Student Body Backs Soccer Team For Opening Game Of Season

JUBILANT ROLLINS fans whoop it up as the Tars score a goal against Emory at Saturday's opening game of the season. In spite of occasional drops of rain and sorority welcoming teas, the students turned out in large numbers to watch the game.

Allocations Set At $19,700; Flamingo Lowers Fund Request

Meeting Monday night, Student Council gave final approval to five allocation requests, bringing the total of appropriations made from Student Association funds for the coming year to $19,700.

Four of the allocations voted upon were for the same amounts tentatively approved last spring, while the Flamingo, at the request of editor John Hickey, received $1200, a cut of $100.

Other allocations passed Monday were to the Tomokan, $9650; R Book, $550; Community Service Club, $150; and Annie Russell Theatre, $2000.

A Sandspur request for $6150 was approved the preceding week.

In other business of the evening, Pres. Dick Mansfield urged Council to take constructive action: "Council can really do a lot this year if we put our minds to it," he declared.

The statement was made to back up a request by Tony Toledo, vice-president. Toledo asked that Council spend less time on trivial issues and put more effort into solving problems such as the proposed summer session, the introduction of a Russian course, and the possibility of bringing Phi Beta Kappa to the campus.

These speeches prompted Betty Sue Lukins, Pi Phi representative, to suggest that Student Council examine the possibilities for Rollins students to speak to high school groups in their home towns. This would be in an effort to encourage more qualified students to apply to Rollins.

Toledo also asked for suggestions in answer to the problem presented by the Alpha Phi's not being able to sponsor their traditional Christmas dance this year. Representatives were asked to check with their groups to see if any of them would be willing to put on the dance on Dec. 12 in place of the Alpha Phi's.

Operation Bootstrap To Initiate Elementary Course In Russian

For the first time since its inception, Operation Bootstrap of Rollins College is offering a course in Russian for its fall semester, which starts Oct. 26 and runs through Dec. 17.

An elementary course, the Russian for the evening adult classes will be taught by Dr. Daniel Zaret, visiting professor of French.

Born in Russia, Zaret is a naturalized U. S. citizen. After arriving in the United States, he established his own school of languages. He has since taught Russian, Spanish, and French at various American universities.

A program worked out in cooperation with the Orlando Air Force Base, McCoy Air Force Base, and Sanford Naval Air Station, Operation Bootstrap is open to teachers and other qualified adults in the community, as well as armed forces personnel. The courses provide undergraduate residence college credit.

Rollins students interested in taking the beginning Russian course in Bootstrap must check with their faculty advisers and obtain the permission of the Dean of the College in order to enroll.

Classes are held from 6:30 to 9:30 on Monday and Thursday evenings, either at the college or at Orlando Air Force Base. Tuition fee per semester is $37.50. Semesters in the winter and spring are tentatively scheduled for Jan. 18-March 10 and March 28-May 19.

Dr. George Saute serves as director of the Rollins College Courses for the community.

Tar Baby, the Rollins mascot, passed away Sunday night, Oct. 18. The burro, who was given to the college by the McKean's as a Christmas present in 1956, was three years old.

After a brief period of residence on the campus, where he grazed on the library lawn and made an effort to win the friendship of the student body, Tar Baby was then moved to the McKean's ranch.

Cause of the burro's death was undetermined.

Dog Of Many Talents Frightens Burglars, Saves Owner's Life, Learns Languages

By JUDY WELLS

Sandspur Staff

Rolly Colly has a recent addition whose variety of tricks would put Lassie and Rin Tin Tin to shame. The dog belongs to the new French professor, Dr. Daniel Zaret, and not only does she understand several different languages, but she has saved both Dr. Zaret's belongings and his life.

Named Julie by Mrs. Zaret, because she was born July 1, four years ago, this medium-sized yellowish brown dog with white markings on her chest looks like an ordinary Heinz 57, or, according to Dr. Zaret, "a genuine Chinese Cheese Hound."

Given to the Zarets when she was a sickly, four weeks old puppy, Julie was nursed back to health by Mrs. Zaret, and has been proving her gratitude ever since.

Julie's formal training consisted of fetching sticks and balls in the park; she soon began running off with stray baseballs hit by unsuspecting boys. "At one time we found 14 baseballs she had hidden in our house," said Dr. Zaret.

Julie also doubles as Dr. Zaret's personal valet. When he returns home at night she brings him one slipper and waits until he puts it on. Then, after depositing the shoe in the bedroom, she produces the second slipper.

"Julie is very kind-hearted," Dr. Zaret told us, going on to say that one evening during dinner, he and Mrs. Zaret heard a commotion on the back porch and went out to investigate. There was Julie nudging a stray, pregnant cat onto the porch towards her own food dish.

Although Julie doesn't actually speak in different languages, she can understand several, including English, French, Russian, and Spanish. "Her French pronunciation is very poor," Dr. Zaret told us. "That is why I don't take her to French class. Otherwise I would."

While the Zarets were living in Philadelphia, Julie saved two houses from burglars. They were at a movie when the neighbors heard noises in the Zarets' home. Seeing a screen torn off, they ran over and found Julie barking "in a very bass voice." Evidently the burglar had been frightened away, for two houses on the block were robbed that same night. And they tell us that the Winter Park police department is worried!

A couple of years ago when Dr. Zaret was temporarily blinded due to a very serious cataract operation, Julie became a seeing eye dog with no training at all. It was during this time that she saved his life. Dr. Zaret was stepping off the curb directly into the path of an oncoming car when Julie endangered her own life by dashing forward and knocking him back.

"I know I owe my life to that creature," Dr. Zaret said quietly. "Naturally I feel grateful to her."

If you're the least bit dubious as to this dog's amazing devotion, just drop by the Student Center around 4 o'clock, when Mrs. Zaret picks her husband up. Watch Julie's eyes light up as she spies Dr. Zaret. Don't hesitate to walk over and speak to her, for she loves this campus and all its occupants.

Freshmen Nominate 19 Candidates To Vie For Class Office In Wednesday Elections

Meeting on the steps of the Annie Russell Theatre Wednesday afternoon, the Class of '63 nominated 19 candidates for class office. In spite of rain, Student Council president Dick Mansfield, who conducted the meeting, estimates that close to 200 freshmen attended.

"Because of the many activities they sponsor, it's very important that the Freshman Class have capable officers," Mansfield points out, adding that candidates should make it a point to let their classmates know who they are.

Campaign material for the freshmen may be distributed starting today, but no time has been set aside for candidates to give formal speeches. Nominees may, however, arrange to speak in the freshman dormitories.

The four nominees for the office of freshman president are Breck Boynton, Bob Carlson, Pete Kellogg, and Don Nesbitt.

Since entering Rollins, both Boynton and Kellogg have become members of the Chapel Choir, and both will appear in the ART production of Guys and Dolls. Boynton's home town is Plandome, Long Island, while Kellogg comes from Middlebury, Conn.

From Chicago, Ill., Carlson was president of his church league and a lieutenant-colonel in his high school ROTC. Nesbitt, who was admitted to Rollins with honors at entrance, is the newly-elected president of Lakeside Hall; his home is in Albion, N. Y.

Six candidates will be vying for the office of vice-president. They are Bob Georgia, Tony Hammock, Leon Hollon, Mike Meriney, Gary Payne, and Dick Rhodes.

The four girls whose names will appear on the ballot for class secretary are Ginny Campbell, Dianne Dicks, Paula Horowitz, and Sandy Rainey.

The five candidates nominated for the office of treasurer are Jim Bleyer, Paul Brennan, Roger Raye, Randy Thatcher, and Woody Woodworth.

Election of class officers for all four classes will be held in the Student Center next Wednesday, Oct. 28. Polls will be open from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

As a candidate must receive a majority of the votes cast in order to win an election, Mansfield points out that a run-off election is to be expected.

Run-offs will be held in the Center on Friday, Oct. 30, and, according to the Student Council by-laws, no final election results will be announced until all run-offs have been completed.

WATER-SKIIERS Owen McHaney, Sue Curtis, and Judy Williams practice for a nationwide television show, filmed on Lake Eola.

McKean, Peeples, Water-Skiers To Be Featured On Nationwide Television Show

Jack Linkletter's television program "On the Go" will feature some of the Rollins Family in the near future in connection with a series of nationwide shows on central Florida. Film for the program was shot on Lake Eola at Cherry Plaza last Wednesday.

Pres. Hugh McKean was questioned on the subject of water skiing as a credit course at Rollins, while members of the water ski team demonstrated their skills, performing around the fountain in the middle of the lake.

Fleet Peeples explained his method of teaching swimming to infants, and Lynda Bridgers did a water ballet and was interviewed on her "aquatic art."

Those participating in the ski routines were June Worthington, Bruce McEwan, and Barth Engert, doing a pyramid, in which June rides on the shoulders of the two boys; Sue Curtis, Judy Williams, and Owen McHaney, ski ballet routine; and national boy's champion Roger Raye, a solo demonstration in trick skiing.

Mr. Henry Suydam, ski instructor at Rollins, directed the students in their more than a week of preparation for the demonstration, while they worked on setting up, timing, and rehearsing the routines.

The skiers were pulled by a special boat and driver sent up from Cypress Gardens, while Bob MacCuspie handled the ski ropes. NBC writer Phil Birnbaum, who has been here coordinating the production, explained that a quarter million dollar van was driven out from Los Angeles to tape the show.

Mr. Birnbaum pointed out that "On the Go" is never a studio program but concentrates on "interesting places and people."

"The NBC van can go anywhere a truck can go," he added.

A crew of 40 people is here to handle three 15-minute shows. The Rollins interviews will be a part of one of these. Mr. Birnbaum hoped that the film would clear up some common misconceptions about Florida schools.

"On the Go" has done several unique programs lately. The show has recently been broadcast from a pet cemetery, an Alcoholic Anonymous meeting, and a "beatnik" haven.

Group To Attend Seminar In Cuba

Fifteen government students of the advanced study group will leave Wednesday morning, Oct. 28, for the annual government seminar in the Republic of Cuba, returning to Rollins by Monday, Nov. 2.

The opening seminar in Havana will be held in the law library of Nunez, Mesta & Machado, with orientation to studies being given by Mrs. R. Hart Phillips, chief of the New York Times bureau.

In successive seminars with national Cuban leaders, the group will explore the progress of the revolution, land reform, youth programs, and the economic consequences of the Castro leadership.

The Rollins group will also meet with Cuban student leaders at the University of Havana, and, as in previous years, they will confer with editorial boards of El Mundo, Diario de la Marina, and Bohemia.

While in Havana, the students will make their headquarters at the Hotel Riviera on the Malecon.

State Beverage Laws Concerning Minors Clarified For Students

"I'm not here to scare you or threaten you," K. J. Lester, district supervisor of the State Beverage Department told Rollins students Wednesday morning. "I just want to impress upon you the seriousness of charges that can be made against the owner of a licensed establishment, a minor, or any adult involved in the serving of an alcoholic beverage to someone under 21."

Lester and Chief Carl Buchanan of the Winter Park Police Force appeared at the student assembly to clarify both state statutes and new local ordinances and to answer questions about the consumption or possession of alcoholic beverages by minors.

According to state law, a licensee who serves a minor is subject to criminal charges in court, and there is the possibility of fine or arrest. His license may also be revoked.

The minor involved, as well as any adult who misrepresents the minor's age or permits the use of his own ID card, is guilty of a misdemeanor. He is subject to criminal prosecution, arrest, and possible conviction. If convicted, his fingerprints will go on record in Washington, and, as Lester pointed out, this federal record could have detrimental effects for years to come.

In answer to student questions about laws affecting minors' drinking at private clubs, in private homes, or on "private plots of ground," Buchanan emphasized that nowhere is it permissible under law for minors to consume alcoholic beverages. However, the law has no jurisdiction over alcoholic beverages served in the home, unless a complaint has been lodged because of disturbing of the peace.

Buchanan commented that in his 21 years in Winter Park he has been proud of the well-mannered Rollins students. "I don't think we have anything to worry about," he said, thanking the students for their past cooperation.

Organist To Speak, Play For Students

Catherine Crozier Gleason, organist, will play and speak briefly about Reubke's "Sonata on the 95th Psalm" and "Variations on a Noel" by Dupre at a meeting of the Music Guild this afternoon at 4:30 in the Chapel.

Both the Reubke and the Dupre works are part of a recital program which Mrs. Gleason will present in early November at dedication ceremonies for the recently installed organ in a new Church of Latter Day Saints in Independence, Mo.

CLASS ELECTIONS CALL FOR CAREFUL VOTING

On Wednesday the Rollins student body will go to the polls to elect officers for all four classes. From the evidence of other years, it is safe to predict that the freshmen will climax a period of enthusiastic campaigning with an astonishingly high percentage of the class turning out to vote. It is also fairly safe to predict that the upperclass voting will not be so impressive.

Perhaps one reason for the comparative lack of interest in the outcome of upper-class elections is that in the past the positions being filled have entailed little responsibility. The Freshman Class puts on an annual show, a project that requires good leadership in the class; the Senior Class officers take charge of some of the arrangements for graduation week; but the Sophomore and Junior classes have been almost entirely inactive.

However, the past record of class activities does not necessarily prove that the future must be the same. It was only a few years ago that the student body was divided into four classes; there is no reason why, with the aid of strong, imaginative leaders, the class organizations cannot become an active force in student government.

It is therefore the responsibility of every Rollins student — freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior — to go to the polls next Wednesday and vote for the candidates of his choice. Between now and then he should make it a point to find out who the candidates for office are, what their qualifications are, and whether or not they have the qualities of leadership necessary to make a good class officer. The amount of thought the student body puts into the election of its officers will determine how successful the class organizations and their activities will be during the coming year.

We think that by now everyone around the campus has adjusted to the normal "college" way of doing things, because the signs of adjustment are many. One can see beer can lining the perimeter of the campus and we haven't seen a pair of socks for three days.

Sooooo . . . we have decided to let this week's column add somewhat to the piddling amount of knowledge that the Rollins student has at his finger tips. We present the following excerpts as grist for the mill and as an aid in playing that fun game: College. We hope that the game catches on at Rollins. The rules are simple enough: Quote whenever or wherever possible; vis. like on the Beanery line or in the Center or at a soccer game or even, maybe, at a beer party when things get dull. Here are some easy quotes to remember, but these are by no means the only quotes. Anything will serve the purpose as long as it sounds authoritative!

Try this one on your next date: "My passion and compassion — what do they matter! Am I looking for happiness? I am looking for my work! . . . This is my morning; my day is beginning; start up, now, start up now, you great noontide!" Then add: "Thus spoke Zarathustra." You'll become respected and loved by your contemporaries.

The next time someone puts on the jukebox in the Center don't sit there and roll your eyes and tongue in time to the music — No, smile and say: "The more I live the life of music the more I am convinced that it is the freely imaginative mind that is at the core of all vital music-making and music listening." Kids will choke up with veneration for your intellect.

Everyone can play, but: "For myself I must admit that, as yet, it is beyond me, and only insist that whatever may turn out to be the solution, an indispensable part of its foundation will be clear historical insight into the antecedents of our thought world." God bless your soul, dear reader!

Who are the people in the world who cause all the trouble? I don't know, for I have never met them. My friend tells me about the stupid character who ran into him, or the Rat who lied about him, or the mean Prof who flunked him. But we never meet these people. No one says I caused the accident, I lied, I flunked him. We mortals are such a blameless people when it comes to self confession! It is always the mythical other guy who causes all the fuss and whom we never meet.

GUEST EDITORIALS

As an experiment, the Sandspur this year is going to open its editorial page to guest editorials by Rollins students, faculty, or staff members. Any member of the Rollins family having views on a subject which he considers worthy of editorial treatment may submit a column to the newspaper. Articles approved by the Sandspur editorial staff will be scheduled for publication and will be printed with the author's name.

The idea for the guest editorials was brought to the attention of the Sandspur by a transfer student from the University of Miami, where such a column has been a highly successful feature of the newspaper.

82 Nations Observe UN Day

By DR. GENEVA DRINKWATER
(Written for the Sandspur)

The Charter of the United Nations was adopted at San Francisco in June, 1945. Germany had surrendered, but the war was still being fought in the Pacific when representatives of the people of 51 nations "determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind" drew up the Charter of the United Nations.

Within a month after its adoption, the Senate of the United States had ratified the Charter; when a majority of the 51 countries had ratified it, on Oct. 24, 1945, The Organization of the United Nations was established. That is why Oct. 24 is United Nations Day. This year, 14 years later, UN Day will be observed by 82 member nations all over the world.

The United States has always supported the United Nations both officially and through nongovernmental organizations. One of these, the United States Committee for the United Nations, consisting of 130 voluntary organizations, such as the American Academy of Political and Social Science, American Legion, General Federation of Women's Clubs, League of Women Voters, Motion Picture Association of America, and National Education Association, sponsors the observance of United Nations Day in the United States.

About 100 voluntary organizations maintain at the United Nations official observers who are consulted by our delegation to the UN and who report back to their organizations.

A recent study indicates that approximately 85 per cent of the American people approve of the UN and believe that it is important to make the UN a success. The General Assembly of the United Nations at its first annual session resolved that "The United Nations cannot achieve the purpose for which it has been created unless the peoples of the world are fully informed of its aims and activities." Unfortunately, attitudes toward the UN, whether favorable or unfavorable, sometimes derive from emotional factors and are not based on knowledge of the work of the UN.

If you are a supporter of the UN, and I assume you are, you can help the UN by being informed about it and trying to learn more about its work. You can follow the work of the General Assembly, now in its 14th annual session, see new States emerging under the aegis of the Trusteeship Council, note the efforts to make the World Court more effective, and follow the vast and varied work of the specialized agencies of the UN.

The newest of these, IAEA, is devoted to the peaceful use of atomic energy. Suggested by Pres. Eisenhower, given its first fissionable material by the United States and headed by an American, Mr. Sterling Cole, this agency has, for example, equipped a laboratory in Burma for the use of radioisotopes in agriculture and medicine, has missions in many countries, and offers scholarships to students to do research in the peaceful use of atomic energy.

As Americans, we can take special pride in this newest of the specialized agencies, and as members of Rollins, we may take a special interest in the fact that Teel Oliver, Rollins '59, is working now in Switzerland with the oldest of the agencies, the International Labor Organization, the only one to have continuous existence from the League of Nations to the present.

The cry for the week-end, "Pardon me while I rotate" was echoed through many a lodge during the girls' formal rush teas. The teas proved too much for one Kappa, as she slipped quietly to the floor in a dead faint during the 15-minute break.

The sorority supply of Clorets and toothpaste has greatly diminished due to trips to Dubs before the teas.

Overheard in psych. class: "My foot just went to sleep; I think I'll join it."

The bleary-eyed Sigma Nu's have politely asked the TKE's to cut the volume on their nightly jam sessions.

The courageous TKE's have politely asked the Sigma Nu's to stop stealing their ping-pong balls.

During the last week, numerous mops, wet towels and Bromo's aided the inebriated freshmen who just don't seem to realize their alcoholic incapacity. For those who missed the nightly show in the Center: That was not Roger Sledd's underwear, but his white bathing suit. We certainly were impressed, Roger. We would also like to congratulate Dave Martin on his excellent technique of "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." Dave is the only boy who asked 23 girls to the Phi Mu dance in one night.

From our vantage point ideally situated between the two bars at last week's dance, we noticed Skip Gundrum was well pleased with his date. He should be—he waited a year before making the big move.

The big news on campus is that the TKE's are rushing GIRLS! One enthusiast, Joyce Whitten, sprained her ankle while playing basketball with them.

Chari Probasco (Kappa) has changed her allegiance from Delta Chi to Sigma Nu thanks to the Young Duck. Careful, Chari, big brother is watching you!

Beliefs, God, Certainty Discussed Over Coffee By Stone, Students

Dean T. S. Darrah opened the college year's first meeting of the After Chapel Club last Sunday by explaining that the purpose of the coffee hour was to introduce the members of the faculty to the students, and to provide additional opportunity, outside the classroom, for students and faculty members to become friends.

The hour was then turned over to Dr. Wendell Stone, professor of philosophy, who, after being assured that the coffee was strong enough for the occasion, introduced his chosen topic, "The Knowledge of God" by outlining some of the concepts of God which have prevailed in the Christian world.

Dr. Stone stated that there are two ways to know God: through the use of the mind and intellectual capacities, and through aesthetic experience. This second method is employed, explained Stone, when an individual loses himself completely in his surroundings and was the method used by the Church of previous centuries in associating with the worship of God beautiful buildings, paintings, and music.

After Stone's talk, Lynn Pflug asked if this loss of one's self in his surroundings was not merely the result of supreme concentration, rather than feeling the presence of God.

Stone replied that it was a concentration of a relaxed sort, and that he did not mean losing awareness of one's self to the point of being unconscious, but rather a moving out and including more, so that one is no longer the center of what he perceives in the universe.

Also entering into the discussion period was Dr. Dan Thomas, who questioned the necessity that God remain unchanged, and pointed out that the time span of man's habitation of the earth is short compared to the age of the universe, so there is no reason to believe that God has always been the same, nor to believe that God will be the same ten billion years from now.

Dean Darrah replied to the questions concerning the change from a stern to a loving God, explaining that perhaps there was no change in God, but only in our ability to perceive the different facets of his nature.

"The hour has come full circle," he announced after a few more comments, and the After Chapel Club was adjourned until this Sunday, when Dean Schiller Scroggs will speak on "Faith in Education."

Rollins Alumni Club Welcomes Students

Last Tuesday the Rollins Alumni Club of Central Florida sponsored a welcoming tea for relatives of alumni in the entering class. Attending the reception in the Alumni House were 33 students, each escorted by his relative—an aunt, uncle, sister, brother, or grandparent.

Active And Adventuresome Rollins Senior Comments On Subway Travel In New York

By JUDY CARL
Sandspur Staff

Pert and pretty Jody Boulware, an active and adventuresome Phi Mu senior, leaned back against the wall surrounding the picturesque library patio and talked thoughtfully of Rollins and herself.

In her three-going-on-four years here, Jody has found that "there's always something interesting to do." Serving as a class officer for two years, she was secretary of her sophomore class and vice president in her junior year. She has also worked on the Tomokan for two years, last year as copy editor.

Diligently serving her sorority, Jody has worked in the capacity of president (last year), rush chairman, fraternity education chairman, Panhellenic delegate, and Student Council representative.

All this activity has not gone unrewarded, for last spring Jody was among the few who were tapped for Libra, a Rollins honorary society for upperclass women.

"Because it encompasses so much," Jody chose English as her major field. "I love advertising and communications," she commented. And this past summer she got a good taste of the advertising world working for J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency in New York City. As Jody puts it, "I just wanted to go...and was trying the feat of supporting myself."

"My greatest accomplishment in New York was to conquer the subways!" Jody exclaimed. She was amused by the fact "no one ever walks around without something to read." She related an incident that occurred when the newspapers were on strike, and she was riding in the subway. All of a sudden everyone began to laugh because they had no newspapers to hide behind and had only each other to look at.

The change in going from the city to the country was what Jody enjoyed most, because it enhanced the beauty of both of them for her.

Notions about her future are still somewhat vague, Jody explained. She has had thoughts of taking a special graduate course in publications and journalism at the Harvard Summer School, and she expressed a keen desire to work abroad.

"I didn't actually want to come here," the little brunette admitted, explaining that she had chosen Rollins because her sister was here and this enabled her to be closer to her family. "But I was very glad once I came and have never regretted the choice!"

Discussing her alma mater, she pointed out that "you can get so much more out of education as such when you can talk to and get to know the professors as people and are not lost in a void. If you want to talk, you can just drop in!" Jody credits Rollins with having the kind of stimulation that gives her "the incentive to pursue curiosities, rather than just sitting back and saying 'I wonder.'"

"And my favorite place," said Jody after a moment's contemplation, "is the end of the dock at sunset."

Language Societies Organize For Year

Two of Rollins' language clubs, Le Cercle Francais and Der Deutsche Verein, have elected officers recently.

At a meeting of the French club held Oct. 13, Diane Boggs, Independent, was elected vice-president; Sally Ragsdale, Alpha Phi, secretary, and Pat Corry, a freshman, treasurer. Pres. Debbie Williams, Alpha Phi, was elected last spring.

Helen Valentine showed slides of the Rollins Term and Tour held this summer.

New officers of the German organization, elected Oct. 14, are: Evelyn Arndt, Independent, president; Joan Watsek, Theta, secretary, and Fritz Baer, a transfer, treasurer.

At last night's meeting of German club, Baer showed slides of his native Germany.

'Chalk Garden' Casting Results Announced By Director Chase

Casting results for Enoch Bag-nold's play, The Chalk Garden, the second production of the Rollins Players, were released this week.

Mr. Robert Chase, director, typed The Chalk Garden as a comedy with a touch of melodrama and added that it was "one of the most beautifully written plays I've ever read."

The battle of a neurotic child to gain maturity comprises the plot of this character study, first performed on Broadway in 1955.

The Chalk Garden arrived in London in 1956, having gathered rousing cheers from American critics. Tynan, a critic with the Saturday Evening Post, commented on the play's debut in London's West End, "On Wednesday night the West End justified its existence...the finest comedy since the Death of Congreve...triumph for a play no one wanted..."

Judging from these remarks and those of one of the best English critical publications, Rave, this should be an outstanding performance, believes Chase.

Class Elections Wednesday...

pha Phi; Ginny Willis, Chi O; and June Worthington, Gamma Phi, are candidates for secretary of the junior class.

Faculty Begins Meeting To 'Discuss And Arrive At' Educational Policy

Wednesday morning marked the first session of four faculty discussion groups inaugurated at Rollins this year.

Educational objectives, philosophy, and curriculum, as well as methods of teaching, will be the subjects for these discussion groups, which were set up by the Faculty-Administration Committee.

"It was the intention of the committee to give the faculty an opportunity not present at faculty meetings because of crowded agenda to discuss fully and arrive at an educational policy," Dr. Schiller Scroggs, dean of the college, explains.

To facilitate organization of the program, Scroggs adds, each faculty member has been assigned to one of the four groups, but professors are free to change from one group to another at their own initiative.

Each group will set its own method of procedure, the Dean clarifies, and it is anticipated that a monthly meeting is as much time as faculty members could spare for the discussion groups.

Recommendations made by the discussion committees are to be forwarded to the appropriate standing committee of the faculty.

Feet Propped On Wastebasket, T. S. Darrah Reflects On Rollins

By CAROL SITTON
Written for the Sandspur

By now freshmen and transfers have become acquainted with one of the best-loved people on the Rollins campus, Theodore S. Darrah, Dean of the Chapel. Upper-classmen have renewed their friendship with him and perhaps already enjoyed a chat in his office or on campus.

Whether you feel like discussing philosophy or fishing, money troubles or date problems, and even if all you want to do is talk, the Dean is the man to see.

The atmosphere of his office is casual and comfortable, and one feels at home right away. When I went in to talk to him, he pulled his wastebasket over, rested his feet on the top, and then leaned comfortably back in to his chair, ready to talk.

"I don't think they change greatly", was the Dean's answer to the question as to how the students have differed from year to year. They are all unoriginal and complain about the same things: Beany food, dress, and shorts. Says he, "I've listened to the same thing for twelve long years." It seemed that this was accompanied with just a little bit of pride and loving complaint.

The Dean claims that he has become more philosophical about the seasonal crises throughout the years and admits that the time to start worrying is when there are no gripes to cope with. In a more serious tone, he pointed out that in general the manners of the students have improved, as has their dress and their observance of the amenities of life. However, he added, they don't appreciate what is done for them or those things which they already possess. This, the Dean hastened to point out, is typical of mankind.

The serious mood didn't last long, and, with a twinkle in his eye, Dean Darrah began reminiscing about some of the numerous pranks that have been played on him. There was the time someone put a comic book on top of his sermon in the pulpit. Or when the ushers planned a conspiracy against him and formed a line to shake his hand at the end of a service, repeating the well used and always heard, phrases of departure, such as "It was divine to be with you this morning, Dean."

Of course, there have always been bubble gum cigars and hymn books under the cushion of his chair in the chapel, but the prank that could be voted the most unusual concerns a red light in the pulpit.

It seems that many years ago the Dean of the Chapel at the time didn't like to give sermons, so he invited guests to do the honor. Now it also seems that all the guest speakers would inevitably deliver long, drawn-out sermons. To remedy this, the Dean arranged to have a button that was connected to a red light in the pulpit placed next to his seat. He would time each sermon, and, when the moment came, press the button which in turn would cause the red light in the pulpit to go on. Only the person delivering the sermon could see the light, but he knew that the signal meant "cut it short, you've talked long enough."

The spirit of fun must have been hovering around the Chapel that week because one of the choir members persuaded "Miss A." Dean Darrah's secretary, to join them in a trick on the Dean. The following Sunday the Dean began his sermon. He hadn't gotten through the first paragraph when the light started blinking on and off.

That's not the end of the story: the clever pranksters had foreseen the natural reaction to simply unscrew the bulb, so they had smeared cheese all over the bulb, making it too slippery to remove from the socket! "I just continued with the sermon and didn't even stop to find out who the culprit was," said the Dean.

Basketball Games Open Girls' Sports Agenda

By BABS BERTASH
Sandspur Staff

"Foul! Free throw! Basket! Point! Yea Team!" Screams such as these echo from the walls of Rec Hall now that the women's intramural basketball tourney has started.

The season opened Monday afternoon with an exciting game played between the Independent women and the freshman girls' team, the Sands. Karen Parachek and Susie Goodier, captain and co-captain respectively, led the Sands to a 50-31 victory over the Independent women. Sandy Jordan was high scorer with 21 points while Amelia Hunt, transfer from Baylor University, added 19 points to the Indies' score.

The Kappa Kappa Gamma team opened their season Monday with a 28-8 victory over the Pi Phi's. Unfortunately, Linda Qualls dislocated her knee and may be unable to participate in future games.

On Tuesday the Gamma Phi's suffered a 50-22 defeat at the hands of the fast, tricky Phi Mu team. Although the Gamma Phi guards defended their team very well, Bonnie Stewart managed to score 21 points for the Phi Mu's.

The other freshman team, the Spurs, battled against the experienced Chi Omega team Tuesday evening losing 35 to 20. Gayle Jordan was high scorer for the Chi O's with 21 points. Cathy Cornelius led the Spurs with 10 points and was well supported by her team-mates Lennie Buxton, captain; Carol Blackman, Joan Pinkerton, Sue Mackie and Sue Deasy, co-captain.

All girls signed up for the golf ladder should arrange to play a nine hole golf round between Oct. 24 and Oct. 31 in order to determine their position on the ladder. Players should follow the local rules at Dubsdread Country Club on the first nine holes. The Panhellenic Council has given permission for freshmen to play such matches with upperclass women. Scores should be submitted to the Physical Education office.

Tar Booters Travel To Gainesville; Sports Writers Needed For Paper

By BOB STEWART
Sandspur Sports Editor

The Rollins College soccer team received its "acid test" Wednesday when the Tar booters traveled to Lakeland to oppose the Florida Intercollegiate Conference champions of 1958, Florida Southern College.

Last year the Moccasins finished with a 6-1 record and surprisingly enough their only defeat proved to be Rollins only victory. The Southern game proved to be the opener for both colleges in the FIC. It was a must game for the Tars.

Tomorrow Rollins travels to Gainesville to play the Univ. of Florida Soccer Club. After these two teams have booted the ball for 88 minutes they will be treated, and I do mean treated, to the Gator L.S.U. Homecoming football game. This fact alone should have been an inducement for anyone to go out for soccer.

Stewart

It was a very pleasing sight exhibited on the Sandspur Bowl last Saturday. I believe that I am safe in stating that this was the largest crowd ever to witness a soccer game at Rollins. Also pleasing was the game itself. The Tars were faster, larger, and, surprisingly enough, more experienced. The previous week Emory opened its season with a 4-2 loss to Belmont Abbey College, N.C.

I certainly hope that Rollins will continue to support its soccer team as it did Friday night and Saturday afternoon. It is harder to lose a sporting event when the players know that the entire student body is in back of them all the way.

As the song goes, "April showers will bring May flowers," but what about the October showers (the 4 o'clock ones, that is) which are playing havoc with the men's intramural softball schedule? During the first week of action five games were rained out. Perhaps Clarence Varner had better go out to the Sandspur Bowl at 3 o'clock and start a delay rain dance. It's an idea anyway.

I don't know whether you have ever tried to wring beer from a stone, but if you have I'm sure that it is no harder than trying to get sports writers to work for the Sandspur and the News Bureau.

The sole prerequisite for becoming a sports writer is that you must have an interest and an understanding of sports in general. You don't have to be a star athlete, nor do you have to be at the top of your English class, and besides — it's a racket.

A sports writer once told of a Georgia bootlegger who declared: "I thought I had a racket. But you sports writers get more rakeoffs than the Sheriff!"

An athletic director whom the same sports writer knew said, not without respect, "There will be a special place in Hell reserved for head football coaches — and sports writers."

These are just two of the reasons why I cannot understand that any student in Rollins College would not want to be a sports writer. To me, it is just like someone coming up and offering a person a permanent pass to the World Series, and having him refuse because of more important things.

23 Hoopsters Answer Call To Drills Held Daily At Winter Park Gym

Four lettermen and 13 freshmen headed the list of 23 players who answered the call and reported to the first basketball practice last week held at the Winter Park Gym under the direction of head coach Dan Nyimicz.

With the opening game with the Univ. of Miami scheduled for Dec. 1, Nyimicz is working to brush up his players on the fundamentals and conditions of the game.

Sporting a noticeable lack of height, Nyimicz has promised to start five men who will be able to run with the best of them.

Nyimicz has scheduled 18 games for the 1959-60 season, six less than last year when the Tars were able to win only eight games.

This year's lettermen are: Ralph Tanchuck, Claude Crook, Bob Griffith, and Dick Bishop.

Victorious In Seasonal Opener, Tar Booters Travel To Univ. Of Florida

Tomorrow the Rollins booters travel to Gainesville to play their annual contest against the Univ. of Florida Soccer Club. This is an annual match which is played at the Univ. of Florida Homecoming every year.

X-Club Grabs Early Lead In IM Softball

The Men's IM softball league waged a losing battle with the rain during the first week of action. Only two games were completed out of the first eight scheduled.

The X-Club served notice on all other teams as they defeated the Independent Men and Lambda Chi in successive days. Bob Lerner was the winning pitcher in the first game for both teams, and the game was played in 53 minutes, a record time for IM softball.

In what might have been a preview of the playoff battle, the Club made hay of Lambda Chi, 10-3. Lambda Chi, which was expected to be the team to beat, was never in the game.

In Monday's action the Faculty pulled off one of the rare tricks in baseball—a triple play—as they taught the Indies a lesson outside the classroom. Lewis to Cope-land to Varner was the combination which stymied an Indies rally and allowed the teachers to win their first game of the season.

stars in the Tars opener was Ed Leal, who counted for half of the Rollins output as he booted three balls past the Emory goalie.

Also scoring for the Tars, who were held scoreless during the first quarter, were Tibor Menyhart, Chick Guerrero, and Elias Terzopoulos.

Playing before a large crowd on the Sandspur Bowl, the Tars broke the ice with 8:53 gone by in the second quarter. Guerrero made good on a side shot for this score. Leal followed with his first score four minutes later.

The second half was all Rollins as Emory could not stage an effective offense. Menyhart made good on a 20 yard head shot, and Terzopoulos scored on a shot.

The fourth quarter was all Leal. He scored after 8:43 on a rebound shot, and followed with his third and final goal of the day five minutes later.

Hugh F. McKean, president, artist, and soccer coach, takes on a new role during the Emory soccer game. Here he escorts an unwelcome substitute off the field.
