Sound Academic Environment Sought Through ASC Proposal

By: JIM PENDERGAST

On Monday, March 7, a compromise was reached regarding the legislation introduced by the Academic Standards Committee to upgrade Rollins' academic environment. The settlement was formulated by a special task force after the original proposal was rejected by the Council.

The original legislation stated that a student would not be allowed to pledge or join a fraternity, sorority, or alternative housing group unless the student had at least a 7.0 cumulative grade average. It further required that each organization maintain a group average of at least 7.0 or face academic probation. This would have effectively deferred Rush until Spring Term since Freshman students would not have accumulated any grade point average in time for the traditional pledge date.

The Council, however, ordered the revision of the proposal on the grounds that it placed to rigid restrictions upon students in Greek or alternative housing organizations.

The task force, headed by Dr. Pedro Pequeno, drafted the following guidelines for Greek Rush:

Dates: Rush would occur over a 16 day period, ten of which would be class days. Rush will

"Good Doctor" to Open; New Actors Abound

Neil Simon's comedy, The Good Doctor opens Thursday, March 17 at 8:30 p.m. on the Annie Russell stage. Simon is known for such hits as The Odd Couple; Plaza Suite, Barefoot in the Park, and the current Broadway success, California Suite.

This play is a combination of the work of two doctors, Antan Chekhor and Neil Simon. Chekhor, author of The Three Sisters and The Cherry Orchard was a practicing physician most of his life and Simon has had the nickname of "Doc" since childhood. Simon took nine of Chekhor's early short stories from pre-revolutionary Russia and adapted them to the stage adding a prelude and a postlude.

Reserve your seats now! The box office is open Monday-Friday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. or call 640-2145. The show will run March 17-19, 24-26. It can not miss being a success with such old favorites as Grover Gardner, Chip Johnson, Holly Delaney, and Valerie Jahn acting alongside newcomers to the Annie Russell stage like Lori Hawlett, Nancy Hubsmith, Gary Langfitt, and Rick Waldman, to name a few.

not begin until two weeks after midterm exams and will terminate just prior to Thanksgiving break. (For 1977-78: November 4, 1977 to November 20, 1977).

The following guidelines are to be observed:

1. Each Greek group shall be permitted one non-alcoholic Open House prior to midterm;
2. Greek social functions shall not be opened to Freshman students until the first day of Rush;

3. Panhellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council will evaluate the Rush program at its conclusion and make results available to the CAC and EPC on a yearly basis.

Greek Emphasis Prior to Rush:

1. With the delay of Rush, Greeks will give assistance and support to campus-wide activities and efforts (i.e. Student Center programming, athletic events, intramurals, World Hunger day, etc.) in order to provide a well-rounded introduction to campus life;

2. Greeks are willing to sponsor non-social activities during early Fall and involve new students (i.e. speakers, films, academic programs, etc.)

Jucker Resigns as Coach After 5 Years; Plans to Continue as Phys. Ed. Head

It's not an easy thing to say, but nonetheless Rollins College head basketball coach Ed Jucker has decided to retire from the basketball arena. The announcement, officially made by Rollins College President Dr. Jack B. Critchfield, was made before 2,600 loyal basketball fans just minutes before the final game of Rollins' 25 game season. The announcement, which forced fans, players, and personal friends to quickly flash through Jucker's past accomplishments, came as a surprise to everyone.

In a very simple, modest, Jucker-like statement, the basketball personality said he is retiring "because of health reasons." For those who know Ed Jucker, the statement, although brief, is straight from the heart.

Jucker will remain a member of the Rollins faculty as the holder of the Raymond W. Greene Professor of Health and Physical Education and Head of the Physical Education Department, with expanded responsibilities in the area of intramurals.

The former Cincinnati Royal head coach headed the Rollins cage crew for five years notching 82 wins against 42 losses. Last season, in addition to securing for Rollins the best basketball season ever (19-6), the personable Jucker coached the Tars to a Number One rating in the country for the NCAA Division II polls. During his five year stint he has led Tar teams to three NCAA Post-Season Tournaments.

During his coaching years at the University of Cincinnati (1960-1965) Jucker garnered numerous individual awards. Among those are the nation's "Coach of the Year" by UPI, the U.S. Basketball Writers' Association Award, and the New York Metropolitan Basketball Writers' Association Award.

Jucker was also named "College Basketball Coach of the Year" for both 1961 and 1962 by the Touchdown Club of Columbus, Ohio. His fellow coaches voted him the 1963 "Ohio College Coach of the Year." In 1963 he was acclaimed "Missouri Valley Conference Coach of the Year" by his MVC colleagues and by UPI.

In other awards, Jucker tied for third place in UPI "Coach of the Year" in 1962 while he was fourth in 1961, his first season as head cage mentor. That same year, he was voted "Missouri Valley Conference Coach of the Year" by the league coaches.

Jucker received his bachelor's degree in physical education from the University of Cincinnati in 1941 and his master's degree from Columbia University.

Experience gained through years of coaching at Cincinnati enabled Jucker to write the book Cincinnati Power Basketball published in 1962 by Prentice Hall. It sold more copies in one year than any previous basketball book ever written.

According to Rollins Director of Athletics, Joe Justice, the school anticipates announcing Jucker's successor as head basketball coach in the very near future.

Jucker retired in a winning fashion by defeating the 4th place Division II team in the country by a 71-64 margin.

Letters to the Editor

Discrimination Revisited

Dear Editor,

This letter is a reply to some of the allegations which appeared in the letters section of your last issue in a letter dealing with the recent Racial Impressions Survey. Since I was not involved in the development or the conducting of that survey I am unable to argue against Mr. Ward's criticisms of said survey.

What I do take issue with is the last paragraph of that letter in which Mr. Ward exhibited a great deal of ignorance, personal bias, and insensitivity. The following specific parts I find to be the most offensive!

1. "It's time Blacks realize that whites don't owe them anything anymore."

What Mr. Ward does not seem to understand is that abolishing slavery and providing Blacks with equality before the law is merely the tip of the iceberg. Political and civil equality is a long cry from social equality.

2. "The whole issue has been taken too far in the last decade."

Untrue. The issue of racial prejudice and oppression has not been taken nearly far enough. Ours remains a society in which equalitarianism is still nothing more than a pipe dream.

Finally, Mr. Ward's attack on all recent equalitarian movements including the woman's movement as well as the Black movement is unjustified. His argument is similar to that as the "Bleeding White Liberal" who's belief in equality is a very limited one. Such people have been able to rationalize themselves into believing they are indeed equalitarians while simultaneously refusing to accept the commitment and responsibility for acting on those beliefs.

There will never be an end to all prejudice by both races and sexes as Mr. Ward pleads for as long as individuals maintain themselves in a perpetual state of ignorance through the internal processes of rationalization, oversimplification, and self-justification.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Patterson

Fellow Rollins Students,

Most of you at one time or another during your stay here have heard a loud bellowing voice at all hours of the night. Well, I'm the source of that voice, and there are several reasons why I'm writing this but they're not as important as the point of this letter.

We're in college now and it won't be long before we're out and living on our own, which means we are going to have to be very responsible. It seems to me that college life, semi-independent that it is, should be preparing us for the real world which means we should be continuously striving to reach a certain level of maturity.

Sure, you say, but while we're here, let's enjoy it. I agree with that, but with one stipulation; find new, more mature ways to enjoy yourself. Screaming and yelling at 4 a.m. really can't be that pleasurable. Actually, it's very annoying. Why yelling has become rather an institution within the institution, but think about it. The people I've rudely awakened late at night when they have an important exam the next day. I'd rather not be remembered by my classmates as that S.O.B. that always woke me up.

In short folks, we must forever keep growing and moving forward. We should always strive to be more mature, more understanding and more considerate. It says something along these lines in the Bible: "When I became a man, I left my childish things behind." We're all well on our way to becoming men, so let's all act like it.

Thoughts on Humanity

By: WICKFORD W. WELDEN

Because of loneliness and lack of affection, many persons are forced to turn their attentions inward rather than outward.

The majority of mankind leaves much to be desired; it is those select few whose accomplishments remind us of the heights to which humanity is capable of ascending.

The importance of a good educational system should never be underestimated; without one a society can only regress.

We are made to think that youth is a time of celestial bliss and unbounded joy, while in reality it is often a time of excruciating pain and deep anguish.

And there is sometimes more to be said for a man who suffers silently than the one who cries out piteously.

The Man of Faith views death as enabling him to enter God's kingdom; the Man of Reason sees it as being the last act in a tragic drama.

The artist often creates, not out of pleasure, but rather, to momentarily escape from his torments.

Love, as with the power of evil, can be all encompassing and pervasive.

Who constantly appeases his enemies stands only to be conquered by them.

A youth without romance is like a spring without blossoms.

Editor's Corner

Five-twenty p.m. you've been waiting in line at the Beanery for fifteen minutes. It's been a rough day in the books and on the court; you're hot, tired and hungry. By the time you've crawled past the salad bar and the coffee machine, there are no forks left. Five minutes later you've reached the fruit. Word filters down the line that they're out of plates. You begin eating your desert with a spoon. You play with your meal ticket and stare angrily at the people grabbing seconds while you're starving. Now you KNOW you'll be late for that committee meeting at 6. Finally you claim some beans and a slice of veal, but notice that they look awfully dry. Your mouth waters in anticipation of 4 or 5 sodas, but all the glasses are gone. By the time you reach the coffee cups, the thirty people in a similar predicament to yours have claimed even the ones sporting crusty lettuce leaves.

Do you like eating with your hands? If not, return the utensils you have borrowed from the Beanery. Smuggle them in the same way you smuggled them out! None of us like waiting, but it's up to us to help change the situation. Roger Fry says that it has cost approximately $4,500 to replace articles lifted from the Beanery this year. No wonder the meal plan costs so much! Return those glasses, plates, knives, forks and spoons, or learn to wait in silence!

Road Show Explores Aspects of Abortion

By: SHAWNE K. WICKHAM

Last Thursday night, the first spring term Rollins Traveling Road Show took place in Rex Beach Hall, with the topic "Abortion: Decision and Alternatives." It was a stimulating and informative evening, and all who attended were impressed by the apparent knowledge of the panelists, as well as with the "courage of his/her convictions." Perhaps most impressive was the large number of Rollins students who attended, armed with their own personal convictions and intelligent, provocative questions.

Dr. Tom Harblin, the moderator, opened the evening's program with a fascinating film excerpt portraying fetal development from conception to birth. After the film, each of the seven panelists presented a brief talk. Ms. Jane Strang from the Ladies Center, Inc., began with a discussion of the history of the practice of abortion, and a description of the various methods of abortion. Ms. Carol Harrington, also from the Ladies Center, followed with a talk on some of the reasons women have abortions. She stressed the prevailing need for sex education, expressing her opinion that young people must be taught the importance of assuming responsibility for their own bodies.

Next, Dr. Tony Walsh from the Florida Right to Life, Inc. group gave a dynamic talk on the moral implications of the abortion question. He spoke of the issue as a value judgement, and questioned the taking of life for what he termed "social purposes." Ms. Jean Doyle from the same group followed Dr. Walsh, speaking of the legality of the abortion question as a "race against the clock." She spoke of our present time as a "turning point in history: the first time when the taking of human life is sanctioned."

Following Ms. Doyle, Ms. Judy Peterson spoke about "Beta House," a center which, as she explained, tries to create a "positive format" is the negative situation of unplanned pregnancy. The emphasis of the Beta House program is on the support of the women involved, and for this purpose they have created Beta Industries, which is a self-help employment agency for the women who come to the center. Ms. Kathy Perry, also from the Beta Center (which, she explained, stands for Birth Education, Training and Acceptance), again stressed the importance of sex education in the homes, churches and schools. She related that there is often no easy quilt-free solution to unplanned pregnancy.

The concluding speaker was Ms. Dorothy Pearson from the Children's Home Society, the largest adoption agency in the area. She talked about the importance of the adoption question, and explained that each woman is given plenty of time after her child's birth to make the final decision about giving up the child.

Following Ms. Pearson's talk, there was an open discussion period, during which students and other members of the Rollins community who attended addressed questions to the individual panelists. All who were involved agreed that it was another successful evening in the Rollins Traveling Road Show series, which has been initiated this year by the Rollins faculty in order to promote greater faculty-student interaction.

Lost Tiffany Treasures on Display Locally

"The 'Lost' Tiffany Treasures," an exhibit of work by Louis Comfort Tiffany (1848-1933), opened at the Loch Haven Art Center in Orlando, Florida on January 23, 1977 according to an announcement by Mrs. John Duda, Jr., President of the Board of Directors.

The exhibits include windows, lamps and furniture not known to have survived the 1957 fires which razed Laurelton Hall, Tiffany's great country estate. Windows and some of the mosaics from the Chapel Tiffany designed for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, will also be shown. These too escaped the destruction at Laurelton Hall.

"These works were quietly purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh F. McKean in 1957 to save them from the wreckers," Mrs. Duda said, "and we at Loch Haven Art Center are pleased to give the public a chance to 'rediscover them'."

"This exhibit will give art lovers a rare opportunity to see things which have not been on public view in over three quarters of a century," according to Mrs. Duda. "That they are examples of Louis Tiffany's personal style, gives this event additional importance."

"The exhibition was installed under the direction of Hugh McKean, former Rollins College President, who knew Louis Tiffany. He spent the fall of 1930 at Laurelton Hall on a fellowship from the Tiffany Foundation. He saw these glorious things functioning as Mr. Tiffany intended, working with music, flowers, and fountains to create an atmosphere charged with beauty. This will not be the usual exhibit," according to Marena R. Grant, Acting Director.

"Laurelton Hall had a quality all its own," according to McKean. "I remember it as something like another world. It had flowers, tropical plants, organ music, fountains, and a place to sit down. It also had polar bear skins all over the place. We can suggest the atmosphere of Laurelton Hall but we certainly cannot imitate it. For one thing - there may not be many polar bear skins in Orlando."

"One window, in particular, will surprise a lot of people," according to McKean. "It is from the Chapel and is after Sandro Botticelli, the 15th Century Italian master. It takes a forklift to move that window. We have never really seen it ourselves. I'll bet I get a hundred letters telling me it is not by Mr. Tiffany."

Parts of the Daffodil Terrace, a feature which helped make Laurelton Hall the most publicized art nouveau residence of its period, are also included in the exhibit, along with paintings, blown glass, enamels, and lamps by the once-again fashionable, American master.

Tiffany's work and especially his famous Chapel dazzled the turn-of-the-century world. In the twenties and thirties, it was strictly out of fashion. In recent years, however, it has had a new vogue. Now, it is avidly sought after by collectors and museums.

Mrs. Hugh (Jeannette Genius) McKean, who has designed a room setting around a Tiffany window as a special feature of the exhibition, stated, "We are pleased that Loch Haven Art Center, one of the leading art centers of Florida, is having this exhibition. It will give thousands of people a great deal of happiness and that is what Mr. Tiffany wanted."

The exhibition is co-sponsored by the Loch Haven Art Center and the Charles Hosmer Morse Foundation of Winter Park. The exhibits are from the collections of The Morse Gallery of Art.

The exhibition will run through May 29, 1977. The galleries are open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., and on Sundays from 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Admission fees ($1.00 per adult, $.50 for children 12 and younger, and free to members of Loch Haven Art Center) will benefit the conservation funds of the Loch Haven Art Center and the Charles Hosmer Morse Foundation.

For additional information, call Marena R. Grant, Acting Director, Loch Haven Art Center, 2416 North Mills Avenue, Orlando, Fla. 32803. Phone (305) 896-4231.

"Conversation" Has Message, if You Can Stay Awake to Get it

By: SHAWNE K. WICKHAM

If anyone went to last Friday night's showing of "The Conversation" expecting an action-packed, edge-of-seat thriller, they were undoubtedly disappointed,

Did You Know That. . .

By: KAREN CAMELO

More muscles are brought into action to make a frown than to make a smile. Thirteen muscles are required to make a smile and fifty to make a frown, therefore the frown requires the greater expenditure of vitality.

The expression "kick the bucket," as applied to dying, is said to have originated from the suicide of a man who stood while he adjusted a noose to his neck and then kicked the bucket from under himself, and accomplished his purpose.

The game of billiards was played by the Egyptians hundreds of years before the Christian era. There is evidence that the Greeks indulged in billiards about 400 B.C. Billiards, as competitive indoor sport, gained its popularity in the United States when there was staged in Detroit a National Championship, on April 12, 1859. This was not a tournament but a match game for a side for that is exactly what the film is not. What "The Conversation" is, however, is an intense psychological drama centering around a character study of the introverted surveillance expert Harry Cawl (played by Gene Hackman).

bet and a purse, the money totaling $15,000.

The wife and daughters of Daniel Boone were the first white women to stand on the banks of Kentucky.

The bed is the oldest article of furniture we have. The Egyptians had high bedsteads to which they ascended by steps, and the Assyrians and Persians followed the same custom. The Greek bed was a wooden frame with aboard at the head. The Romans first began the use of metal beds, using bronze to make them.

The following, is a list of famous men who were never married: Petrarch, Michelangelo, Sir Isaac Newton, Rafall, Chopin, Liszt, Nicholofaginini, Schopenhauer, Charles Lamb, John Greenleaf Whittier, Swinburne, Lord Kitchener, Cecil Rhodes, Phillips Brooks, Alfred de Musset, Voltaire, Lord Leighton, Walt Whitman, Henry David Thoreau, Lewis Carroll, and Henry James.

It is also an effective social commentary about the modern world, in which men exist like parasites, living off the privacies of others.

Cawl's world is the phony, flashy world of salesmen, but Cawl finds himself inadequate to exist in such a world. He has no real friends, for the few acquaintances he knows have no real insight into his internal turmoil. Even his women friends, who are drawn to him by his aura of mysterious withdrawal, are eventually put off by the same. He is a stranger in a strange land, never divulging to anyone the torment within him. He is only his music and his religion which relieve his constant anxiety, and by the end of the movie, he has even lost the struggle to retain the comfort of religion.

Harry Cawl is a totally pathetic figure, and our sympathy for him increases throughout the movie. At the climax of the story, after a surveillance job Cawl has just completed has resulted in the death of an innocent person, our own emotional involvement in the film maximizes. Harry Cawl has become a product of the evil he, however unwillingly, has helped to create. The calculating hunter has become the desperate hunted; he is being watched by the very victims of his former surveillance. In the final impressionistic scene of the movie, Cawl is sitting alone in his barren room playing his saxophone, the only remnant of his life which remains. He is an utterly desolate figure, beaten by the very tricks of his own trade.

"The Conversation" is a very skillfully directed film, making subtle but effective use of optical symbolism. Gene Hackman, always an excellent actor, gives us an impressively sensitive portrait of Harry Cawl, around which the movie revolves. All in all, "The Conversation", which was nominated for best picture in 1975, should be viewed as a very depressing but nonetheless a very important film for our time.

"Cyrano" rouses Emotions

By: MICHELE McPHILLIPS

I have never felt so miserably happy in my entire life. Jose Ferrer as Cyrano de Bergerac is life; he is full of wounded pride, and his courage is infinite. For those privileged students who are taking either Mr. Kane's or Mr. Neilson's, "Dramatic Literature Three Film" course they know what I am referring to. On the afternoon of March 1, Bush Auditorium was nearly full as we students saw a legendary chivalric hero rise from his shroud. Cyrano de Bergerac as performed by Jose Ferrer is Don Quixote, The Count of Monte Cristo and Romeo rolled into one. His own definition of himself as he lay dying was almost too beautiful to be believed. "Philosopher, scientist, poet, swordsman, musician, aerial traveler, maker of sharp retorts, and lover (not to his advantage!), here lies Savinien de Cyrano de Bergerac, who was everything, and who was nothing."

Cyrano is an ideal, perhaps he can never be realized. However, his eloquence has been rekindled by the likes of John F. Kennedy and Winston Churchill. Cyrano's fire and determination can be seen around us if we stop to look, so can his love of words. Have we as a people grown so stale and cynical and so greedy that we can no longer appreciate M. Rostano's words? I hope not. I think that we Rollins students need to be told of Cyrano when we start feeling too self-satisfied.

"Yes, sometimes I envy him. When a man has been too successful in life, even though he hasn't done anything really wrong, he still has all sorts of reasons for feeling a little disgusted with himself. Their combined weight isn't enough to form a burden of remorse, but he can never escape a kind of vague uneasiness as he continues to climb toward even greater success, he hears dead illusions and old regrets rustling under his ducal mantle, like the fallen leaves swept along by the train of your black dress when you mount these steps." If this all seems anticlimatical, well then, so is life.

TIM RYAN

Tim Ryan, a senior at Rollins, has been active in extra curricular activities since his sophomore year. At that time he became a part of the student assembly. During his junior year he was a judge on student court. Now, along with completing his education at Rollins, his term as president of the student government is coming to an end. As holder of this position, he represented the student body and tried to allocate funds in the best interest of the students.

Tim Ryan

His decision to take an active role stemmed from two main reasons. Not only has Tim's fraternity been involved in the government for quite a while, but he felt it would be a rewarding personal experience. It has made him more confident in speaking publicly and has given him the opportunity to relate to our school administration. As for next year, Tim is hoping that more people will take an interest and involve themselves in the various student positions.

After graduating with a degree in economics, Tim will be getting married in July and going on to law school-most probably in the East.

BILL BREDA

Bill Breda is a senior economics major from East Hampton, Connecticut. This year he was Vice President of the Student Association and in the past he has played an active part in other realms of the student government. Next year he will be furthering his education in a business graduate program. But, before leaving Rollins, Bill would like to make all of us aware of the situation within our school.

"I just got involved in Student Government during my sophomore year. The primary factor which motivated me to participate was a desire to learn about the forthcoming changes within the institution. When I first came to Rollins four years ago 24 hour visitation in the common areas was just a rising issue. I recognized that the school was in a state of transition which would alter the educational atmosphere within the institution."

"The basic problem on campus is apathy. This is exemplified by the lack of political activism. In fact, during the past four years never has the number of candidates for the college committees exceeded the available spots. The individuals who are active in student government at Rollins are offered the opportunity to deal directly with the faculty and administration. This is a unique feature of student government here at Rollins and enables students to become acquainted with faculty outside of the classroom situation."

"The future of Rollins appears bright, President Critchfield's office has proved to be flexible while adhering to the goals of the institution. The Admissions Office, headed by Bill Hartog, recruits better students each year. The Board of Trustees of Rollins is extremely concerned with the entire welfare of students. After the past month's board meeting, selected students, faculty, administrators, and trustee members attended a luncheon at the Winter Park Racquet Club. This meeting established a healthy precedent and facilitated interaction between the Trustees and students. Since the Board of Trustees sets the policy of the College this type of interaction with students will tend to foster an air of mutual respect. The Board's most recent appointment of Leonard Firestone will help stimulate the endowment fund while adding another strong member to the Board. I strongly urge students to seek positions of responsibility within the campus. The changes will occur either with or without student input. What we all must decide is whether to be a part of the change or to be a victim of change. It's your school."

Pure Prairie League gets their licks in during Sunday's concert

Pure Prairie League Disappointing

By: GARY LANGFITT

Last Sunday's Pure Prairie League concert had the potential to be a first rate concert. It didn't quite live up to potential. Opening the show was Vernon Hall, a talented musician, but not a talented performer. Unfortunately, as personally engaging as Hall is, we've seen him one too many times at Rollins. His program selections and even their playing sequence have changed little over the last three years. Hall is out of place on the rock stage. He is a cocktail lounge singer who has been trying to break into the big time. With his banal between-song banter and endless tuning of guitars, he is not likely to ever rise above the Travelodge circuit.

Pure Prairie League opened after a half hour wait. Despite the presence of a massive speaker system that suggested otherwise, PPL's music was mostly laid back. The band plays a pleasing blend of C/W, southern blues and rock that can alternately excite or relax. Their classic hit, "Amy", was a joy to hear and was the concert high point, rating a standing ovation. Consistently fine were the sounds coming from the pedal steel and the much overlooked piano. The lead vocals and harmonies were also top quality.

Unfortunately, PPL lacked the energy level that is essential to country/rock. Whether this was a reaction to the sparse attendance or their usual performing style is irrelevant. Especially with this type of music, I we don't believe that they are good 'ol boys out to play some foot stompin music, the concert can turn into a sleeper.

Touring bands have got to realize that they have an obligation to be entertainers as well as musicians especially "one hit" bands, who are not afforded the luxury of playing medley after medley of past successes. (Notice how I never mentioned the Beach Boys). This entertainment need not take the form of an elaborate kiss-type stage show, it can be just the display of a little infectious enthusiasm for the music. I find it hard to believe that any band that plays for only an hour, as PPL did, views their music as anything but work.

PPL had their moments, but we didn't get our money's worth. Their lighting ranged from lack luster to lacking sense, with strange green backlighting on the steel player. Their speaker system had volume but seemed to lack clarity. Essentially, what Rollins had in PPL was a backup band headlining a concert. For $7000, we didn't get our moneys worth.

Year of "Rebuilding" Success Despite Losses

In October of last year the word was out. The 1976-77 Rollins College basketball team was to be in a rebuilding year which was not supposed to be very successful. When the season came to an end on February 26 the Tars surprised everyone - they defeated 16 teams which included such notables as Davidson, Oglethorpe, Fordham and nationally ranked Florida Tech. University - not once, but twice. The Tars fell to defeat during their rebuilding season nine times.

"It was an extremely successful year for us," said Rollins head coach Ed Jucker, who announced his retirement from coaching prior to the last game of the 76-77 campaign. "Before the season began I was pushing for a .500 year. Dedication, stamina, and pure desire pushed our record well above that mark."

For Ed Jucker the winning season marked his fifth in as many years as the Tar headmaster. Rollins has advanced to post-season NCAA competition three times during the Jucker reign.

Leading the way for Tar cagers this year was senior co-captain Gary Parsons who netted 573 points in 25 appearances for a 22.9 average. From the floor, the local cage star hit 244 of 479 for a field percentage of .509. Parsons also secured the rebound title pulling in just under nine per outing.

Forward Bob Morris who saw action in all 25 Tar contests averaging 8.8 points per game with the best field-goal percentage of the starting five. Morris notched 93 baskets in 178 attempts for a healthy .522 floor percentage. Following Morris, were guards Tim Mahoney and Bob Klusman averaging 8.7 and 7.8 points per game respectively. Mahoney and Klusman were the playmakers of the 1976-77 cage crew combining for better than 170 assists - Klusman accounted for 106 of them.

Forward Dirk Twine and center Kyle Rich played in all 25 games with a combined point total of 333. Rich was the second best rebounder on the squad with 4.6 per game.

In looking back over the season it is hard to overlook the play of Parsons. His season high of 34 points came in a hard fought victory against Florida Tech. University in Orlando.

During the season Parsons managed to score 30 points or better five times. Against Oglethorpe in Atlanta the Communications major netted 31 points in an overtime match which resulted in a 72-71 Tar victory.

Although Parsons finished as high scorer in 22 of the 25 games this year, he will be the first to admit that he alone did not carry the team. "It was a team effort all the way", said the personable co-captain who will be lost to graduation this year. "Each and every player on the team contributed his share during the season and that is why we were able to finish as well as we did."

As a team Rollins averaged 74.5 points per game while holding their opponents to 71.3. The Tar cagers also came out on the strong end of the percentage battle hitting at a .485 clip from the floor with the opponents slightly below at .468. From the charity stripe Rollins hit 397 of 554 attempted (.717), the opposition connected on 333 of a possible 503 (.662).

As always, the season has now come to an end and it is time to reflect back on the games that should have been won and the ones that might have gone either way. In doing so Rollins fans, players, and coaches can only remember it as a season that was highly successful. Under head coach Ed Jucker and assistant Mark Freidinger, Rollins basketball could be no other way.

30th Baseball Week Draws Superior Teams

Rollins College hosts its 30th Annual Baseball Week Tournament March 21-26, as defending champion Tennessee, Yale, Northwestern and host Rollins vie in the round-robin classic.

The six day tournament will feature daily doubleheaders at Harper-Shepherd Field in Winter Park. First game will start at 12:00 Noon and the second contest will begin at 3:30 p.m. Rollins will play the second game on each day.

Monday's opening round will see Yale playing Northwestern and Rollins challenging Tennessee. On Tuesday; Northwestern goes against Tennessee and Rollins battles Yale. Tennessee faces Yale and Rollins takes on Northwestern on Wednesday. Thursday, Friday and Saturday schedules are in the same order as Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Winner of the tourney will receive a small replica of the Jack McDowall Trophy which is on display at the Enyart Alumni Field House. The trophy, first presented in 1961, is named in honor of the late Jack McDowall who was athletic director, football coach, basketball coach and baseball coach here for 29 years.

The Vols of Tennessee won the trophy for the second consecutive time last year with a 4-2 record while Wisconsin, Rollins and Cincinnati finished second, third and fourth respectively.

In 1969 Rollins won its own tournament with an unprecedented six-game sweep defeating Amherst, Northwestern and Rutgers. The Tars came away victors during the 1973 and 1974 classics with identical 5-1 marks.

During the 29 year history of the tournament, listed as one of the most outstanding collegiate baseball tournaments in the country, the event has drawn such outstanding colleges and universities as Ohio State, Clemson, North Carolina, Bradley, Duke, Michigan, Michigan State, Alabama, South Carolina, Davidson, Lafayette, Notre Dame, VMI, Colby, Northwestern, Princeton, and many more.

Rollins College expected alot from David Hall. As a senior in high school in Winnetka, Illinois, David received all the honors: All-League, All-County, All-State and All-American for his expertise in baseball.

The Chicago Cubs smelled success as they attempted to lure David from a four year stint in college by drafting him after high school. David decided, however, that college, specifically Rollins College, would be his immediate goal before plunging into professional baseball.

"Rollins made me a great scholarship offer which was actually comparable to the figure that the Cubs offered," David explained. "I knew that Coach Coffie, was a very good coach and that I could learn alot from him. So, I decided to take three years of college at Rollins and to hopefully get drafted after my junior year which will be this summer." Dave plans to complete his education, however in the off season, so as to

The yearly classic has produced such Major League performers as Frank Howard, Bill O'Dell, Al Worthington, Frank Lary, Galen Cisco and Ron Peronoski.

Tickets for the week-long event are priced at $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students. A ticket good for the entire week (14 games) may be purchased for $5.00. Tickets are available at the Rollins Athletic Department or at the gate on the day of the game.

Tar Spotlight: David Hall

get his degree in Communications.

The sturdy junior is quick to mention that baseball means a great deal to him, but it is definitely not his whole life. "I'm not the typical jock," he emphasized. "I enjoy all of life alot. I'm content with my life. I do a great deal outdoors to enjoy nature, and keep active in other sports such as swimming. I want to keep these other interests."

When faced with the question which many have asked since the team's five-loss schedule beginning, "What happened?" Dave replied that he felt that the team was simply in a slump which they have begun to crawl out of. "There is no question that we will make it into the NCAA Division II Regional Tournament this year, providing that everyone continues to pull together as they have in the past week."

David is well on his way to being drafted into the pro ranks of baseball. Last year he compiled a batting average of .318 for the season. He swung a mighty bat during the Rollins Baseball Week for an average of over .450 against university power-houses, winning himself a well-earned position on the All-Tournament Team. His fielding ability definitely meets pro standards. Scouts don't have to ask who that kid is with the arm out in right field. After three years at Rollins they know. And they're watching and waiting. For David Hall.

Crew, Tennis Highlight Sports Week at Rollins

Womens Intramural Volleyball begins this week and will last until the 17th of March. ## SKIING

The Rollins Skiers also took to the road this past week travelling to Tampa. The Women's team placed 1st in all three events, and controlled the meet. Dede David, and Jean Corson both took 1st place honors in tricks and slalom events.

The men's team also skied well, and together with the women's team, led Rollins to a #3 position, overall.

CREW

The Rollins Crew Teams (mens and womens) attended their first regatta of the season this past weekend. The regatta was held on the St. Johns River in Jacksonville, and was hosted by the Hilton Hotel of Jacksonville. The FIT crew teams reaped top honors, but Rollins also rowed well. Coach Bill Leydon snatched first place in his respective division, and though they didn't place in their race, the women's team showed great potential - as only two rowers were members of last years team. They are planning to compete in 4-5 more regattas, with at least two close by, i.e. Rollins and Disney World.

TENNIS

The Rollins Women's Team travelled to Louisiana to compete in the Louisiana State Invitational. They played well and were in the lead throughout the weekend. Due to rain, however, the tournament matches were not played all the way to the finals. At the end of the days play, Rollins and the University of Miami were tied for 1st place.

Rollins tennis is in full swing this year and the team has begun a very exciting and competitive season. Rollins played host to the superb Hampton Institute tennis team, the defending National Champions of Division II. Unfortunately, it turned out to be a long day for the team as a whole; even though many matchups were extremely close. The team played well overall and the loss was hard to take considering many outcomes could have gone either way. Rollins went down in 8 out of the 9 matches including doubles competition. The quality of play was strong and the score obviously does not reflect actually how close the matchups were.

There were three matches that went into three sets and could have gone either way. The combination of Ed Lake and Bucky Copeland in doubles match #3 was a very close match but again Rollins came up short. There were two bright spots among the gloom of the day, however, Rob Bradley, Rollins Captain, played brilliantly and defeated a high-ranked Brad Noel Freitas in successive 6-4, 6-4. Bradley has been defeated to date in matches at Duke University, Miami and Florida International in addition sophomore, Utley defeated Tony Brock in exhibition match, 6-2, 2-6. These two performances were the bright spot in a disappointing match yet the team overplayed respectably.

Rollins tennis changed for better in the next confrontation vs. Furman. The Tars played superbly against Furman, winning 4 out of the 6 singles matches, and winning 2 out of the 3 doubles matches. The doubles team improved week significantly, as the team of Aranda-Lake and Sahlin DeSalvo, rolled up victories.

March 8th, Rollins played host to Florida International University and the team ramblled to a very impressive victory over the #4 team in Division II. The team won four out of the six singles matches and two out of the three doubles matches.

The Rollins tennis schedule is filled with tough competition and daily matches will be held at home starting March 14. The great depth and balance of the Rollins team is beginning to show through; the Tars gained victory momentum after the defeat suffered to Hampton. Daily home matches give the student body an excellent opportunity to watch the tennis. Play has improved significantly, and the action is fierce, visit the courts soon.

Copeland Signs Promising Netter

By: STEPHEN WERK

Norm Copeland, coach of the Rollins tennis team, has received notification, that a rising young tennis player will be attending Rollins next year. Steve Spielman presently ranks between 5 and 9 in the Eastern rankings and is one of the finest young players on the tennis scene.

In 1975 Steve ranked #10 in the East for boys 16 and under. In 1976 he was sponsored by New York State to participate in European Championships all throughout Europe and was named to the All North Shore team. The young Spielman concluded his high school career at Great Neck North, New York with a remarkable record of 60 wins and 1 loss. A member of the All-county tennis team, Steve is expected to be in the top three in New York State.

He presently travels with the Port Washington Tennis Academy playing college teams throughout the East. To date Spielman has played singles against University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Columbia, and Dartmouth. His personal record against these teams is 5 wins and 1 loss.

This young star certainly possesses immense talent manifest a superb and impressive record. Coach Copeland is excited about this new addition to Rollins next year, as Steve Spielman is truly a remarkable young player.
