January 1855 The weather has been, hoarse, for the last two weeks, rainy & blowy & rather depressing to our spirits. Miss Palmer flashed in for a wee chat the other morning & she said she was compelled to take frequent baths to keep herself dry & that just as soon as the sun shone brightly once more, she, her mother & friends, are going to hang themselves over the clothes line in a row to bask. I knew my little suspicious about "our friend", a charming & bright young Englishman. Well, time will tell!
