All Campus Publications To Call A Halt

Beginning with Fall term of next year, there will be no Sandspur, no Tomokan, no Flamingo, and no R Book.

Next fall, campus news will consist of the Rollins calendar on the Union bulletin board. Important campus figures can no longer declare themselves misquoted, and campus dissenters will have to dissent vocally. The Grapevine table of intramural gossip will be banished forever.

If a student wants a story published, he can publish it himself, for the Flamingo will no longer attempt to reflect the atmosphere of campus creativity.

And as for the R Book and the Tomokan, the general public will have to rely on the reports of stray students if it asks about Rollins such questions as, "What is Fiesta," "How does the campus really look," and "Do you have sharp girls down there."

Does this bother you, Rollins? Have you ever stopped to think what your college would be like without publications?

This is not a joke! It could happen. The fact is that every year the possibility of losing the Sandspur, the Tomokan, the Flamingo, and the R Book comes a little closer to being a reality. Why?

The reason is fairly simple: The "Rollins family" simply does not care enough. It is obvious that when both editors of a publication are seniors, someone must be available to replace them. But out of 76 names which the co-editor compiled of students who had had experience in publication, six came to express an interest in joining the staff. There is no one who is qualified at this time to assume the editorship of the 1963 Tomokan.

The Sandspur finds itself in a similar though less critical condition. From a list of 80 entering men with some journalistic background, two came to the editor to offer their services. True, others came in from time to time to chat and criticize and contribute an occasional article. But when spring term rolls around, there is almost never more than one person who is willing to accept the editorship.

The Flamingo at this point does not lack an editorial board or a successor to the editor, but it perennially lacks contributions. "You know who has talent," said the editor in discussing the magazine's plight, "but you have to go to them and ask them."

In all of these cases, we will concede that encouragement is necessary, and perhaps more might be given. But when an editor has tried to recruit writers and still has to beg for copy something is wrong.

Rollins is not lacking in talented, imaginative, and experienced journalists; this can be proved by talking to the faculty. But what happens to these potential literary geniuses? Do they simply fall into the apathetic role of the average Rollins student and never emerge again?

The Publications Union is deeply concerned about this problem, and it does have some suggestions to make. First, in order to have publications of high quality, the steady influence of a journalism course is necessary. Without this benefit, editors can only pass on by word of mouth their accumulated experience and idiosyncrasies. But the college authority apparently does not feel this lack, for it has taken no action on this suggestion, though it has been made many times before.

The second suggestion is that Rollins offer, in connection with the journalism class, a publication scholarship. Under this arrangement, an entering student can work off some of his hours in publications, as others now work them off in the beanery, the tennis courts, and in professors' offices.

These are the only solutions which we have to offer at the present time. The ultimate answer to this problem lies in the hands of the student body and the administration.

Annual Shakespeareana To Be Held In Strong Hall

A quote from Shakespeare is the admission price to the 16th annual Shakespeareana festival to be held next Friday, February 23, at 4 p.m. in the Strong Hall patio.

Co-ordinated by Professor Nina Oliver Dean, with the aid of her Shakespeare class and members of the theatre arts department and the conservatory of music, the program consists of songs, scenes, sonnets and soliloquies of the Elizabethan Bard.

The atmosphere corresponds in detail, as nearly as possible, with that of the dramatic performances of Shakespeare's era. The Strong Hall setting suggests the structure of the Globe Theatre and Elizabethan inn yards in which plays were produced in daylight before the advent of the modern theatre.

Orange girls are a modern innovation to replace the nut-vendors of Shakespeare's time who provided the groundlings with this all-purpose commodity which served as ammunition in the event that a play was not well received. The Shakespeareana actors won't have to compete vocally with an undertone of nut-cracking!

A flag will fly from the roof of Strong Hall to signify that a play is in progress as a pennant in Elizabethan times was flown to announce that a play would be presented that day.

At 4 p.m. sharp, trumpet calls will herald the beginning of the performance.

Robert Chase and Eugene Miller, associate directors of the Annie Russell Theatre, will direct the four scenes to be presented.

Chase will portray the role of Malvolio in the scene from Twelfth Night. Gary Brouhard will be seen as Sir Toby Belch; Candy Diener, as Maria; Bob Haines, as Fabian; and Gordon Regan, as Sir Andrew Aguecheek.

In the wooing scene from Henry V, Dana Ivey, Peter Kellogg, and Lucy Palmer, respectively, will create the roles of Princess Katherine, King Henry and Alice.

Key Society Taps Jane Ruble

Jane Ruble was the sole new member to be tapped by Rollins Key Society this term. The honorary, the local equivalent of Phi Beta Kappa has the high requirements of an 11.0 average for six terms, one of which must be in the student's junior year.

Besides maintaining the high scholastic average prerequisite to tapping, Miss Ruble, a junior, has been active in extra curricular activities, both on campus and off. She is now president of the Independent Women, and has been secretary of the group for two years.

This is her second year as representative to the Legislative Body of Rollins Student Government. In the past, Miss Ruble has been a biology lab assistant, a student assistant in Elizabeth Hall, and a member of the Rollins Chapel Choir. Theatrically, she has been in singing choruses for the ART musical, Brigadoon, and also the Indie Mu-

Smathers, Bryant To Speak At Animag

The theme of the Rollins 1962 Animated Magazine has been announced and will be carried out by a trio of distinguished speakers on Sunday, Feb. 25.

Special guests at Animag are to be Robert C. Seamans, Jr., Associate Administrator of NASA; U. S. Senator George Smathers, and Florida's Governor Farris Bryant. They will discuss the topic, "What Could the Future Be For Rollins."

Contributing also will be the following faculty members: Dr. Dudley Degroot, Dr. Bruce Wavell, Dr. Dan Thomas, Dr. Charles Welsh, and Dr. Herbert Hellwege. President McKean will moderate the discussion.

Dr. Seamans, who occupies the top career post at NASA, is responsible for general management of the agency's operations. His duties there include supervising laboratories, research centers, rocket testing and launching facilities, and a world network of tracking stations. Previous to his appointments as NASA, Seamans was chief engineer of RCA's Electronics and Controls Division at Burlington, Mass.

Harvard granted the scientist his B. S. degree in 1939 and he went on to obtain his Master's and Doctor's degrees from MIT by 1951. He has been active in the fields of missile and aeronautics since 1941. At MIT, he served in the department of Aeronautical Engineering and was chief engineer of Project Meteor as well as the director of the Flight Control Lab.

In 1955 he joined RCA as manager of the Airborne Systems Lab and chief engineer of the Missile Electronics and Controls Division. Until 1958 he served on technical committees of NASA's predecessor organization, the National Advisory Committee For Aeronautics. He has been a consultant to the Scientific Advisory Board of the Air Force and a board member since 1959.

Senator George Smathers, who is up for re-election to his post as the U. S. Senator from Florida, first gained national recognition for his successful prosecution of the La Paloma white-slavery case. A graduate of the U. of Florida's law school, he was first elected to the Florida House of Representatives in 1945 after practicing law for a time in Miami. His next move was to defeat in 1954 an incumbent legislator of 14 years experience to become U. S. Senator.

During his freshman term in the Senate, he was appointed to serve as Deputy Floor Leader and is Acting Majority Leader during Lyndon Johnson's absence. He was re-elected in 1956.

In 1962, he was unanimously elected secretary of the Democratic Conference of the 87th Congress in 1961. He consequently became a member of the Senate Democratic membership of various Senate Committees. He was also a member of the Democratic Policy Committee of the Senate, which shapes the Party's general policy on legislative matters.

Smathers has been closely associated with efforts to better the U. S.'s relationship with Latin America. He proposed an inter-American police force to preserve peace in the western hemisphere and also recommended such programs as journalist-student exchanges and long-range trade programs. He is an advocate of a strong-arm-in-Cuba policy.

As chairman of the Senate Surface Transportation committee, Smathers conducted extensive hearings on the plight of the nation's railroads. He was the author

Chapel Choir To Make LP Record; Will Perform 'King David' In April

By SILVIA DUBOIS
Sandspur Staff

The Rollins Chapel Choir, directed by Robert Hufstader, Choirmaster, has contracted with a national recording agency to cut a long-playing record in the spring. This recording will feature selections from the 1961 Christmas service, plus other works performed by the choir during the year—presenting a good cross section of sacred choral music from the sixteenth century to the contemporary. Catherine Crozier, Organist, will accompany the choir.

In addition to the recording, the choir in conjunction with the Bach Festival Choir is scheduled to perform "King David" by Arthur Honegger with the Florida Symphony Orchestra the first week in April. There is also the possibility of a performance of "King David" on a nation-wide television program sponsored by the National Council of Churches for which the choir auditioned a few weeks ago.

Keeping a tight schedule all year, this busy organization appeared on three local television programs last fall in addition to presenting their annual Christmas service. Being in the choir is not all work and no play, however; they manage to combine strenuous study with a few parties—a swimming party, a day at the Pelican, and a banquet.

This is Mr. Hufstader's ninth year as director of the choir. Serving with him is the newly elected choir president, Jeanne Deemer.

Communication Lack Cited Between Council Branches

By LINDA BERNSTEIN
Sandspur Staff

The main issue at Monday night's meeting of Rollins Legislative body was lack of communication between students and the Legislature, students and the Union, and between those two organizations.

Don Nesbitt brought the issue to attention by reading a report of his own evaluation of the Legislature in which he stated the purpose of representatives to be "to find out about the desires of the members of their groups and to act in their best interest, even if this was not the easiest way."

Stressed in Nesbitt's "self-inspired" report was the financial aspect. "Since each student is taxed by the Student Government, he has the right to have the money allocated the way he wants."

As an example, Nesbitt cited complaints voiced by his group and echoed by him in Legislature about Union-sponsored off-campus dances. He said that "although I asked for a report of the comparison of pre-Union cost and number of large, semi-formal dances and those since the Union's administration, I got no action. This is despite the fact that Legislature's vice president Frank Dunnill is, according to the Constitution, the liaison between the two groups as a voting member of the Board of Managers of the Union. Also, Matt Carr who is Chairman of the Board of Managers is present as Legislature meetings as a representative."

Nesbitt said that "the next dance is scheduled for February 17, and will have an expensive admission fee and drinks will cost 75 cents apiece. This is with thousands of the student's money lying unused in the treasury."

Matt Carr answered that Nesbitt is on the Program Committee of the Union. Carr continued that "the questionnaires for a student opinion poll about the legislature suggested in Nesbitt's report are a good idea."

The Union policy according to Carr is "to give the Union committee heads free rein in finding out what the students want. They are well-known, and people interested should take their suggestions and complaints to them."

In answer to the complaints about the small number of large dances, Carr said that "the problem is a place large enough for their affairs. Since Dubs can't be used this year and others have priority to the Armory, sometimes it's impossible to find a place regardless of cost. An answer may be to have two smaller dances on one night."

Joan Spaulding suggested that everyone be kept informed about the progress of the Fiesta Committee, perhaps by "weekly reports in the Sandspur."

Bill Tene summed up that "representatives should take all of the topics of discussion in Legislature back to their group" because "the interest should come from the people. The main problem is insufficient communication." To remedy this, Tene suggested, Nesbitt moved, and it was passed that "a financial report be given to the Legislative Body Comptroller by the Union Comptroller along with reports of progress of the Union Committees, to be submitted in mimeographed form to representatives every month."

Tene also voiced a need for a central clearing committee whose sole job it would be to facilitate communication.

Fernos-Isern To Address College On Political Concept Of Puerto Rico

"The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico: A New Political Concept," is the topic of the Honorable Antonio Fernos-Isern's lecture February 20 when he addresses the College and public in the ART at 8:30 p.m. As the Resident Commissioner of Puerto Rico to Congress, Dr. Fernos-Isern first addressed the college in 1949.

Reviewing the accomplishments of Puerto Rico in the last 13 years, Dr. Fernos-Isern will point out the many improvements and advancing steps taken by the Commonwealth in this relatively short period of time. Modern buildings, new sanitation methods, and education for the children are now working programs, not dreams in Puerto Rico today.

Born in San Lorenzo, Puerto Rico in 1895, Dr. Fernos-Isern attended elementary and high school in Puerto Rico and later came to the United States to enroll in medical school. After attending the College of Physicians and Surgeons and School of Medicine at the University of Maryland, he returned to Puerto Rico to practice medicine. From his position as Health Officer for San Juan to that of the Commissioner of Health of Puerto Rico, Dr. Fernos-Isern has held many important offices as he has worked to develop his native land.

Appointed Resident Commissioner of Puerto Rico to the United States in 1946, he has been re-elected to that office 3 times, and in addition to his duties as Resident Commissioner, Dr. Fernos-Isern served as president of the Constitutional Convention of Puerto Rico from 1951 to 1952 and was also an alternate delegate in 1953 for the United States delegation to the United Nations.

Immediately following his lecture Tuesday evening, the College and public is invited to a reception at the Casa Iberia honoring the Honorable Antonio Fernos-Isern.

Museum Exhibits Fossil Shells

Fossil marine shells will be displayed at Rollins' Beal-Maltbie Shell Museum in February as a special Founders Week exhibit.

Most of the excellently preserved shells, part of the collection of Corbin and Thelma Ballentine of Orlando, were discovered in south Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Ballentine, shell collectors for a number of years, recently began to specialize in fossils.

The majority of these shells were discovered in mounds of earth dredged by the South Florida Drainage District near Lake Okechobee.

These mounds, as high as 15 to 20 feet, yield shallow to deep water forms and both cold and warm water species of fossils from both east and west coasts.

Mrs. Ballentine said that most of the fossils are from the Pliocene era, having lived from six to 11 million years ago.

She also remarked that this particular group of fossils is better preserved than those that are a mere one million years old. She attributes this perfection to a type of mud which encased and protected the shells during that era.

SUPPORT FOUNDERS WEEK

Founders Week officially begins at Rollins next Tuesday. During this week there are various activities some open to the public and the college and some exclusively for the college.

The activities begin on Tuesday night with the talk on the political concepts of Puerto Rico which is covered elsewhere in this issue. Afterwards there is a reception in Casa Iberia. Wednesday afternoon brings the last in the series of Organ Vespers for this year.

Friday, the annual Shakespeareana festival will be given in the Strong Hall patio and that evening there will be a student recital in the Conservatory. Saturday, there is a Cafezinho book review.

Sunday after Chapel there will be two open houses for the whole college, one at Elizabeth Hall and the other at O'Neal Hall, the TKE House. Sunday afternoon brings the traditional Animated Magazine with several well-known figures as contributors. Sunday evening there will be an all-college picnic with decorations set up by the Fine Arts Committee. Afterwards there will be a square dance on the Union patio for the whole college.

Monday, Founders Week will end with the Convocation. The speaker will be His Excellency Koichiro Asakai, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary, the Embassy of Japan.

All of these various activities are of interest to the College and should be attended by the College. In the usual attitude of Rollins, many of you will pay no attention to Founders Week and let it go by unnoticed and unregarded. Don't let it. Support Founders Week and support your college.

The Door Of Opportunity

By STANLEY STEELE

We lock the doors to our rooms supposedly to keep out our fellow students whose honesty we may suspect. But are they the ones whose honesty faces the greatest challenge?

Every day you have a visitor that you never meet. This inconspicuous person is the one who makes your bed, sweeps your floor, and empties your cigarette butts. Every day, she is faced with perhaps the greatest temptation to steal what is readily available to her.

We look upon dishonesty as perhaps one of the greatest sins. But can people be blamed for thinking of their hungry children at home when they have so much and we so little?

You may think that last sentence was a typographical error, but after they clean up our rooms this may well be the case.

This problem is one that has arrested itself not only at Rollins college; it is a problem that has been plaguing innkeepers, hotel managers, and officials of other places where there is a necessity for maid service. At camp and at my former prep school, we made our own beds, washed our own floors, and straightened our own rooms. Your first impression when you come to this school is that this responsibility is taken off your shoulders so that you may concentrate on your academic work. But are we finding that we are paying too high a price?

I mentioned before that pilferage has plagued many institutions, mainly because maid service was a necessity. But is individual service essential in our rooms at Rollins College?

To those who say that it is, I offer another solution. I have discussed this problem with people who have had similar trouble. They have told me that having two maids in the same room is not only economical because the work is done faster, but that it is safer because each person watches the other one. They have gone further with their study of this problem by alternating the maids to combat conspiracy.

No one is perfect, and certainly, no one is a god. When someone is faced with temptation every day for many years, it is impossible to stay completely honest. When you lock your door during the day, who are you keeping out? Your fraternity brother or sorority sister? Is there anyone in the world you couldn't trust more?

Life In These United States

From the Reader's Digest

While I was driving alone to Little Rock, Ark., to see the doctor, our old Cadillac blew a tire. I was on crutches at the time, and as I eased the spare out of the trunk a car pulled up and a man jumped out and took over. I learned he was on his way to work and remarked, "You don't have time to help me."

"I don't have time not to help you," he said. "Why, I wouldn't have been able to do a job all day thinking about passing you up."

Letters to the Editor

Banner Praises ART's 'Angel'; Campbe Thanks College; Frosh Question Revie

Editor:

Those of us who teach courses involving literary criticism constantly warn against the use of superlatives in literary evaluation. In conscious violation of this basic precept, I unhesitatingly proclaim the presentation of Look Homeward Angel by the Rollins Players the finest college dramatic production I have ever witnessed.

May I take this occasion to express to all who participated in this splendid production my sincere appreciation for a delightful and rewarding experience.

J. Worth Banner, Director
Foreign Language Studies

Editor:

I want to thank everyone in the College for their generous and enthusiastic response to "Operation Teaching English" to Cuban residents.

This is the second time in Rollins history that we have accepted our responsibility to our next door neighbors. In 1898 Rollins opened its doors to Cuban students who fled from their country seeking freedom and continuance of their education.

Today we are offering our friendship and services to those adults who must learn our language in order to find their places in our society.

This genuine and sincere gesture on our part, will, I am sure, bring also what is of utmost importance; a closer relationship and better understanding among the people of the Western Hemisphere. This is the goal towards which the Inter-American program of Rollins is working.

The English teaching Program is under the auspices of the Diocese of South Florida of the Episcopal Church, Canon A. Rees Hay, Director. Rollins College is cooperating in this project.

English classes will start February 19 at Casa Iberia.

Angela P. Campbell

Editor:

This letter was drafted a day too late to make the last issue of the Sandspur, however, we feel the subject matter is important enough to warrant your attention.

What was the reason for the anonymity of the reviewer of the freshman play? If he believes what he wrote, then why should he withhold his name?

It was obvious from Mr. Shepp's attempt to review our play as he would an ART play that he took a lot for granted.

We did not have the advantage of a faculty advisor or assistance of any sort from the theater faculty in rehearsals of the production. Control rested solely on the producer, director, and stage manager.

These three were responsible for coordinating 85 actors and ten tech men backstage in the final production—no easy task when one is working with people one's own age. We did not have the advantage of being able to get our actors excused from fraternity and sorority pledge activities, etc.

Technically it may not have run as smoothly as it might have, but when one considers that more than half the class contributed to it, one must admit that the primary goal of the freshman show was realized.

On our own we gave a show that, despite lack of stage experience, reflected a class spirit the rest of the college would do well to observe. We were very happy after more than two months of work to see the show run as well as it did. We, as a class, have an accomplishment of which we can be proud, even though anonymous reviewers do not seem to want anyone to realize that fact.

Recently the Student Government created a committee to which all complaints concerning Student Union activities should be directed. This seems like an incredible waste of manpower (and womanpower). No one could possibly have any complaints about the work done by the Student Union.

The Union has bulletin boards located in strategic locations all over the campus, like the furnace room of Carnegie Hall, and under the IBM machine in the Ad Building. These are always covered with announcements of coming events, clear and to the point, and posted in plenty of time for all to plan to attend, at least two hours ahead of the occasion.

The Union organization itself seems to be a vague, will-o-th-wisp type of thing anyway. No one ever seems to really know who is responsible for anything or where anyone who might know anything about anything about the Union might be found. It would be interesting if someone on campus could corner these intriguingly secretive people at work in some dark and secluded corner and see exactly what transpires at these meetings of the minds which invariably come up with such entertaining activities for all.

When all else fails them, the powers that be seem to find inspiration in the doings of certain social groups which are able to come up with some relatively original ideas. These are skillfully adapted to the intents and purposes of the Union bosses, and then are unleashed upon the student body.

Maybe we should have a Student Body committee to which the Union could complain. Like about the foreign films which nobody ever goes to, even though they are presented on Tuesday nights, the most convenient night for all concerned, obviously.

The Chapel Tower

By T. S. DARRAH

Senator Humphrey Marshall of Kentucky was dragged from his home by a mob that was intent upon ducking him in a river. "My friends," said Marshall, "all this is irregular. In the ordinance of immersion as practiced in the good old Baptist Church, it is the rule to require the candidate to relate his experience before Baptism is performed." This quieted the crowd and Marshall escaped the ducking.

What was it that so incensed the crowd? Simply the Senator's support of the Jay Treaty. President Kennedy who tells the story then goes on to tell that "the gang of unruly townspeople—few of whom knew what the treaty was, though all were convinced that Marshall had committed treason by supporting."

Come to think of it—what was the Jay Treaty? Come to think of it—what are the central issues about which this campus sometimes gets emotionally carried away?

Nina Dean's 'Shining Morning Face' Leads Literary Journey From 'Wine-Dark Sea'

By ANN PUDDINGTON
Sandspur Staff

"Like most teachers," exclaimed Nina Dean, "I like to 'summon up remembrances of things past,' and tell my students of that 'unique world' when I with shining face went, unlike snail, most willingly to graduate school to study Shakespeare at Columbia."

As one of a group of students who took part in the Clare Tree Major Shakespearean productions at the Herscher Foundation Theatre, Mrs. Dean then dreamed of a "Shakespeareana." She hoped for "a class some day that would combine the study of Shakespeare as literature with the speaking of the lines, for we all know the words were written to be spoken and the songs to be sung."

Thus, after teaching at Mississippi State College for Women, being a feature writer for the New York Times, and a member of the staff of the Atlantic Monthly, her dream was realized here at Rollins in 1946. This was just three years after coming to this campus.

The first "Shakespeareana" was presented by the Shakespeare class in Mrs. Dean's first room on the second floor of old Pinehurst. "The students invited about twenty guests and the audience was augmented by a noisy group of bright-eyed squirrels in the oak tree and on the gallery roof. They, too, like the Elizabethan groundlings, stopped cracking their nuts when Falstaff appeared."

Relating the progress of her program, Mrs. Dean explained with delightful reminiscence that when the classroom was filled in a few years, "Shakespeareana" moved to Dyer Hall. When it and

THE "MISTRESS OF REVELS" of Shakespeareana, Nina Dean, the year that she performed with a broken foot.

Woolson House overflowed, it was time to move to Strong Hall courtyard, through the courtesy of the Gamma Phi Beta Sorority. "Between four and five hundred people filled the courtyard and galleries last year, the fifteenth year," beamed Mrs. Dean.

The attempt to recreate the Elizabethan atmosphere of the Globe Theatre has been very successful, with only slight modifications. The fact that the Orange girls sell camellias instead of nuts to the groundlings, in return for a Shakespearean quotation, she explains in terms of their beauty. "They represent the flower passages of Shakespeare." A minor restriction has also been made. The audience is requested not to sit on the roof. "We may lose a tile or a student," warns Mrs. Dean.

Shakespeare is only one phase of the "journey" on the stream of literature. "Starting with the 'Wine-dark sea' of Homer that mingles with the Thames, the Irish Sea and the Mississippi River," Nina Dean is an exciting helmsman. She finds and imparts to her passengers a "kinship in the folklore of the rural south and in the creatures of Shakespeare."

At Rollins, Mrs. Dean also gets a special enjoyment out of her association with the students in Libra, the honorary for outstanding women, "especially when we circulate about the campus with candles, to tap," she added.

Besides reminiscing, the most appealing thing to Mrs. Dean as a teacher is class discussion. "Although every instructor is permitted to teach the method that is best suited to his course, I believe that discussion is especially adapted to the teaching of literature," she commented. If Nina Dean has a method of teaching, it is best seen in fulfilling the ideal of education, that is, to instruct us in the values and standards of human conduct, which enables us to become better people.

Prof. Announces Puerto Rican Trip For March 10-21

Dr. Sam Smith Speaks On Sanford Papers At Sunday's History-Government Colloquium

By JANE MORGAN
Sandspur News Editor

Dr. Sam Smith, assistant professor of history at the University of Florida, gave a talk on the Sanford Papers at the History and Government Colloquium on Feb. 11.

The Sanford papers, which Prof. Smith called "a major find of two decades," are a collection of biographical and legal documents, diaries, business memoranda, and correspondence which cover the career of General Henry Sanford (1825-1891). The papers were housed at Mills Memorial Library for several years and are now kept in the Bank of Sanford, Fla.

General Sanford (the title was an honorary one) was a business entrepreneur and a diplomat who established the township of Sanford. The "absentee landlord," as Prof. Smith referred to Sanford, invested some $30,000 of his own capital in two years in order to build the town. He was responsible for erecting a sawmill, a wharf, a blacksmith shop, a hotel, and a store.

He also purchased vast chunks of Florida property, among them the Bel Air citrus grove which covered 145 acres in the 1870's. He was responsible for introducing 100 new varieties of citrus to Florida, including such items as loquats, pineapples, and mangoes, in addition to other new crops like olives and almonds.

Gen. Sanford established the Florida Land and Colonization Company, a firm which Prof. Smith described as "an unsuccessful enterprise, that carried on a propaganda campaign all over Europe." The landowner tried to attract immigrants, notably Swedes and Italians, to Florida in order that they might work his orange groves. He brought 150 to this country, but they were not well received in the South at that time and did not remain there.

In the area of diplomacy, Gen. Sanford spent most of the Civil War years in Paris and Belgium, working for the cause of the Union. He used both his private wealth, gleaned from his family's tack business, and government funds to bribe French officials. His purpose was to induce them to exert their influence on Bonaparte, so that he might withhold aid from the rebel forces.

Between 1861 and 1869, Sanford was the U. S. ambassador to Belgium and a central figure in Union intelligence activity there. He acted as a purchasing agent for the Federal forces, buying arms and ammunition from Belgium for the Union's use.

Gen. Sanford became interested in the economic development of the Congo in 1876. Once he commissioned two steamers for a commercial expedition in the area. The ships had to be dismantled and carried over the land by some 1500 Africans. His papers also contained evidence of his activity in the field of American commercial interests in Latin America and other parts of Africa. He was a friend of the Belgian King Leopold who held the Congo; Henry Stanley, an explorer; and Sir William McKinnon, a Scotch ship owner. His correspondence contains hundreds of letters from each of these colonial figures.

Prof. Smith, who began his work on the Sanford papers as a graduate student at Vanderbilt University, said "I became interested in the subject out of necessity." He accepted a commission to work on the papers in order to supplement his income at the school, but stressed that his project came to hold a fascination for him in time.

He expressed a hope that a biography of Sanford be written at some time in the near future and suggested that at least 20 or 30 articles might be written from the voluminous material.

Some areas in which he felt the Sanford papers might provide valuable information were the following: Methods of citrus experimentation, the history of imperialism, the attempt to attract immigrants to the South, the evolution of Sanford Hotel and store, and the Florida Land and Colonization Company venture.

Asked what value he felt the papers held for the non-historian, Prof. Smith replied, "All of us should know more local history than we do. I think it gives us a larger picture of our surroundings and the background of this area."

Theta Leads In Woman's Softball

By BONNIE STEWART
Sandspur Staff

The homerun hitting power of pitcher Jeanne Deemer and the skillful teamwork of her fielders has securely planted the Kappa Alpha Theta team in the number one spot for this year's intramural softball trophy. By defeating their chief contenders, the Kappas, on February 1, the Thetas then earned their fifth consecutive victory with a 20-2 score against the Pi Phis on February 8. The winner of the tension-packed Kappa-Theta game was not determined until the bottom of the fifth inning when Karen Parachek's single sent the winning run across the plate to end the game 4-3.

By tallying 14 runs during their first trip to the plate, the Kappas defeated the Chi Omega team 28-2 on January 30. One week later, however, the Chi Omegas clinched their first victory of the season with a 20-8 score against the Pi Phis.

Led by the dependable pitching of Jane Woodward, the Independents made their entrance into the winner's circle on January 31. The score of this game against the Pi Phi team was 24-0. On February 6 the Indies suffered their third defeat by forfeiting to the Gamma Phi Beta Team.

The postponed game between the Phi Mus and the Indies is scheduled to be played on Monday, February 26. Unless bad weather interferes, this will be the concluding game of the IM softball season.

Florida Southern, Oglethorpe, Mercer Defeat Rollins Tars In Basketball

By PETE MARINO
Sandspur Staff

Florida Southern, the second place basketball team in the state conference, beat Rollins last Wednesday 104-62. It was the tenth win of the season for the Moccasins and their third victory in the Florida Intercollegiate Conference.

Rollins grabbed a 9-5 lead with 14 minutes left in the first half, then the Moccasins' Ricky Duncan clicked on a series of baskets and erased the Tars margin. Florida Southern kept the lead the rest of the way. At half time the score was 47-28.

When the second half got under way, the hosts from Florida Southern kept up their pace, and the game ended with Southern holding a 42 point advantage over the Tars.

Friday, February 4, Mercer College visited the Tars. Rollins, turning in one of its stronger performances of the year, ended up losing the game on the foul line.

The first half of the game went both ways. First Rollins would have the lead, then Mercer. When the intermission buzzer sounded, Mercer led by five. Rollins fought gamely in the second half, tying the score 60-60 with just 10 minutes left to play. In the last eight minutes, however, Mercer went on a scoring binge, and put 15 points on in a row. The Tars, led by Leon Hollon and Phil Hurt, fought back to within four points, 87-83, but never tied it.

Rollins outshot Mercer from the floor, but they lost the game on the foul line where they only made 17 to Mercer's 28.

The high scorer for the Tars was Leon Hollon who put in 29 of Rollins' 83 points. Dennis Casey and Phil Hurt followed in scoring for Rollins with 15 and 14 respectively.

Last Saturday, Oglethorpe College, sporting one of the best small college basketball teams in the country, visited Rollins. Oglethorpe had too much balance for Rollins as they won 80-56.

Rollins, falling behind to stay at 6-5 early in the game, kept at a threatening position until the last eight minutes of the ball game when the Petrels shot from an eight point lead to their final 24 point margin.

Leon Hollon and Dennis Casey were the high point men for Rollins scoring 15 and 11 points respectively.

Sports Notes

Rollins' Basketball Losses Due To Lack Of Experience, Home Court Advantage

By PETE MARINO

BASKETBALL TEAM CLOSES OUT SEASON

WITH THE CLOSING OF WINTER TERM, many things close with it. Among the most obvious is the basketball season. Now is the time to look back and analyze the season; A season which has left many a Rollins' follower disappointed.

Why has Rollins lost? Why don't we have a winning team here at Rollins? Questions similar to these have been floating around campus for the past few months.

It is easy to blame a losing season on the coach or on the attitude of the players, but I don't believe that any of these really have contributed a great deal to the past season. Coach Dan Nyimicz has proven himself over and over again as a capable coach. Before coming to Rollins, Nyimicz, in his last season, coached a Mercer team to 21 victories in 27 games. Four years ago Rollins, under the mentorship of Nyimicz earned an invitation to the NAIA. It is easy to see there is no lack in coaching ability at Rollins.

After seeing the Rollins five fighting and scrambling for the basketball during a game, and then limping off the floor with sprained ankles (which will not have time to heal until the season is over), who really believes that losing has something to do with the lack of determination of the players?

I believe that Rollins was lacking something this year, however, and this something was experience. Rollins began the season with only three returning lettermen. After the first five games, Tom Weber, one of the better athletes at Rollins and a returning letterman, had his scholarship taken away. Rollins then was left to play their remaining 17 games with two experienced men. Of the remaining games 9 of them were at home.

The next question is what do I mean by home; Davis Armory, Winter Park High, or Orlando Air Force Base? Ed Hickey, former coach at St. Louis and Creighton, once said that "at home a team has an eight to fifteen point advantage." Rollins was never given the opportunity to capitalize on this. Just as the team would adjust to Winter Park, they would play at the Armory.

Yes, there are many reasons for the past season, but I know anyone who has gone to the games has seen a constant improvement as the players became experienced. Toward the end of the season, Rollins constantly scored over 70 points per game. Leon Hollon, Ralph Tanchuk, Dennis Casey, and Mike Bailey have let some of their experience rub off on up coming freshman, so that, what was missing this year will not be missing in the years to come.

Next year, though Rollins will be losing two key men, proves to be promising. Freshman like Larry Johnson, Phil Hurt, Jeff Heitz, and Butch Hearn will be coming into their own, and upperclassmen like Hollon and Casey returning, who have already proved themselves as capable, should combine to give Rollins a very successful season.

Gleason, Rosazzo Featured In Year's Last Organ Vespers Next Wednesday

Organ Vespers will be presented in the Knowles Memorial Chapel at 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, February 21. Featured in the week's Vespers, which will be the last in this year's series, will be Catherine Crozier Gleason, Organist, and Ross Rosazzo, baritone.

On the program will be Choral in E Major by Cesar Franck; Biblical Songs by Antonin Dvorak including "Clouds and Darkness," "Lord, Thou Art My Refuge," "Hear My Prayer, O Lord," "God Is My Shepherd," and "I Will Sing New Songs of Gladness"; and Credo, Adagio, and Phantasy and Fugue on B-A-C-H, all three of which are by Franz Liszt.

These Organ Vespers represent one of the many cultural activities which Rollins College offers to its students free of charge. It is therefore to be hoped that the students will take advantage of this opportunity, especially since the program on February 21 will be the concluding one in this year's series.

He left the Armour Company in 1925 and joined Industrias Matarazzo, eventually superintending several of their companies in Sao Paulo. In 1934 he re-joined Armour's in Sao Paulo as President and General Manager until 1958, then managed an Armour land company there from 1958 to 1960, and retired to Winter Park in 1961.

Mr. Rust has been a leader in the fostering of better understanding between the people of Brazil and the United States. He has served as Vice-President and a Director of the Brazilian-United States Cultural Union.

Junior Year Abroad Committee Tells Procedure For Applicants For Program

The Committee on the Rollins Junior Year Abroad has agreed upon the following procedure for all students interested in spending their junior year abroad.

Regularly enrolled sophomores with a cumulative grade average of B-minus who wish to spend their junior year abroad may file their requests to do so with the Registrar, who will certify the request of those who are academically qualified to the Committee on Academic Standing. This request may be in the form of a letter, and the request must be favorably indorsed by the sophomore adviser.

The applicant will also choose an adviser in his major field and obtain his endorsement, which should state that in the major adviser's judgment, the applicant will be able to satisfy all requirements for graduations by the end of his senior year. This will involve in most cases a planned curriculum including the year abroad and the following senior year at Rollins.

The application should be supported by a certification by an appropriate foreign language professor at Rollins that the applicant has a sufficient grasp of the language concerned to profit from lectures in that tongue.

When and if the application is approved by the Committee on Academic Standing, the applicant may make arrangements for his year abroad. In doing so he will counsel with Dean Dyckman Vermilye, Chairman of the Committee on External Scholarships and Studies or A. Maynor Hardee, Assistant Professor of French, who has been appointed Adviser for the Rollins Junior Year Abroad, 1962-63.

Students interested in France may apply for admission to the Institute for American Universities, Mrs. Herbert Maza, Director, Rue Gaston-de-Saporta, 21, Aix-en-Provence, France, which is at the University of Aix-Marseille. Mr. Amos Booth, Academic Assistant to Mr. Maza, will be at Rollins on February 20, and will see students interested in enrolling in the Institute. Students may arrange for a conference through the Office of Admissions and/or they may attend a meeting at which Dean Rich will present Booth at 4:15 p.m. in Woolson House, February 20.

The student may seek enrollment in one of the thirty or more Junior Year Abroad programs of the American Colleges. The chairman of the Committee on External Scholarships and Studies and the Rollins Junior Year Abroad can furnish information about these.

The student may arrange directly with the foreign university which he plans to attend. He can ascertain the name, title and address of the person with whom to communicate by writing Dr. Donald J. Shank, Executive Vice President, The Institute of International Education, Inc., or to the Embassy at Washington of the country in which the University is situated.

The cost of a junior year abroad, including travel from the student's home to the University he is to attend, should not run to more than $2,750.00, and maybe much less. Rollins college will charge no fee for its services in connection with the 1962-63 Junior Year Abroad.

For further information, students are invited to discuss the Junior Year Abroad with any member of the Committee on the Rollins Junior Year Abroad: Dean Rich, Dean Vermilye, Dean Watson, Vice President Tiedtke, Professor Stone, Professor Hardee, Professor Banner, and Dean Scroggs.
