enthusiastic over our student activities as when their added presence made these activities more fun.

This is what we owe to those students beyond our help now, and to those students who will return to the place we have kept for them.

IN THE MAIL BAG

November 9

To the Editor:

Every once in a while you meet someone who "changes your perspective," or at least gives you the feeling that, well, maybe this is what you've been looking for.

You come to college not knowing just exactly what you want—and lots of people leave college still not knowing—but still seeking. If you've ever been fortunate enough to bump into somebody who can point a finger and say "Go that way—the answer lies somewhere along that road—just where or what the answer is, I can't say, but that's the road," well, if you have, you'll know what we mean.

When we first came to Rollins, we saw a quiet white-haired man, smoking a pipe. We got to know him, after a while, and we've been lucky. He's one of those who points down that road we were telling you about. Some of you might know him. His name is Willard Wattles.

Sincerely,

Two Rollins Students

Inside Story on Exploitation of Pledges For Theta Fodder in Basketball Games

When I come to this college many years ago they look at me and say, in florid English, "You can play inta-mural basket-ball!" That is because I am so big, I figure out. In vain I tell them that the only thing I am good for is killing cockroaches. After much babbling on about nothing, as I see I am only making matters worse instead of better, I, meek, mild, freshman with much pain in heart say, "Well all right, maybe if you can't get a full team. "Full team," they boom at me. "You're gonna be the team." And by the way you have to have four practices. Probably you don't need them but it is really a matter of form. Wonder whether you should be guard or forward?" With that I squelch many impulses to say that they wouldn't even want me to play tiddley-winks within the next week and forthwith go home.

The next step is to the practices. All four of them. However my sorority sisters, the undaunted and persevering type, do not give up the ship and unfortunately, do not entertain any idea of throwing me off the team. Why not I do not know. They look at each other and say, "Obviously she is off her game. We'll have to wait for the big night."

So the big night comes. I go down to Rec Hall, never expecting to see the light of day again. I do look pretty cute though, in my H'l white shorts and so forth. But when I get down there they mess me all up with an orange thing—they put 'em on all my team so's I'll know who to throw the ball to if I ever get a hand on it, which I doubt.

The referee says "At the sound of the whistle"—(it will be exactly time for me to bail this fire trap I think to myself)—"start playing!!"

Before we go on I must tell you I'm a guard. And you should get a load of my forward. Twice my size and practically a female Charles Atlas. To make a sad story sadder, I last one quarter with her, and come drooping off the floor, amid cheers from my sisters. Beaten up, to say the least I rest for a quarter.

Rejuvenated in a vague fashion—back into the game go I second half—much smarter this time tho—I pick out the one 4 ft. 11 inches this time—weight—63 pounds. This is a cinch! Whistle again! Action! I look around for my forward—who has just run between my legs and sunk the ball for two points—well, that's life. Whistle! During the next five minutes my forward makes ten baskets. Thereupon I decide to put my heart into the game. Down the floor I dash—two inches behind short stuff, when she suddenly stops. Unfortunately, I keep on going! Foul! Point opposite side! Whistle! This happens three more times.

Our captain barks "Substitution, please!" With that I see the end of my basketball career in plain view.

Oh, well, they tell me! Wait 'til volleyball. You'll really be able to spike 'em, you're so tall!!

OVERHEARD

AT RANDOM—

Rosalind Darrow: He stepped on my feet, but that's all right, I walk on them too.

Bunnie Sloan: How 'bout giving it to Sloan.

Carol Byers: Back home I was the constellation on the basketball team, here I'm just a star.

Mary Sue Wilson: I've got bruises all up and down my spine from the canoe trip.

Joan Harris: No, I'm not crazy, I'm just talking Spanish to myself.

Mrs. Lamb: But you don't say that in public.

Joan Sherrick: Everything happens on my birthday—first Pearl Harbor and now the Theta game.

★ Rollins' All-Stars ★

The Rollins All-Stars are really starring these days, all over the world. They are getting around, and doing it nicely, too.

First Lieutenant S. G. Dolive, Rollins '45, recently sent word of his having been awarded the Air Medal, and the picture of this ceremony featured no less than a general doing the pinning of the medal.

George is an Army bombardier, at present stationed in Italy. At that time he had completed thirty-eight missions, with the resulting decoration mentioned above, and is now in line for the Distinguished Flying Cross.

To Lieutenant John Glendenning, Rollins '45, of New York, came the honor of owning the photograph which won first place in a beauty contest conducted at Oflag 64. Oflag 64 is a prisoner of war camp in Poland where about a thousand American Army officers are held captive by the Nazis. The photo-

Johnny, we remember as the tall, blond and handsome Phi Delt who won the award sponsored by the dramatics department for the most promising freshman drama student of the year. Called into the Army at the end of his freshman year, he was one of the first of Rollins' men in service to be taken prisoner by the enemy.

Boyd France, Rollins '42, is serving with the American Field Service, attached to the French Army in southern France. Recently he wrote his father, Dr. Royal W. France of the Rollins faculty, a letter in which he stated quite casually, "I've been decorated twice by the French government for gallantry under fire in evacuating wounded from the battlefield. Wasn't hit, but was badly scared". (Continued on page three)

Poetry Corner

By Shirley Polhemus

All night long they marched, infantrymen under pack, But the hands gripping the rifle were naked bone And the hollow pits of the eyes stared, vacant and black, When the moonlight shone.

The gas mask lay like a blot on the empty chest, The slanting helmets were spattered with rust and mold, But they burrowed the hill for the machine-gun nest As they had of old.

And the guns rolled, and the tanks but there was no sound, Never the gasp or rustle of living man Where the skeletons strung their wire on disputed ground . . . I knew them, then.

"It is eighteen years," I cried. "You must come no more! We know your names. We know that you are the dead. Must you march forever from France and the last, blind war? 'Fool! From the next!' they said

Is Tomorrow Really Another Day, or, No More of the Same, Please

This is the day when all the oaks are turning into acorns instead of acorns into oaks, The day I would cheer myself with jokes.

This is the day when there is nothing at the movies but the Jones Sisters and the chicken has no white meat and the asparagus no tips.

The day I would console myself with quips.

This is the day when the stomach revolves at the thought of a coddled egg and the radio assails the ear with zesty tangs and tangy zests.

The day I would play with my fingers and hearten myself with jests.

This is the day when everybody is feeling better than me, no matter where I traipse,

The day I would resurrect myself with japes.

Thetas Pile up Points in Independent Game; Chi Omegas Edge Out Gama Phis

The Thetas continued to stack up points in a wide margin victory over the Independents Friday afternoon. Each Theta forward hit the basket, even tiny Dottie Deal, and there was no stopping Depperman who made a total of 30 points. Peg Welsh was down a little with 18 points—probably as a result of an accident which knocked her breath out. The final score was 63-11.

On the second game of the doubleheader, the Chi Omegas edged out Gamma Phi 17-15. It was nip and tuck all the way with an almost photo-finish. Everybody was happy—especially the Chi Omegas with their first victory in—how many years, Argie?

Scoring honors go to Chi O Williams with 11 points and Gamma Phi Culpepper with 13.

Academy of Sciences To Hold Meeting at Rollins Nov. 24, 25

Rollins will have the honor of playing host to the Florida Academy of Sciences which will hold its ninth annual meeting here on Friday and Saturday, November 24 and 25.

Dr. Charles T. Knipp, visiting professor of physics at Rollins and chairman of the local committee of the Academy, expressed the hope that the meeting will serve to stimulate interest in science among the students at Rollins.

About 200 delegates from outside this community are expected to attend the meeting, which will include such departments as mathematics, the physical sciences, the biological sciences, and social sciences. The latter group, not ordinarily included by other state academies, will be handled under the chairmanship of Professor A. J. Hanna, who will present twenty-five papers on the social sciences, dealing particularly with Mexico and South America.

In close affiliation with this meeting, the Junior Academy of Science, composed of science-conscious high school and preparatory school students from every part of the state, and the Florida Entomological Society will also meet here at the same time and present several pertinent exhibits. Pi Phis Take Phi Mus 65-8 As Kappas Down Alpha Phis 18-6

Last Thursday night, in their first game of the season, a high-scoring Pi Phi team defeated the Phi Mus at Rec Hall.

The Phi Mus, although seriously handicapped by the absence of Ann Powell, fought hard all the way, but were overwhelmed by a score of 65-8.

Excellent teamwork and cooperation was shown by the Pi Phis throughout the game. Ann White, high scorer, came through with twenty-four points, and Katty Berterton was close behind with twenty.

In the other game of the evening the Kappas downed the Alpha Phis with a score of 18-6. Although the game was by no means spectacular, the "fighting spirit" and good teamwork displayed by both teams made it consistently exciting.

Madden, president of the latter society, will lead a symposium on entomological subjects.

Several simple but interesting exhibits to illustrate principles of chemistry, physics, psychology, and mathematics will be presented in Knowles Hall.

There will be an honorary banquet open to the public Friday night, November 24. The price of admission is $1.25 per person.

All Rollins students and residents of this community are cordially invited to attend the meeting and to hear any of the 60 vital papers which will be read.

The following committees are in charge of the affair:

Program—Prof. George Saute, chairman, Prof. F. W. Jones, Dr. Paul A. Vestal, Dean Wendell C. Stone, Prof. A. J. Hanna, Dr. E. T. Brown, Dr. Charles T. Knipp.

Trips—Dr. Paul A. Vestal, chairman, Prof. Bernice G. Shore, Fleetwood Peeples.

Departmental Exhibits — Prof. Isaac King Phelps, chairman.

Rooms for Delegates—Prof. E. F. W. Jones.

Publicity—Gwen B. Patterson.

Banquet—Dr. E. T. Brown, Mr. Rudy Tietzens and Miss Martha Mac Farland.

Minutes of the Student Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the Student Council was called to order at 7:30. Roll call was taken and the minutes of the last meeting read.

Old business was brought up and the Dance Committee reported that there will be a formal dance Saturday night, November 26, from 9:30 to 1:00. Babs Brauer, chairman, says that more cooperation will be needed on the part of the students and that announcements will be put up at both Sanford and AAFAC.

Comptroller Tomlinson had no report to make.

Under new business Dodo Bundy brought up the question of weekend emergencies, when for some reason or other a student must suddenly leave campus and is unable to get in touch with any of the Deans. Student Council voted to recommend that some arrangement be made to meet this.

During the fall term of each year the senior class must elect a Senior Committee, so at 9:40 Wednesday morning a meeting will be called of all seniors for the purpose of accomplishing this.

Nick Morrissey called to the attention of the Student Council the prevailing tendency of the students to stamp out their cigarette butts on the floor of the center, and also the damage done to one of the divans by a careless smoker last week. Student Council voted to take very seriously any student caught in the act of stamping out a butt on the floor, although no definite penalty has as yet been decided upon.

Nick Morrissey moved that Student Council meet at 7:15 hereafter. It was seconded and passed.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned at 7:50.

Respectfully submitted,
Merlyn Gerber,
Sec'y Student Council.

Mademoiselle Extends Journalistic Plum to College Girls

A month in New York as Guest Editor of Mademoiselle is the much-coveted journalistic plum toward which career-minded collegians with a flair for writing, reporting, photography, illustration, etc., can direct their efforts now. Mademoiselle is again inviting applications for membership on its College Board.

Being a Board member means completing four assignments a year which, in toto, give a rounded portrait of the college—its activities, new courses, new trends, social aspects, EVERYTHING that's NEW.

Mademoiselle awards a fat WAR BONDS and STAMPS for the brightest reports; pays Board members for material used and, in addition, pays $2.50 each for snapshots that appear in the magazine.

Everything submitted during the year counts toward that final plum, the Guest Editorship. And fourteen girls are chosen each year to enjoy that marvelous month in New York during which, as guests of Mademoiselle, visiting Eds go everywhere and do everything with the magazine's own staff, get out its bumper August College issue, pose for pictures, model for the College Clinic, and are paid a fat round sum besides.

On application to Mademoiselle, would-be Board members will be invited to send a brief trial report spotlighting anything newsworthy on the campus, a snapshot of themselves, their college address and home address, class year, and an idea of their extracurricular activities and interests. Mademoiselle makes a quick decision—and then the fun begins.

"I've heard of you. Little Emil Bruckner. They say you're a devil and I guess they're right", remarks Fred Miller (Hugo Melchione), the German janitor.

You've probably heard about Emil also, and you'll want to see more of him and the people who endeavor to help him, so plan to be in the audience on November 16, 17, 18, or 20 at 8:15, when the curtain rises on TOMORROW THE WORLD.

Pfc. Henry Souberas, whom we will consider a Rollins All-Star because of his stay, however brief, on campus as a member of the ASTP STAR Unit last year, writes from Paris, France, where he is now stationed, that training which he received from Madame Boecop in language and customs of the French people has been valuable to him. A native of Belgium, Hank is now an American citizen in the personnel division of the Army in France. Do you have a favorite Rollins All-Star, whose whereabouts or news of whom you would like to have printed in this column? Let us have your news—it will interest many people.

Radios Hum Throughout Election Night To Climax Furor of Campus Campaigning

For the first time since Ulysses S. Grant took over the presidency, my interest in politics was renewed to such an extent that the weary was ablaze throughout the entire campaign. On the campus the names of Roosevelt and Dewey crowded the AAFAC and Sanford out of their erstwhile traditional places around the Center tables. Revolts were supplanted by rallies. Speakers of national renown held the platform at the gatherings. Students were familiarized not only with the names, but also with the backgrounds of characters both famous and infamous, such as Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder, Gerald L. K. Smith, Gerald Nye, John L. Lewis, and Hamilton Fish. Political organizations, such as the P. A. C., CIO, and the A. F. of L.

were hashed and rehashed in varying degrees of sobriety, ranging from faculty-headed discussion groups to somewhat bone-headed campus arguments.

Preceding the straw vote climax, the rather demonstrative supporters of the candidates vaulted into the limelight through the medium of parades, posters, and songs. Then the vote was held, and, somewhat contrary to national opinion, Dewey reigned supreme. The desire for ballot contribution thus satiated, the campus relaxed (in so far as it is able) to await November seventh.

On the eve of this historic date, discussions, not too lightly tinged on violent arguments, raged. Those on the campus so aged as to entitle (Continued on page four)

Interracial Committee Elects Officers for Year; Hears Reports on Racial Conditions

Last Tuesday when the Interracial Committee held its second meeting of the year, it found a membership growing in both numbers and enthusiasm. Giving an indication of the work the Interracial group plans to do were reports on the projects assigned the previous week.

The list of possible speakers for both the committee and the entire student body included Rabbi Scott, Bishop Wing, Mr. Hall, and Mrs. Wing. A visit to the colored school disclosed that the home economics instructor was attempting to teach 24 girls how to cook, and the proper way to arrange the table for meals with one small stove and practically no dishes or silverware. The scarcity of glasses in the cafeteria indicated that the student body must use a communal cup. A similar visit to the library showed a pitiful effort of colored high school students as they tried to prepare for fairly advanced history and civics courses with the aid of one or two ancient encyclopedias and one weekly news magazine. Adult readers had exhausted the supply of Western and detective stories. If the treasurer looks too skeptical at our request for the complete works of Ellery Queen and of Max

Brand, we may apply to you students (and faculty) for your copies. The Interracial Committee is also intending to help with the Christmas program at the day nursery; an ambitious project is to help the Negro population with insurance and political problems.

The goal of the Interracial group is not as much to do charitable work as to attempt to understand the people, whatever the race, and their problems. This means that the committee will cooperate as closely as possible with groups from the Negro and other races.

The speaker for the evening was Mr. Hall, who, having worked with the colored population of Winter Park for some time, was able to suggest the best way to deal with the problems at hand. His was a five-fold program, including an interracial mass meeting, the addition of a column of West Side news in the local paper, and the possibilities of classes for adult education.

At the election of officers Janet Haas was elected chairman, Hannah France vice-chairman, and Molly Rugg, Elizabeth Trotter, and Midge Estes for secretary, treasurer, and publicity manager, respectively.

Tom Fruin's Exciting Background Includes Birth in Jungles, Escape From Nazis

A foreign-born student with a fascinating story to tell is Tom Fruin. Tom was born in the jungles of Sumatra, where his father was a member of Parliament.

Tom and his family moved to Switzerland when he was six, to the Hague when he was eight, and to Brussels at the age of (you guessed it) ten.

When Holland was drawn into the war in 1940, sixteen year old Tom and his brother bicycled all the way from the Hague in Holland to Brussels in order to escape the Nazis. From Belgium the Fruins motored to Bayonne, France. Here they misinterpreted a friend's telegram, and left Bayonne, when the telegram had actually warned them to remain there in order to avoid the Nazis. A few hours after their departure, the Germans entered Bayonne, massacring the entire population.

In the hope of entering Spain, the Fruins heavily bribed the Spanish frontier agents, only to discover later that they had bribed the wrong agents.

Finally they reached Lisbon, Portugal. Here their phenomenal streak of good luck continued when at the capitulation of Greece, a steamer scheduled to sail for Greece came to come to the United States instead, giving Tom his long-awaited chance to come to America.

Disappointed at the dearth of Indians and gangsters in America, Tom consoled himself by entering Rollins in 1941 as a history major.

Still eager to serve the Allied war effort, however, Tom enlisted at the Royal Netherland Military Flying School in Jackson, Mississippi.

While flying with the Dutch army unit, Tom was injured in a plane crash. This is the reason that he is being permitted to study economics now at Rollins although still officially a member of the Dutch army. He will be retained by the army after the war to supervise U. S. exports to Holland.

Infantile Paralysis—

In the first 41 weeks of 1944, or up until October 14, there were 16,133 cases of poliomyelitis, according to the latest report from the U. S. Public Health Service. This is 353 cases more than were reported in the country for 1931 which previously had been the second worst year for the disease. The all-time record was in 1916 when there were 27,621 cases.

"Although the peak of the outbreak was passed more than a month ago, the epidemic itself has not yet ended," warned Mr. O'Connor. He pointed out that there were 710 new cases reported for the week of October 7-14, or nearly half the weekly total at the peak of the epidemic, the week ending September 2 when 1683 cases were reported.

"This great outbreak has tested not only the resources of the National Foundation and its Chapters, but also those of the nation," he added. "The National Foundation's greatest problems were in obtaining sufficient doctors, physical therapists and professional personnel to cope with nearly simultaneous outbreaks in widely separated sections of the south, the east and the middle west. Seven skilled polio doctors, 65 physical therapists and nearly 10 tons of wool for use in

Scientific Society Holds First Open Meeting of Year

"What's Cooking, Soldier?" was the title of the lecture-demonstration given at the first open meeting of the Rollins Scientific Society Tuesday evening, Nov. 14. The speaker, Lieutenant Richard A. Howard, is a representative of the Aero-Medical Department of the Army Air Forces School of Applied Tactics stationed in Orlando. Lt. Howard's work in this department was written up in Collier's and Liberty Magazines, and presented on "We the People" program. He is just back from New York City where he served some 400-500 military physicians and surgeons with his "survival menu". On this menu were such delicacies as rattlesnake steak, filet of shark, baked cattail roots, wild coffee and palm cabbage salad.

This program was held in the living room of Strong Hall at 7:30. The meeting was open not only to the members of the Rollins Scientific Society, but to all those interested in hearing Lt. Howard's talk.

Emil Ludwig—

(Continued from page one) since his youth. His antagonism to the Nazi party led to the announcement in 1923 that Ludwig's books—including the most popular "Goethe"—would be burned publicly, with those of Thomas Mann, Lion Feuchtwanger and other liberal-thinking German writers. The confiscation of his funds by Germany led to a protest by Switzerland and they were restored to him.

After the outbreak of the war in 1939 Ludwig advocated a United States of Europe, without, however, developing any detailed economic and political proposals. In 1940 he published "Three Portraits", studies of Mussolini, Stalin and Hitler, which contained a revision of an earlier estimate of Mussolini's praise of the Jews of Italy and his abhorrence of theories of racial purity; now Ludwig decided that Mussolini found it expedient to yield to Hitler. He still saw a chance for Mussolini to rank as a statesman, but "If he plunges into his imitator's adventure, he will perish with him."

In 1940 Ludwig returned to the United States to give his services for the defense savings program among foreign language groups. Following the attack on Pearl Harbor he undertook a dollar-a-year job at Washington to conduct propaganda, writing and broadcasting to the Germans from the United States.

hot pack treatments were rushed to stricken areas by the National Foundation. All 26 respirators owned by the National Foundation are still in use in epidemic areas. At the request of the National Foundation, the American Red Cross recruited more than 700 nurses from all parts of the country to staff regular and emergency hospitals.

The seven states most severely menaced were New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky, but emergency aid in the form of money, professional personnel and supplies has been sent this year by the National Foundation to 21 states and the District of Columbia.

Dr. Dupre Becomes Executive Secretary Of World Student Service Fund

Dr. Huntley Dupre, former professor of History at the University of Kentucky, is becoming Executive Secretary of the World Student Service Fund on November 1st, according to a report from that office. He succeeds Miss Wilmina Rowland, who is resigning after three years with the Fund to go to Europe to serve on the staff of the European Student Relief Fund, the W. S. S. F.'s administering committee. Miss Rowland will leave sometime after the first of the year for Geneva, Switzerland.

Dr. Dupre has a background of student relief work after World War I, when he was director of the Studensky Domov, a great international student union in Prague, Czechoslovakia. This union had a self-governing membership of twenty-seven nationalities. It housed the offices of European Student Relief and the Czechoslovak-
