New Libra Members

LIBRA INITIATED five upperclasswomen into its ranks Wednesday evening in the Frances Chapel. New members are Ann Brookbank, Julie Van Pelt, Jody Boulware, Sue Barclay, and Beth Halperin.

Two Seniors, Three Juniors Initiated Into Women's Leadership Honorary

Two seniors and three juniors were initiated into the ranks of Libra, Rollins' leadership honorary for upperclass women, in ceremonies in the Frances Chapel Wednesday evening.

The five, who were tapped by white-clad Libra members after hours on Tuesday night, April 28, are Sue Barclay, Ann Brookbank, Jody Boulware, Beth Halperin, and Julie Van Pelt.

Libra members are chosen on the basis of high scholarship, participation in extra-curricular activities, citizenship, and character. Purpose of the organization, which was founded in 1935, is to recognize balanced living and broad interests.

All five of the new members of the honorary have been active in varied phases of campus life.

Sue Barclay, a senior, is past president of Gamma Phi Beta sorority; she has also served as corresponding secretary and Panhell representative for her social group.

President and past vice-president of Community Service, Sue has served on the Chapel Staff this year. She has also participated in the Indie Show and Shakespeareana and is a member of Young Republicans and Canterbury clubs.

The other senior chosen, Ann Brookbank is also a Gamma Phi and has served as recording secretary of her sorority.

Active in both campus and local music organizations, Ann is a four-year member of the Chapel Choir, past president of the Music Guild, and concertmaster of the Florida Symphony Youth Orchestra. In addition, she has participated in the Bach Choir, the Indie Show, and Shakespeareana.

In recognition of her outstanding work in the music department, Ann was awarded both the Phi Beta scholarship and the Hutchins Award her sophomore year.

Past president of Phi Mu, Jody Boulware has served as both Student Council and Panhell representative for her sorority. Last year she was secretary of the sophomore class, and this year, vice-president of the junior class.

Jody's other activities have included Orientation committee, Tomokan staff, and WPRK. She has also worked on WDBO-TV on "Aurora."

Beth Halperin, current president of Chi Omega, has previously held the offices of social chairman and pledge trainer for her sorority. She has served on the Orientation, Fiesta, and Student Council Social committees.

Tomokan staff, Chapel reader, Community Service, and Future Teachers are also among Beth's extra-curricular activities.

The third junior to be chosen by Libra was Julie Van Pelt, president and past treasurer of Kappa Kappa Gamma. She belongs to Phi Society, Pi Gamma Mu, Young Republicans, and Canterbury Club and has served on the Student-Faculty Library committee.

Active in athletics, Julie is a member of the R Club and has played on the varsity tennis, basketball, volleyball, and softball teams.

Other members of Libra are seniors Joan Abendroth, Sue Dunn, Dottie Englehardt, Muff Murphy, D.A. Sharpe, Beth van Maanen, and Barbie Works, and juniors Joan Brand and Margaret Carmichael.

Dupres Honored By Key Society

Key Society, Rollins' highest scholastic honorary, initiated Marilyn Dupres yesterday evening in the Frances Chapel.

A junior, Marilyn has maintained an A minus average since entering Rollins. She is circulation manager of the Sandspur and vice-president of the Pan American Club. She was admitted into Phi Society last year on the basis of her scholastic achievement during her freshman year.

A member of Phi Mu sorority, Marilyn has participated in intramural sports for her social group and has played on the varsity basketball team.

Admission into Key Society is granted to students who have maintained an overall average of 7.80 or better for a period of at least six terms.

New members may be elected to the honorary any time between winter term of their junior year and their graduation.

Officers of the society for the coming year are Gordon Struble, president; Phyllis Zatlin, vice-president; and Marilyn Dupres, secretary. Graduating members are Dick Anderson and Tom DiBacco.

Language Department Reduces Requirement

Because of a rearrangement of language courses, starting next fall Rollins students will be required to take only the equivalent of 24 hours of language instead of the present 30 to fulfill the college requirements.

While first-year language classes will continue as five-hour courses, there will be a redistribution of hours and credits in the language courses on the 200, 300, and 400 levels.

Students will be able to fulfill their language requirement by taking a three-hour second year course for three terms. This will include those students now taking a first year language course.

Prof. Angela Campbell, current head of the language department, explains that this change was made to bring the Rollins language requirement in line with the requirements in other colleges. In the past Rollins has required more language study than most other colleges.

In addition to this three-hour course, however, a two-hour course, planned to supplement the former, will be offered for language majors and those students who wish to go on to advanced language study.

Most of the 300 and 400 level literature courses will also be set up on a three-hour basis with special two-hour courses offered to supplement them.

Although this new program will cause no drastic changes in the department, Mrs. Campbell explains, it will provide for a more flexible program, for a wider diversity of courses will be offered.

This redistribution of language courses is not the only recent change made in the department. Earlier this year, the French, German, and Spanish departments were combined to form a new foreign language department under one director.

Joining the Rollins faculty next fall as director of the language department will be Dr. J. Worth Banner. Dr. Banner, who is currently the head of the foreign language department at William and Mary, will also teach classes in Spanish.

DiBacco Chosen Reeve Oratorical Contest Winner

For the third consecutive year, Tom DiBacco was judged the winner of the Reeve Oratorical Contest, which was held Wednesday afternoon in Dyer Memorial.

DiBacco was competing against four of the other winners of the Reeve Essay Contest: Dave Berry, Robert Fleming, Jack Leffingwell, and Warren Wallace. The sixth winner, Moe Cody, was unable to participate, as he was in Philadelphia with the Rollins crew.

Speaking on labor organization under the Wagner Act, DiBacco, a Sigma Nu, was awarded the $50 prize for content and delivery of his speech.

Judges for the oratorical contest were three prominent local people: General Gerhart; Mr. Arthur Lissauer, a patron of the college; and Bishop William Moses.

Enyart Receives ODK Recognition

Arthur D. Enyart, Dean Emeritus of Men, recently received special recognition from the national ODK for outstanding service both to the national organization and to the Rollins chapter.

Dean Enyart was, more than anyone else, responsible for the founding of the Rollins chapter of ODK in 1931. A charter member, he was secretary for several years.

While at Rollins, Enyart headed student delegations to ODK national conventions and was himself active on the general board of the national organization.

Sandspur Among 4 Small College Weeklies To Earn All-American

With an increase of 50 points over its score for last spring, the Sandspur has earned its seventh consecutive All-American rating from the Associated Collegiate Press.

Issues of the 'Spur from September, 1958, through January, 1959, were awarded a total of 3,630 points—330 more than the minimum necessary for the All-American rank—to place the Rollins paper among the top four weeklies in the country for colleges with an enrollment of less than 750.

Examining the Sandspur on the basis of coverage, content, and physical properties, the ACP judges rated the paper in 23 specific areas and awarded it six "superiors," four "excellents," 11 "very goods," and two "goods."

Departments to receive the rating of "superior" were news sources, balance of news coverage, creativeness in features, lead paragraphs on news stories, editorials, and variety in headline sizes.

"A fine selection of timely, interesting topics for news stories and features," the judge wrote, and praised lead paragraphs for "well chosen content" and "fine writing style." "Nicely varied topics" was the judge's comment on editorial content.

Particular areas which the judge felt needed improvement were editorial page makeup, length of news stories, copyreading, and sports coverage.

Sandspur issues submitted to ACP were judged in comparison with papers from other colleges of similar size.

The All-American rating is an indication of "distinctly superior achievement," ACP explains, and is the highest award that a college newspaper can earn.

Issues judged were edited by Jean Rigg. Staff members working under her editorship were Bob Stewart, sports editor; Phyllis Zatlin, news editor; Lee Rogers, associate news editor; and Maggie Carrington, copy editor.

Russian Course Resolution Meets With Unanimous Council Approval

By JUDY CARL
Sandspur Council Reporter

Two academic issues, a proposed course in the Russian language and a summer term at Rollins, were the primary concerns in Monday night's Student Council meeting.

As a result of student interest in Russian, as shown in the Sandspur editorial of May 1, Robert Fleming proposed the following resolution which Council unanimously approved:

"Whereas the Russian language is of primary importance in the world today, and

Whereas, Rollins students and professors have shown an interest in introducing Russian into the Rollins curriculum,

We, the Rollins Student Association, do hereby resolve that the Rollins faculty should approve a credit course in Russian to be offered, if possible, in the fall of 1959."

Concerning progress towards obtaining a summer term at Rollins, Bill Ward relayed from

Monday's faculty meeting that the faculty is "afraid to take any actions themselves; however, they are generally in favor."

Whether such a term will begin this summer or next is at present the main area of disagreement, Ward commented. He explained that the first year would be conducted on a day-student basis and, if successful, would lead to introduction of housing the following year.

It was emphasized that a summer term, if introduced, would be considered a regular fourth quarter. "This would be excellent for our students because they could graduate in three years instead of four," Tina Levin added.

In other business, a budget committee consisting of Tony Toledo, Bruce Aufhammer, Julie Smith, Bill Ward, and Chuck Allen was appointed by president Dick Mansfield to consider questions concerning requested allocations in hope of reducing much needless debate in Council.

Wood Defends Constitution, Warns Against Disunity

Ed's Note: The following is the second half of a condensed version of past president Lea Wood's final report and recommendations to the new Student Council. The first half appeared in last week's paper.

This year's Fiesta under the direction and guidance of Toni Perzia and Lloyd Hoskins proved to be a smashing success. Even though the Buddy Morrow orchestra cost $1500 and additional expenses were more numerous than those of previous years, this year's Fiesta planning and a new system of financial control brought in a profit of approximately $2800. This total is $2600 more than last year's and exceeds the previous high for any year by $1400.

My congratulations to the entire Fiesta committee and especial compliments to the entire student body for its cooperation and the manner in which it rallied and pulled itself together after the tornado struck on Thursday morning to wreck numerous floats and uncountable hours of student work.

FACULTY HURRICANE

The tornado did not damage the morale of the student body nearly as much as the hurricane that hit the campus a few weeks after Fiesta. The hurricane I am referring to is the order to the social groups from the administration of the college to turn in the names of students who left campus for any reason during the Fiesta weekend accompanied with the disciplinary action taken by the groups.

It is unfortunate when a proven mature student body which has raised $2800 for scholarships must be forced to turn itself into a policed state in order to reprimand a combined total of less than

2% of the student body, a major part consisting of students who had merely gone to the beach in the afternoon after spending a night on floats.

THANKSGIVING VACATION

In January Bruce Aufhammer brought to Council reports of rumors which included the belief that the faculty was considering doing away with Thanksgiving vacation. Vice-president Dick Mansfield and I were allowed to present the students' views to the faculty, and, fortunately, the faculty voted to keep Thanksgiving vacation.

This is an example of how the faculty of Rollins College is much more understanding to student feelings than they are often made out to be. The only thing that has been lacking in the past has been proper communication and representation on both sides.

One of the biggest improvements made by this year's Council has been the gathering of all the amendments to the Council by-laws and printing the up-to-date copy of the Rollins College Student Association constitution and by-laws. This had not been available to Council during the past few years.

CONSTITUTION

It is now very discouraging to hear reports that the student deans, who are supposedly the faculty's representatives and advisors to the student government, have openly expressed themselves as taking the position that the present student government constitution is invalid because the faculty has never approved it.

It is true that contained within the constitution is a clause that it become student law upon the approval of the administration and/or faculty. The student deans now contend that this approval is not recorded in the faculty minutes.

In defense of our constitution, I would like to now state that it is evident from the constitution's contents that it was drawn up in conjunction with the administration of the college; otherwise the provision that the treasurer of the college also be the official treasurer of the student government funds would never have been in its contents.

The student government of this college should object to such an absurd insinuation towards a constitution which has provided a working format to the best student government in the state of Florida.

My advice to Council in this matter, if it be pressed further by the student deans, is to take the position that our present constitution is valid regardless of whether or not the faculty ever approved it.

QUIET COUNCIL

The minutes of this year's Council meetings reflect two distinct differences from previous years. One being that the Council has

Sandspur Sports Editor To Handle Publicity For New Jai Alai Fronton

Sandspur sports editor Bob Stewart will be in charge of sports publicity this summer for the newest Jai Alai fronton in the United States, located in Daytona Beach.

The job, Stewart explains, will entail calling in the nightly results to newspapers and radio and TV stations throughout the state and writing feature articles about the game and about individual players.

Stewart, who handles sports publicity for the Rollins News Bureau, recently had an article on speed-up baseball published with his by-line in Collegiate Baseball, a national newspaper.

Part-time sports correspondent for the Orlando Sentinel-Star, Stewart is now working on an article about streamlined baseball for Sports Illustrated.

Treasurer of Sigma Nu, Stewart, who is a Junior Business Administration major, is studying photography under college photographer Lyman Huntington.

University President Named To Faculty

Dr. Laurens H. Seelye, former university president and leading American educator in the Middle East, has been appointed visiting professor of philosophy for the coming academic year, Dean Scroggs announced last week.

Dr. Seelye has spent nearly 30 years in the Middle East as professor of philosophy at Robert College in Istanbul, Turkey, and at the American University at Beirut, Lebanon.

Former president of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., Seelye has just completed a tour of duty as visiting professor at Colby College.

The appointment has been

made possible through the John Hay Whitney Foundation which, under its visiting professor program, makes outstanding educators available for a year to a limited number of small liberal arts colleges.

Mr. Seelye will be accompanied by his wife, Dr. Kate Chambers Seelye. Mrs. Seelye, born in Turkey of missionary parents, has taught history of the Islam and Arabic religions in both this country and the Middle East.

Visiting Bolivian Broadcaster Holds Hope For Backward Native Country

Rollins played host last week to a Latin American broadcaster, who made the college his base of operation while he visited newspapers and radio stations in the area, including student-operated WPRK.

The broadcaster, Eduardo Medina, serves as radio programming officer for the U.S. Information Agency in La Paz, Bolivia. Under the auspices of the U.S. government, he has just completed a tour of commercial stations in New York and Michigan, and stopped at Rollins on his way home to Bolivia in order to study college radio programming.

Impressed both by the facilities of WPRK and by the fact that Rollins students have their own newspaper, Medina explained that Bolivian colleges offer neither of these activities.

Radio programming in the Latin American countries is still in its infancy, the broadcaster added, and will take years of hard work and planning before it comes near the American standards.

Speaking of his native country, Medina remarked that Bolivians prefer working for foreigners to

Proctor Program To Be Modified For Coming Year

Under the new women's student assistant program, 12 girls will be chosen to act as proctors in Elizabeth Hall for the coming year. This is an increase of nine girls over the three who served this year. These girls will have charge of about 130 freshmen girls.

Letters of application for these positions were reviewed early this week by a committee consisting of Miss Sara Jane Dorsey, Dr. Geneva Drinkwater, Miss Janet Patton, Miss Margaret Rogers, Mrs. Ruth Swift, and Dean Helen Watson. The top candidates will be interviewed personally by the committee before the final selection is made.

One of the most important changes under the new program is the "Leadership Training" course which has been set up. Proctors will meet with Dean Watson once a week to discuss counselling problems. Special guests from such fields as psychology, psychiatry, education, and business administration will speak at these meetings.

Student assistants will not be salaried, but the position will fulfill the work requirement of those girls on achievement scholarships.

College Campers Hampered By Raccoons; Uncooperative Stew Adds To Difficulties

By PHYLLIS ZATLIN

Raccoons, mosquitoes, uncooked stew, and sulphur water were among the many difficulties encountered by a group of six French students and four chaperones as they set out last Saturday to practice camping out.

The ten, who will be among those going on the Term and Tour in Europe this summer, headed out for Tomoka State Park on the Atlantic coast in order to get practical experience at "roughing it."

Their difficulties for the day began when they tried to locate Tomoka State Park. They were supposed to make a turn just before the inland waterway or the St. Johns River—they were never quite clear on which one, it seems—after reaching Ormond Beach. In spite of making the wrong turn, they arrived at their destination after going only 16 miles out of their way.

The first step in their camping out project, adviser Dr. Robert Morgenroth explains, was to cook their own supper—a stew of meat, potatoes, carrots, and onions.

The campers began cooking the stew at 7:00. At 10:30 it wasn't done, but they decided to eat it anyway. Then they discovered that the meat and potatoes had sunk to the bottom, and the onions and carrots had risen to the top.

"The specific density was altered by the fact that we put salt, pepper, sugar, butter, and coffee in it," Morgenroth explains the phenomenon of the rising carrots and onions. The coffee was an accidental contribution to the stew, dropped in by mistake by one of the students.

Another item on the menu was fruit cocktail. Unfortunately, the fruit cocktail came in a large can, and the campers could not open it with a can opener. Finally they resorted to using a table knife.

Segregation To Be First Topic In Pi Gamma Mu Lecture Series

Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honorary, is sponsoring this month a series of academic lectures, scheduled for Wednesday evenings, May 13, 20, and 27, from 7:00 to 8:00 in Dyer Memorial.

Pi Gamma Mu president, Tom DiBacco, points out that these lectures are being set up as a result of several suggestions made at the Pi Gamma Mu forum on "The Role of the Student in the Life and Government of Rollins College" last term.

"We were one of the few colleges in the country which did not have a lecture series sponsored by students," DiBacco explains. "It was felt that student-sponsored forums and lectures would add much to the academic life of the college."

The first speaker, Dr. Robert Pettingil, economics professor, will lecture on "Segregation: An Economic Liability," explaining the economic reasons for the establishment of integration in the South.

A noted author and lecturer, Dr.

Pettingil has taught at Arizona and Stanford Universities and at the University of Southern California. He also served as visiting professor at Oberlin College and at the University of Puerto Rico before coming to Rollins last year.

Annie Russell Theatre director Arthur Wagner, head of the theatre arts department, will speak at the lecture of May 20, and Dr. Robert Plumb, professor of history, will be the final lecturer.

Half of the hour will be devoted to the lecture itself while the remaining time will be used for discussion.

MEN PROCTORS NEEDED

Any male student who would like to be considered for appointment as a student proctor in Chase or Lakeside Halls next year is asked to submit a letter of application to Dean Vermilye before May 15. This letter should include the applicant's reasons for wanting the appointment, and a resume of his own experiences which might qualify him for the position.

SANDSPUR EDITORIALS

'WITH DISTINCTION' VS. 'CUM LAUDE'

"Why not Cum Laude?" This was the topic of a Sandspur editorial in October, 1957. It was also the basis for a resolution unanimously passed by Student Council during winter term, 1958. It is a subject that has been brought before the Faculty Honors committee and the Student-Faculty-Trustee committee, and it has cropped up again in Student Council this year. Each time that it has been brought up, it has been rejected by the faculty committee concerned, but the reasons for this rejection have never really been clarified.

Apparently Rollins is still using a "with distinction" system instead of a "cum laude" one because Rollins has always used a "with distinction" system. According to at least one faculty member, Rollins would lose some of its unique quality if it adopted the more universally accepted method of giving recognition to outstanding seniors at graduation.

SENIOR REFLECTIONS

By TOM DI BACCO

Rollins fails to keep many good students for four years. The college administration or faculty has not devised an effective enough system of "incentives" to induce a good student to strive for honors and awards. The student who makes the Honor Roll receives little recognition; true, his name is published in the Sandspur and spoken during an Honors Convocation, but this is all. Moreover, even if the student attempts Honors work, he is very often frustrated by the lack of knowledge his professors have concerning this program.

When a student makes the Honor Roll, wins an intercollegiate debate, appears in a play, or receives a scholarship or similar award, the following should be done:

- The Dean of the College should write him a personal letter, one which shows the student that the Dean is aware of who he is and what he has done.
- At an Honors Convocation held at the beginning of every term, the Dean of the College should present to each student who has made the Honor Roll a certificate of recognition, on which is written the student's point average and class standing, verified by the Dean and Registrar.
- Monetary awards should be presented each year to the top ranking students in every class. This is done at graduation for seniors but not for lower classmen.
- The News Bureau should send adequate and immediate releases to the home town newspapers when a student receives honors and rewards.
- Freshmen with honor scholarships should receive personal letters from the Dean of the College, congratulating them on their high academic record in high school and urging them to continue their fine work at Rollins. The presidents of Key Society and Phi Society might also do this.

The Chapel Tower

By T. S. Darrah

Dean Inge of St. Paul's was known as the "gloomy Dean," but he did shed this light on a dark subject. "A man is a good judge of his own sex, a bad judge of the other. And the same is true of a girl. The worst mistakes would be avoided if a young man were careful to choose a girl who has good women for her friends, and if a girl were careful to choose a man who is liked and respected by good men."

That is rather good, don't you think? And rather good for this time of year. Spring is here, you know!

We cannot see, however, how such a small change could possibly seriously affect the educational ideals of the college. Moreover, there are other colleges that use "with distinction," so Rollins does not have sole claim to this system.

Since the matter was first mentioned in the Sandspur, the Faculty Honors committee has made one important change in the Rollins program for granting honors. While previously there was no difference made in the recognition given to an A or an A minus student, now the honors at graduation have been divided into "with distinction," "with high distinction," and "with highest distinction." Moreover, the required average for doing honors work has been lowered so that a larger number of students are now eligible to graduate with honors.

Nevertheless, there is still justifiable cause for the adoption of a "cum laude" system, for the "with distinction" is tied in with the honors program and the terms become somewhat ambiguous. If a student graduates, for example, with "high distinction in English," how will his future employers or graduate school know whether this means that only his English work was outstanding or whether all of his academic work was outstanding?

In effect, the choice between "cum laude" and "with distinction" seems to be a matter of taste; the students have expressed a preference for the former, and we have not yet been given a logical reason why the students' wishes in this matter should not be followed.

The signs of the approach of summertime and the tanning season are putting in their appearance. Old Sol is beating down on us with his hot, little rays bringing sweat to the brow of Tar Baby, perspiration to the brow of the Rollins men, and a "glow" to the foreheads of the female contingent of our campus.

The weekly "Exodus" is beginning to make itself felt. The ivy towers are being deserted for worship of Apollo. Alas, must the educational world come to a standstill each Saturday morn because the sun shines warmly? Yes.

This problem of getting tanned is quite a ticklish one. A tan received on Lake Virginia's beach isn't really the most socially correct type of tan. You do understand that, don't you? Besides, the skin needs an hour's conditioning in a car before it is even ready to be tanned.

Then there are those people who insist on overdoing a good thing. A rumor was floating the first of the week that a sweet little thing who had carefully made use of the sun's radiation for several weeks was asked to sit in the rear of the bus on her return from a shopping trip. A riot ensued.

Certain professors are trying to start a mental health problem among students. It seems they insist on giving over-the-weekend assignments. This gives their students a feeling of guilt as they think about it while sipping lemonade at the beach. All types of horrid complexes could develop. Such a situation doesn't help that ole "Rollins Family Spirit."

The Chapel is still perplexed as how to handle its problems arising from this situation. We suggest that the Choir be picked up remote from the Pelican, and the sermon be piped back out to the choir members and others. Could be the greatest religious development since the use of hell-fire sermons delivered at a crowded revival meeting during July.

Someone should remind the person-in-charge-of-sending-out-notices in the Pink Palace that now is the time to notify all professors that "Sunburn shall not be considered an adequate reason for missing a class!" The profs must be made aware of these vital rules.

How Do We End The Cold War?

By DR. ROBERT L. PLUMB
(Written for the Sandspur)

Last month I had the privilege of representing Rollins College as an official delegate to the 63rd annual meeting of The American Academy of Political and Social Science at Philadelphia. The topic under discussion was "Resolving the Russian-American Deadlock." The importance attached to The Academy sessions is reflected by the fact that 25 foreign countries, including six from behind the Iron Curtain, sent delegates. In addition, more than 125 colleges and universities from all over the world were represented, as were a similar number of professional organizations.

Conferences of this sort naturally have scant hope of solving the issue at hand. Nevertheless, they are valuable as sounding boards for expressing all shades of opinion and for suggesting proposals to eliminate major grievances. Because of the timeliness of the discussions at a period when the world is seemingly drifting toward a Third World War without any apparent means of avoiding it, I would like to report some of the more interesting points brought by the distinguished array of Academy speakers. The following views therefore do not necessarily reflect my own opinions.

A dilemma which bothered many delegates was whether it was worthwhile for this country to enter into future agreements with the Russians, knowing full well the Soviets' past record of treaty violations. The conference produced a logical answer to this question, I believe; namely, that if the U.S. could not trust the Russians, then we should have dropped the atomic bomb on the Soviet Union when we alone possessed this terrifying weapon. That we did not do so is evidence that people can and must put faith in one another. However, it is well to remember that any future agreement between the free world and the communist camp will not provide a permanent panacea for the ills of the world. Treaties and pacts are but political concessions designed to solve contemporary problems; and, as such, they cannot provide an enduring remedy.

Louis Fischer, noted American journalist and authority on Russia—and, I might add, a former contributor to the Rollins Animated Magazine, — provided one of the few encouraging notes to an otherwise somber subject. He advanced the thesis that a major war would never be fought between the USSR and the USA. He noted the vast destructive power held by the military machines of the two nations, and cited the folly of either side's plunging the world into what would amount to the certain annihilation of mankind.

The views of two prominent foreign emissaries are also worth mentioning. The West German Ambassador to the U.S. was violently opposed to all suggestions for solving the current Berlin crisis which call for a neutral, de-militarized Germany. In fact, his plea for keeping American troops in Germany must be regarded as highly ironic in view of 20th century history. It was His Excellency's fear that the withdrawal of NATO forces from

Student Recommends Changes In Lecomte Du Nouy Contest

Editor:

This year's Lecomte du Nouy Essay Contest was perhaps one of the most unique contests ever sponsored on Rollins' campus. I would like to make a few criticisms and offer suggestions for the improvement of future contests.

The biggest bungle this year was the lack of rules. About the middle of March, when the original announcement was published, there were two statements in it which could be construed as rules. The first was the April 15th deadline. The second was the subject which the essays were to discuss. But since then, both have been discarded by contestants and judges alike.

On April 16th, the original deadline was extended to April 20th, after only two entries had been received. On the 21st, two people quoting the same authority within the same hour said that 9 and 12 entries had been received. Also on the 21st, the final entry (we must presume) was submitted and accepted.

The second discarded "rule" concerned the subject of the contest. This year's subject was a quotation from M. du Nouy's Human Destiny: "It is not the image we create of God which proves God. It is the effort we make to create this image." Some contestants indicate they interpret this quotation as allowing the discussion of du Nouy's entire thesis. If the complete book was fair game, its title could have served as the subject. Then, everyone would be adding a last line to the same jingle.

Worse than the indifference to time limits and subject matter was the lack of rules outlining the grounds upon which judgments would be based, describing the composition of the judging panel and encouraging originality.

Several past and present contestants have remarked that essays which openly argued against Human Destiny are the first to be discarded regardless of their other merits. They also say that essays which adopt "anti-religious" views are likewise discarded. This year's subject, as quoted above, contains the word "God." On the page immediately preceding the one from which the quotation was taken, du Nouy, in speaking of an indefinite creator, refers to a "transcendent intervention, which the scientist may as well call God as anti-chance . . ."

In many churches, failure to acknowledge an anthropomorphic supreme being is equated to heresy. Du Nouy supports no specific church, only a Christian morality. Why, then, should any contest entry be discarded because it fits an arbitrary "anti-religious" label?

Perhaps future judges could be urged to read, or even re-read, the book prior to rendering their contest decisions.

M. du Nouy was among France's leading scientists. It seems odd that none of the three judges on this year's panel is from the science or mathematics department. Since the du Nouy contest is college-wide, why was there not one judge from each of the five divisions?

A third omission, that seemed unfortunate, particularly this year, was the lack of emphasis on originality. There are indications on campus of one or two low-flying Ghost Writers in the sky.

As a final remark, I might suggest the winning entries be published. They could be featured either in the FLAMINGO or in the SANDSPUR.

There are many students at Rollins who are capable of good writing. And, unless future contests are clearly marked by definite rules which are firmly held to, the Lecomte du Nouy Essay Contest will continue to be a discouraging waste of time and effort for those students who every year naively enter it.

Wagner To Judge Beauty Contest

Arthur Wagner, head of the Rollins theatre arts department, has been asked to display his talents as a judge in the Miss Georgia Contest, to be held in Columbus, Ga., May 14-16.

Director of the Annie Russell Theatre for the past two years, Wagner was also one of the judges of the Miss Winter Park Pageant held here in April.

Mallorcan Authorities Mistake Bearded Pre-Med Major For Algerian Deserter

By ROBERT FLEMING
Sandspur Staff

After giving Knowles Hall a thorough searching and pounding fruitlessly on the door of room 206 in Pinehurst, I finally located studious-looking Garry E. Goldfarb, '59, hovering over a book in the library with note cards surrounding him. Shifting to the library garden, he finally agreed to talk awhile about himself, a thing he rarely does.

"I guess my interests can be fairly well demonstrated by the summer jobs I've had," Garry comments. Last summer, (He was vice-president of the Rollins Scientific Society, and is a member of Zeta Alpha Epsilon, national science honorary.) he went to Europe on a research vessel of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution of Woods Hole, Mass.

Although he dealt mainly with acoustics in physics, there were several experiments being conducted which dealt with ocean currents, marine life, the ocean bottom, and water temperatures. Most of the work was done in the Mediterranean and in the Straits of Gibraltar.

ALGERIAN DESERTER

While on a brief sight-seeing tour on the island of Mallorca off the east coast of Spain, Garry found himself in a bit of difficulty. It seems that with his beard and mustache, which he had carefully cultivated, he looked very much like an Algerian deserter (This was at the height of the French-Algerian crisis.), and it took him a while to convince the authorities of his true identification.

TALENT SHOWS

During the two previous summers, (He is a member of Rollins Players and was initiated into Theta Alpha Phi during his sophomore year.) he was director, and emcee of the Onset Talent Shows in Onset, Mass., which was an amateur talent show. The shows used from eleven to fifteen acts per week and played to an audience of about 2,000 to 3,000 once a week in an open air theater.

"It was there that I first met Bob Chase, who was among a group starting a summer stock company in nearby Buzzard's Bay," Garry explains.

"I have also worked as a counselor in a children's camp, as a concession operator of automatic baseball machines in Buzzard's Bay which meant I had to chase baseballs while customers were still using the range."

An Algerian Deserter in Mallorca

A pre-med science major, Garry is headed for Baylor College of Medicine next year, and hopes to be a general practitioner on the upper west coast because—as he said—"I like the sea coast and doctors are needed out there. Those plans are very indefinite, however; I have a feeling that I might be attracted by the research field."

VARIED INTERESTS

His other interests range from free-hand drawing to sculpturing. He likes to write and has a short story in this year's spring Flamingo.

As he was a member of the choir for two years—until labs took his time—and as he was a Vespers speaker during Easter week, I inquired about his opinion of campus religious life.

"Rollins can be stimulating toward religious thought. There are many opportunities to express one's feelings on religion in an intellectual manner. There are a number of people, however, who think it is smart to believe that there isn't a God. I think it is a college fad, however. I feel sometimes that members of the campus are not as humble as they should be, and this is because they feel humility is a weakness."

PRAISES ROLLINS

Asked why he chose to come to Rollins, he said that he came on the recommendation of a high school French teacher and then continued, "Rollins hasn't pampered me. Rollins has an education to offer that perhaps no other college or university has, although a few departments are deplorable." Asked if he is glad he came here, he said, "I wouldn't have had it any other way."

Answering my request for a bit of his philosophy, he gave me this: "God gave us two ends: one to think with, and one to sit with. Our life depends upon the one we choose: heads we win, tails we lose."

Satchwell To Head Young Democrats

Newly-elected officers of the Young Democratic Club of Rollins are Sally Satchwell, president; John Reese, vice-president; Mary Gadway, secretary; and Charles DuBose, treasurer.

Last week club members were guests at the annual luncheon of the Orange County Democratic Woman's Club, while plans for May activities include an informal get-together with outstanding leaders of the Democratic Party in Orange County.

lems, the campers found themselves faced with another dilemma—the mosquitoes and the raccoons.

The raccoons proved to be particularly friendly. First they stole flour and lettuce. Then, after waiting for the stew to be done, they came back for it and managed to take the lid off of the stew pot.

Thinking to keep some of their equipment away from the animals, the campers hung their cups up in the trees. The raccoons had a field day. All night they climbed up and down the trees, knocking cups to the ground, and keeping the campers awake.

While most of the members of the group made use of plain sleeping bags, some of them went equipped with air mattresses. The mattresses proved to be a problem, too, one of the students relates, for not only did they take a half hour to inflate, but they also took a half hour to deflate in the morning.

The true comforts of the excursion reached their peak in the morning when the members of the group had to brush their teeth with sulphur water. "It was ghastly," one camper recalls.

But in spite of all the problems encountered on their first attempt at camping, the campers are already planning another excursion.

Wood Warns Against Disunity

not been hampered with month-long debate over traffic problems.

The second noticeable absence at Student Council meetings has been the disappearance of social groups attending en masse to protest conditions or voice opinions on issues.

Although this practice has been criticized in the past, it at least reflected concern and intelligence to use the student government to fulfill its purpose of serving student interests.

This year's Council reflects that either the student body is completely satisfied with the conditions on campus or else does not have the initiative to promote its welfare and ideas in its vested organ of self-government.

COUNCIL FUTURE

It is only natural for me to be concerned with the future of the student government of this college. The student government is the true voice of the student feelings of this campus, and it is the students who compose the real life of the college.

The biggest mistake the student body can make in the future treatment of their student government is to allow new governing bodies to be started which are not a branch of the main student government.

A disunified student government on this campus is the quickest road to complete deterioration of all student authority. It is my true feeling that any new student governing bodies could eventually turn out to be no more than a mere sounding board for the student deans of this college.

In conclusion, I would like to state that, although this report may reflect a gloomy and unordered campus environment, all is not in vain. Very often the remedies for a social crisis develop far beneath the surface long before they appear above it.

I hope that the problems of today are serving as a gigantic dentist's drill to cut away the past decay, mistakes, and illusions to leave the clean, healthy, bony structure upon which the students can build again.

YR Club Attends State Convention

Bill Ward was re-elected to the office of state recording secretary for 1959-60 at a convention of the Florida Federation of Young Republicans held in St. Petersburg May 1-3.

The Rollins delegation to the convention also included several of the new officers elected at the April 22 meeting of the Young Republicans Club.

Ginger Cornell will serve as president of the organization. Other newly-elected officers are Jamie MaGirl, vice-chairman; Gail Parsons, vice-chairwoman; Steve Anderson, corresponding secretary; Cathy Firestone, recording secretary; and Dave Van Schaick, treasurer.

How Do We End The Cold War . . .

Germany would lead to the ultimate seizure of his land by the Communists.

On the other hand, the Soviet Commercial Counselor to this country proved the old axiom that history repeats itself. His contention was that East-West differences would disappear if only the State Department would relax the ban on trade with Russia. He promised that the USSR would place billions of dollars worth of orders with American concerns over the next five years. But then came the fly in the ointment, as was also the case 25 years ago when the Soviets first advocated unlimited trade. In order to consummate such a deal, the U.S. must be prepared to advance the necessary credits to pay for Soviet purchases.

One thing was certain from The Academy discussions. A bold new approach is necessary if East-West tensions are to be reduced. At present the U.S. position of holding the line is unacceptable to the Kremlin just as the announced manner in which the Soviets propose to change the status quo this month is equally disagreeable to the West. Both sides then must be prepared to offer new and imaginative solutions in the near future, or the cold war will continue to border on a hot one for years to come. The survival or destruction of mankind hangs in the balance, notwithstanding Louis Fischer's optimism.

Tar Golfers End Successful Season; Crew Ends Tomorrow

By BOB STEWART
Sandspur Sports Editor

The Rollins College golf team has recently concluded another successful season under the skillful tutorage of Dan Nyimicz. Coach Nyimicz has compiled, in his last two years as head coach of the Rollins golfers, a record which can stand against any in the country.

I have always felt that the Tar golfers have never received the type of credit which they deserve, especially in the papers throughout the state.

During their last 26 dual meets Rollins has not suffered a defeat on the links. Things like this don't just happen! Rollins golfers have captured the Miami Invitational Tournament for the past two years; things like this just don't happen!

What is the reason for the tremendous success of the past two Rollins golf teams? This question may be hard for someone not acquainted with our college to answer, but I certainly hope that everyone in Rollins College knows the potential of the Tar golfers, as well as their success.

Coach Dan Nyimicz has handled his team in the best of fashion. Nyimicz, who played four years of collegiate golf at the Univ. of North Carolina, has gained the respect of all the members of his team, and in doing so he has been able to receive the "most" from each of his players.

This fact is evident when one reviews the Tars' schedule during the past two years. While looking over the Tars' schedule for the past two seasons, it is easily noted that Rollins did not have one breather on their schedule. Each of Rollins' 25 victories were over top notch teams.

Coach Nyimicz will sorely miss his four graduating golfers, Bob Ross, Jim Curti, Joe Miller, and Bob Craig have all been instrumental in the Tars' winning streak.

One consolation which Nyimicz has is the fact that such top golfers as Dick Diversi, Jay Dolan, Bob Harrison, and Roland Lamontagne will be returning next year.

Congratulations are in order to all the above mentioned golfers. They have certainly done more than their share to represent Rollins College to the best of their ability. Many of Rollins athletes could take a lesson from the Tar golfers.

I'm sure that everyone was as surprised as I was that the Rollins crew did not win the Florida Intercollegiate rowing championship last week held at Tampa. I have searched diligently for an excuse for the Tar oarsmen, but I have not been able to find one.

The Tar oarsmen have taken their defeat well. Many of the oarsmen believe that they will prosper from their shellacking last Saturday; however, tomorrow's race will answer this.

Girls' Intramurals At Full Swing; Golf And Volleyball Underway

By BABS BERTASH
Sandspur Sports Writer

The women's varsity tennis team was recently selected, and the squad includes: Owen McHaney, Joan O'Brien, Julie Van Pelt, Janie Feise, Diane Finney, Bonnie Stewart, Ann Puddington, and Julie Smith.

In the championship flight of the intramural golf matches, Peggy Simpson defeated Jerrie Sessions two holes down and one hole left to play (2-1), but then lost to Rainy Abbott 2-1.

Betsy Harshaw defeated Babs Bertash 2-1, and faces Gayle Jordan in her next round. In first flight Nancy Haskell won against Pat Parrish 5-2 and next will play Sue Barclay. Ginny Willis had a 5-3 victory over Jeanne Deemer.

The volleyball standings as of May 4 are:

Chi Omega	6 wins, no losses
Theta	5 wins, no losses
Kappa	5 wins, 1 loss
Phi Mu	3 wins, 3 losses
Pi Phi	3 wins, 3 losses
Indies	2 wins, 4 losses
Alpha Phi	no wins
Gamma Phi	no wins

Qualifying for intramural archery will take place on May 15, and a second round is scheduled on the following day. The swimming meet scheduled for May 17 will include the following events: 25 yard free stroke, 25 yard breast-stroke, 50 yard free style race, a relay, the plunge, and a diving contest.

Participants in these events are urged to start practicing. The swimming meet will terminate women's intramural activities for this school year.

Pavia's Hitting, Davis's Pitching Lead Diamonders

The Rollins College baseball team is presently sporting a 24-7 record. This record stands as an impressive introduction to the statistics which Coach Justice's boys have compiled during their first 31 games.

In the pitching department the Tars are headed by southpaw Bunky Davis. Davis owns a 7-1 record to date. Davis has pitched 73 innings, has struck out 48 batters, and has given up only 10 bases on balls. Davis has yielded only 17 earned runs while giving up 51 hits.

Bunky Davis

Bob Griffith and Chuck Allen follow Davis. Griffith has a 4-1 record, and has given up only seven earned runs in 41 innings. Allen, a southpaw, has a 4-1 record, and has yielded 22 earned runs in 48 2/3 innings.

In the hitting department Ronnie Pavia maintains his lead over all other hitters. After 31 games Pavia is batting .374. He leads the team in hits with 43, and runs batted in with 27.

Mike Cortese is the next leading hitter for the Tars. His average is .327, and he leads the Tar sluggers in home runs with 3. He is also tied with Doug Baxendale for the lead in doubles with seven.

Following Pavia and Cortese in the hitting parade is Boyd Coffie, with a .306 average, and freshman centerfielder Baxendale, who is hitting the ball at a .300 clip. J.C. Strange, with a .315 average, and Jessie Lee, with a .466 average lead the utility hitters.

THE ROLLINS BABY TARS, who won their first six dual races of the year, are now the proud title holders of the Florida Intercollegiate Junior Varsity Rowing Championship.

Baby Tars Win JV Race; Varsity Finishes Third

The final results of the state championship races, held at Tampa last Saturday, proved to be accepted with mixed emotions among the members of the Rollins crews.

The Rollins varsity crew was picked as the favorites for the main race of the afternoon, but the Tar oarsmen could do no better than third. The JV crew from Rollins, however, lived up to the expectation of the varsity as the baby Tars won their race with room to spare.

In the varsity race, held on the Hillsborough River, the Tars jumped into an early lead and maintained their front running position for about the first quarter of a mile.

At this point Tampa, defending state champs, put on a sprint and pushed ahead of the other crews. With this early lead Tampa managed to open water between the opposition, and the strong Tampa crew maintained this position for the remainder of the race.

In the last quarter of the race Florida Southern's crew caught up to the Tars and started to pull ahead. At the finish Southern was three-quarters of a length ahead of Rollins. Four lengths off from the victorious Tampa crew was Jacksonville University.

Tampa's winning time was 7:17. Rollins finished at 7:24. The Tars rowed the entire race at a high number of strokes per minute, but Rollins never had a chance to settle down and row a steady race.

In the JV race it was all Rollins. The baby Tars jumped off to an early lead and never relinquished it. The winning JV's time was 7:19, only two seconds off the winning time of 7:17 for Tampa U.

Tomorrow the Rollins crews will again try their skill, this time in the Dad Vail Regatta. This race, held on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia, is symbolic of the small college rowing championship. Rollins will be out to defeat LaSalle, last year's Dad Vail winners, and Tampa, Florida Intercollegiate rowing champs for the past two years.

In this year's Dad Vail, Rollins will race in the third heat. Their opponents will be St. Joseph, American International College, Fordham, Wayne State, and Menlo College, of California.

When asked about Rollins' chances, Coach Bradley stated "this will be a wide open Dad Vail, perhaps the widest ever." This about summarizes the Tars' chances of winning their first Dad Vail Regatta.

Golfers Finish Tied For 2nd In Tourney

The Rollins College golf team ended its regular season last Saturday in Athens, Ga., where the Tars were entered in the Southern Intercollegiate golf tourney.

In their last and most important match of the year, the Tars almost won top honors; however, Houston proved to be tough in the clutch, and the Tars had to settle with a tie for second place with the University of Georgia. During the regular season Rollins tied Georgia in a dual match.

After the first day of play, Rollins was leading the field with its team score, and sophomore Jay Dolan was leading the individual scorers with a 2 under par 70.

The second day Rollins maintained its lead until the last nine holes. At this point Rollins was leading the field with a total of six under par, but Houston was coming up fast and the golfers did not have the stamina to maintain their lead.

The winning team, Houston, has won the past three NCAA team championships. The Cougars' winning total was a 578. Rollins and Georgia each ended with a 583 total.

The individual scoring honor went to Bob Moser of Georgia with a 279. Top golfer for the Tars was Bob Ross with a 292. Behind Ross were Dick Diversi with a 294, Jay Dolan, 300, Joe Miller, 305, and Bob Harrison, 305.

Thus Rollins ended another undefeated dual match golf season. This was Coach Dan Nyimicz's second straight undefeated team. Last year the Tar golfers won 13 dual matches.

Golfers who competed for Rollins for the last time were: Jim Curti, Bob Craig, Joe Miller, and Bob Ross. Coach Nyimicz will feel the effects of missing such golfers next year, but he has the nucleus with which to build another championship squad next year.

SPORTS AGENDA

Baseball — Today the Tars travel to Lakeland to oppose the Moccasins of Florida Southern. Tomorrow the Rollins nine finishes its regular season with Florida Southern College at Harper Shepard Field.

Crew — Tomorrow the Tar oarsmen row their final race of the year in the Dad Vail Regatta, held annually in Philadelphia.

Tennis — Today the Tar netters play their last home match of the year against Florida.

Tar Netters End Northern Swing With 15-3 Record

By BURNAM MACLEOD
Sandspur Sports Writer

The Rollins tennis team rolled its seasonal record to 15-3 last week as the Tar netters successfully defeated Clemson, Presbyterian, and the Univ. of Georgia. The Tars' sole loss came at the hands of powerful Georgia Tech. This defeat marked the second time that Tech made hash of Coach Copeland's team this year.

The tennis trip commenced a week ago last Sunday; those persons making the trip were the six varsity regulars, Jose Ochoa, John Henriksen, Luis Dominguez, Captain Dave Hewitson, Mike Alegre, Mort Dunning, and, of course, Tar mentor Norm Copeland.

The first match saw Rollins against Clemson College, the final score being 7-2 in favor of Rollins. The only losses for the Tars were Henriksen, playing the number two singles, and Ochoa and Dunning in the number one doubles.

Clemson, although seemingly weak by the indicated score, provided tough opposition for the Tars, as all of the matches extended into three sets.

The next match saw Rollins playing the role of the visitor against always strong Presbyterian. Rollins again proved to be the superior of the two, winning this match 6-3.

Undoubtedly, the finest individual match of the day pitted Rollins' Ochoa against Harry Hoffmann, the number one man for Presbyterian and recent conqueror of Miami's Jerry Moss.

Ochoa, with his devastating backhand and carefully maneuvered placements, literally blew Hoffmann off the court. Coach Norm Copeland rewarded Ochoa and the rest of the team for their efforts with a steak dinner.

The next foe for Rollins was Georgia Tech, the latter winning by a score of 6-3. The only victors for Rollins were Hewitson, and Alegre in the singles and Henriksen and Alegre in the doubles. All of the Rollins boys played well, but Georgia Tech proved to be too consistent.

The final match of the trip took place in Athens, Ga., where Rollins narrowed out a victory against the University of Georgia, 5-4. The score was tied 4-4 going into the final doubles, but the team of Hewitson and Dominguez captured the victory for Rollins; the final score of their match was 6-3, 1-6, 6-1.

Rollins plays host to Florida State today, and on the following Saturday they end their season against the University of Miami in Miami.

Tar Nine End Season Tomorrow Against FSC

Last Saturday the Rollins Tars won their 24th baseball game in 31 attempts at the expense of Jacksonville Univ. This Florida Intercollegiate victory pushed Rollins' FIC record to eight wins and only two defeats.

In the J.U. game the Rollins hitters came to life and had a field day. Rollins won the game 16-4, with the Tars collecting 20 hits and making Bunky Davis's seventh win of the season his easiest.

Top man for the Tars was Boyd Coffie. The busy catcher found the J. U. pitchers to his liking, and he ended the day with four hits, one a booming home run to deep left field, and six runs batted in. Coffie raised his batting average 21 points and for the first time all season he is now over the .300 mark.

Doug Baxendale tied Coffie for the most hits with four. Baxendale raised his average 18 points. Ronnie Pavia, Rollins' sandwich selling second baseman, boosted his average 23 points with three hits and three RBI's.

With only one home game remaining for the Tars, their main goal is first place in the FIC. If Coach Justice's team can retain its conference championship, they will be sure to participate in a collegiate baseball tournament at the completion of the season.

Needless to say, Coach Justice is more than pleased with the showing of his team so far this year. Superstitious Joe's team has been lucky in some of its wins, but the majority of Rollins' triumphs have been earned through clutch hitting and top notch pitching.

When asked how this year's squad compares to those of the past, Coach Justice stated that his best team, record wise, was that of 1948. That year Justice's Tars finished with a 21-4 record. In 1954 Rollins ended with a 25-8 record. This includes post season playoffs.

Justice points to the balance of his team as one of its greatest assets. "We have the pitching depth that we never had before," quotes Justice. "Our hitting is spread out among our nine batters, with everyone contributing.

"Our defense is weak as compared to teams Rollins has had in the past, but our superb pitching has done a good job of covering this."
