Walter Cronkite Will Speak At The Annual Founders Week

Heading the list of activities during the 8-day series of events for Founders Week this year will be a presentation at the 39th Animated Magazine by Walter Cronkite, world-famous newsman and television commentator. The Animated Magazine — so called because the "authors" read their "articles" in person — will take place in Knowles Memorial Chapel on Sunday, February 27, at 2:30.

Both Cronkite and his wife are expected to arrive in Orlando February 26 and will spend the entire weekend participating in Founders Week events.

Cronkite, known to millions of Americans through his evening news program, is now in his 17th year of broadcasting with the Columbia Broadcasting System. During this time he has covered almost every major news event, including first-hand reports of the political conventions, the Korean War, the main-in-space program, and the death of President Kennedy.

Before joining CBS, Cronkite was a noted wartime correspondent for the United Press. During WW II he actively participated in the first B-17 mission over Germany and landed with the Allied troops in North Africa.

His on-the-scene observations of important events over the last two decades and his personal friendships with many world leaders made him an articulate and qualified observer of the contemporary scene.

Joining Cronkite in this year's Animated Magazine will be six members of the Rollins staff, including President McKean, who will serve as "Editor-Publisher", on the Animag. The professors and deans who will speak are: Dr. Donald W. Hill, Acting Dean of Administrative Affairs; Dr. Charles Walsh, Dean of the Crummer School of Business and Finance; Mrs. Sara Howden, Acting Dean of Women; Dr. Herbert Hellwege, Chairman, Department of Chemistry; and Dr. Bruce Wavell, Director, Honors Degree Program. Dr.

Walter Cronkite

Paul Douglas, Director of the Center for Practical Politics, was also scheduled to speak, but will be unable to participate because of illness.

These seven speakers will continue the tradition of such distinguished personalities as Ogden Nash, General Sarnoff, Greer Garson, Dale Carnegie, Carl Sandburg, and Basil Rathbone, who have participated in Animated Magazine of the past.

Several innovations will be added to the Animag format. This year, instead of focusing on national issues, as in the past, special attention will be given to the recent events of the "action year" in Central Florida: the advances in science, the technology at Cape Kennedy, and the financial boom inspired by the advent of Walt Disney; which will all be tied in with recent progress in construction and the new thinking and ideas which are making Rollins a leader in education.

In addition, color illustrations and action demonstrations of such advances as laser beams and new microscopes will accompany the speeches.

For the first time, the Animated Magazine will include separate departments on science, politics, art, business, community service, and a section devoted to women.

The second highlight of Founders week, which begins Sunday, February 21, will be the Founders Day Convocation, held on Sunday, February 28, at 10:00 to commemorate the 81st anniversary of Rollins' founding.

The convocation will feature as guest speaker Carl Schurmann, Ambassador of the Netherlands to the United States. After his arrival here on February 26, Ambassador Schurmann will address the annual Founders Week Dinner honoring Rollins patrons and will also participate in several "Country of the Year" activities.

Schurmann, holder of a law degree from the University of Leyden, has served in numerous important posts for the Netherlands foreign service, including assignments in Warsaw, Bangkok, Jakarta, and London.

In addition Schurmann served for eight years as permanent representative of the Netherlands to the United Nations.

The Animated Magazine and The Founders Day Convocation are just two of the highlights of Founders Week, which runs from February 21 to 28 and features some event every day to appeal to students, faculty, staff, and the public. Traditional features are Shakespeareana and The Founders Day picnic. Other events this year are a special Netherlands Art Exhibition, open house tours of womens residence halls, and a Union Folk Sing in the Fred Stone Theatre on Sunday.

William Guth On Hand To Discuss Various Functions Of Peace Corps

by Pat Crowley

Mr. William A. Guth, a returned Peace Corps volunteer who served in Pakistan, will visit Rollins on Wednesday, February 23, 1966. While on the campus, Mr. Guth will be available to discuss his experiences and the functions of the Peace Corps with all students. Student interest and cooperation can bolster an interview and make this visit an interesting one.

Mr. Guth was born on December 12, 1935 in Pittsburgh, Pa. He attended Ohio Wesleyan University and graduated in 1958 with a B.A. degree in business. Among his many experiences, he has been a summer theater publicity director, has worked to produce free lance advertising films, and has been active in college radio and newspapers.

As a Peace Corps volunteer in Dacca, East Pakistan, Guth was assigned to work with the Pakistani government producing educational films on cooperatives and rural public works. He also did films on nutrition and economics. Furthermore, Guth remained in Pakistan for an additional two years while he and a Pakistani formed a film producing company. He is presently employed by the Peace Corps Division of Recruiting.

Mr. Guth has devoted much of his time outside of the United States. His travels include Southeast Asia, Asia, the Middle East, and various European locales. A person who devoted so much of his time to such a worthwhile cause deserves the full support of Rollins. Interest, as well as active participation, is required to further the accomplishments of such a productive organization as the Peace Corps.

THE 'SPUR SPEAKS

For the past few weeks the IFC has been discussing the possibility of changing the rush rules. The representatives of IFC have brought back information to their respective fraternities and have discussed the rush problem with much concern and interest. However, the possibility of change in a rush schedule is still not definite and people are still confused as to what is going to happen.

At this point it would be a good idea to explore the possibility of deferred rush. Although deferred rush may have drawbacks, its advantages outweigh them. One of the main advantages in deferred rush would be that the incoming freshman would have more time to adjust to his new environment and would be able to devote more time to his academic endeavors. Also, the freshman would be given the opportunity to see the upperclassmen from a distance and could better determine which fraternity he has the most in common with.

The past has shown that every fraternity has been dependent on a two-week schedule to decide which freshmen have the most in common and can assist his fraternity the most. Many times, however, freshmen come to Rollins with the idea of not pledging a fraternity until they are properly orientated and can handle the curriculum. These students are normally pulled in with the majority of the freshmen and decide to go ahead and pledge. During these first weeks of school, the freshmen can not always know which fraternity they are best suited for. Also, it is apparent that many freshmen join fraternities as a result of a good snow job that includes late hamburgers, beers at various rendezvous, closeting and other forms of rush. These activities are to be expected, but when it reaches that point where particular freshmen do not even get to see or meet members of other fraternities because of being cornered in one of the typical red-lit rooms of a fraternity house, it hurts not only the freshman, but it also has definite repercussions on that particular fraternity. This is evidenced by the increase in depledging and deactivating that has taken place in the last several years.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

It is not my policy to take up editorial space in newspapers with personal dissatisfactions. However, many people have asked me to bring to light the fact that our campus is being plagued with left-wing speakers such as the ABC representative, the Moral Re-armament Group, and soon the preacher of black supremacy, Leroi Jones.

The Conservative movement is not being given a voice, and I believe that a polling of the campus would reveal that our school is a conservative one. It is Dean Lindquist and the Union Committee that are responsible for this one-sided representation.

I suggest that the Union attempt to attract such speakers as William F. Buckley, Sen. Barry Goldwater, Sen. Everett Dirksen, etc.

If the Union refuses to give at least equal representation to the conservative movement, I believe that we, the students, ought to take the initiative by not supporting or attending the liberal functions of the college.

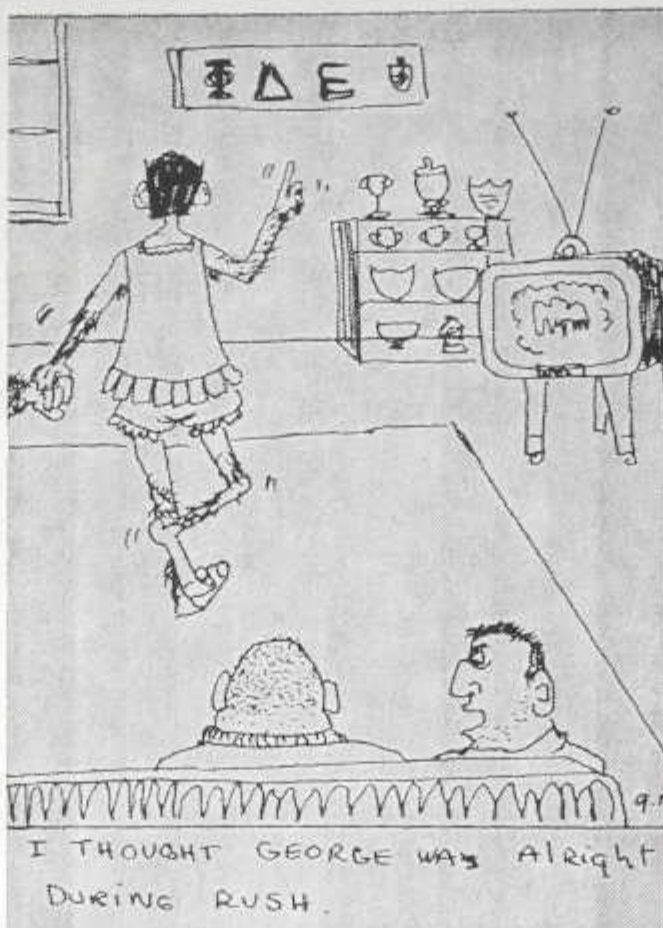

Yours truly,
Brian Smith

— Night At The Flics —

By Benjamin Morrison

Repulsion ended Wednesday at the Colony. But the horror lingers on. It is a frightening film, masterfully made (by Roman Polanski).

Catherine Deneuve portrays a madwoman who, with bloodless disinterest, murders two men and the viewer's "normal" mind. She may be bloodless; the movie is not. The camera follows the mental and physical wanderings of the heroine (anti-heroine?) through several timeless, spaceless days.

At first, the film moves almost too slowly. It is made immediately clear that Miss Deneuve is not quite one-hundred per cent normal, but dimwittedness and day-dreaming seem to be her character traits. Gradually, a few facts can be assimilated: She is afraid of sex, she is "lost" at home and at work, and she may be capable of anything.

Her first act of violence might seem minor, were it not for the major emphasis placed upon the scene. The erratic girl stares mindlessly at a cuticle she is clipping. Scream. Blood. Rush. Panic. Miss Deneuve, a petite and beautiful blonde, has just whacked the hell out of the finger. Yet she barely seems to notice.

From then on out, the camera has a field day. The movie details mental disintegration and eventual oblivion. Rooms expand, walls crack, a lover-rape attacks, and You are There.

The director's changes from objective viewpoint to subjective involvement to utter insanity are, luckily, obvious. I say "obvious," as technical anarchy could have produced the Last Year at Marienbad of horror films. One of the most incredible things about the film is that the audience accepts and believes everything. No justification for insanity is ever given.

Except there is a photograph of a vacant-looking child and the presence of a convent across the street. From the photograph, there is the implication that actress Deneuve hasn't been "all there" for, lo, these many moons. The nuns may or may not refer to an overly-strict moral upbringing. This point of conjecture is best left to director Polanski and Junior Freuds.

Friday Othello with Sir Laurence Olivier returns for a near-immediate re-run. I haven't seen it yet, (for shame), but, if word of mouth means anything, I shan't miss it this go-round. At the Colony.

The Great Race, at the Seminole Cinema, is honest-to-God, great. Really. Though it'll win few awards (sets and costumes deserve something), it is refreshingly funny, and highly recommended as a "mind-wash" after Repulsion. It costs lots, and the money shows nicely. The plot is, if anyone cares, about an automobile race from New York to Paris. Don't ask me how they do it, but somehow the Eiffel Tower is there (sort of) in the last frame. The movie is fast-paced, ingenious, almost always funny, and occasionally hilarious. Jack Lemmon is terrific, Natalie Wood decorative, and Tony Curtis overly ponderous. Curtis seems to be trying so desperately hard to be "camp" that he totally forgets to be funny. Luckily, his role allows a lot of pondering, and he almost get away with it. The flick is just for laughs, and is full of them.

The Spy Who Came in from the Cold, at the East and West Park Theatres, is disappointing. The performances are unobtrusively brilliant and all technical aspects are uniformly excellent. But somebody forgot to keep up pace. Sure, real spies (as opposed to James Bond and like) lead drab, dull lives in drab, dull settings. But the view inside the trunk of my car is pretty drab and dull, too. I'd as soon be bored by Andy Warhol's underground flicks. The movie really does have its moments, but yawns are all too frequent.

See you at the movies.

Student Council Reports

By Fred Gittes

The student legislature came to its Monday night (February 14) with the most spirited discussion and debate experienced this year. The traffic committee reported that the faculty had suggested that the council support the opening of the KA parking lot to the public in order to facilitate expected visitors during the Animated Magazine later this month. In order to compensate for the increased numbers of cars, students will in turn be permitted to park along Holt Avenue and the playground of the Park Avenue School. The suggestion was put into the form of a motion and passed unanimously by the council.

The comptroller reported a total of $700 collected for the Showalter Fund. Notable, $500 of the amount was the original Council allocation for the memorial. In the intervening weeks only $200 has been collected. President Olsen made an emphatic request that more contributions be gathered; he especially emphasized the lack of fraternity donations and pointed out that this was the last week for any such contributions.

Out, the class presidents invariably face a conflict. Being a member of a social group and, as such, a part of its meetings and house life, he is often forced to attempt to arbitrarily determine what is best for his class, which includes members of all other social groups, while playing an active role in establishing his own group's policies. The dilemma is obvious.

When President Olsen opened the floor to debate, a large number of hands immediately were raised in order to gain recognition. It was the first time this year that more than three hands were raised simultaneously in any discussion on any issue, including reapportionment. What followed was a lively verbal sparring which, it is hoped, is the beginning of a trend and not merely an exception to the rule of apathy in the body.

Old business now came under discussion, and with it, Fred Gittes' constitutional amendment, introduced in last week's session. The amendment calls for the removal of class presidents as voting members of the council. In presenting the amendment last week Gittes listed two major reasons for his proposal: 1) The presidents represent groups already divided up into social groups which already have a representative; thus the presidents represent individuals who have already been provided a means for expressing their views and obtaining a voice in student government. 2) In denying the Independents' move for reapportionment on the basis that there was no communication or means for the independent representatives determining their group's opinions, the council took a stand on the type of representation they are maintaining. If the council is going to apply the rule to the Independents, then they must of necessity apply it consistently in similar situations. The classes have no regular meetings and it is impossible for the class presidents to seek out every member of his class and determine his views on questions before the council." Furthermore, Gittes pointed Those taking the floor against the proposal pointed to what they felt were weaknesses in the amendment. First, they emphasized that though it's true that the classes meet infrequently, the class presidents serve as an impartial group who can serve especially in issues "cutting across class lines." Furthermore, they serve as a means for minority groups with the social groups to gain a voice to their opinions. The Independents, for example, was cited as a group who would be losing an additional voice by removing the presidents.

Following the barrage of arguments which came from no single individual, Gittes, the major proponent of the amendment, took the floor to answer the major criticism of the proposal.

First, in relation to the class president's serving as an impartial "cutting across class lines," Gittes referred back to the inherent conflict mentioned last week (mentioned above). Emphasizing again that the class presidents are influenced by their respective social groups, especially since there are no class meetings or other means for determining "class attitude" and that the presidents as members of their respective social groups play an active role in formulating the group's policy. Further, Gittes challenged anyone to give him an example of any problems "crossing class lines," and show how the social group representatives are any more or less impartial than the class presidents.

In regard to the point that the class presidents serve as a voice for minority groups within the social groups, Gittes pointed out that there is already adequate means provided in the constitution for such groups voicing their opinion and gaining actions. First, any student may appear before the legislature and voice his opinions, second, the constitutional by-laws specifically provides for student petitions, including the right to petition for a meeting of the entire student association. Gittes closed his remarks by giving an example of how the class presidents create an inadequate voting system in the council. He cited last week's vote on reapportionment. The social groups represented by eight votes in favor of reapportionment included in their membership 549 students, the eleven votes against included 486. The four votes of the class presidents against the amendment gave a minority of students a majority vote in the council.

Gittes then moved the previous question, closing debate. It was passed; the amendment was defeated by a roll call vote of 11-10 in favor of the proposal, a two-thirds majority being needed to pass an amendment.

SCHMALTZ. Pure schmaltz.

Perhaps that is what you think when you look at this picture. But think again. This cheerleader had a better time at the game than you. At least she cheered.

Even if the Tars are not known for their fabulous winning ability that's no reason not to come and cheer them on! Look at the Mets, and look at their fans.

The few students who do attend the varsity games confuse cheering with jeering. It would help greatly if the spectators would yell for Rollins instead of yelling at some player on the other team.

What would happen (God forbid) if a group of students went to the game and yelled with our cheerleaders for our players? For one thing, that group might actually enjoy the game. Our team might even win, or something equally miraculous!

As long as Rollins students continue their non-support of school activities, there will be few worth while activities to support. If student will attend our games and support our team, perhaps the Tars will have some reason to play to win.

Tar fans, Met fans, rise to the challenge! Go to the games and CHEER.

1965's 10 best dressed college girls meet in New York

Best Dressed Coeds Selected

In the next few weeks, a candidate from Rollins will be chosen to represent the college in Glamour Magazine's tenth annual "Best Dressed College Girl Contest." The following girls, were selected by each of the social groups on campus, and will be presented to a panel of seven judges who were chosen by Panhellenic, the sponsoring organization: Sunny Edwards, Niente Ingersoll, Janet Lynch, Jeanne Maurey, Lynn Bruch, Sandy Jackson, Gaye Baughman, Tina Godwin, Evelyn Cook, Nancy Biller, Ginger McAleese, Carole Hogan, Patsy Blackburn, Bonnie Gill, Suzanne Aquirre, Jonee Givens, Penny Odell, Chris Kelly, Joanne Dembitz, Jill Stirling, Connie Hirschman, Sue Skinner, Ginny Schramm, Josie Bidgood, Kathy TenEyke, Jeanne Colvin, Sue Hall, Pat Marks, and Lynn Hutner.

After two meetings with these girls, the judges choose the ten top girls on our campus, and our one on-campus winner. In turn, three photographs and an entry blank will be submitted to the editors at Glamour who will then select the top ten nationally. The local judges will make their selections based on the following qualities: a clear understanding of her fashion type, a workable wardrobe plan, individuality in her use of colors, a well-groomed appearance with well-kept hair, a deft hand in make-up application, a good figure, and beautiful posture.

If a national winner, our candidate will receive an all-expense paid, 2-week trip to New York where she will receive gifts, attend shows, and during one exciting evening, will be presented to a thousand members of the fashion industry.

Dr. Nelson Gives Book Review At Cafezinho Series

Dr. Wallace Nelson, Assistant Professor of Economics and Business Administration at Rollins, was the speaker at the Cafezinho Book Review this past week. Dr. Nelson, a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, was a Colonel in the Marine Corps before coming to Rollins in 1962.

Dr. Nelson, being an economics professor, chose as the book to be reviewed the work entitled Latin America: Today's Economic and Social Revolution by John Powellson. The author is a professor in the School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University and has taught at the University of San Andres, La Paz, Bolivia.

Practice for next Annie Russell Theater play production, Hay Fever, recently began.

"Hay Fever" Will Be Next Show For ART Actors

By Sheri Bickley

Noel Coward's Hay Fever is the next Annie Russell production. This show promises to be a lot of fun, for Noel Coward is a showman in his expression of delicious and satirical wit.

Noel Coward was born in Middlesex, England in 1899. He left any type of formal education at an early age, and made his professional debut on the stage when he was only eleven years old. Before he was thirty-five years old, he had already written twenty-four plays, revues, and musicals. It can be said of Noel Coward that, "He wrote with great speed and was a perfect reflector of manners practiced by the upper classes and admired by all but the most class-conscious of their social inferiors."

Mr. Robert Juergens, head of the Theater Department, will be directing Hay Fever. This play specifically concerns a very wacky English family, Judith and David Bliss, and their two children, Sorel and Simon Bliss. It is a comedy in three acts which involves a very untypical weekend in a typical country house in Cookham, England. Each member of the family invites a guest down to the country for the same weekend. Inevitably, complications arise, and Hay Fever is off to the races.

The play was cast last week and the cast is as follows: The Bliss family consists of Jeanne Hardy, Luis Barroso, Jeannie Britt, and Bill Millard. The four guests include Julie Bolce as Myra Arundel, Bill McNulty as Richard Greath-ton, and Ray Edwards as Sandy Tyrell. The delightful role of Clara, the maid, will be played by Nancy Yadow.

Hay Fever was originally produced at the Ambassadors Theater in London in June, 1925, and in New York in October, 1925. Student night for Hay Fever is scheduled for Monday night, March 7. Student tickets will begin being distributed Monday, Feb. 28.

Funds Help Foster Children

The Rollins College community supports two foster children by means of the annual Chapel Fund Drive. This year $400 will be raised to support Edmundo S. Mejos and Yuen Shui Lim through the Foster Parents Plan. Edmundo and his family live in the Philippines; Shu Lim and family are refugees in Hong Kong. Our support to these children helps to educate, feed, and clothe them. Otherwise, they would be neglected and destitute.

Shu Lim's father, Yuen Ng, is a vegetable hawker in Hong Kong and earns $43.80 a month or $525.60 a year. With this income he tries to support a family of six. Fortunately all members of the family are in good health; the mother and sister work, but the family's income is supplemented by only an additional $60 a year. The other children are in school.

By April of this year Edmundo will have completed his fourth year of continued support under the Foster Parents Plan. Edmundo's mother is the main support of the family; she works in a tobacco factory and earns $3.00 a week. Roughly this amounts to only $156 of annual income. This is grossly insufficient to meet many of the family's needs. Edmundo and his family need all the help we can give them.

An indefinite period of assistance has been recommended for the children. We of the Rollins community can and will continue this assistance with the 1966 Chapel Fund Drive and future drives. Contributions to the drive are tax-deductible and may be sent to the Chapel office.

Olsen Discusses Issues

School spirit and Rollins College! These two words have certainly not meshed in the past. What will the school spirit of Rollins be in the future? This is a good question, and one I have considered and thought about many times. It is hard for a student to think positively about a question such as school spirit. Yet when you sit back and actually think about it, there are quite a few things on this campus that a student can be spirited about.

First of all, there are the fraternities and sororities on campus. With all the competition that is generated among them, it seems as though spirit has to exist. There is competition to see who will get the best pledge class, who will win the scholarship trophy, who will win the intramural trophy, and who will win the Libra and O.D.K. trophies. This, I feel, is fine and good for everyone concerned. We are all here for a good education and part of our education is learning how to compete with others. But now think — are we doing this for Rollins or are we doing this for ourselves and our social group? I would have to say it was for the latter.

How many of you have gone to see a soccer game? How many of you have seen a Rollins basketball game? How many of you have seen Joe Justice and his illustrious nine play a baseball game? I was nearly shocked when I talked to a senior the other day, and he had never seen one baseball game in his entire four years here at Rollins. If Rollins is going to compete in intercollegiate sports, it must have the support of the student body! Granted, Rollins has not had the best basketball team these past four years. But, it has been refreshing to me to see Rollins come off a 1-19 season and win about 5 or 6 games a year. I believe more spirit has been generated the past year for basketball than in any of the other years I have been here. I actually heard students cheer when Rollins did well, and I was really amazed when Bob Chandler was carried off the court on student's shoulders. This is good for the student body as a whole and it is good for Rollins. This is what Rollins needs.

But Rollins has done well in other sports also, especially crew, baseball and tennis. Did you know that Rollins has won the state championship in crew for the past eight years? Or did you know that in the past ten years, Rollins baseball has played the most diversified schedule of any college in the country? Did you know that in 1954 little Rollins College finished second in the entire country in baseball! Have you ever been curious to see an all-American play his sport? Go out to Harper-Shepard Field some day and watch Bob Gustafson play baseball! For those of you who do not know, Bob made first team all-American his freshman year at Rollins. Did you know that the Rollins tennis team plays such schools as Notre Dame and Duke and wins!

Yes, Rollins has much to offer students as far as school spirit is concerned. Students have been wrapped up in fraternity and sorority affairs too much. In fact, I believe some students make their social groups their whole world while here at Rollins. It about time we shed the apron strings and went out to support some of our athletic teams. You would really be surprised at how much difference a good student turnout makes to an athletic team. In some cases, it might mean the difference between winning or losing a ball game.

Spring sports are about to begin. Baseball will open on March 11, basketball has a few games left, crew will start next term again, and tennis will also soon begin. Let us all get out and support these teams. I would like to see the entire student body turn out just once for an athletic event. It might prove to be very interesting. These teams are your teams, and I believe that supporting athletic teams is one way to unify our student body and at the same time give it some much needed school spirit.

I hope you all take this article seriously because our teams need all the support you can give them. With this in mind, I will close by saying, "I'll see you at Harper-Shepard Field on March 11 for the opening baseball game." I hope we can skin the University of Florida gators — or are they "Lizzards," Joe?

Intramural Debates Continue As Sigma Nu, Alpha Phi Win

In the fourth intramural debate sponsored by the Speakers Bureau and the Union Educational Entertainment Committee, Sigma Nu David Lord and Alpha Phi Evelyn Cook, negative, defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon Charles Dillon and Gamma Phi Beta Janet Lynch. Rollins professor Dr. O'Brien, Dr. Summers, and Dr. Wavell judged the debate held Sunday, February 13 at Bingham Hall. They debated the topic: "Resolved that Rollins women's hours should be abolished."

The affirmative team contended that a need existed to recognize the maturity of college women, and that this need could be met by changing freshman hours to eleven p.m. for weekdays and by abolishing hours for sophomore, junior and senior women. They recommended that keys be issued to the upperclass women.

The negative team argued that the present system of hours meets the needs of the mature college women since no places conducive to academic or social growth are open after closing hours. The abolition of hours, they said, would damage the reputation of Rollins and interfere with its goals as an institution of higher learning. The negative team defended the present system by stating that there is no economic, practical system for guaranteeing protection to women in dormitories if all hours are abolished.

The semi-finals of the intramural debate series will be in Bingham Hall at 7:30 March 8 with Independent Men and Independent Women versus Delta Chi and Phi Mu, and March 10 with Lambda Chi Alpha and Kappa Kappa Gamma versus Sigma Nu and Alpha Phi.

Professor Thomas R. Adam was at Rollins briefly last week as a guest lecturer for the Institute on Africa South of the Sahara. He gave a series of lectures on African Affairs and also participated in a panel discussion of relations between Africa and the United States. Here he is seen autographing a copy of his book, GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS IN AFRICA SOUTH OF THE SAHARA, for Suzanna Aquirre, who assisted Dr. Lionel M. Summers, director of the Institute.

Tar Cagers Host Frederick Tonite

Rollins' cagers wrap up a disappointing season this week, hosting Frederick College of Portsmouth, Va., at 8 p.m. tonight in Sanford High School gym and Florida Southern College at 8 p.m. Monday at Winter Park High School.

The site of the Frederick game is typical of the basketball situation at Rollins for several years. The lack of a permanent home has had the Tars shuttling from court to court like migrant orange pickers, but Friday night they were set to perform in a really outstanding gym, the Davis Armory.

However, the Fates were not so kind. Clock problems at the Armory forced Coach Boyd Coffie to scour the countryside for a place to meet the visitors from Virginia.

Such a place was found and the Tars play second bill not only to the Sanford High School-Oak Ridge High School game, but also to their JV's.

Trying to snap a five-game losing streak, Rollins tangles with an unknown quantity in Frederick. All the Tars know is that the Lions are led by a 6-7 center, Neil Hodges, and are rated as 13-point favorites by Dunkel's Basketball Index.

Florida Southern's squad is a very well known quantity, having beaten the Tars twice already this season by 30 and 32 points.

The FIC rival Mocs are sparked by three big men, Mike Huber, Dan Doherty and Scott Fitzgerald and a good driving guard, Jim Hayes.

Millard Nixon continues to lead the Tar attack with 16.1 points and 12.4 rebounds per game, followed by Ed Siemer, 15.2 points and 10.5 rebounds.

Guard Bob Chandler, 13.0 p.p.g., is also hitting for twin digits. Forward Gary Kilmer (9.0) and guard Ken Hill (6.1), rising fast on 18 and 16-point showings in his last two games, round out the quintet.

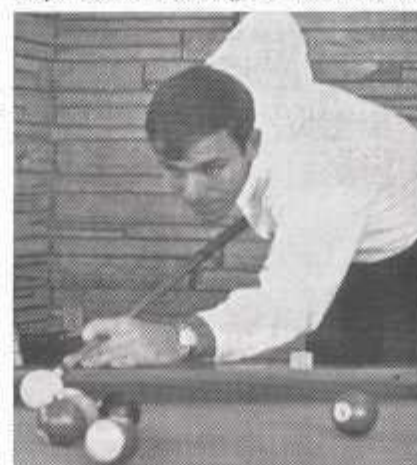

Tars Shoot Pool, Play Billiards On Road Trip

"Two ball in the corner pocket." This was just one of the many sounds of the Rollins basketball team on the road two weeks ago, touring such vacation havens as Macon, Ga., and Monteagle, Tenn. "No! No! Number 54, you're charging," was another of these sounds, perhaps more meaningful to the business at hand.

The Tar cagers left on a Tuesday morning to be ready for their first game, Wednesday night. After a six hour drive they arrived in scenic Macon, just in time to see the ice in the motel swimming pool thawing out.

After a day in the Georgia cold, they took the floor against Mercer and proved they were even colder, clicking on only 35% of their shots, as they lost, 74-59.

A short drive brought Coach Boyd Coffie's charges into Atlanta,

CHAS SCHOENE

Ga., termed by Athletic Director Joe Justice, "the Heaven of Georgians."

Atlanta, like Macon before it, was an excellent city for pool halls, and pool (billiards, whatever it is) was shown to be more popular with most of the players than basketball.

That night in what may be the oldest high school gym still standing (The timer's clock had hands, not lights, and registered only eight minutes.) Rollins was colder still, hitting only 28% from the floor in a 56-54 loss to Georgia State.

However, Rollins could have beaten the lowly Panthers if they hadn't lost the ball on an offensive foul with 14 seconds remaining and the score tied, 54-54.

After that exhibition of "How Not to Play Better Basketball" by the Rollins Tars, Coach Coffie led his players into the cold mountains of Tennessee, where they holed up in a motel in the busy metropolis, Monteale, Tenn.

Luckily, the motel had a three-table pool hall, so all was not lost. The novelty of snow combatted the irresistible click of wooden balls for a while, but by night fall the whitened fields had been forgotten.

The University of the South in Sewanee, Tenn., was the host at this stop. Sewanee's Tigers have something Rollins needs — a Field House.

In the two days that Rollins was there, Sewanee faced Kentucky in swimming, hosted a Southern tennis tournament, bowled a little and tangled with the Tars on the hardwood — all in the same building.

That evening the Tars racked their cue sticks for the last time and drove up to Sewanee for the big game.

Realizing what the trip was for, the Tars really played basketball during the first half, battling back from an eight-point deficit to take a 46-43 lead into the locker room at the half.

However, the inconsistent Tars tallied only 28 in the next 20 minutes to lose again, 86-74.

The next day they headed home. Last Saturday Rollins had a chance to close a perfect road season and took full advantage of the break as they dropped their tenth road game of the season.

Their 99-96 loss to Florida Presbyterian, new boss of former Tar faculty members Bob Stewart and Dr. Dudley Degroot, was Rollins' 14th straight away from home.

In that game the Tars again played half a basketball game as they sliced an 18-point halftime margin to the final three-marker edge.

Kentucky Opens Gap

Undefeated Kentucky widened its lead in the Dunkel College Basketball Index last week as the nation's top ten suffered a severe shake-up.

Only Kentucky retained its original position as eighth-ranked Tennessee and tenth-ranked St. Josephs vaulted into the number two and three spots, ahead of Chicago Loyola and Duke, last week's runnerup.

A pair of newcomers, St. Louis, 26 last week, and Houston, 14, claimed sixth and seventh while Vanderbilt, Texas Western and Dayton slipped.

Three of the wire services top ten failed to rate in Dunkel's top twenty. Michigan (10 nationally) was 25th, Nebraska (9) was 28th and sixth-ranked Providence was 57th.

In the college ranks Indiana State leads the pack.

Rice University Drops 27 Straight

Things aren't so bad for Rollins' cagers. At least in relation to the problems of Rice University's basketball team.

The Owls have dropped 27 consecutive games, including 17 this season, and are approaching the all-time collegiate losing streak of 37 in a row by The Citadel.

However, Rice is rated 42.5 on the Dunkel Index, nearly 21 points better than Rollins' 21.6.

"Red" Nixon Rides Again

By Dave Lord
Sports Staff

One of the most colorful athletes at Rollins is a 215 lb., 6'5" member of the Rollins basketball team, Millard Nixon.

Whenever Millard Nixon is on the basketball court he is surrounded by excitement and controversy. Many people complain about the way Millard plays basketball, but he is probably the finest player Rollins has had in recent years.

Millard came to Rollins after being a super star at Panama City Bay High School. While in high school he was the Most Valuable Player of Class AA Northwest Florida area, All Big Five Conference for three years and All-State Florida. Nixon found a great difference between Bay High School and Rollins.

In high school he was used to being the hero but at Rollins no one cared about him or the team. Nixon thus had to work hard to keep his incentive up to play basketball.

His collegiate career began with him in opening lineup as a freshman and he managed to miss the backboard completely on his first shot. "Big Red" doesn't let many things bother him on the basketball court and he bounced back from his rocky start to lead the team his first year with 198 rebounds.

This is an amazing feat when you consider what a large person he is to be a good jumper. If another makes Millard mad, he can't be out-rebounded by many people on the court.

Nixon continued to improve in his sophomore year when he led the team in rebounds with 178, total points with 238 and free throws with 60. In an exhibition game last year against Orlando Junior College he had the outstanding night of his career with 32 points. The only time he has come close to this again was the 30 points against Georgia State Dec. 14.

Even though the Tars have had a disappointing season, Nixon has improved himself into a good all-around player. At the beginning of the season he was hampered by a bad ankle and pains in his legs.

He has been the player who keeps the Tars going by making a key rebound or field goal. If Millard's shot improves some in accuracy he isn't going to be stopped easily.

Besides being a wild basketball player Millard also is like Cassius Clay with his mouth. He gave me a very interesting statement when he was asked to comment about the sad fieldhouse situation at Rollins, which, he explained is "Particularly blessed with the 'pleasure of having one attribute of the Globetrotters, that being no home court.

"It is such fun to travel all over Central Florida looking for a gym in which to practice. This leaves plenty of time for practicing my pool in the nearest establishment while awaiting for the junior high coach to tell his boys that they had enough for the evening and to let the deserving college hoopsters have the floor after their long wait.

"After arriving back at about 11 p.m. tired and bedraggled, I find it very easy to get my studying done. Finally I decide to go to bed and dream of the good old days in high school, promises made to me in my freshman year of a gym, endearment between the efficient faculty and administration, and other things I will probably view looking up from my grave.

"Dear God, if I have to come back to this world let it be as a basketball so I can once more hear the excited screams from the spirited body of athletic supporters."

Maybe next year Millard will be able to finish his career with a fantastic season and a game in his own gym.

SUAREZ MAKES SHOT FOR SIGMA NU
... in big win over TKE

Undefeated Snakes Top 'Mural Cagers

By Tom Sacha
Sports Staff

Sigma Nu ran its winning streak to seven straight last week by defeating Lambda Chi 75-44 and the TKE's 74-48. They have only to beat Delta Chi and Sigma Phi Epsilon to enter the post-season tournament in the top seat.

In both games Fred Suarez was the "big" man, scoring 33 points against TKE and 28 points against Lambda Chi. Willie Flohr registered 16 points in both games.

In the TKE-Sigma Nu game the score was tied at the end of the first quarter, while Lambda Chi's led at half-time 24-23. Scoring in double figures for TKE were Allan Curtis and Dan Pincetich, scoring 21 and 15 points respectively. Lambda Chi was led by Frank Hill who scored 15 points.

Tau Kappa Epsilon set two records by defeating the Phi Delta 106-9. They scored the most points in one game and also set the record for points in a single quarter with 39 points.

Following this game Phi Deltis withdrew from the league, forfeiting their remaining games.

Allan Curtis (32) and Dan Pincetich (22) again lead the TKE's in scoring.

X Club gained sole position of second place by defeating the KA's, 46-35. KA led at half-time 19-10. At the beginning of the second half the Club switched from a man-to-man defense to zone defense, tied the score at 26-26 and then increased their margin. Top scorers were Clubbers Scotty Green with 15 points and Ka's Jeff Whitehead with 15.

Third place Faculty-Grads won three last week with victories over the Indies, 65-60, Deltis 60-51, and the KA's 43-33. Boyd Coffie remained high scorer with 26 points against the Deltis, 31 points against the Indies and 23 points against the KA's. Jack Lindquist turned in efforts of 18, 19 and 12 points.

Leading scorers for their opponents were Deltis Van Lawrence with 21 points, Indies' John Myers with 21 and KA's Steve Ward and Gary Dering with 12 each.

Lambda Chi gained two victories with a forfeit by the Indies and a 37-30 victory over Sig. Ep. Terry Law led the Lambda Chi attack with 16 points while Sig Ep's Dick Cohen also had 16 points.

The biggest upset was a two-point victory by Sigma Phi Epsilon over TKE, 64-63. Tall Tom Eaton controlled the boards and led all scorers with 18 points. High for TKE was Allan Curtis with 12 points.

Club had little trouble defeating the Indies 62-43. Clubbers Scotty Green and Jim Oppenheim scored 23 points and 13 points respectively to lead in the runaway.

Of the games remaining, the X Club-Faculty Grads game next Tuesday seems to be the big one. The Faculty Grads must win to gain a tie for second place. Sigma Nu has to play the Deltis in another make-up game. On Monday KA plays Lambda Chi for fourth place.

Basketball coach Boyd Coffie holds a slim lead over Sigma Nu's Fred Suarez in the scoring race. Faculty's Coffie has played one less game than Suarez and has a 29.7-point per game average, while Suarez averages 28.8 points a game.

Clubber Scotty Green and TKE's Allan Curtis are waging a battle for third place with only one point separating them. Rounding the top ten are Jack Lindquist (faculty), Van Lawrence (Delta Chi), John Knebles (Indies), John Myers (Indies), Jim Oppenheim (X Club) and Dick Cohen (Sig Ep).

Rollins Drops Pair Of Cage Thrillers

Well, the Tars came close this week, but they still managed to uphold Rollins basketball tradition as they lost a pair of squeakers to Florida Presbyterian and Belmont Abbey.

Trailing by 18 markers at intermission, the Tar cagers rallied for a record 67 points in the second period, but still fell to Presbyterian in St. Petersburg, 99-96.

Ken "The Bird" Hill, X Clubber, sparked the drive by bombing in 18 second half tallies. The loss was Rollins' 14th straight on the road and tenth in a row away from home this season.

Rollins stayed close through the first nine minutes of the opening frame, despite a defensive flaw which enabled the Tritons to score five layups.

The score was tied 22-22 with 8:42 left when FPC got hot and began to pull away, scoring 13 straight points in the next four minutes.

Behind 21 points 76-55 with 9:26 remaining in the game Rollins went wild to outscore their hosts 41-23 in the final nine minutes. Hill registered all his 18 points during this surge.

Although they could hit on only 39% from the floor, the Tars outplayed FPC with a scrapping press and hustling on the boards. Rollins won the second half rebounding battle 36-25.

Millard Nixon was top man for the Tars with 21 points, followed by Ed Siemer with 19, Hill, Gary Kilmer with 16 and Bob Chandler with 15.

Triton center Harry Singletary led all scorers with 24, even though he fouled out with nearly five minutes left.

Belmont Abbey scored the winning basket with five seconds on the clock Tuesday to clip the Tars 73-71.

With the score knotted 71-71 the Tars were stalling for a final shot when they lost possession on a bad pass with 20 seconds remaining.

The Tars trailed by as many as 10 points late in the opening stanza, but rallied to slice the margin to five points, 41-36, at intermission.

Behind 67-60 with 6:45 remaining in the second half Rollins tallied seven straight to tie with Belmont Abbey took the lead 69-67 almost immediately, but the Tars tied it and then went ahead 71-69 before the last minute dramatics.

Nixon and Siemer shared the top spot for the Tars with 18 points apiece.
