Improvements In Beanery Food, Service Planned

John Reese, Chairman of the Campus Improvements Committee, reported at Student Council last Monday that several ideas had been proposed to give students a choice in the food served in the Dining Hall. Council approved a food poll among the boarding students for a vote on foods and any additional complaints or suggestions. John A. Johnson, manager of the Dining Hall, has prepared a tentative list of 40 dishes for this purpose.

Bob Fleming, Council President, announced that Johnson had decided to put in a salad, dessert, and cold drink table at the Lakeside end of the Dining Hall to accommodate people who would like a light lunch without the wait in line. The success of the salad table will depend upon the cooperation of the students in not using it for second helpings.

The Election Board reported that the Freshman Class nominations were closed by Student Council president Bob Fleming before one name was placed in nomination. The three-fourths majority of votes for nominations to be closed required by the constitution was not obtained.

This was brought to the attention of the Election Board by the submission of a petition containing the names of 101 freshmen, after which Ted Aborn was added to the list of nominees for president of his class.

In connection with last Tuesday's class elections, the definition of class membership and eligibility for voting was clarified. Individuals whose number of credit hours puts them into a class other than that to which they originally for voting was clarified. Officers in either class, but not in both.

SCOUTS PRESENT STONE

Over 600 Girl Scouts from central Florida will be on campus Sunday to present Pres. Hugh McKean with a stone from the birthplace of their founder, Juliet Lowe, for Rollins' Walk of Fame.

The presentation, which will be held at 3:30 in front of the library, will be preceded at 3:00 by a Vespers service in the Chapel at which Dean T. S. Darrah will speak.

Horzowski Piano Recital Next In 1960 Rollins Concert Series

Mieczyslaw Horzowski will give his first concert of the year this Sunday at 8:30 p.m. The concert, which will be held in the Annie Russell Theatre, is free to students. Robert Hufstader, Director of the Conservatory has emphasized.

Students may obtain their tickets by coming to the box office at 8:00 p.m. on the night of the concert.

The world-acclaimed pianist will play Mozart sonatas for this concert. Two other concerts by Horzowski are also scheduled for this year.

Horzowski, who a few seasons ago observed the 50th anniversary of his Carnegie Hall debut, is originally from Poland. At the age of 14 he had made several tours of Europe, had played as a soloist with leading symphony orchestras, and had given a recital before Pope Pius X.

Women Pledge

BIDS CAME OUT Saturday to put a squealing end to women's rush. Sorority women lined Holt Avenue to welcome new pledges.

Convocation Will Honor Academic Excellence

Rollins opening convocation, next Friday at 9:45 a.m. in the Knowles Memorial Chapel, will combine a special Diamond Jubilee Convocation with the annual Tribute to Academic Excellence, Dean of the College Schiller Scroggs has announced.

Speaker at the convention, which will open the final year of the commemoration of Rollins' 75th anniversary as a liberal arts college, will be Pres. Hugh F. McKean.

In the second part of the convocation, the freshmen who have attained Honors at Entrance will be presented to the college following Pres. McKean's address.

Those students listed on the Term Honor List as achieving a grade average of 7.0 (B plus) or better during spring term of last year will be announced, as will the students designated as Rollins Scholars, who have an accumulative average of 7.0 and have participated in the program of Independent Reading for Honors.

The George Chandler Holt scholarship trophy will be presented to the men's group having the highest scholastic average in the 1959-1960. The sorority maintaining the highest grade average over this period will receive the Kappa Kappa Gamma scholarship trophy. Winners of the scholarship trophies in 1959 were Tau Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Kappa.

Following these presentations, the members of Rollins' academic honorary organizations. Key Society, which recognizes juniors and seniors of scholastic superiority, and Phi Society, a freshman honorary encouraged by Phi Beta Kappa, will be introduced, and the presidents will explain the purposes of their organizations.

Students who are included in one or more of the groups to be recognized will take part in the convocation's academic procession. They are asked to meet in front of the alumni house not later than 9:30 a.m. Friday morning to form the procession, which will be marshalled by Professor Rhea Marsh Smith.

Dean Scroggs requests that those Honors-at-Entrance, Term Honor List, and Rollins Scholars students who are unable to attend leave word in his office by today at the latest. It will be taken for granted that those who do not report by this time will be marching in the procession.

Sandspur Cancels Midterm Issue

There will be no Sandspur next week. The next edition of the paper will be published on Friday, Nov. 11.

The issue originally scheduled for Nov. 4, as well as the editions that would normally be printed during the mid-term weeks in the winter and spring, will not be published both as an economy measure and to allow the Sandspur staff members to prepare for mid-term tests.

To keep Sandspur readers informed of campus activities, stories have been included in this issue concerning events scheduled for the week of Nov. 7.

Run Off Elections Today In Union

Eleven run-off elections for class offices will be held in the Union Building from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. today, Student Council president Bob Fleming announced Tuesday.

Due to the large number of candidates running for offices, run-off elections were anticipated and today's date was definitely scheduled two weeks ago by the Student Council Elections Committee.

As a result of Tuesday's voting, in which 578 ballots were cast, only five offices—sophomore president, junior president and vice-president, and senior president and secretary—were decided. According to election by-laws of the Student Association constitution, these final results cannot be announced until all run-offs are completed.

For the second time in the past two years, the senior presidential post was decided Tuesday without the necessity of a run-off. Last year Walter Cain was elected to the senior class presidency in the first ballot of a re-election called in compliance with a complaint lodged with the Election Board.

Run-off contenders for the office of senior class vice-president are Mabry Manderson, X Club, and Dyer Moss, Independent. Jerry Beets, X Club, and Ginny Willis, Chi O, are in the run-off for senior class treasurer.

The senior class ranked third in the per cent count of students participating in the voting for their class officers. Sixty-eight ballots accounted for the 64 per cent election participation.

Eighty-two per cent of the junior class, 105 students, turned up at the polls in an election that resulted in runoffs for two offices.

Candidates for the office of class secretary are Paula Jones, Pi Phi, and Linda Qualls, Kappa. Vying for the office of junior class treasurer are Mary Gadway, Kappa, and Diane Scott, Chi Omega.

With the lowest percentage of class members voting, 109 sophomores, 59 per cent of the class, cast ballots in Tuesday's elections. Last year's sophomore class had the highest percentage of class members voting.

Vying in the run-off for the class vice-presidency are Leon Holton, X Club, and Dee Stedron, Kappa. Frank Dunnill, X Club, and Sandy Rainey, Kappa, are candidates for sophomore class secretary. In competition for class secretary are Ginny Campbell, Kappa, and Karen Parachek, Theta.

An enthusiastic 90 per cent of the freshman class turned out to narrow the field of candidates running for freshman offices from 20 to 8. The 296 freshmen voting showed an increase of 35 per cent participation over the freshman class of last year.

Jim Carney and Harry Filbert are contending for the office of class president; and Camille Jones and Art Cornell are in the running for class vice-president.

Vying for the office of freshman class secretary are Linda Goll and Penny Moore, while Ed Welsh and Larry Abraham are competing for class treasurer.

Seventy-seven percent of the student body voted on Tuesday. The 578 ballots cast was an increase of over 100 ballots than were cast last year, and a seven per cent increase over last year's overall participation.

Of the 366 men enrolled last September, 81 per cent turned out to vote. This marks seven per cent more men than women participating in Tuesday's elections. Seventy-four per cent of the 381 enrolled women cast ballots.

Theatre, Speech Groups To Hold Joint Meet Here

The Rollins Campus, or to be specific, the Annie Russell Theatre will be the scene of a joint convention of the Florida Theatre Association and the Florida Speech Association on the weekend of Nov. 11, 12, and 13.

Arthur Wagner, director of the Annie Russell Theatre has announced that 150 to 200 teachers and members of small theatrical groups over the state are expected to attend the joint convention.

The weekend marks the first of the bi-annual conventions of the Florida Theatre Association. This organization, explained Wagner, is one of the few of its kind. Its membership is comprised of 20 to 25 little theatres as well as college and university theatrical organizations in Florida.

The Speech Association of America consists of teachers of speech on the college level. However, high school speech teachers as well are expected to attend the event.

Using the Langford Hotel as headquarters, convention delegates will attend sessions concerning techniques in acting, direction and scenery. Included on the convention agenda is the Saturday matinee of "Brigadoon".

Ted Mann, Director of the Circle and the Square Theatre in New York is to be the major speaker. He will address the delegates at a banquet scheduled for Saturday evening.

Wagner expressed his pleasure that the convention is being held at Rollins, saying, "It will be wonderful to have them here and to be able to show them the Rollins campus."

Sign-Waving Rollins Students Greet Nixon In Tampa

When Vice President Richard M. Nixon landed at Tampa International Airport Oct. 18 for a speech and later a rally in St. Petersburg, some Rollins students were on hand to meet him.

And they weren't a bit bashful about their presence there, either.

Armed with several "Rollins College for Nixon" signs, the group, headed by Diane Boggs, paraded their signs, handed out Nixon buttons, and even got some highly prized snapshots of the GOP Presidential nominee. Diane is chairman of the College Youth for Nixon group at Rollins.

The students who drove to Tampa and St. Petersburg in a Nixon sticker-draped car were Ronnie Lady, Jody Bilbo, Amelia Hunt, Pat Teague, and Ned Rollins.

Diane was able to shake hands with the Vice President because of the quick thinking of a college-aged boy in the crowd. Both he and Diane were in back of the cheering crowd who stood watching Nixon and his wife Pat as they disembarked from the airplane. Chances looked slim for Diane to get to the front of the mob until the boy in front of her got an idea.

"Doctor coming through, doctor coming through," he announced and started moving through the crowd... with Diane right behind him. They both made it to the front and Diane says she'll remember this trick for future reference.

Jody Bilbo was busy snapping pictures of the Vice President and later was quite proud of her picture of Nixon taken only three feet away.

After hearing Nixon's speech at the airport, the group went to the St. Petersburg for the political rally at Al Lang Field. Again the students held high their "Rollins For Nixon" signs and found several people taking pictures of them as they stood around in the crowd after the rally.

As a sidelight in the day's events, the GOP enthusiasts also witnessed another arrival at the Tampa airport—someone by the name of Kennedy.

Law School Test Registration Open

Registration for the Law School Admissions Test closes February 4, 1961. The test itself will be given on February 18, 1961.

Dr. Paul Douglass, government professor is in charge of providing applications and information to those on this campus who are interested in taking the test.

Union Sponsors 'Beatnik' Dance

The Rollins Union will sponsor its first off-campus dance of the year tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. The dance will be held at the Bahia Temple in Orlando.

The theme of the dance will be beatnik; dress will be informal.

For entertainment the Union has chosen a young folk singer who is working his way from Baltimore to the West Indies.

HONORED AT COFFEE

NEW FACULTY and foreign students at Rollins were honored last Sunday morning at an After-Chapel Coffee in the Casa Iberia. Trustees, Faculty, and Staff members also attended.

Dancing will be to the music of the band of Art Brophy, a former Rollins student who is now living in Cocoa Beach.

DEATHS

JAMES GREGG

Manager of the Rollins Student Center, James Gregg, died last August 16.

Manager of the Center since 1951, Mr. Gregg was a familiar face on the Rollins campus for the past nine years.

Assisted by Mrs. Gregg, Gory Harner is now acting manager of the Rollins Union.

LAURENS SEELYE

Dr. Laurens H. Seelye, Whitney Visiting Professor of Philosophy, died last Aug. 21.

A former university president and leading American educator in the Middle East, Dr. Seelye was appointed visiting professor of philosophy last year under the John Hay Whitney Foundation grant for visiting professors.

Chapel Staff Plans Activities For Year

The Chapel Staff held its first meeting of the year Tuesday evening, October 19. At the meeting president Linda Qualls outlined various activities for the staff during the forthcoming year.

In addition to the annual Chapel Staff Fund Drive, which will be held during the first week of February, several other projects are contemplated.

The resignation of Alan Coleman as a member of the Staff was announced. A nominating committee was selected to name a new student member and a new faculty member to replace Dr. Robert L. Morgenroth, who is no longer teaching at Rollins.

ART Season Opens With 'Brigadoon'; Student Tickets To Available Monday

By LAUREN KIEFER
Sandspur News Editor

The Rollins Players are starting the year with song in the form of "Brigadoon". The musical play will open on Monday, Nov. 7, at the Annie Russell Theatre. The first performance of the show by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe will be student night. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

The community opening night is Tuesday, Nov. 8. The play will run through Saturday, Nov. 12, with a matinee and evening performance on that day.

"Brigadoon" will then go on tour. Tuesday, Nov. 15, the play will be given in Daytona Beach in the Peabody Auditorium. On the following Saturday the musical will be presented at the Orlando Municipal Auditorium in a benefit performance for the Primrose School.

Tickets for the ART performances will be available beginning Monday, Oct. 31, in the Beanery during lunch and dinner, in the Union and at the ART box office from 3-5 during the day. Every student with a student association card is entitled to one free ticket, which may be for any of the performances.

Directing "Brigadoon" will be Arthur Wagner, head of the theatre arts department. Musical direction will be by Robert Hufstader and choreography by Edith Royal. Musical accompaniment for the show will be provided by an orchestra.

The play is the story of a Scottish village which comes to life every one hundred years. Into this village come two Americans, Tommy Albright (Steve Kane) and Jeff (Bob Bunim).

Jeff is immediately taken into tow by Meg Brockley (Dana Ivey), the village flirt, who tells of her many loves. Tommy falls in love with Fiona McLaren (Mary Goodall), one of the villagers, and faces the problem of whether to stay in Brigadoon and vanish with them.

Part of the festivities in the village on the day the story takes place is a wedding. Fiona's sister, Jeannie (Michele Hardy) is married to Charlie Dalrymple (Pete Kellogg).

Union To Present 'Broken Arrow'

Color, spectacle, action, and romance are depicted in the next offering of the Rollins Union film series, "Broken Arrow," a story of the wars between the settlers of Arizona and the native Indians, and of the white man who assigns himself the perilous mission of peacemaker between them.

The Apaches, portrayed as a proud people fighting under their leader, Cochise, to hold their own against the destructive invaders, show up somewhat better than the white men. Renegades on both sides continually reopen the feuds that the wise leaders are trying to end.

The film stars James Stewart as a prospector and ex-Union officer of the Civil War, Jeff Chandler, and Debra Paget. It will be shown on November 6 at the Fred Stone Theatre. Admission is $30.

If thou believest a thing impossible, thy despondency shall make it so; but he that persevereth, shall overcome all difficulties. —Chesterfield

It is thy duty therefore to be a friend to mankind, as it is thy interest that man should be friendly to thee. —Chesterfield

The scenery for "Brigadoon" is composed mostly of silk screens in pastel shades of pink, green, and blue settings in the play as the moor and the village.

Projections will be used in the show as they were last year in "Macbeth". A few wooden sets will also be used.

The theatre now has a new projector and a new spotlight. The spotlight, in use before only in Germany, pinpoints only the object that it is spotting and not the objects around it.

Erwin Feher, who designed the sets, is the technical director for the show.

Jobs For Liberal Arts Graduates Subject Of Placemet Meeting

Miss Merrill plans to explain the services of the placement bureau. This week the senior men

Wagner To Speak On 'Musicals'

Arthur Wagner, Director of the Annie Russell Theatre will initiate his annual series of lectures about the Annie Russell productions for the season on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 3 in the Fred Stone Theatre.

Addressing residents of the community as well as Rollins students, Wagner will discuss musicals, especially the works of Lerner and Lowe who wrote "Brigadoon".

Commenting on the forthcoming Rollins Players production "Brigadoon," Wagner said, "We will have no trouble selling out Brigadoon to the students." In fact he is wondering how to accommodate the entire student body.

The Annie Russell Theatre seats 483, slightly over half of the students presently enrolled. Wagner said that, pending on the results of the ticket sales for Brigadoon, students may be invited to attend the Saturday evening dress-rehearsal performance of the play so that all will have an opportunity to see it.

Wagner announced that tickets will be distributed to students starting next Monday not only in the Beanery but also Rollins Union Office to better accommodate day students.

Natural History Exhibit Set Up By Students

By MAR FAIRCHILD
(Written for the Sandspur)

A natural history exhibit in connection with Rollins' Thomas R. Baker Museum will be on display in the Morse Art Gallery November 1 through 14, student curator Bruce Greene has disclosed to the Rollins Union.

With the help of members of last year's student body, Greene started a program to set up this display. It is hoped that in the rear future, the college will designate a room for a continuous display of much of the exhibit, as well as for additions and loans to the Rollins College Museum of Natural History, he adds.

Dr. Thomas R. Baker, the first professor of sciences at Rollins, founded the museum in the late 1880's. In 1910 Knowles Hall burned, and with it went over 7,000 specimens of the museum collection. Dr. Baker immediately started rebuilding from scratch. He began a collection which included displays in geology, biology, and anthropology, as well as the shells which later became the nucleus for the Beal-Malthbie Museum.

Dr. Baker died in 1935, and the curation of the museum was taken over by Professor Davis. He is largely responsible for the fine collection of insects which the museum acquired.

Due to the storage conditions, Greene reports, some of the specimens have deteriorated beyond redemption. "However, Dr. Paul A. Vestal has given his time freely," he adds, and it is through his foresight, care, and upkeep of the museum that we fortunately still have many of the specimens in good condition."

Among the pieces to be on display in the Art Gallery for the next two weeks is a collection of African artifacts donated by Mr. Banks and Dr. Baker. Also contributed by them is a collection of Ut Indian artifacts, including an Indian wedding dress.

Banks bought the dress as a peace-making strategy after he jokingly told the chief that he would exchange his niece for six horses. He found himself in a tight spot when he was presented with six horses, so he had to explain his humor and purchase the dress to make amends.

The Smithsonian Institute gave Rollins Zuni and Hopi pottery from the southwest United States, which will also be on display. Mrs. Frances Goubaud, design and area study instructor, has loaned a collection of South American and Mexican artifacts from the Aztecs and Mayan cultures.

Also included is a cross-section of geology specimens from Florida and other parts of the world, including paleontology specimens. Insects on display include South American moths and butterflies.

Artifacts from the South Sea Islands and miniature costumes from the East will also make up a portion of the exhibit.

STUDENTS SHOW INTEREST IN ELECTIONS

Seventy-seven per cent of the student body, the highest percentage for several years, turned out to vote for class officers in Tuesday's elections. The 578 ballots cast seem to indicate that the "apathy" of a few years back is fast disappearing from the Rollins scene. And the freshman class is especially to be commended, not only for the amazing 90 per cent representation at the polls, but for the vigorous and enthusiastic campaigning which took place prior to the election.

This vigorous enthusiasm of Rollins students has been showing up in connection with another election, too—the national election. There are few students on campus who do not take an active—often aggressive—interest in the question of Nixon vs. Kennedy. They miss no opportunity to follow the TV debates and other aspects of the campaign, to distribute campaign materials, or to argue the superior qualifications, or simply their personal preference, for their candidate.

Some students have advanced the theory that there is a definite connection between these two events—the intense interest generated in the national elections and the increased participation in the election of class officers. The next school election, when there is no national election to promote interest in politics in general, things will return to an apathetic "normal," it has been said.

The first part of this hypothesis may well be based in truth, for there has been a jump in participation. But, although he increase was sharper his year by a few per cent, there has been a steady trend toward an increase in the per cent of students voting in class elections for the past three years. Each new class matriculating at Rollins seems to bring with it just a little more enthusiasm and interest for campus affairs. Thus it is to be not only hoped, but expected, that when things political quiet down on the national scene, when Kennedy or Nixon moves into the White House, the student body at Rollins will not settle back into a self-satisfied rut.

Americans Lack Pride

By JOAN PINKERTON

Our country is suffering from a deficiency of pride and patriotism. This fact was acutely brought to my attention this summer on the Fourth of July. On this particular day, I had the opportunity of meeting two foreign exchange students, a girl from Greece and a girl from the Netherlands. They were in Watertown for the weekend as a part of a tour of the eastern states before they returned to their respective countries. In the course of conversation, the fact that it was Independence Day was brought up, and one of the girls asked me what we Americans did on such an historical day. I had to think a moment before I came up with my feeble answer, which was, in essence, that we have a few parades, maybe a picnic, some fireworks displays, hang out our flag, and most important of all, we have a day off from work with pay. After posing the same question to them, I listened to their descriptions of a day of comparable importance to them. Mass celebrations complete with cannons booming and rejoicing everywhere were the order of the day.

Have we Americans become so materialistic that we can not feel the significance of a day which had such meaning in the past? It is easy to answer no to this question, but think deeper and see if there is not some presence of guilt in this answer. As far as I can see, to most people a holiday instinctively means a day off. Let's change this attitude. Patriotism and pride in our country are not emotions to be shunned, but emotions to be enthusiastically expressed by everybody. A carefree attitude is very dangerous, in effect, to the continuation of our to a reality. Our job now is to continue our democracy. Disinterest with historic occasions can gradually turn into disinterest in local, state, and federal government. This country was founded and has continued through the efforts of men who earnestly and devoutly believed in a society of equal people. These men had an excess of patriotism which brought this concept of democracy, as it is known today in the United States, predecessors' patriotism and take pride in what they have established.

By Deb n' Air

We ran into a rather interesting fellow the other day in the Rollins Union. He was a pretty seedy looking character and he spoke with the air of a soul-spent evangelist. He had some interesting ideas and although most of them seem out-dated, we thought that some of his notions deserved publication in this column of the Halloween edition of the Sandspur.

His main thesis was that God is a Sick Joke! We were a little shocked at this intimation at first, but at least the fellow did believe in God. He went on to say that the history of Mankind is the history of decadence and corruption creeping into the inner heart of Man and the corresponding lessening of the Noble character of Man. He was very vehement about the passing of the Folk-Hero from the American scene and kept shouting about the lack of a Noble Discontent (which has to do with a fellow named Faust) on the part of the youth of today. He kept yelling that all the student types of today gave a fig for was either a Republican or a Democrat, and that these issues were the deadest ones in the world today.

He made an avid plea for Revolution for the sake of Revolution and said that only people with a passionate feeling for change and commitment to change were worth talking to. To this he also added that the terror of modern life is the passing of the Aristocracy from the Mainstream of American life and he went on to say that people with money are much more interesting than people without it. By this time he was almost foaming at the mouth, and as he lit a cigarette his hand was shaking, so passionate was he about these things. We were a little worried that he would get violent and start throwing things at the cashier, but he managed to contain himself, at least for as long as we were with him.

He insisted that we listen to a poem that he had written and we were impressed by it to say the least. Here is a short excerpt from it:

Man The Ant Killer!

Rejecting the reality of Life
And the Idealism of Reality,
Man, the Ant Killer,
Kills ants,

And cries,
Man, the Ant Killer
Perceiving the Reality of Ideals,
Kills Ants,

And Windmills, and swings
A Nobly appointed toe
Toward the unrealistic Reality of Ideals.

After we heard this jewel of poetic inspiration, we felt we had better leave the poor fellow to his own devices and keep out of his way as much as we could. As we glanced at the clock and made our excuses to him, he said something about great Hate being the pathway to great Love. We shuddered when we heard this bon mot. As we left the table, he gave us a final leer, which, oddly enough, we had expected him to do, and, oddly enough, we felt almost good because his character was complete.

MORAL: It seems to us that some people will do almost anything to get attention.

So much for his week's lesson in living, Dear Reader.

The United Nations' 15th Anniversary

By DR. JOSEPH W. ROMITA

(Written for the Sandspur)

This decade is a time of fateful decision for the world's people. We live in a revolutionary age which is at once a period of great crisis and a period of great opportunity. The yeast of unrest is at work in India, Africa, Asia and Latin America. The population explosion and the scientific revolution have created the challenge of the 60's.

America leads the West. Russia leads the East. Which will meet the challenge of this era? Will it be democracy or communism?

This fundamental unbalance of the world economy and political survivalship is but one symptom of the central problem of our times—the increasingly sharp contradiction between the missilistic political organization of the world and the organic interdependence of the world and the organic interdependence of the world's economy and military security.

This week, as in the past 15 years, United Nations' Week is being observed throughout the entire world to commemorate the strengthening of mutually beneficial relations among the 99 member nations.

United Nations' authority has grown steadily during the past 15 years since the U. N. pledged, in the words of its Charter, "to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustments or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace."

Very few people know much about the status, powers, and functions of the United Nations. Ignorance of the aims and the authority of the U. N. ranges from those who regard it as a world legislature to those who dismiss it as a futile or dangerous debating society. The U. N. deserves our intelligent understanding, if we think that international organization is better than international chaos.

The foundations of the U. N. were laid at the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in Washington in the fall of 1944 . . . between the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom and the United States and China.

The proposals for establishment of an organization of nations for the maintenance of world peace led to the calling of the U. N. Conference on International Organization at San Francisco where, April 25 to June 26, 1945, the Charter of the United Nations was drawn up.

Its original membership of 51 nations has grown since then. Today we have a U. N. almost universal in its membership. Its 99 members represent over 2 billion people. Two score nations are yet waiting to get in, including Communist China with its 670 million people—sizeable chunk to be excluded.

The United Nations has not yet fulfilled all the purposes of its founders. Has it therefore "failed"? This question would seem unreasonable were it not so frequently asked. The bitter disappointment of many Americans that the U. N. has not met their ideals for an international organization and the more measured discontent of other peoples and governments do not give the whole answer.

Nevertheless, in looking over the record of the world organization we cannot fail to be impressed by its achievements, particularly in the areas of economic and technical assistance and in the application of the principle of self-determination.

The record is perhaps less impressive in the field of the maintenance of world peace, but this has been a fault of events, rather than of the United Nations itself. When the U. N. was set up, it was envisioned that the great powers would act in concert as the guardian of world peace. Far from acting in concert, however, there was an early clash of interests among the big powers, resulting not in world unity but in total division.

This is not to say that the United Nations has been totally incapable of maintaining peace. While it has not been able to prevent the outbreak of hostilities, it has been instrumental in preventing the greater spread of hostilities and in mediating many differences among

Vocabulary Building Description Of 'Joy' Is Theme Assignment

Ed Note: The emphasis in student King's English class this week is on vocabulary building. The assignment was to have written a theme describing something. King decided to describe—Joy.

A DESCRIPTION—JOY!
"O brother, not so much noise!
Let us sing our drunken joys."—
Schiller.

What munificent tidings there were when one grandiose morning, I received the missal from Dean Vermillion which ended something like, "I'm motivated to formulate this to appraise you that you have been excepted as a disciple at Rollins College, and we, here, are all rigorously anticipating your erstwhile visitation with the greatest intrepidity—in more simplified verbiage, we are highly inflated at the prospectus." I was too.

I assailed this jovial pronouncement with superabundant merry-making. As one might eagerly demise, I had long regaled the speculations of intending college with voluminous anticipatory feelings. And now what was expectation was rapidly becoming a morbid manifestation.

Here, ultimately within my grubby little gripture was the eventuality of gaining a perceptual improvisation in my literal stylisation. In addition to this, my socialistic development would be peregoregically aggrandized. Too, my familiarity with that eulogistic epitome of all centralized and synthesized didacticism and sophistry, the college professor, would be greatly enhanced and resolutely, I would be permissive to attain my place among all the mundane ineffectuals.

So it is evinced that my extant mirth was without litigation. Therefore I was not most complacent at my fortuitousness and I generously hope that my adjournment at Rollins may be an expended one.

United Nations

As the world is politically constituted nowadays, total agreement is hardly to be expected considering the kind of sterility which has overtaken the disarmament discussions, the question of German reunification, the Communist Chinese problem and other questions of similar import.

But, if no total agreement is readily possible, the U. N. provides a meeting place where East and West can ventilate their differences in the presence of the enlightened opinion of the world and can, when they wish, agree. Even limited agreement could lead to the development of mutual confidence, which in turn might make possible larger and larger scopes of agreement. It is towards this desirable end that the United Nations is directed.

In the past few weeks, before the 15th U. N. General Assembly, we have witnessed a world drama—the human race brought together, with all its virtues and faults, its wisdom and folly, and its good and ill will.

President Eisenhower's address will be inscribed on the pages of history as a triumph of moral force. For Khrushchev, the United Nations gave the Soviet dictator the sharpest rebuff he has had in many a year.

Thirty or forty years ago the masses of the people in most of Latin America, South East Asia, Africa and the Middle East were sunk in ignorance and apathy. Since then a broader awareness of modern life in the "outside" world has produced a heightened social and political consciousness.

What we discovered in 1776 is being rediscovered today in Asia, Africa and India.

What we did to unshackle ourselves others are doing today. Of all people in the world we should understand them best.

The safety of any single nation in the free world depends directly upon the substantial unity of all nations in the free world. No nation outside the Iron Curtain can afford to be indifferent to the fate of any other nation devoted to freedom.

If each, ignoring all others, pursues only its own course toward its own ends, the Communists would have unlimited opportunity to turn the full force of their power upon any selected victim. Each, beginning with the weakest and the most exposed, might succumb in turn, until the strongest of all—ourselves—would be left alone to face a hostile world. The final result would be fearful to contemplate. The United States will never permit it to happen.

The United States, by reason of its strength, can be a prime mover in world affairs—but it can only hope to do so in concert with other nations in modifying the views and decisions of great and little powers.

We cannot do anything to keep the Soviet Union from having more scientists and engineers, but we can do a great deal to see that we have more ourselves.

We cannot do anything to make Communist China weak, but we can do something to make India and Japan strong.

We cannot do anything to quench the desire for land reform in Latin America, but we can do something to help our friends there carry it out in a responsible and democratic way.

We might as well resign ourselves to the fact that all of this is going to require a considerable national effort and is going to cost substantial sums of money.

It will not be easy to persuade all other free nations to join us to limit their ability in a long-term program.

We must encourage and support those who are on our side. We mustn't quibble with them merely because we don't like their ideology; we mustn't quibble with them merely because we think they don't do things the way we would like them done. If they resist communism, then they are on our side; basically allies against a common peril. They are giving proof of willingness to share the risks with us, if we will but give them assurance of effective aid, even in the event of war.

The United Nations is our responsibility. It is ours to make it articulate and to make it work. As one of my students said the other day: "What a tough job we've got in our generation to make the 'ought-to-be' the 'is.' But what a wonderful world this will be when we close that gap."

'Brigadoon' Star Plans Career At School For Blind; Likes 'Atmosphere' Of Rollins

By JODY FRUTCHEY
Sandspur Staff

"I originally wanted to write; however I have a job waiting for me at a correspondence school for the blind in Winnetka, Illinois, my home town," explained senior Mary Goodall, at present the secretary of the Alpha Phi's. "The school is unique in that it is the only one of its kind in the world. I've already started the process of learning Braille." Continuing, she added, "I've been searching for my place in life for years, and frankly think I've found it in this job. I know it will help teach me humility which I think is the key to getting along with anyone in the world."

Mary, an English major, has one of the leads in the soon-to-be-produced "Brigadoon." She also starred in last year's production of "Guys and Dolls." One fact I love about Rollins," she commented, "is that although I'm an English major, I can dabble in other fields such as theatre and music. This really aids a student in broadening his outlook of life."

Of music, which is one of her main hobbies, Mary commented, "I love music, but only as a past time. I would never want it to turn into drudgery for me."

"It might sound silly or corny," she added, "but a favorite hobby of mine is making people around me happy. The world could be so much nicer if everyone were happy, smiling, and having fun!"

A former member of the Chapel Choir and Rollins Singers, Mary commented, "I'm definitely in favor of the Freshman Glee Club, and think Rollins has always needed something like this to add spirit to the Freshman class and the entire student body. Mary recently assisted in auditions for the glee club."

Speaking of necessities at Rollins, she added, "I think the Rollins Union is working out beautifully, and certainly is a step in the right direction. That is, away from the feeling of apathy that seemed to prevail over Rollins a few years ago."

"My pet peeve is self-righteous and phony people," she said. "And I'm glad rush is over so we can all act like normal human beings again!"

"I think that sororities and fraternities are not a necessity on a small campus. A student can have fun without having Greek letters associated with his name. The main asset is becoming familiar with group living and working toward goals together," she said.

"The Rollins atmosphere is small-townish and very informal. Everyone knows everyone. I think this is one of the assets of a small college. The climate here in Florida is also very invigorating to a Northern student. These are the main reasons I came to and remained at Rollins for my college education," Mary said.

"Here at Rollins the students seem to take smiling at everyone you see for granted," Mary remarked. "Compared to the summer school which I attended, it's a welcome and friendly relief."

Letters to the Editor

Junior Class Elections Criticized

Editor:

I should like to voice my opinion on the deplorable manner in which the junior class elections were carried out.

Half of the members of the class were either unable to attend the nomination meeting or were never told about it. The president of the class, Jack Sutliff, made no effort to contact the day students who couldn't hear the announcement that was made in the dining room.

Furthermore, since the disqualification of the other candidates, no second meeting was held to come up with a new slate. As a result, the person largely responsible for the usurping of the voters' rights, Sutliff, is running unopposed.

Lastly, the prevalence of an uncaring attitude toward the whole matter by the students at large is really revolting. I'd suggest that a few students around here open their eyes, or at least roll over in bed once in a while.

Sports Personality

All-State Goalie, Pre-Med Major
Garrett Gives Views On Rollins

"Soccer is as much fun in practice as it is in the game," says All-State goalie Cope Garrett. "In my high school days, football was my sport, and it was always such a drudge until game time. Then all your work was worth it, your moment of glory was there and you could enjoy it and wallow in it. But with soccer it's fun all the time."

Cope lives in Sarasota, Florida, with his wife when he isn't at Rollins. His wife is working at Winter Park Memorial Hospital as a secretary, making that "extra buck", as he calls it.

Cope is a senior pre-med major, but isn't sure which medical school he will attend. Cope appears to other people as the calm, cool, and collected individual that knows what he wants, and, for that matter, he is. He has been through the Coast Guard for four years and has attended Haverford College in Philadelphia for a year and a half.

Cope was a standout football player in high school and when he graduated he stormed into college—for a term. He suddenly realized that the academic life at FSU wasn't agreeing with him and that he wished to see the world. Cope satisfied his wanderlust, and now has his feet firmly planted in Rollins soil.

Cope loves Rollins and wished he had attended here many years ago. He feels that the men and women here really don't appreciate what a beautiful "paradise" they live in. He added that he would like to see only one improvement at Rollins. This is to have each and every student realize the wonderful opportunity they have to extract knowledge from some of the finest teachers in the country. Cope pointed out about the Rollins

Faculty that the great majority are excellent teachers. "There are great, great people in colleges that are supposed to teach but don't have the ability," he said. "I feel that teachers were meant to open the eyes of the student in each subject, to show the way to the interior of that subject."

Maid Of Cotton
Deadline Set

The National Cotton Council has announced Dec. 1 as the deadline for applications for the industry's 23rd Maid of Cotton contest to be held in Memphis, Tenn. Dec. 28 and 29.

The winner of the contest, sponsored annually by the Council, the Memphis Carnival Association, and the Cotton Exchanges of Memphis, New Orleans and New York, will tour the North American continent and European fashion capitals as a good will envoy for the 1961 year.

Fashion shows as well as radio and television appearances will be the 1961 Maid of Cotton's official duties across the two continents. Included on her agenda are: a Congressional Reception in Washington D. C., the Cotton Carnival in Memphis, and a tour of Canada and 30 major U. S. cities, as well as the European tour.

To be eligible to compete in the contest, a girl must fulfill the following qualifications: (1) have been born in one of the 18 cotton-producing states of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia, or a cotton producing county of Illinois or Nevada; (2) be between the ages of 19 and 25; (3) be at least five feet five inches tall; and (4) never have been married.

Applications may be obtained from the National Cotton Council, Box 9905, Memphis, Tennessee.

Club, Delts Win
In Intramural
Flag Football

This past Monday-afternoon the 1960 Intramural flag football season got under way as the Delta Chi's trimmed the Indies 27-6. The Delts shot off into a commanding lead in the first three plays of the game. After kicking off they intercepted an Indie pass and scored. The second play of the game was another pass interception by the Delts and 7 more points.

The Indies attempted short passes, and end runs but the Delts held fast and took over the ball in time for their third touchdown of the first half to lead 21-0.

In the second half, the Delts, using their second team, scored once more to end their scoring for the game. The most exciting play of the encounter was on a kick-off late in the second half. Dr. Dudley DeGroot (Mr. Touch-down) playing for Indies received the kick-off, paused, then pitched a fifty yard touchdown pass to his "lonesome" end deep in the Delta Chi secondary. The extra point failed, and shortly the time ran out leaving the scoring at 27-6.

Last Tuesday the X Club football machine rolled methodically over the KA's in a 47-0 slaughter. It was Club all the way in this contest. From the very beginning, the Club took control and marched on well executed passing and running plays seven times to the KA goal, scoring five extra points. The KA's had much height and weight but little organization on either offense or defense.

Freshman Women
Hoopsters Chosen

Look out sororities, freshman basketball has started! The freshman girls will be divided into two teams, the Sands and the Spurs, who will be included in the intramural round-robin beginning Monday, October 31 at 4:15.

The teams have not yet been chosen, but they will consist of the following girls. Forwards are Gail Philipps, Barbara Hogan, Barbara Hartzell, Lee Russell, Diane Lalow, Starr Klein, Ann Davidson, Sue Williams, Rocky Sullivan, Jan Zeugner, and Penny Moore. Guards are Sally Quarles, Steve Deane, Evelyn Vaughn, Virginia Pogue, Doris Hardy, Maurcen O'Brien, and Jeanne Snyder.

The games will be played on the outside courts next to Elizabeth Hall.

The whole Lambda Chi chapter turned out for Dave Talley's dancin' party Saturday night; even John Hughes was seen tearing up the floor. The punch bowl ran out at ten, but was quickly replenished!

It looks like the Snakes really mean it when they sing "Don't Take My PIN"—there's no one pinned in the Sigma Nu house now. The Pi Phi trip to the end of fraternity row to look for trophies turned into a party Saturday after the pledge banquets.

Sara Parkey is thinking of de-pledging because the Pi Phi's are making posters for her presidential opponent, Jim Carney. Don McLaughlin has reportedly joined the Navy because of the recruiters in Student Union. That'll be the day!

Some girls like to make a dramatic moment even more exciting, so they faint on pledge Saturday—and in a place where the most boys are standing to watch! Don't they, Jane Yancy? Not so with Ann Powell and Chari Probasco ... they just wanna relax!

Heard from the TKE house, any time after lunch: "I need a fourth for bridge," "Let's play ping pong," "Where's the chess board?" and endless debates about music. When do they study?!!

Enrique Huber spent all summer trying to convince Jeanie Abendroth that an American fraternity pin doesn't mean a thing in Europe. No luck. By the way Enrique, why this sudden interest in tennis? Dyer Moss must have had quite a weekend!

When Tom Weber and the Clubbers awarded the T. Trophy to a freshman girl, she looked up and sweetly replied, "Thank you!" Jerry Beets likes the name "Susie."

The Sons of the Beaches organization is preparing to resume it's activities in full force, beginning with a membership drive. The only qualifications necessary, as stated by rush chairman, Dan Jackson: "must be a sunworshiper and sophisticated social drinker."

Some Phi Mu's held a golf-cart type of chariot race at Dubs Sunday afternoon; contestants were Joan Pinkerton, Lucy Hufstader, Celie Salter, and Sylvia. At least it was different!

Omega Pi has announced its arrival on the Rollins Campus. First blast is scheduled for tomorrow evening!

'KILL IT before it multiplies,' is the cry of Bob May as he is about to boot the ball out of the Tars' goal area. Rollins won, 2-1, over Southern in last Saturday's game.

Booters Meet Stetson Tomorrow After 2-1 Victory Over Southern

The pattern is set; the Tars are on victory road for the 1960 soccer season. In last Saturday's game, the Tars outplayed Florida Southern 2-1 and completely controlled the ball 75 per cent of the time. Although it was a low scoring game, and all the scoring was accomplished in the first quarter, the excitement was high the whole game because Rollins knocked at Southern's door many times, but seldom got their boots in for the scores.

Tomorrow the Tars travel to Deland to take on their arch rivals, the Stetson Hatters. Last year's bout with Stetson in the Sandspur Bowl resulted in a sound 5-1 defeat for the visitors, and the Rollins team is hoping to repeat this performance tomorrow.

Coach Ernie Wraschek must be given a great deal of credit for the display his boys put on Saturday.

The feeling of teamwork certainly was displayed last Saturday; the ball was moved quickly, and accurately by the Tars' short passing game. This teamwork was displayed by the unusual amount of time that Rollins controlled the ball.

Within the first three minutes of the game, Southern had scored and for another minute it looked like they might turn the tables on the Tars. However the Tars didn't see it this way at all. After the ball had been worked into scoring position, Ed Leal booted through the opposition, left to right across the goal, to Chick Guerrero, who was in the clear on the right side of the goal. Guerrero blasted it past the goalie, and the score was tied one-up.

Stetson kicked off and moved the ball down toward the Rollins goal, but without success. The ball changed hands several times; finally a Rollins fullback kicked it out of the Rollins goal area to Mike Watson on the south sidelines, who passed it up field to Hank Heneken, moving towards the Southern goal.

Heneken moved the ball in close, then passed to Guerrero. There was a scuffle for the ball between the Southern fullbacks, and Guerrero and Heneken. An attempt was made to kick a goal but it was deflected by one of the fullbacks. Guerrero tried to kick it again and the ball grazed one of the players and spun over the group, including the goalie, who was moving out to capture the ball, and into the net for the Tar score and last tally of the game.

Only one mishap occurred in the game; Garrett Richmond collided with one of the Southern players as both were tried to head the ball. As a result, he is expected to be out of action for quite a while and perhaps the whole season.

Rollins, controlling the ball throughout the rest of the game, could and should have scored more. However, the reason they did not wasn't inability to score, for there were many occasions when the Tars were in position and didn't make it. The only fault that was evident was overanxiety. At least four goals might have been made if a split second more care had been taken.

Probably the most outstanding display of ball handling was displayed by Elias Terzopoulos and Demetrios Coutsolioutsos as they completely outfoxed the opposition with their expert ball control. As a matter of fact, Coutsolioutsos so completely frustrated one of the Southern players that it almost resulted in a fight.

Rollins Tennis Players Participate In County Amateur Net League

In the continuing process of tennis promotion throughout the area, an amateur tennis league has been set up in Orange County. The league is comprised of seven teams with representatives from Rollins on three of them.

Rollins tennis coach Norm Copeland has divided approximately 20 players from the student body to make up what are known as the Rollins Blue and Rollins Gold teams.

Among the members of the Rollins Blue team are John Henriksen, Luis Dominguez, Jim Brooks, Tom Doolittle, Bob Balline, Nate Tracy, Bill Kahn, Jim Levy, and Jane Feise.

The Rollins Gold consists of Mike Algrege, Mort Dunning, Ralph Greco, Duane Ackerman, Bill Law, Chip Whiting, B. T. Hinneman, Dave Powers, Maury Merkin, and Rocky Sullivan. Coach Copeland will serve as an alternate doubles player on each of the two teams.

Intramural director Clarence Varner has formed his own team, Palm Terrace, with representatives from the Orlando-Winter Park area.

The other teams in the league are Winter Park Racquet Club, Orlando Air Force Base, and two teams from Orlando Tennis Club, Orlando No. 1 and Orlando No. 2. The league will play its matches, three singles and four doubles, every Sunday afternoon from now until December 20. In addition, some matches will be played on Wednesday afternoons.

Sportin' Life

'Spur Sports Writers Sought; Tars Praised For Soccer Wins

Tomorrow Rollins travels to Deland to encounter Stetson. The Tars really deserve some support after their fine exhibition of skill last week. This will be an FIC (Florida Intercollegiate Conference) and should the Tars bring home a victory, they will be well on the road to the McKean Memorial Soccer Trophy that has been too long away from home.

The wild cry of the messy haired, bloodshot eyed sports editor is being sounded. We need sports writers, and good ones. There are about nine different areas of sports in Rollins College, and only four of these areas are being covered adequately. If you really want to hear the whole story, the Sandspur staff is undermanned and could certainly use some young, talented, imaginative reporters and writers in many different fields.

Most people don't read enough as it is, but when they do, they like to have accurate, up-to-date material to read. This is only possible when there is a smooth running reporting service and an able editing staff to mold the paper into being.

This year the work has been heaped on a few and the work has been heavy. Now wait a minute, I'm giving you the wrong impression of what newspaper work is like, aren't we? You are right, ah, wrong of course. Why every Sandspur writer and reporter receives a nice big sticker to go on his or her car windshield. If you don't have a car, then of course you can paste it on your glasses. And if you don't wear glasses then you should be proud to hang it on your door, it's such a prestige symbol.

You also get into all the sporting contests in which the college is competing . . . FREE! Oh, certainly everyone else gets in free, but you'll be a Sandspur writer, you can hold your head high and write eloquent phrases with a blue and gold ball point on BIG sheets of yellow paper designated for Sandspur use only! And it takes hardly any time to write up the stories. It takes just one insignificant . . . uh, night out of your rather quiet schedule. Advancement is fast in the Sandspur ranks, too.

In no time at all you'll be an editor, regardless of whether you were appointed or not.

It is really a lot of fun and not too much work to write for the most organized and most highly disciplined organization on campus. So walk, don't run, to your nearest Sandspur office; preferably the one in the Student Union.

The Delts walked over the Indies, and the Club methodically cut down the KA's in their games this week. These may have been one sided contests, but they were certainly more stimulating than softball. Just by watching on the sidelines, a rather sentimental chill ran up and down this man's back. It just felt right to have our old friend, football, back on campus. The only disheartening thing about the afternoon was the crowd. Apparently, little advertising has or is being done to bring out the students. IFC? What gives?

The rules were abided by quite well this week, but what's going to happen when the Snakes and the Club get together? Or the Delts and Lambda Chi? Or any combination of these big powers?

Watching the freshmen girls practice for berths (?), yeah, berths on the Freshmen girls intramural basketball team, brought many chuckles, but also an appreciative eye. These girls are good! As a matter of fact they are a darn sight better than many men we've seen play, so, sororities, don't get fresh with the Frosh.

Basketball is rolling right along. Ralph Tanchuk mentioned the other day that some of the freshmen are liable to beat out lettermen or at least alternate quite frequently. If height is any indication of talent then Rollins has got it made this year. We have plenty of it. From very reliable sources, the Tars will have depth and talent in every position. May I say that it is about time, and thanks to Joe and Dan we have the ability to reach out and grab the golden ring on this merry-go-round of sports.
