Holiday Service Starts At 9:40 Today At KMC

The college community of students, faculty, and staff will join together in celebration of Thanksgiving during a special service Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 9:40 a.m. in the Knowles Memorial Chapel on the Winter Park campus.

Students, faculty, and staff will participate in the Thanksgiving service. The famed 66-voice Chapel Choir will sing two selections, "Gladsome Radiance" by Gretchaninoff and "Praise to the Lord," a choral arrangement by Robert Shaw. Leading the Choir is Robert Hufstader, director of the Rollins Conservatory of Music.

Dr. Arthur Wagner, director of the Annie Russell Theatre, will deliver the main message, entitled "Thanksgiving — 1964."

Leading the service are four students: Albert Arbury II, Susan Carter of Winter Park, Chuck Olsen, and Maria Savvas. Dean of Knowles Memorial Chapel Theodore S. Darrah will lead the prayers and give the benediction. Organist for the service is Catharine Crozier Gleason.

B-period classes on the campus will be dismissed Wednesday to enable all members of the Rollins community to worship together in the annual celebration of the American tradition.

Parents Asked Views On Thanksgiving Break

November 18, 1964

FROM: President Hugh F. McKean and Chuck Olsen, President of Student Association
TO: Parents of Rollins College Students
Subject: Thanksgiving Holiday

The faculty, on February 4, 1963, reduced the Thanksgiving holiday from a four-day holiday (Wednesday 1:45 p.m. to Sunday midnight) to a one-day holiday, effective in 1964. Among other considerations was the travel expense involved.

This year the students are almost unanimously in favor of reinstating the four-day vacation period. They give as their principal reason the need for a break during the fall term, the longest term of the year.

The faculty will meet on December 7. The officers of the student association will appear at this meeting to present a request from the student government that the four-day vacation be reinstated for the future. We would very much like to have at that time the views of the parents.

Will you kindly return the enclosed questionnaire at your earliest convenience and before December 2, if possible. The questionnaire may be signed or not, as you wish. They will be made available to the student association officers as well as to the officers of the faculty. A summary of your opinions will be made known to the student body.

We are enclosing an addressed and stamped return envelope for your convenience in replying.

Christmas Service Set For Three Times

The annual Christmas service at Knowles Memorial Chapel will be held Sunday evening Dec. 13.

To accommodate the usual large attendance, the service will be given twice, at 6:15 and at 8:30 p.m. A special third service is planned later for Rollins students, faculty, and staff.

The program for the service will be composed of music and Scripture readings. The Chapel Choir, composed of 66 students and conducted by Robert Hufstader, will sing both traditional Christmas carols and special arrangements of classic Christmas music. Of special interest will be the two Christmas Motets by Francis Poulenc, distinguished French composer, who died last year. Also featured will be the "Fantasia On Christmas Carols" by the English composer Ralph Vaughn Williams. Catharine Crozier Gleason will accompany the choir on the organ.

Cards of admission for the Christmas Service will be required and may be obtained by written request to the Chapel office. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany the request, as well as the time of service desired. Tickets are limited and an early reply is requested.

The nativity scene, traditional at Rollins, will be displayed during December. It was carved in Oberammergau, Germany, by Alois Lang who has been shown in the chapel yearly since 1937.

Sunday Service

The Chapel Choir, well known in the Winter Park area for its Knowles Memorial Chapel Sunday morning services, will sing two selections Sunday, Nov. 29.

"O Magnum Mysterium" by Poulenc will be the anthem, and "Come Thou Long Expected Jesus" will be the choral interlude.

Theodore S. Darrah, dean of the Knowles Memorial Chapel, will speak at the Sunday service. The public is invited to attend the non-denominational worship service at 9:45 a.m. on the Rollins College campus.

THE 'SPUR SPEAKS

The faculty decision to withdraw Thanksgiving vacation was characterized by a complete lack of communication with the students. However, contrary to the belief of the council president, it was possible to have the decision reconsidered this year. Yet, due to his telling the council that it was not possible, no action was taken in time to get the vacation this year.

The class presidents decided to try anyway, but were stopped when Dean Burdell was out of town for two weeks and no one would permit them to send out their petition. Upon his return he informed them that it was too late. Indeed the time was drawing short, but the Sandspur felt that action must be taken anyway in hopes that when brought into the open and considered by enough people, a decision could be reached this year.

Throughout the Administration-Student meetings last week, the only complaint from the Administration was that the timing of the Sandspur petition was poor — a point that we agreed on. Yet, we pointed out then, as we do now, that the timing was poor because the council president informed the students that the vacation was not possible this year which simply was not so. If he had taken a positive attitude and organized the council, the issue could have been decided before vacation time this year.

It would not only have been possible, but probable. This belief is supported by the fact that due to our bringing the issue into the open, a joint petition to the parents has now been issued by the Council and Administration.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The first concert of the Rollins Concert Series was presented Nov. 8 at the Winter Park High School Auditorium. The performing artist was Miss Phyllis Rapoport, the newest member of the piano faculty of the Conservatory of Music. That the recital was outstanding and rewarding is a common view shared by all those who attended.

The Rollins Concert Series is for the students. Season tickets are, however, available to faculty members, members of the administration, and residents of the Winter Park and nearby areas. But, Rollins students are admitted free.

One would imagine that the Winter Park High School auditorium would have been filled with Rollins students, faculty, and administration last Sunday evening. On the contrary, the situation was disgusting. Not more than 50 students were present, and faculty and administration representation was extremely poor. This is a distressing matter. It is particularly distressing as far as the Conservatory of Music is concerned. Much work goes into the planning of this concert series; and the Rollins student body, particularly, is the focus for this planning.

Are you the proud owner of a yellow desk pad covered with advertisements? If your answer is yes, observe this desk pad carefully. Pay particular attention to the lower left section of the pad. You will no doubt discover a list of the concerts planned this year. These concerts are nothing to be ignored. The Conservatory of Music endeavors to bring the student body into a closer union by means of these programs. Without the participation of all, this union can obviously never be achieved.

The next concert in the series is scheduled for Nov. 27, Friday night, after Thanksgiving; and the artists will be Alphonse and Katherine Carlo, violinist and pianist. Make plans now to attend. I can assure you that you will be well rewarded. By the way, if you think that you don't have a particularly strong taste for concert music, now is the ideal time to begin the developing of that taste.

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on the cartoon that was displayed in the Sandspur which was degrading and demoralizing to the soccer team. If the future of varsity sports at Rollins, especially soccer, is to prosper, both the athletic teams and student body can do without such derogatory remarks as your cartoon exhibited. I would like to question the Sandspur's stand on the spirit of the student body as related to athletics. Your cartoon seemed to mock the ability of the soccer team and infer that every game played is a farce. This view does not help the spirit of the team or of the school as a whole. Yet, on the opposite page there is an article entitled "Rollins Needs Greater Sports Participation". Well, Sandspur, which side will you stand on in the future?

Dear Editor:

Your editorial regarding the recent election was an unfortunate example of an editor who uses the editorial page as the sounding ground for his own political sour grapes. It was certainly a most destructive stand you took on the reelection of President Johnson, intimating that the American public was gullible and wrong in their presidential choice. You stated that many who voted for President Johnson did so for the wrong reasons and that they were duped about the issues. Perhaps this is true in some cases, however, I would like to point out that the great majority of Southerners who supported Senator Goldwater did so, not because they believed in conservative Republicanism, but because he had led them to believe by innuendo that he would allow segregation to exist in their states. Only a politically and historically naive person could believe that Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia supported Goldwater because of his conservative ideals.

The editorial page is most certainly the place for personal opinions, however, the editor's own political gripes should not warp his presentation of the issues.

Respectfully yours,
Suzanna Aguirre

Editor's Note: Thank you for your letter. We had anticipated many more.

Dear Editor:

Re: Thanksgiving vacation and its various side-shows.

After attending the Nov. 19, "B" period discussion in the Union, I have arrived at various conclusions about the issue at hand.

1) What has happened to the Rollins family? Although this question did not arouse much attention at the meeting, I believe it is vital that it be discussed. The main issue has indeed shown that there is obvious discord on our supposedly harmonic campus and that the discordance is between the students, the administration and the faculty. With none of the aforementioned groups even willing to compromise this year, the situation can only become worse. Let's all work hard; a "Rollins family" at the Christmas service only is not desirable.

2) The faculty's statement that the parents are complaining (dollarwise) about vacation is either terribly naive or a bad excuse. Most all of the students realize whether or not their parents can afford their coming home, and I believe that Rollins' students have been dismayed by this reflection on their maturity.

3) There have been some ugly rumors about campus regarding a boycott of classes on Friday, Nov. 27. No matter what the rules are, the students must comply with them until they can be satisfactorily changed. To do otherwise would damage the students' characters in the eyes of the faculty and make the entire situation worse.

4) The Student Council should represent the majority of the students, keeping its and its members' differing opinions only as issues. For Student Council to do otherwise might bring to it disrespect from the student body. The results of this would be disastrous.

Respectfully,
Frank Boehnlein

Although skiing is not officially called an collegiate sport, our Rollins ski team competes the University of Florida, Florida State, the University of Miami, Florida Southern, Orlando Junior College and other schools in the state. Our women's team has won the intercollegiate tournament at Cypress Gardens for 12 of the last 13 years. The men's team also has a commendable record.

The cost of skiing here is $40 per term, up from $35 last year. Thus, to be on the ski team requires $120 per year. Other sports are financed by the school. The only help given to a member of the team is for the Cypress Gardens tourney. This consists of $2.50 registration fee, $2.50 food allowance and a place to stay.

What else does a skier get in return for this? A total of about 20 minutes or less per week on the water. Figuring there are 10 weeks in a term, it comes to $4 a week ($4 for 20 minutes), or $12 a term plus any verbal instruction that the instructor gives during the class.

Because of this high fee for those who represent Rollins and compete in her name, it seems that 1) the fee should not be charged for ski team members or 2) they should be given more time to practice the amount of money they pay.

A letter from Kort M. Frydenborg last week begins by saying, "Whether or not the Thanksgiving vacation is a Rollins Tradition; is a National Holiday; is desirable to students and faculty; does not appear to be The Question." It goes on: "The administration, however, the policies of which we elect to accept, to our enrollment at Rollins, has found this length of vacation to be expendable in our academic program simply from a point of chronological continuity."

"I am surprised and ashamed that the Sandspur and the Rollins community should so fret and waste this wasteful hour in protest and discourse, that it be better spent, and I quote: '...catching up on work.'"

Although this letter criticizes the Sandspur's editorial policy, it is a good feeling to know that we still let opinions be known. As a kind of representative, we have an obligation to publish our views, even when those views do not agree with the school.

We feel rather unique in this respect, now that we have seen that our student legislature cannot express its views across to the administration because the council president, who represented them in the Thanksgiving vacation talks, chose to give his personal opinion rather than the decision made by the council. Management Memo — From the Martin News.

"In order that members of the Martin-Orlando may enjoy Thanksgiving Holiday with their families, the plant will close at the end of the second shift Wednesday and will resume operations with the start of the third shift on Sunday, November 29."

Worth Remembering

I think it is better to have an understanding of a man than a pretty concubine, and better to have peace of mind than wealth.

Those who despise money end up by sponging off their friends; those who mix up freely with all kinds of people will eventually hurt themselves.

If one has to praise someone, rather do it by word of mouth than by pen; if there are persons that deserve to be castigated, also do it by word of mouth rather than in writing.

A man must have pride in his character (laid in his bones), but not in his heart. Not to have pride in character is to be with the common herd, and to have pride in one's heart does not belong to a gentleman.

Council Reports

By Steve Combs, Assoc. Editor

The two student deans came before the council Monday night to issue a statement of college policy towards drinking. Dean of Men Fred Hicks was spokesman for the college at the meeting which 65 persons attended. The statement came as a result of a sorority party held Saturday night which was reportedly out of control.

Dean of Women Helen Watson also attended. Dr. Hicks began by saying that "This college is not mature in its handling of liquor." He said that student attitude is "to see if you can get drunk."

Hicks . . . Means business

Dean Hicks summarized college policy and added that these rules will be enforced: 1) ALL parties must be registered 72 hours beforehand; 2) All parties must be chaperoned by persons at least five years out of college; 3) No student under 21 is permitted to consume alcoholic beverages; 4) Students over 21 who make alcohol available to minors are guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor; 5) Individual students and whole groups will be referred to the student courts for violating these rules.

A long discussion followed between the deans, the council, and the many students who attended.

In other business, President Chuck Olsen defended the position he took with President McKean on Thanksgiving vacation. He said, "There was no such way possible for us to get a Thanksgiving vacation this year," and he added that personally he was in favor of the extended break.

In response to a statement by Sandspur Editor Tom Brightman, who said that the council should have taken action early in the term, Olsen replied, "I think the proper time to have brought this up was last year after Thanksgiving, when Grant Jennison was in office."

The council discussed the college's statement that parents do not want a vacation, a statement which precipitated the sending of a questionnaire to all parents. Vice President Dave Schechter said he felt the answers would prove otherwise. "We have to point out that this is not true," he said.

Turning to other matters, the council approved the appointment of Patsy Blackburn to fill the vacancy of junior woman member of the upper court.

A Frenchman Looks

by Jean-Paul Satire

The 8:30 meeting of the Student Council was promptly called to order at 8:33 by the president.

OLD BUSINESS

The various representatives of the social groups were reminded to tell their pseudo-adult friends not to throw food in the Beanery.

Now that the faculty has enough parking spaces, and now that the students have been pushed aside once again, the faculty members still manage to procure parking tickets on campus. One member of the Council proposed that faculty violators be treated in the same manner as student offenders. The coup de maitre would come when, after a teacher received a total of six tickets or more in one term, the Traffic Committee would take away his car. The only solution to the parking problem is to fire the campus cops.

One cannot find any plausible reason, but there was no report from the Campus Improvement Committee.

NEW BUSINESS

A member of the Council asked why the Sandspur's petition was circulated, the member feeling that the Student Council's petition would be put in jeopardy. Of course, nobody asked, what Student Council petition? The representative failed to realize that the effort on the part of the Sandspur was merely a ballon d'essai: a popularity poll, as is everything else on this campus.

As the meeting progressed, it became evident that the president had no confidence in the student body and its fight for Thanksgiving vacation; ENFIN, he felt the students were at a CUL-DE-SAC, and that he obviously would rather switch than fight, willing to concede a Pyrrhic victory to the faculty. Is this what the president of the Student Council—the students' choice—is supposed to do? It seems that he is simply a BETE NOIRE in the flock.

Before voting began on the Thanksgiving vacation proposal which was brought before the Council, a sorority representative stated that she felt it was useless for her to vote, since if she would vote "nay", her social group would petition her to vote "yea" on the same proposal when it would be voted on again at the next meeting of the Student Council. Exactly who is she representing, herself or her sorority?

The Library Committee's report stated that the library seems to be the only place quiet enough for students to study. This observation was reached after the librarians noticed that a majority of students was not using the reference material while doing "research" work. One can only guess what has happened to the silence periods which are supposed to exist and be enforced in the dormitories.

Voilà tout.

"El Cordobes"

Spain... "El Cordobes" Capture Coed's Heart

By Bonnie Whitwell

When I first decided to go on the Verano Espanol program offered by Rollins, it was almost impossible to fathom a summer in Spain. Would we be just another group of American tourists or would it really be a "Spanish Summer," one in which I would come to feel a part of life in Madrid and not a mere observer? We were all to live with different families, study in special classes conducted in a pension (rooming house), and speak only Spanish. We were to have plenty of free time to make of our experience what we wished, and I boarded the plane in New York City with "high" expectations.

My Spanish parents for six weeks immediately became "Mami" and "Papi" to me while Pilar, the housekeeper, saw to my every need, including that of a confidante. Classes met four days a week with a weekly excursion to a point of interest provided. With my usual run of luck, I was enrolled in a class which began at 12:30 P.M. and my breakfast awaited me on a special tray every morning at 11:00. After class I walked the short distance home to make another brave attempt at conversation with my non-English-speaking parents until Pilar served the 2:30 meal to "her family" and those guests who happened to be a part of the family that day.

After the first week I gave up on the siesta and filled my afternoons by window shopping, dating, or a visit to the swimming pool where I spent my weekends with a group of Americans, Spaniards, and two French girls. We chose Spanish as the common language, but we all did our fair share of translating when someone conveniently forgot to use Spanish in the middle of a sentence: "Estoy tres tired!" An afternoon date from 6:00-10:00 might consist of going dancing and cocktail at a night club or club de noche in case you were looking for a less expensive cover charge. And, even exciting, it might consist of to a bullfight to see the fascinating "El Cordobes" and take an entire role of colored silks, none of which come close to a picture included with this article.

At 10:30 P.M. dinner served, and no matter how swimming I did, I could not seem to be very hungry—well, certainly does not mean that I didn't eat. If I had stayed a summer, I doubt that I would ever have failed to be a surprise at each meal for a By 11:00 on weekends it was time to walk down the flights of stairs in our apartment house (many elevators in Madrid are used only for going up) to meet my escort for the evening. Spanish men do not pick up dates up at the girl's home unless they are official novios where the man formally comes to the house to meet the family.

To reminisce, after visiting a few fascas—small bars where serve beer, wine and a variety of interesting tidbits such as octopus, muscles, shrimp, squid, mussels, or meat on a skewer—there was always time to go to a verbená (fair) or to a nice club for dancing and a floor where Flamenco was usually part of the entertainment. On other evenings it was highly possible to see me drinking with sugar while taking a break from my studies to have a conversation and watch a madrilenos amble slowly past. Madrid will always be a wonderful memory to me, on which I hope to revive by returning to Spain to renew all of the friendships I made. While quietly gazing up and down the street, General Mola, from a terrace, or staring, open-mouthed at a policeman as he tried to explain rather heatedly to a group of us WHY it is illegal to walk through the center of Plaza de la Independencia, I found myself becoming increasingly more grateful for having been part of a truly "Spanish Summer."

A Preview Of Rollins B-ball Team

With the start of the 1964-65 basketball season just a few days away Rollins Coach Boyd Coffie is still searching for his five starting cagers. Rollins takes on Stetson University Dec. 1 at the Winter Park High gym in the opening match for both clubs.

Coffie has eight lettermen, six freshmen, and two other performers from which to select his opening lineup against the Hatters. After five weeks of practice the Rollins mentor feels that he has come up with three sure starters, while four players are fighting for the two remaining spots.

Co-captain Phil Hurt looks like a sure starter at a guard post. The former Edgewater High cager has looked good in early season drills and Coffie is counting on an outstanding senior year for the Orlando youth.

One of the Tars' main problems over the years has been the noticeable lack of a "big" man. This year Rollins again is faced with a lack of height, but some relief will be found as long as 6-5, 220-pound sophomore Millard Nixon is on the floor.

As a freshman starter last season Nixon grabbed off 198 rebounds for a team-leading average of better than seven rebounds per game. Playing in all 26 games, Nixon scored 287 points for an 11-point per game average.

A surprise starter this year for the Tars is sophomore Dave Bussler. The 6-1 cager saw action in Rollins' final three games last year and averaged better than 12 points and six rebounds. Coach Coffie calls Bussler "the best 6-1 rebounder in the state," and the Wyoming, Michigan, performer should be a welcome aid to the Tars' quintet.

Bussler will open at a forward position. Fighting for the other forward spot are two scrappy sophomores, Tom Sacha and Gary Kilmer. Sacha, elected as co-captain by his teammates, has improved his shooting this season, and Kilmer — who was a starter for Rollins at the end of last year — is a standout on defense.

A real battle is being waged for the remaining guard position. Senior Ken Sparks, strong on defense, has looked good in early season scrimmages, while sophomore Phil Kirk is probably the best shooter on the Rollins club.

Kirk led the Tars in scoring last year. The 5-8 speedster hit for 295 points and a 14.8 scoring average. He will be a hard man to keep out of the Rollins attack.

Two seniors who will see a lot of action for Rollins are Butch Hearn and Lee Baggett, both products of Orlando high schools. Hearn has been hampered with knee and wrist injuries, but if the 6-5 cager stays healthy he will add needed strength to the Rollins lineup. Baggett, perhaps the best jumper on the club, hit on 49 per cent of his field goal attempts last year and should continue to help the Tars.

Sophomore Charles Schoene is up from the Tars' junior varsity squad and the former Orlando Oak Ridge H.S. star is considered one of the top scoring threats at Rollins.

Although no freshmen are expected to start for Coffie, the first year performers will strengthen the Tars' bench. Freshmen candidates include Phil Annie, John Ceccarelli, Jim Oppenheim, Sandy Sulzycki, David Pearlman, and Orlando's Ken Hill.

After working with his club for more than a month Coach Coffie realizes that this year Rollins will be stronger in basketball than it has in five seasons. However, in order to win the Tars will have to do it without the "big" man. Last year Rollins proved it could be done, and this season the Tars fully expect to improve on last year's 5-21 win-loss record.

Sports Editorial

Intramural Issues

by Dick Cohen, Sports Editor

Throughout the year intramural sports has been blossoming with sportsmanship. This is a fine and important change from intramurals of last year. Although there have been many disputed referee calls during flag football, the attitude of the teams has been good under the circumstances. However, there is one phase of intramurals that has not changed for the better.

On the field, sportsmanship is good. Off the field, sportsmanship does not exist in some instances. One of these instances is that of "discussions" between captains of teams.

The captain of the team under discussion was very arrogant towards the captain of another team. The places were the tennis courts and one of the captain's rooms.

On the courts a certain team did not have enough men to play a 5-2 match. The captain of the other team, team B, refused to play a 4-2 match with the fifth single played on another day. This is satisfactory if he waits the 10 or 15 minutes after the scheduled time of the match to call a forfeit against team A. But the team B captain refused to wait the necessary amount of minutes.

Meanwhile, captain A scouted around the campus trying to locate another player so that he would not have to forfeit part of the match. He succeeded. He returned to the tennis courts to notice that team B captain had decided to leave. He then went in pursuit of Team B captain and located him in the latter's room.

Team A told team B that he was ready to play tennis. (Remember that all this took place in under 10 minutes.) Team B told Team A that he was not going to play today. Team A told team B that team B would have to forfeit the match. Then the great "sportsmanship" of team B captain came to the light. He answered: "If you pass in a forfeit slip on my team, I will bash you against the wall." That comment was uncalled for and certainly showed no sign of sportsmanship, and showed signs of cowardice.

This is one example of the many events that occur off the field concerning intramural athletics. It should not happen again. It is up to the Intramural Board to decide what actions to take against the captain of team B.

One must remember that it is not just on the field that sportsmanship should occur, but also off the field. In order for intramural athletics to take a stand of dignity at Rollins, intramural athletics must have dignity. The question is either do away with intramurals at Rollins, a very unfortunate attitude to take and one with more disadvantages than advantages, or do away with such faultful leadership as the captain of team B.

Freshman Guiliana Peterson Sparks Women's Tennis Team

This year it falls upon the shoulders of Giuliana Peterson to be the spark plug of the Girls Varsity Tennis Team. Playing in the number one spot, Giuliana has already demonstrated her ability. She started the year off by winning the Orange County Juniors Tournament held here in Orlando. She gained the title by defeating Vicky Crussel, one of the best young players in the area.

Aside from practically living on the tennis courts (she has been playing for the last seven years) Giuliana finds time for other activities on campus. She is Vice President of the Pi Phi pledge class, a member of the Fine Arts Committee of the Union, and a member of the French Club. Giuliana hopes to major in math, specifically calculus.

Giuliana, who was born in Rome, Italy, now lives with her family in Bethany, West Virginia. But, says Giuliana, Rome will always seem like her real home.

Last Saturday Giuliana led the team to an 8-1 victory over Florida State University. In the morning Giuliana showed her opponent, Kathy Spence, just what a Rollins girl can do when she puts her mind to it. It was a good match with Giuliana winning 6-0 and 6-2. That afternoon Giuliana teamed up with Cheryl Swift for the number two doubles. They swept the match by scores of 6-1 and 6-2. Like all other members of the team, Giuliana was thrilled with the success of the team that day. She was especially happy "because it shows our depth as a team, not just as individuals."

Sigma Nu Finishes First; Upset Gives X Club 2nd

By John Deming

The Sigma Nu football squad finished its regular season's games with a 45-13 win over the Deltas.

Quarterback Bob Legler threw six touchdown passes, while Brian Payne ran the ball in for the other score. On the receiving end of Legler's passes were Larry Johnson, Terry Williams, and Mickey Clark. Delt quarterback Barry Milner threw two T.D.'s to ends Bob Gundek and Roy Dreyfus.

Last Wednesday Lambda Chi defeated KA 14-7. In the first quarter, the Lambda Chi quarterback threw a short T.D. pass to Bob Gustafson. The KA's evened things up in the second quarter when Steve Ward intercepted a Lambda Chi pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown.

Late in the final period Ackerman intercepted a KA pass and ran nearly the length of the field to score. Quarterback Alfonse connected with Gustafson providing the extra point.

On the 19th the Clubbers trailed the Indies 20-18 with only 90 seconds remaining when quarterback Chuck Olsen threw a long pass to Jim Stein for the winning touchdown. The Indie scoring came as a result of a bad hike by the Club, which resulted in a safety, and a T.D. on a run by quarterback Jim Emerson in the first half.

Kappas Take B-Ball Honors This Season

By Beth Davis

Basketball season officially closed November 19 when the Thetas beat Gamma Phi 18-15 for 6th place. Both the Thetas and Gamma Phis had won one game and were anxious to win another so as to take 6th instead of 7th place in this year's basketball competition.

Enthusiasm mounted on both sides as the game progressed. The Thetas took the lead throughout the game, but at the end of the 3rd quarter, Gamma Phi caught up quickly. But Jean Maurey and Barb Thompson, Thetas, were ready to block their opponents' plays.

Now with basketball season over and the final game having been played, the Kappas have officially placed first with a 7-0 season, but the Pi Phis with a 6-1 record are close behind. 3rd place goes to Chi Omega; 4th—Indies; 5th—Phi Mu; 6th—Theta; 7th—Gamma Phi; and 8th—Alpha Phi.

Women's intramural sports are concluded for this term, but next term as the girls compete for the softball trophy, the Kappas should be really putting out a great effort to keep their status as first place winners. They are coming closer to winning the O'Brian trophy, but the Pi Phis this year present some stiff competition for the Kappas. Also Theta, placing second last year in both basketball and softball and second for the season, should be trying fiercely to place higher in softball than they did during this year's basketball season.

Carnegie Gets New Face Lifting

"Here was a collegiate-looking, vine-covered building with classic lines; but its beautiful old windows were all hidden. Now, after the work done this past summer, it has strangely and impressively sprung to life again." These were some of the comments made recently by Dean of

Built and equipped as an Andrew Carnegie-sponsored library (the philanthropist donated $20,000 with understanding that Rollins match the sum), the grey building's exterior has altered little since it and Lyman Hall were dedicated, on February 18, 1909. It still features outer walls

Back to the opening sentence of this story, which said something about "vine-covered," which Carnegie certainly isn't any longer. What happened? Drywood termites and powder post beetles. The vines, which had to be removed last summer in order to fumigate, were also the cause of the infestation. Naturally, they will not be replaced. Other work done this summer, according to Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds George H. Cartwright, included rearranging and removing partitions to form offices and rooms, installation of an air-conditioning/heating cycle and carpeting, plus acoustical ceilings and recessed lighting. The exterior woodwork and trim was repainted to call attention to its fine craftsmanship. Decorating layout was managed by Mary Ann "Winkie" Colado.

In addition to being the hall where Rollins' first oval table and first armed chairs were used, Carnegie has other distinctions. The first and second floors of the east end served as administration offices during the "good old days." Room #1 was the president's. Room #2 was for admissions. Number three belonged to the cashier, and number four to the treasurer. The dean of women was in room twelve, and the dean of men in room ten. Room eight was used by the dean of the college. Today, there are professor's offices in rooms three, ten, and twelve. Eleven, formerly book stacks, is used by the Student Placement Bureau, under direction of Miss Emily Merrill.

Art Dept. Receives Money Gift

The Art Department has recently received a gift of some $3,000 from the estate of a former student, according to Rollins President Hugh F. McKean.

Uarden Robinson Austin, donor of the gift, was a student at Rollins in the early 1920's. She came to Rollins from Jackson Center, Ohio, and later moved to Kansas City, Missouri, where she became active in business.

After leaving Rollins, she studied music in a Pennsylvania seminary, and continued to spend her winters in the South. She was married to Harry S. Austin, and died in May of 1963.

A campus bridge club is being started. Anyone interested in joining please sign up on the union bulletin board. Playing ability is not required. Classes will be set up. A meeting will be held shortly.

Admissions Spencer Lane about the Carnegie Hall renovation. He was sitting at his desk on the second floor in the admissions office section, the area of Rollins where the future is decided as applicants are accepted or rejected. Until this year, the space was occupied by a typical classroom. Now there are three quiet interview rooms, an efficient, well-appointed reception area set off by some of President McKean's paintings, and an atmosphere of industrious calm. It was far from that in the former quarter of sand-lime brick, a roof of red clay tile, and handsome curved wooden windows. All sorts of upheaval have occurred inside, however.

Below the admissions offices, which, by the way, were book stacks from 1909 until the Mills Memorial Library dedication in 1951; is the Rollins Bookstore. The music of the stereophonic cash-registers (there's one on each side of the door) reminds some people of Carnegie Hall's

"NO STEREOTYPES AT ROLLINS"

A Fascinating Modern Play Headlines Fred Stone Stage

Experimental theatre is taking its place on the campus in the opening of the newly-renovated Fred Stone Theatre.

"The Birthday Party" will be the first play in the Fred Stone season, and will be given Nov. 30-Dec. 5. An avant-garde production, it was written by one of the most exciting of the new playwrights. Harold Pinter was described by the London Sunday Times as "the most original, disturbing, and arresting talent in theatrical London."

Six students make up the cast for the theatre-in-the-round production, and Robert Juergens, assistant professor of theatre arts, is directing the play. The box office is now open from 3-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Meg and Petey, a couple who run a boarding house on the sea, will be played by Vida Hull and Bill McNulty. The part of Stanley, the perennial border, will be taken by Andrew McCuskey, and his friend Lulu will be played by Vicki Russell. The two mysterious strangers who come to take Stanley away, Goldberg and McCann, will be played by Kort Frydenborg and Michael Nouri.

"It's a very exciting play," says director Juergens. "Pinter has a tremendous facility with dialogue, and the audience should remain fascinated throughout the play." Although "The Birthday Party" creates the private terrors and the personal farce of everyday life, it is not really a grim play, but rather a happy one.

In the cast of six Rollins students, five are new this year. The fact that four of the six are freshmen is indicative of the fresh talent that has entered the campus this year.

Andrew McCuskey is a senior this year. The son of James R. McCuskey Sr. and Janet Mc-

Cuskey, he is from Canton, O. He attended the University of Virginia for two years before transferring to Rollins. He is majoring in art history.

Kort Frydenborg transferred to Rollins as a junior this year from Miami-Dade Junior College. He is the son of C. M. Frydenborg and Mrs. Onerva Frydenborg, and lives in Hialeah. He is majoring in theatre arts.

Vida Hull of Miami is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hull. She is a 1964 graduate of Palmetto Senior High School in Miami and received Honors Entrance at Rollins. She is a theatre arts major.

Vicky Russell of Palm Beach also received Honors-at-Entrance. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney K. Russell, she is a graduate of Palm Beach Prep School.

Michael Nouri is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Nouri of Alpine, N.J. He is a 1964 graduate of Avon Old Farms. At Rollins he became a pledge member of Kappa Alpha Order and was selected as one of 35 Rollins Campus Guides.

Bill McNulty of Lakewood is the son of Mrs. V. T. McNulty. He is a 1964 graduate of Brook Township High School in Brooktown, N.J., and received Honors At-Entrance at Rollins. He plans to major in the theatre arts to make a career of acting.

"The choice of 'The Birthday Party' was made deliberately. Here in the Fred Stone Theatre we can resume the right to the more modern, more experimental productions," says director Juergens.

In the Spring the Fred Stone Theatre will present "Oh, What a Poor Dad, Mamma's Hungry in the Closet and I'm Feeling Sad."

It Is Not Over Yet; Let's Try More Unity

Six hundred and thirty petition stubs are lying on my desk. More triekle in every day. A silent and touching tribute to 'Student unity' and Espirít de Corps! The last few days have been marked by more enthusiasm and student participation, than any other event I can recall since I've been at Rollins. Bravo, for those who have let their voices be heard; Bravo to the 630 who sent petitions. I now have one question — The remaining students must have some opinions about Thanksgiving vacation; perhaps the most conspicuous factor has been the silence from those who are opposed to the vacation.

I hereby invite YOU to write to us and let us know why you are opposed to Thanksgiving vacation. Especially I invite those members of the FACULTY who found it expedient to abolish the week-end, to step out from the shadows of anonymity and state their reasons for having made such a decision. We, the students, have made our reasons and feelings known; President McKean has stated his position; only the faculty, (who in effect are the most important element in this matter) have to a large degree remained silent. IF THE STUDENTS ARE TO UNDERSTAND THE MOTIVES BEHIND THE DECISION AS THE FACULTY SEES THEM, THEN WE MUST HEAR A FACULTY MEMBER STATE THEM; the president's interpretation of faculty motives is not sufficient.

People ask, "Why such a big deal about a little thing like this?" May I suggest that there are more fundamental reasons for such a sudden and effusive student response.

(A) There is a complete lack of communications between the students and the faculty especially on the level of major decisions. Let's open some channels!

(B) Does Student Council in effect correctly interpret AND EXECUTE the desires of the student body? I think that a serious and IMMEDIATE study should be made of ways in which Council can feel the pulse of the students, and I also believe that on such extremely important matters as Thanksgiving vacation, the ENTIRE STUDENT BODY SHOULD BE PROBED FOR GENERAL STUDENT OPINION.

(C) A report must be prepared stating EXACTLY what powers the Student Government has, and in what matters the students have a voice. Today there is a veil of flowery words telling us that "we, the students, are the responsible on this campus and with student government, ours is the job to rule ourselves."

(D) Student disapproval of ANYTHING, should under no circumstances be called 'immature', as was by Mr. Olsen during the Thanksgiving dispute. If the Rollins student is not ENCOURAGED to voice his feelings and freely challenge anything he feels strongly about, we are defeating what Rollins stands for; Student participation and enthusiasm.

(E) We understand that the faculty is discussing the possibility of having final examinations IN EVERY COURSE AND ON A REGULARLY SCHEDULED BASIS. If this is passed and made policy, we can strike the name of Hamilton Holt from the memory of this college. We can also strike the mention of the 'conference plan' from the college catalogue. THINK AND DISCUSS THIS THOROUGHLY

BEFORE YOU VOTE, AND READ THE IDEAS OF HOLT AND OTHERS, AND INFORM YOURSELVES ABOUT THE CONFERENCE PLAN!!!

I would like to suggest an interesting and fair way to tighten the student-faculty-administration relationship. Have a panel discussion on which all three groups are represented; make it an all college affair let us say at the Annie Russell or in the Union; encourage comments and questions from the floor. In this manner all sides can be heard by everyone. The New England Town Meetings are remembered for their unique success. Rollins is NOT YET TOO LARGE TO ASSEMBLE THE ENTIRE 'FAMILY' IN ONE PLACE AND DISCUSS MATTERS, and in this manner much hard feeling and 'family quarrels' could be avoided, and I suggest to you that Rollins would be a much more effective and inspiring place of study.

Sadly up to now things have been difficult. Perhaps it will change. And to think it all started over Thanksgiving vacation. Keep cool and remember what the turkey said to us this morning; "Let's keep our heads." So students at least for this year it looks as if the old proverb holds, "You can't have your turkey and eat it too!"

Tom Jones Eating Habits Seen Here

Once you cross the Columbia Andes and reach the "Llanos" you have finally reached the Never, Never Land of crocodiles and lions. You go to sleep by the roar of the howler monkeys on the other side of the river. The pyrana swim undisturbed in the river and the boa constrictors drape themselves contentedly from the trees. But don't let this paradise of nature fool you; man has firmly implanted himself under the monkeys.

The "Llaneros" might be favorably compared to the "pre Coca-Colized" South Sea Islanders. They have lost their status of being primitive by wearing store-bought clothes and using mass-produced tools (e.g. machetes and shovels). But the majority never see Bogota and are content or resigned as the case may be to live off the fish in the river and the bananas in the trees.

While participating in the Rollins Semester in Columbia, I was fortunate enough to be a guest in this "other world" on my Columbia "father's" Finca.

We set out from Bogota one morning in a pick-up truck and a Landrover to travel the 250 miles to the ranch. The first few hours of driving passed uneventfully but by noon we were driving on roads which would make the roads used by the Mercury Intercontinental run look like super highways. With the coming of the afternoon rain, we slithered our way down some muddy ruts in the high Andes. Finally we reached the other side so wet, sore, hungry and muddy we felt we had crossed the Andes on muleback.

By 4 o'clock we reached the last outpost of civilization and only 30 miles lay between us and our destination. In those 30 miles we forded two rivers, got the truck stuck in mud in the bottom of a deep gully and traveled on paths that were barely distinguishable. But there was one consolation; we had crossed

Big Banquet Gets Young GOP's Moving

Last weekend the Rollins Young Republicans were the hosts for the State Federation of Young Republicans. The meeting was held at the Langford Hotel in Winter Park.

This was the first time any college Young Republican club had attempted such a huge undertaking. Almost a hundred delegates had to be fed, entertained, and housed over the weekend. Rollins held a special get together cocktail party Friday night which was followed by two others sponsored by outside clubs until early Saturday morning. Congressman Ed Gurney was the honored guest at the Saturday night banquet.

A special resolution was passed during the Saturday business meeting congratulating the Rollins club for a job well done. Lee Mingleddorf, the convention chairman, said he felt that the success of the convention was due solely to the dedication and hard work of the Rollins Young Republicans.

Mingleddorf also noted that the convention proved that college clubs can do as much as the larger county clubs if they work at it.

the Andes and were now traveling across perfectly flat country interrupted only by gullies and rivers.

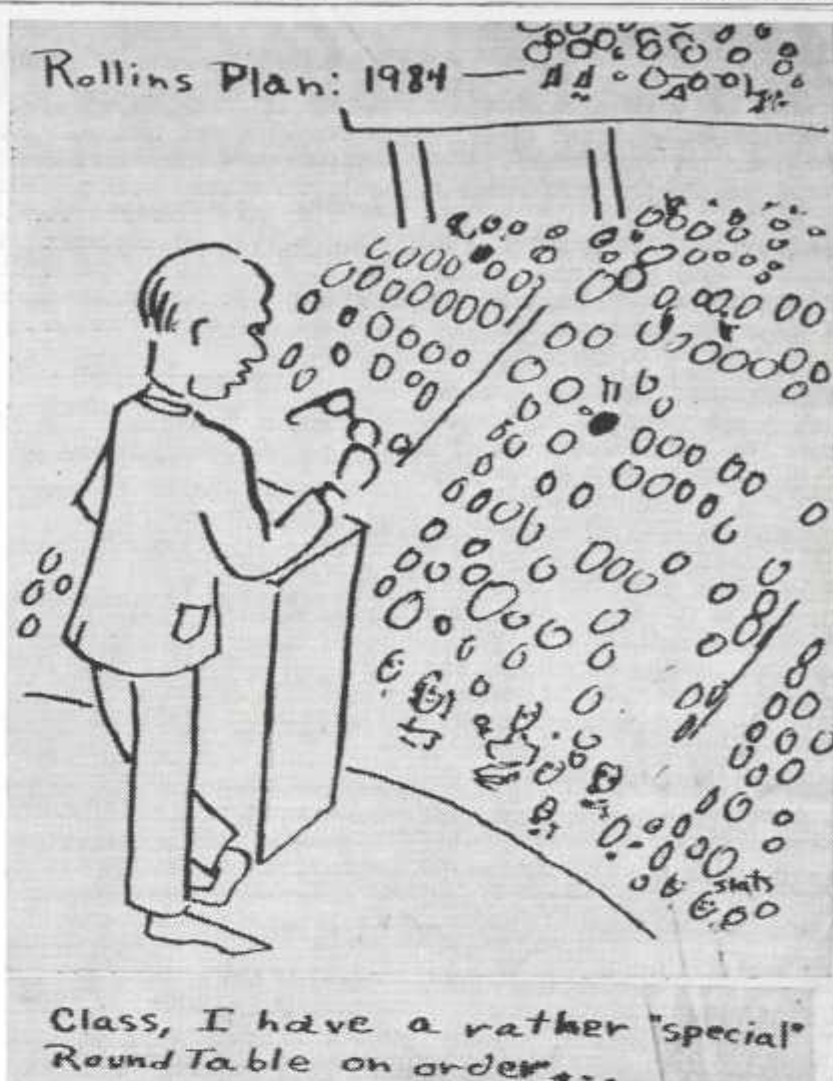

By 8 o'clock that night, 16 hours after our departure, we had covered the 250 miles and reached the Finca.

The "Finca" wasn't quite what I'd expected; although I liked what I saw better than my imaginings of a royal mansion. The house was white-washed adobe with screened in porches on two adjacent sides. As I soon found, the screens were an absolute necessity. Much to my delight we slept in hammocks every night. Our eating habits in the "Llanos" closely resembled those of Tom Jones. Once, when we were invited as guests to a neighboring "Finca," a calf was slaughtered for us and we devoured some of the most previously unthinkable parts. During our stay in the "Llanos" we slaughtered another cow and a goat. I also tried rotten bananas for the first time. The bananas are hung up in the sun for 2 to 4 months until they turn pitch black. Then the top is sliced off and the contents are squeezed out like a tube of tooth paste. Much to my surprise they tasted like dried figs. This is the "Llaneros" equivalent to a candy bar.

Hunting was our main pastime. We hunted everything from anteaters to crocodiles to 200 pound rodents called "Chigüiros." We would get up at 5:00 and hunt on and off until 11 at night. Although it is not very flattering to me, we wouldn't have lasted long if we had been dependent on the proceeds of our hunting.

The "Llaneros" busied themselves most of the day with fishing. They would stand in the bow of a log dug-out canoe and harpoon river cat fish weighing up to 25 pounds.

At last the 12 days were up and it was with mixed feelings that we left. We were sorry to be leaving but glad to be going back to "our" world.

Concert Series Will Feature Violin And Piano Duo Friday

The noted husband and wife duo, Alphonse and Katherine Carlo, will present a violin and piano concert in the second of the Concert Series on Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the Winter Park High School Auditorium.

Their concert of "absolute" music, without subtitles or stories involved, will feature music from the Classic, Romantic, and Contemporary periods.

Representing the classical period will be their rendition of Beethoven's Sonata No. 2 in C Minor, Opus 30. The Carlos will play Franz Schubert's Sonata (Duo) in A Major, Opus 162, and Edvard Grieg's Sonata in C Minor, Opus 45, from the Romantic period of musical composition.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at the box office Friday evening. Admission to the public is $2, with a special student price of $1.

The Carlos have been with the Rollins faculty since 1942. Alphonse Carlo is associate professor of violin and viola, and he also teaches chamber music here.

Carlo served as Concertmaster of the Florida Symphony Orchestra for 12 years and has been Concertmaster of the Bach Festival since his coming to Rollins. He has appeared as soloist with the Florida Symphony Orchestra in Concerti of Baroque, Romanti and Contemporary composers.

Mrs. Carlo has traveled as an adjudicator for the National Guild of Piano Teachers. In recent years she has specialized in the Sonata literature for piano and violin with her husband.

AFPC Receives Several Grants

An unrestricted gift of $1,500 for four privately-financed colleges in Florida was received from the American Oil Foundation by the Associated Florida Private Colleges Fund, Rollins College President Hugh F. McKean announced today.

The grant is Florida's share of $100,000 the American Oil Foundation, the Standard Oil Foundation, Inc. and Pan American Petroleum Foundation are contributing in 1964 in support of independent colleges. The American Oil Foundation, Standard Oil Foundation, and Pan American Petroleum Foundation, which are financially supported by Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and its affiliates have contributed more than $1.7 million since 1952 to colleges that are members of state and regional associations.

AFPCF member colleges that will share in the 1964 Florida grant, according to the association formula, are: Barry College, Miami; Florida Southern College, Lakeland; Rollins College, Winter Park; and Stetson University, DeLand.

L. W. Moore, of Chicago, President of the American Oil Foundation, said in a letter announcing the grant that there is "no restriction on the use of these funds as long as they are used currently to improve education and are not used for endowment purposes."

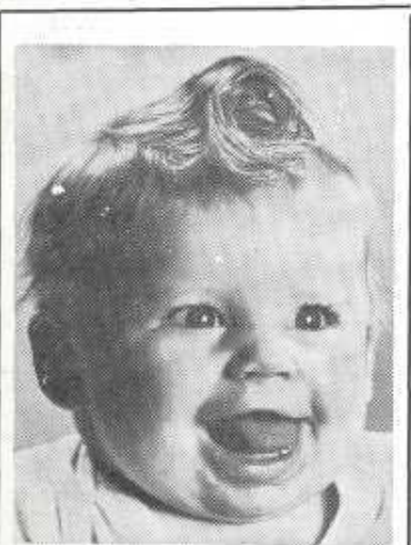

"It is our firm belief," Moore said, "that the private colleges and universities have clearly demonstrated their ability to chart their own courses and to determine the best use of the funds granted."

Also announced was a gift from the John Deere Foundation of Moline, Ill. For the second consecutive year, the foundation has given the Associated Florida Private Colleges a $300 donation.

Presenting the AFPC gift to President McKean was John C. Sharpe of the John Deere office in Chamblee, Georgia.

General American Transportation Corporation has presented its eighth consecutive gift of $100 to the Associated Florida Private Colleges Fund.

"Your continued interest and support of private education means a great deal to all of us," said McKean, thanking General American Transportation Corporation for its donation.

McKean added that gifts from private corporations, such as General American Transportation, make up the difference between the total cost of education and the fees charged by independent institutions of higher learning not supported by the government.

Chrysler Corporation has donated a second gift of $250 to the Associated Florida Private Colleges Fund.

Phyllis Rappeport To Be Delegate To Music School Meeting Friday

The Conservatory of Music will be represented at the Fortieth Annual Meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music by Miss Phyllis Rappeport. The general sessions this year will be held at the Statler-Hilton in St. Louis, on Nov. 27 and 28.

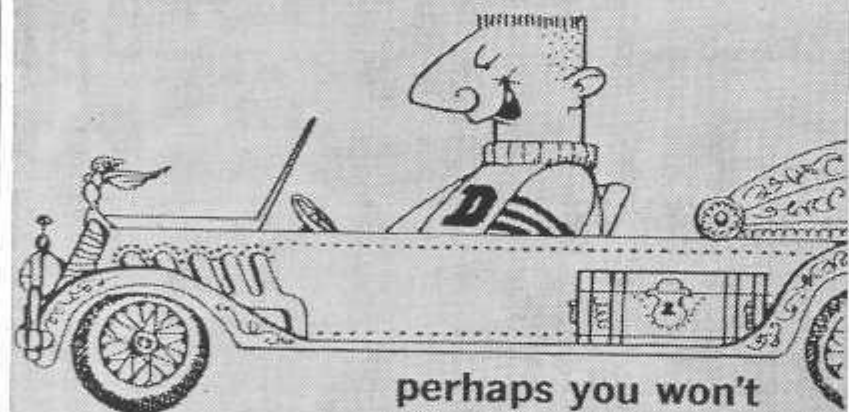

Some 290 schools will be represented by the deans of the music departments from universities and colleges, and by the administrative heads of conservatories. Harold Arberg, music education specialist, United States Office of Education, will open the general sessions with a talk on the new Federal music program.

Miss Rappeport joined the Rollins College faculty this fall as Instructor in Piano. She is known for her concerts and her teaching experience which includes positions at Florida State University and Yale. She studied at Hamburg Hochschule, Hamburg, Germany, on a Fulbright grant.

The NASM has been designated by the National commission on Accrediting as the responsible agency for the accreditation of all music degree curricula with specialization in the fields of applied music, music theory, composition, music therapy, musicology, and music as a major in liberal arts programs. Its deliberations will play an important part in music education trends in this country during the coming years.
