Voorhis To Speak At Rollins Graduation

It has been announced that this year's commencement speaker will be Jerry H. Voorhis, former democratic congressman from California and father of one of the Rollins graduates, Alice Hanson. Mr. Voorhis graduated from Yale in the class of 1923. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Delta Kappa. From 1937 to 1947 Mr. Voorhis was a member of congress from the 12th congressional district of California.

Spider Island At Stone

There are shades of Alfred Hitchcock in the Fred Stone Theatre presentation, "Spider Island," only Donald Allen's got 89 steps, and a chilling soundtrack that has everything from crumbling light-house towers to buried treasure and very dead corpses. The play's high school-age shouldn't mislead any prospective theatregoers. The verities of the piece line in the manner in which it's been directed and enacted. The pace is fast, sometimes frantic, and the acting is consistently far above average throughout. The script, although fantastic, is for the most part tightly woven, and audiences will shakily grow fingers while the actresses have one exciting adventure after another onstage.

Through lighting and sound effects a very mysterious mood is set. The scene takes place in an abandoned lighthouse on a desert island. There one meets some of the strangest characters that two would never want to meet except across the footlights.

Beverly Cotter and Elinore Bales take top acting honors as Helen and Abbie May, two elderly spinsters, who live alone and like it. Abbie is slightly piqued and believes their dead brother resides in the lighthouse tower. She also thinks the date is October 30, 1903, and that she is only 23 years old. Elinore deftly refrains from overacting, and makes the part most believable, while Beverly plays her equally difficult role with assurance and skill.

Barbara Colch turns in a smooth acting job as Rita Mayo, niece of the two sisters, who learns that she has inherited the island, but didn't bargain for relatives. Terry Weaver has a role similar to the one of Paul, which she played in "The Male Animal," and does every bit as well as he. She has an exceptional amount of talent for timing laugh lines. Mary Delano has her best part to date as Dolie, the hired girl, whose grandfather died in jail accused of the murder of Rita's uncle. Jessica Blanche portrays Big Crosby, another weird character, who is intent on stirring up trouble on the island. The part is a far cry from her role as Mylene Demosky in "The Cherry Orchard," and the contrast offers ample proof of her characterization ability. The surprise member of the cast is a fellow who somewhat resembles the ghost of Frankenstein. He's the one male member of the cast, but if his name was revealed, Sheriff might bring suit for stealing his horror thunder.

During the past week Shirley Fry has been playing in the French International Tennis Championships at Paris. She is seeded fourth in the women's singles and has won her way into the quarter-finals. In the first round Shirley dropped the first set to Mrs. Hilda Doherty of Austria but then came back in the two sets to win 7-5, 6-1. Next she defeated Mrs. Myrtle Brumley of France in the second round 6-4, 6-2. To gain her way into the quarter-finals, Shirley succeeded in defeating Miss Edith Middleton of England 4-3, 6-0, in the third round. The results of the remaining matches to be played will probably be in the Orlando papers.

In the mid-double Shirley and her partner, Philippe Washer, who is the Belgian Champion, have advanced into the third round. They first defeated the Swiss team, Miss Suzie Seiler and Jacques Blandel, 6-4, 6-1, and then Miss Jacqueline Beutin of France and Harry Hampton of Australia 7-5, 4-3. They met Gloria Butler of New York City and Kukuljovic in the third round.

Graduating students who are seeking job in Florida can now register with the Florida State Employment Service for aid in obtaining the job of their choice. They can turn in an application to the local office of the Employment Service and their names and qualifications will be forwarded to prospective employers. Then arrangements will be made for interviews.

The jobs offered are for men and women who are qualified—and are merely interested. Application blanks and further information can be obtained in the Student Dean's Office.

Annie Russell To Have Movies

On Sunday evening May 30, there will be a special picture program in the Annie Russell Theatre at 8:15 for the Rollins family and commencement guests. The feature will be a series of comedies illustrating the development of the films from 1908 to 1925. They will include "The Doctor's Secret," "Gertie the Dinosaur," "His Little Girl," and "The Freshman," to name but a few.

Miss. Treat To Retire This Year

Miss Anna Biegelow Treat was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. She was graduated from Milwaukee-Dawson Seminary. After attending Milwaukee-Dawson College for two years, she transferred to Smith College, from which she was graduated with the Bachelor of Arts degree.

She was associated with her sister in "Miss Treat's School for Girls," a private school in Milwaukee, Florida, where she was engaged in business (from normal school to real estate) until she came to Rollins in 1927.

Miss Treat was secretary of the Maitland School Board for two terms, during which time new school houses were built in Maitland and Estabrook. She was on the Board of Trustees of Hungerford School for several years, was tax assessor for the town of Maitland, and participated in the publication of the MAITLAND NEWS, a weekly newspaper. She was also on the Maitland Library Board and on the Orlando-Winter Park was an outstanding charter member of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Treat was also active in the Winter Park Garden Club, the Florida Association of Colleges and Universities and the Red Cross, from which she received a certificate for meritorious service.

Miss Treat joined the Rollins staff in 1927, became Assistant Registrar in 1928, and Registrar in 1934. She is retiring this year to become Registrar Emerita.

During Founder's Week in 1945, the Rollins Decoration of Honor was awarded to Miss Treat.

After her retirement, Miss Treat will continue to make her home in Maitland.

Miss Laura Neville will succeed Miss Treat as Registrar.

Rollins Wins Water Skiing

The Rollins College Water Skiing team won the first intercollegiate water skiing championship when they defeated a highly touted Florida Southern team at Cypress Gardens last Saturday. Dick Pope, the renowned promoter of water sports presented the trophy to Dick Evers, captain and leading scorer of the Rollins team.

The victory was a surprising one, for the Rollins team had only practiced for three months while the team from Southern had been at it for almost three times that long.

Rollins tied the salient events and then went on to capture the trick riding when Dick Evers completed a 180 degree turn while doing backwards. When those competing for the Rollins team were Bud Dawson, Ed Swindle, Joe Dierick, Jimmy Lietter, John Fitzgerald and Evers.

In the women's division the girls won the slalom but were defeated in the trick riding. Those competing for Rollins were Lee Bengert, Gerry Hall, Margy Mountcastle, and Nita Benzenderger.

We would like to congratulate Jack McDowell for making it possible for us to have water skiing here at Rollins, a sport that is rapidly growing in stature throughout the country.

The entries in the men's division were as follows: Alpha Phi, led by John Murphy; Lambda Chi Alpha, led by Erik Walker; and Beta Beta Beta, led by Norman Shaffer.

Competition in the women's division was especially close, since the Chi Omega's, who came in second, already had two legs on the cup, and if they had won the cup, they would have retained permanent possession of it.

And now one of the main bouts of the evening. Fred "I cut nothing but red meat" Taylor strode to the ring to face the undefeated Earl St. Louis feather-weight Art Swacker. The two men glared at each other both eager to start the fray. Bang. They're off. Swacker had a right to the jaw that was parried soundly by "Red Meat". Both danced nimbly about the ring sliding each other up. Then Taylor began his assault with a rap to the mid-section, another right, a left, another right another another... No... No... No... "Red Meat" doesn't seem to be so cruel... the editor has requested that because women and children also read the "Spit" that I should not continue the harrowing account any longer. It is hoped that these heels will continue next year as there is nothing like good clean American sports to keep young boys from being raised for life in the local saloons.

Last Thursday in Week Hall the first intercollegiate boxing matches were held. To the surprise of no one the fearless men from Delta Chi slugged their way to the cup. Taking second place in this round were the Alpha Phi. The Lambda Chi slugged their way to the cup. The first match of the evening, "Kid" Schwartz of the Alpha Chi beat "Roundhouse" Charlie Knecht with vicious body blows that had Knecht reeling from start to finish which happened to be thirty-three seconds later. The next bout saw Killer McMenemy, the man with the fabulous uppercut, completely render helpless "Bones" Clark of the Chi Club with a dazzling display of rights and lefts. Clark was carried from the ring screaming "I'll never fight again."

At this point in the evening an intermission was held to enable any of the fainter hearts to leave the arena as vicious was the fighting.

Rollins Has Visitors

The campus was fevered last week with two distinguished visitors from the canine world. Joseph Tarabochia and Wilbur Yellowing arrived on a special mission from Japan, south sea west of the Kaitake Kingdom, on a pretense of studying Rollins' vaunted educational methods for use in the old country.

Both were impressed by the canine method, despite language difficulties and a curiously unwelcome reception in certain of the indoor classes. However, the dogs were magnanimous and bestowed qualified blessings on the Rollins system.

"Despite the inhuman treatment of animal minorities," barked Tarabochia, "I concede to a certain efficacy, in a very vague way, inherent in the therapy—even if it is only a theory—of letting the student occasionally interrupt the pedantic meanderings of professor, (and I use that latter term advisedly)."

"The dogs were vexed, however, at the lack of eating facilities for animal minorities. Both were refused admittance to the library and complained of discrimination. 'If the Inter-Species Committee over hears of this,' they barked in unison, 'there'll be the very devil to pay.'"

PHI MUSINGS
The Phi Mu's are floating on music's wing above Fox Hall. They captured the Campus Sing with a melodic rendition of Khatchaturian's "Gay Suite," which they rendered with a musical background furnished by the Boston Pop Orchestra. Because it was a thrilling experience, they were thrilled. The judges were thrilled. The other contestants were thrilled. Stokowski has signed them for a personal appearance in Carnegie Hall when the time arrives. They expect to be the solo artists, if she finds the Lost Chord in time. Jeanne Byrd will play a Chinese version of Chopin's, while performing the marvelous feat of eating chop suey at the same time. Jo Harder will be in the audience, accompanied by Governor Mullen of Spotsylvania.

KAPPA
Nancy Morrison swung lightly from the chandelier reaching down occasionally to give a friendly wink to anyone who was underlook when she passed overhead. Cooperative Alice O'Neill usually lifted a golf club and patted the ladies out of the door, and over the fence to the tennis court. Nancy Morrison was still swinging lightly from the chandelier while Billy Moore looked away on the piano with an eye. Some of the keys were stuck. Nancy Butts was busy running for vice-president. She ran and she ran. Then she got tired and sat down, but only for a moment. Lee Bongrut put down her sparring partner, and then her boxing gloves and jerked Nancy off the couch. "Get up," she said emphatically, "Phi Theta might as well." She yanked to the telephone, dialed up the chimney and retrieved the newly mired intramural cap. Everyone rushed to gaze at it fondly, and then fished back to build their muscles. The secret of their success? Why, they all voted for Bernarr MacFadden.

THETA TID BITS
How is the state of the Theta? It's great in a bodamish sort of way. They're always calm—with all those brains and brawn, they're nothing to fear but Heap-Big-Hannah heavyweight pride of the wrestling ring. To defend their numerous titles, they've pledged Grooming Gertrude, who keeps in training by running around Lake Virginia ten times each morning. The ceremony was impressive. No body battered an eyelash when the ceiling unexpectedly caved in while the congratulations were being offered. The exuberant Gertrude had thrown a few trophies into the air, but somebody forgot to take the weights out and the plaster resented it. The collapse went almost unnoticed, however, as they were busy counting muscles. "Heap-Big-Hannah, practice hard, cause I'm coming!" Gertrude warned as she went upstairs to feed the baby rabbits.

INDEPENDENT INKLINGS
Why make it sound like gossip?

Miss Mush
Well, reader, I've had my "one" to the "ground" as it were, and, oh, gossip this week is just yummy. Well, my soap is this, if you can stand it, Joe Master and Jean Cartwright are a thing. They thought they'd fool us, but I have it straight from a little birdie. Marge Colt went to Paris this past week end. Peter Van Meter has just broken up with Beverly Ott, and this was the romance everyone said was "forever." I guess we all know by now that Tom Pickens and Claudia Richelmeaux are but practically engaged. I think someone whose initials are Milos Swartz is pretty broken up about this, but new he and Ann Knight are steady. You can't fool me, Dotti Ambrose! I know you've got your eye on Bill Barker. Rusty Bonaldi is seeing red, these days, if Ken Rosewood "knows" what I mean. Joe Master and Zoe Weston are inseparable these days. Jess Buchas is learning to play the harp, and Art Swacker certainly thinks she's an "angel." One secret I've just "unearthed" that I think will startle her many friends, is that Nancy Butts ran for Vice President. And speaking of politics, (and reader, just who doesn't, these days) Bert-

GAMMA PHI GADDINGS
The good word is that Summer's here, and it is with mixed feelings of happiness and sorrow that Gamma Phi's are getting ready for points homebound. It's been a good year, and much as we will all have terrific summers, we shall be glad to be back come fall.

June 5 will be an important date because it is then that Doc Bufalino will emerge into Des Balemora. The wedding is taking place in the Keweenaw Chapel. Bridesmaids include Penny Drinkwater, Jean Reinhardt, Pat Pierce, and Anne Smith. Carol Starr is coming at the risk of editorializing—the best of luck in the world to Doc and Mili.

The latter part of the week Shirley Kirk will be a bridesmaid in the Herring-Malls wedding.

Jo Gomer, PegLawwill, and Margie Ann Fowler partyed at the Lambda Chi shindig Friday nite. This failed to lift the column last time—but we reiterate—another red head has joined G.P.B. ranks—we are happy to announce the pledging of Mary Lee Ayerling.

Garbage Off A Hot Platter
by The Old Disc Thrower
Lots of hot pie from old platters this week, eaters and chicken. Lots for you old disc thrower to toss into the mac-flap so pull up the old armchair and give a listen. First to bounce off your old lady's turntable, my diggins! This is a fine old re-burn by that fine old bunch of fellows—The Original Dixieland Jazz-Pickers. Now, you've all latched on to them giving a b. to "Father Divine, You're All Mine", but just give up the old trumpet, and get lost in the rhythm-rocking syncopation of "I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister's Oldsmobile". This old platter's groovy like a test-cut mottle. Like a tree, it's all root. Oh little cutties and chickens, you will swoon like old Lillian Gish as King Farouk jumps will like old Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. on his final telephone solo. Add a jazzy sax chirping (in the Creole tongue) by Fats Hotcher, and you're incapacitated—man, incapacitated.

Now, old the old hearing aid while I toss off some talk-squeak on the brand-new waxing of "My Appopka Dream-Bungalow", by Sammy Bray and his Dunkey Sounders. Tada your Old Disc-Thrower's word, little cutties and chickens, you'll dance in a trance. Two sing or goose-step, those twelve singing violins will put your honey in that "receptive" mood. Ha ha.

All for now, old platters. Got a "listen" date with my old Kiosmese Rhythm Kings collector's items. Or too late, no less. Keep the old old membrane oiled, my diggins! friends, till next-anno.

Cleaver in Clover
I just wonder how many readers who read this column every week actually know just what "cleaver" means? Well, I had a vague idea, but I decided to look it up in the dictionary just the same, and upon discovering that it could mean "A butcher's heavy hatchet or chipper", I was really shocked out of ten years growth. So that's what's been going on in Cleaverland, the refined dormitory for freshman women, all these months! I thought I knew what I was doing, but apparently not. Now, how could I, innocent and unassuming as I am, even think of lifting a butcher's knife and slicing it through the middle of Cleaverland? Mind you, I don't write the SCOOP column (But I have a good idea who does—yuk! yuk!) and therefore, it hasn't been my policy to tear these lovely femmes apart verbally, even though, I do claim to get in on pretty much of the ambushing that goes on around here, but rather, it has been my policy (you let me see—what has my policy been?) to uh-ah what we say, well to give all the chicks a break as long as anybody else will, and let them know that they ain't been forgotten. Ha! I just thought of a good joke. Well, I mean a nice joke. Here it is: A citizen was walking up Park Avenue (Winter Park to be specific) when he was buttonholed by a character who said: "Shay! Can you tell me where to find Alcoholish Anonymous?" "Why?" said the citizen. "Do you want to join?" "Nape," said the inebriated hammy, "Where resign." "I thank you, Where was I? Oh, yes, cleaver. Well, since this is the last time I'll be writing this cleaver cleaver (please, have my handkerchief), I could, mind you, I could really go to town and slice up everyone—in fact, I could even stop outside the cleaver and slice up my dear friend and colleague, James Erster, an inconspicuous sort of fellow that wanders around the campus in a daze most of the time, but then, I wouldn't want to do that, so I won't! Ha! Another joke: "Why did the cow get a divorce?" "She got a bum steer." Ha! Ha! Oh please, it isn't that funny. Well, as "they" say—"I'll give you a clue," he's been! I've really enjoyed meeting around the typewriter every Monday night and then receiving the shock of actually seeing the results in print on Thursday. Don't think it hasn't all been fun!

I remain, unsinged.

FoamingByFulov
My name is Fulov but don't make any cracks about my name or any sneazish suggestions that I might be Russian. If I ever had any Russian ancestry I hereby deny it. The Russians are a dirty, degraded race who are plotting to overthrow the National Association of Manufacturers, the very quintessence of our democratic tradition. Yes, I believe that what our country needs is a good five-cent Republican president. Or, as J. Parnall Thomas said, "Oh I come from California with a Menjou on my knee."

If you have any idea that this is a political satire, you have another thing coming. I am utterly sincere. I do not favor any "ism" except fascism. I am against almost everything else, and that should establish me as a competent critic.

As any fool can plainly see, this country of ours is evolving toward a perfect state of things. The logical goal of progress is the following ideal: free enterprise to a point where any individual would be free to usurp the entire world if he were within his rights. This freedom is un-American. These hore liberals talk about world government. Well, boy about a world state in which everybody in the world might be controlled by one man! There you have a complete unanimity, a freedom from such disturbing institutions as freedom of speech which creates only discontent, and a well-regulated state in which at least one man in the world is free.

Sincerely,
FoamingByFulov

hair color changing, sweet nothings whispered in my ear, and a yell for big train which is still echoing throughout the halls of the library.

Jim Ernster

The last issue of the Rollins Sandspur cannot possibly go to press without a brief mention of one of the most, in fact, the most fabulous character ever to hit the Rollins campus—namely one Jim Ernster, K. A. R. O. C., etc. This fascinating man, beloved by young and old alike, inspired everyone by his wisdom, understanding, tactfulness, intelligence, grace, charm, loveliness, and his way with the women. It takes me to write this. I'm all thumbs on the typewriter. This man meant so much to me, and I don't know how life can be worth living with the knowledge that his presence will not be made known at Rollins next year. Women will commit suicide, men will remain drunk twenty-four hours of the day

THEATRE NEWS

"The Barretts of Angel Street" Success

Once in a lifetime the perfect play comes along. It is an instantaneous success. It wins the Critical Circle Award for Squares, and the Pulitzer Prize. People even say it's fair. The production "The Barretts of Angel Street," or "The Male Animal in the Glass Menagerie," had a one night run in the Fred Russell Theatre. It was easy to see the amount of work that had gone into the presentation for six long months, and why it had been rehearsed in the Annie Stone Theatre by Allen S. Hitchcock for two months, aimed on the Harborside under supervision of Wilbur Nugent, and carried on into the Fred Russell for final practice and direction by Howard Logan, who also directed "Sister Roberts" in Washington.

The plot concerns the Barrett family which lives next door to the Manningsham's on Angel Street. The Manningsham's have a roomer named Bob Browning, who writes for his college paper. However, the school thinks Bob has territory in Hamsbury Red territories, and send Inspector Rough in to investigate. Rough forgets his mission when he discovers that Manningsham has the nasty habit of beating his wife, and the detective waits in the closet, hoping for a murder so he can make an arrest. One day, Browning goes next door to borrow a typewriter ribbon, and meets Lizzie Barrett, who has a strained an eyebrow from raising it so high and is confused to her bedroom. Finding no typewriter ribbon, Bob goes into the bedroom to look for one. He finds, instead, Lizzie and her beloved

Dibner's Play Will be Well Remembered

Red-blonded theatre-goers were well rewarded by the Lavatory Theatre's production of Martin Dibner's note dramatization of the Kinsey Report, now retitled, "Honeybunch" at Camp, Excelsior, and Mr. Dibner has likewise demonstrated his talents in actual stories, his last being "The Bachelor Seal." But plenty that is animal remains in "Honeybunch."

The cast was familiar. Sometimes overfamiliar. Jean Cartwright starred. Madge Martin was entirely tawdry in the difficult role of "Honeybunch," and her meager talents have never been more extravagantly betrayed. For this role, Miss Martin dyed her hair blond, but the disguise was not sufficient. Sidney Lamer's portrayal of a fast, fasted, fast-witted, eccentric artist showed remarkable insight. Unfortunately, he could not be heard beyond the first row, but the audience thought it was a pastiche, any way. As "Fox Shakeshaft," Jean Cartwright sparkled. Jim McMenemy played a lost soul so convincingly that his expulsion from school is only a matter of seconds.

An unfortunate occurrence occurred when Bill Barker, playing opposite Bill Barker, once again forgot his lines, but this half-hour lapse was admirably filled by Paula Shapiro and Bobbie Lewis, who got up and sang twice over the entire score from "That Kid Kild." The audience did not seem to notice this mishap. Making her debut in the role of "Ellie Heller," Jean Cartwright cut off. The set, recruited from the city jail, was executed by Wilbur Dorset, and pronounced done at 8:30.

An unhappy occurrence occurred in the fourth act when a back drop was suddenly lifted, exposing Miss Bobbie Lewis changing her costume, but I don't think anyone noticed.

the street the two men staggered, locked in a death grip. Up through Greenwich village they slowly rolled, tumbled, and staggered, neither one relinquishing his death grip on the other. Through the streets of Brooklyn they went. Finally, on the middle of the Brooklyn Bridge, they came to a halt. With one mighty last burst of strength Glasjaw forced Babyface over the railing. As Babyface hurtled down through space, he

Rosa McMenemy had said write about the average Rollins co-ed, and though the reporter knew there wasn't one thing average about any of them he finally narrowed it down to Alicia Swackner and Jimmie Mae Erster. For the reporter reasoned that like most Rollins co-eds—if you discounted the White-Jays—they had one head.

Alicia is the tall, stalking X severity type, and her naturally curly hair has trapped many admirers. On the other hand, Jimmie Mae is of the short chattering K. A. severity brand, and her hair varies with the bellfellow from brown to luffy to black. While Alicia spends hours setting her waves each night, Jimmie Mae confesses to running through her hair each morning once lightly with a show brush.

Digging deep into the lives of a Rollins co-ed, the reporter discovered several revolutionary facts about his two "average" co-eds. First, they neither one knew what he meant by the words "bent" and "Robbie's" and second, they never went to classes "dilly dilly" in a raincoat and so had no tiffs with the administration.

Though the traditional trademark of a Rollins girl is a cherished complexion, dainty Miss Swackner aspires the very idea, while Miss Swackner confesses that she and her good friend, Joie Masters, have spent hours agonizing over like the girl yes, Jim Barker's.

When the reporter asked the girls what they thought of Rollins men, they both agreed. Jimmie Mae, who seems to be the typical woman of the two, said, "They're awfully fact." "Yes," agreed even the aloof Miss S. "We can never out run them. They're so athletic, you know." The reporter knew. She'd just been out on a weight lifting date with that spirited Bladen Knight, who sometimes accompanies her on his guitar or frightens her with his pet min.

The reporter, who thought maybe the girls hadn't heard him before, asked them again if they weren't really enjoying it tonight.

"Of course not," Jimmie Mae seemed indignant. "I have just changed my major from Underwater Basket Weaving—no impractical these days, you know—to the Ethnology of the American Indian."

"And I," said Alicia, "I am double majoring in modern dancing and folk dancing."

small taxpayer 30 per cent relief on his income taxes and the large taxpayer 10 per cent relief, but both of these bills were attempted to be killed by Presidential veto.

Labor-Management Peace: Passed over the President's Political veto was the new Labor-Management Relations Act revising the National Labor Relations Act so as to provide protection for the American public as well as individual union members against racketeering and labor strife.

Veteran's Aid: Dozens of measures liberalizing aid to Veterans were passed by the 80th Congress, among them legislation authorizing the immediate making of terminal leave pay bonds—a step which the Truman Democratic Administration opposed on the alleged grounds that it was "inflationary."

Salvage Elements in the Government: An excellent start was made in forcing the President to act to uncover and expel from the Government the numerous subversive influence operations in the strategic Government positions since the days of the Democratic New Deal which also included that so-called probably to be checked out Progressive Third Party Candidates, Henry Wallace.

The other promises fulfilled over the political minded Democratic machine's constant opposition, were the following measures: National Defense, uniting the Armed Forces, thereby streamlining and strengthening our military defenses; Presidential Treasure, revising Presidential Succession Act and a Constitutional amendment limiting the President to two terms; Foreign Affairs, including foreign aid and emergency relief; Wartime Controls, they were curtailed and abolished where wise; Reduced Housing Buildback and Costs; Soil Conservation Program; Rural Electrification; and Crop Insurance.

This is the type of Congress the people of the United States will elect and want to see in the White House next November to put this country of ours back on a sound footing.

Kappa's, KA's Win Intramural Trophies

The Kappa Alpha Fraternity is this year's winner of the coveted J. Gordon Clark Intramural Trophy.

The boys from the Red Brick House accumulated a total of 1511½ points in the eight-sport intramural program during the year and were over 251 points ahead of their nearest rival and last year's winner, the X Club.

Getting off to a strong start last fall by winning touch football, the KA's continued their mastery of intramural sports by winning tennis and basketball, and coming in second in golf, crew, volleyball, and swimming. In fact, the only sport that the winners didn't place too well in was football where they tied for third place.

The second place X Club, who had a total of 1530½ points were winners of three events—golf, volleyball, and swimming, and the third place Sigma Nu's amassed the crew and softball championships.

The points for the year are as follows:

Kappa Alpha	1911½
X Club	1530½
Sigma Nu	1262
Lambda Chi	1046
Independents	791½
Delta Chi	785

Tars Finish Successfully

The Rollins College State Intercollegiate Championship Baseball Team completed its schedule last weekend by defeating the Florida State University Nine in the two game series played at Harper-Shepard Field.

Pitching four hit ball, the St. Cloud Fireballer, Clyde Stevens, set the invading Florida Statens down by a score of 8 to 5 in the game played Friday.

Buddy McHyde paced the 9 hit Tar attack by getting a pair of doubles.

In Saturday's game, Rollins coasted to an 8 to 2 victory behind the brilliant two hit pitching of "Big John" Gray. It was Gray's ninth win of the season.

The Tars record for the season is 21 wins and 4 losses.

When the last ball was pitched ending Saturday's game, the career of Charlie Gundersch ended with it. Charlie has been manager of football and baseball for four years and we would like to take this opportunity to say "well done" for the fine job that he has done all these years.

STROKE GOIN' UP

Weston L. Emery

Last Saturday the greatest event in the annual schedule of small college crews took place in Boston under the genial sponsorship of the Dad Vail Association. Boston University was host crew, and made the visiting crews glad the sixth Dad Vail Regatta was in Boston. Six varsity crews, four Jayco crews, and three freshman crews battled down the Charles River Basin to capture the title of "Best crews in Junior League sailing."

Although Rollins Varsity sweepstake were favored by Boston papers to win, the powerful Boston Terriers proved the merit of an extremely tough rowing schedule with bag league competition by pulling to a three length win over the field of six varsity crews. The bronzed Tara, rowing the best race in the history of crew at Rollins, stroked their way second, easily beating the slugging Dartmouth eight. Marietta, who bested Rollins in the Regatta last year by half a length, came in fourth; Iona, latest member of the Association, from New Rochelle, placed fifth; and Amherst crossed the line sixth.

Times in the choppy basin against a stiff headwind were fairly slow. Boston U. made it in 1:36; Rollins, in the adjacent lane, did the mile-and-five-sixteenths course in 7:47; Dartmouth, contending for first place for the first half mile, dropped back and came over in 7:56; Marietta, most-improved crew since last year, crossed in 8:05; Iona clocked their first Regatta race at 8:12; and Amherst pulled across at 8:23. Most crews average four seconds to a length—or six feet.

Rollins best previous finish in Dad Vail was fourth. Until this regatta, the Tars were the only undefeated crew of the year.

The B. U. Terriers won the varsity race in last year's Regatta in 7:44. Dartmouth placed second, Marietta third, Rollins fourth, and American International fifth. Brad's oarsmen had high hopes of coping the trophy when they left Winter Park last week. Although they were using a strange shell in strange waters after a long train trip, they all admitted they were out-rowed. However, everyone connected with the crew was satisfied that the Tar eight rowed its most beautiful race and trailed B. U. (32,000 students) by a relatively close margin. The Tars had beaten the Terriers earlier in the season on Lake Mendota by a scant two feet.

A very friendly rivalry has developed between the evenly matched Rollins varsity crew and that of Boston University. The Yankees, termed "Carpet-baggers," have actually obtained an authentic carpet bag which they forfeit to a victorious Rollins eight. Rollins, who flies a Confederate Flag in every race, presents a victorious Boston eight with a handsome Flag. At this year's Regatta banquet, Brad, with an elegant flourish, surrendered (temporarily, of course!) the "Stars and Bars" to the Danyardians.

The target boat, retained by the victorious crew until beaten, will contain the Flag. The bag has a plate, engraved with results of each Tar-Terrier race.

Chap McDowell, one of the three frosh on our varsity crew, (others are Pete Fay and Don Bringer) worried Brad with a badly infected finger. Chap rowed anyway, and did a splendid job. Don Bringer, until his crew jinx stroke, replaced Palmer Tuttle who, unfortunately, could not make the trip. Charlie Knecht, Pete Sholley, Franklin filled out the shell, stroked by Sam Burdette and coxed by Weston Emery. Bill Couch went up as extra oarsman.

After the banquet, the Tars were whisked out to Pete Sholley's home in West Newton where Pete's gracious parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sholley, (some readers may remember Smokey, Pete's sister, Rollins '45) and ten Wellesley girls had prepared a little party with soft drinks and strong music.

The popular Terrier stroke, Herman Mowatt, captain of the B. U. varsity (nicknamed "Moe"), his pic appeared on front of the April 1st Sandspur was unable to row because of a respiratory infection. Ed Chapdelaine, freshman, stroked both the Boston varsity and freshman crews to victory. Moe, who graduated from B. U. this spring, represented his crew at the banquet when Brad surrendered the Confederate Flag as a personal award to him. A bigger silk flag will be sent north for the Terrier trophy case.

The Rollins-Boston U. rivalry, headlined in Boston papers, was the highlight of the entire Regatta. Commended as a friendly, sporting feud, it was followed with interest by all members of the Dad Vail Association.

Next year, by the way, will see rowing at Southern (coached by our invaluable rigger, Roy Couch, formerly of the West Side Rowing Club in Buffalo), Tampa University, and probably Miami. Crew is on the up-and-up in the South. Rollins will stay on the top down here, and next year will have an even better chance of winning the Big Event.

For those who don't follow crew: Brad is considered one of the best crew coaches in the game. He is known and well liked by all of the coaches and crews in the Association, and by many of the big league personnel.

Resume' Of Sport Season

The Rollins Student Body should be proud of their athletic teams this year for this has been the best year athletically in the history of the school.

It is believed that Rollins during the past year has the best percentage of wins in all sports than any other college in the country.

The resume below substantiates this belief:

Football

Record 7 wins, 2 losses. The football team Rollins fielded last fall was the strongest team in years. Although they were upset by Erskine 19-0 in the first game of the season the Tars snapped back to defeat a strong University of Richmond team 29 to 6. Meeting the University of Miami next, Rollins put up a terrific fight before going down to a 6 to 0 defeat. After the Miami game, the Tars defeated all the remaining teams on their schedule by the following score: Rollins 27 Staton 6; Rollins 13, Marshall College 6; Rollins 13, Presbyterian 12, and Rollins 40, Oberlin 6.

Tennis

Record 13 wins, no losses. Going undefeated in their 13 matches, the Rollins Tennis Team has a right to be called the National Intercollegiate Champions. The tennis team met and defeated some of the best teams in the country including Texas, Rice, Tulane, and Miami. The caliber of the team is shown in the array of champions that conquies in: Gardner Larned, National Intercollegiate Singles Champion, Buddy Rehner, National Junior Singles Champion, Enrique Boes, Eastern Intercollegiate Singles Champion, and Richard Balthers, Brazilian Singles Champion.

Baseball

Record 21 wins, 4 losses. Compiling one of the best records in years, the baseball team brought the State Intercollegiate Championship home to Rollins. The Tars not only competed with inter-state competition but included two Southeastern Conference Teams in its schedule. The baseball team is composed of its share of stars too, with All-State Selection of Harvey Cox, Buddy McHyde, Milford, Talion, Jim Covello, and John Grey.

Crew

Record: 5 wins, 1 loss. Meeting and defeating the best small college crews in the country has won Rollins the acknowledgment of being one of the strongest of its class in the nation. On its home water, Rollins defeated Boston U., Dartmouth, American International College, Amherst, and Tampa. The only scheduled loss of the season was by Washington and Lee, in which the Junior Varsity rowed in place of the Varsity.

Golf

7 wins, 7 losses. Although the win and losses column is over, it does not give a true picture of the golf team. Rollins golf team is one of the best in the state and have this year defeated the University of Miami, one of the strongest teams in the country. Pete Dye and Clyde Kelly both showed their ability in the State Intercollegiate Meet. Dye going the finals and Kelly the semi-finals.
