New S.G.A. Forum Keeps Students Informed

by Gavan Ferguson
Public Relations Chair

In the past, the S.G.A. was criticized for being a ghost-organization far removed from the students it serves. As a result, an open forum arose within the Sandspur where the S.G.A. became the butt of criticism from ill-informed students. Yes, I say ill-informed, for I feel our problem has been the lack of communication between the S.G.A. and the student body. If so, how can our problem be rectified?

Our recently approved Constitution and By-laws has created a student government within which the work has been divided equally amongst its members and committees. No longer is the S.G.A. run solely by its president, as it was in the past. An no longer will the student body be kept in the dark, as it has been up until now.

In order to promote student awareness, the position of Public Relations Chair was created within the new S.G.A. Constitution. The position of P.R. Chair is to elucidate the student body. On such channel is the New Sandspur, within which there is the S.G.A. Forum. Its purpose is to publish and respond to your letters, directed to the S.G.A. office. Moreover, its purpose is to keep you aware of the S.G.A.'s activities. One such way is the publication of the minutes of the S.G.A. Senate meeting. And if you didn't know, the Senate meeting, held in the Galloway Room on Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m., is open to all students. You are encouraged to attend, as it is a great opportunity to air your opinions with your class representatives, whose names are listed in the R-Times. You are also encouraged to stop by the S.G.A. office (2nd floor Mills), where a copy of the S.G.A.'s Constitution, senate bills, and minutes are at your disposal. And if there are any questions that you might like to raise personally with any of the officers, they do have office hours available to you. After all, you do have the right to voice your opinions, and, more importantly, you do have the right to be kept informed.

S.G.A. Senate Bills

The following are the Senate Bills recently passed by S.G.A.

Senate Bill 1 resolves this year's freshmen elections.

Senate Bill 2 outlines the allocation of S.G.A. funds. From a budget of $243,000.00, money was allocated as follows:

$80,000 to Publications and Broadcast Union, which shall now appropriate and manage funds of the New Sandspur, Tomokan, R-Times, Brushing, and W.P.R.K.

$80,000 to Rollins College Productions, which shall appropriate and manage funds for major entertainers, special events, and other social activities.

$61,000 to the general funds of the S.G.A. $22,000 to a contingency fund to be used to cover deficit accounts and other emergencies.

Funds needed for any other S.G.A. committee, such as Student Services and Cultural Action Committee, shall be appropriated and managed by the Appropriations Committee from the S.G.A. general funds.

Senate Bill 3 resolves the allocation of S.G.A. funds to cover the transportation costs of the Rollins Outdoor Club's ski trip.

Senate Bill 4 gives power to the Appropriations Committee to allocate $500 or less of S.G.A. funds without bringing the measure before the Senate for a vote.

Senate Bill 5 brings the Rollins Outdoor Club to function as a sub-committee of the Service Committee. R.O.C. will still function as an independent organization, but the service it provides in sponsoring trips and loaning equipment will be with the aid of the S.G.A.

Senate Bill 6 based on the recommendation of the Appropriations Committee, allocates $3000 as the S.G.A.'s office expense budget for the 1989-90 academic year.

Senate Bill 7 allocates $1325 to A.D.E.P.T. to help cover the expenses of Alcohol Awareness Week.

Senate Bill 8 resolves that the management of the Annie Russell Theatre should adopt a policy which does not differentiate between students and non-students in the sales of reserved seating for weekend performances. Furthermore, with the implementation of this new policy, the price for reserved seating should remain at $15 per season for students. This bill was sent to the theatre management for consideration.

Counseling Program Update

by Don Hensel

Shortly before Thanksgiving, the entire faculty assembled to discuss the fate of the graduate program in counseling. At the November 21 meeting, nothing definite was decided toward the Planning Committee's recommendation to terminate the program.

At the beginning of the meeting, a resolution was introduced which basically gave the power of decision to the administration, who would give a decision to the Trustees by February. The faculty amended the resolution so that the administration's decision would be submitted to the faculty first. After a 45 minute debate, the resolution was overwhelmingly killed. The faculty wants its opportunity to debate the issue and render its own decision.

Although many faculty members wanted to leave, they graciously allowed two students from the program to speak. After the students' arguments to save the program, the faculty decided to plan a 2 or 3 hour meeting for a full discussion of the matter.

So nothing was really accomplished, but by giving themselves adequate time for debate in the future, the faculty may arrive at a decision. We'll keep you posted.

We, the editorial board of The New Sandspur extend a sincere standing invitation to our readers to submit articles on any subject they feel is interesting, maddening, thought-provoking, or of general interest to the Rollins community. As the editors, we reserve the right to correct spelling, punctuation, and grammatical errors; but, under no circumstances will we alter the form or import of the author's ideas without previous discussion and agreement.

Our policy requires that we only publish articles and letters that are submitted with the author's name. Upon request, however, we will withhold the true name of the author from publication.

The New Sandspur is your paper: we will always keep this in mind. But we cannot succeed in this goal without your support and participation. Submit articles to The New Sandspur at campus box 2742 or drop it by our office, Mills 307.

The opinions expressed in the individual articles do not necessarily represent the views of The New Sandspur as a whole.

The Other Rollins College: Brevard Campus

A while ago, members of the Brevard campus of Rollins College submitted some information about their campus which appeared in the "Features" section of The New Sandspur. Many Winter Park students, unaware that a second Rollins campus exists, are wondering what the Brevard campus is all about. Since Brevard's students are members of our community, some explaining is in order.

Brevard County, Florida extends 71 miles on the east coast, and it includes the Kennedy Space Center, Patrick Air Force Base, Cocoa Beach, Melbourne, the Indian River, and Merritt Island. In anticipation of the need for higher education in Brevard (especially with the advent of the space program), Rollins founded a branch campus there in 1951. Classes were held in a number of places, but today the facilities are centered in the city of Rockledge.

Students at the Brevard campus have a number of advantages. First of all, they become members of the greater Rollins community. Rollins College has a national reputation as one of the top colleges in the Southeast. The Brevard campus offers students a quality liberal arts education, with plenty of faculty-student interaction. Brevard students also have access to all facilities of the Winter Park campus, including Career Services, social activities, and the Olin Library. Brevard students may major in a variety of fields, including accounting, business administration, computers, English, history, humanities, organizational behavior, politics, and psychology. The Brevard campus also offers teacher certification and the A.A.

degree. Credits are transferable to Winter Park, and after two years, students may enter any of Florida's major universities. Many, however, complete their four years right in Brevard County.

Perhaps the greatest advantage, all, however, is that students in Brevard can live and work at home and receive a great liberal arts education at a very reasonable cost. Tuition in Brevard is only $2,112 a year, considerably less than on the main campus. Since a majority of students at Brevard are Florida residents, the Florida Tuition Voucher reduces the cost of a Rollins education to $962.

The Rollins campus in Brevard County, as our sister school, will continue to be a part of our community. Let's make them feel at home!

Steps for Living in Better Harmony with the Environment

by Lara Higgins

Just recently, a bunch of us in NCM were talking about how we felt so helpless in the fight to save the environment. We go to the store and everything we buy (almost) is packaged in plastic bottles and canisters. Once we get home and take off all the wrappers, most of the purchase ends up in the trash, all with tremendous amounts of paper and glass that will never see the good side of a recycling plant. What was also brought up was the use and amount of toxic chemicals on the Rollins campus. They clean the walls of the dorms with bleach, for example, and where does the runoff go? It goes into the ground and potentially into our groundwater supply.

This is just one example. We were encouraged by the environmental science department's effort for a more natural greenery in front of their building, and, from what I understand, all the plants are indigenous to this area of Florida. Well, what came out of this conversation was a little research and a lot of ideas. That's where the title comes in, steps for living in better harmony with the environment. These are real steps that even college students can do. Here they are.

1. Turn off all the lights in a room that is not being used. This includes the laundry room and the bathrooms.
2. Turn off all the electrical appliances that aren't being used (TV's in the lounges, radios, etc.)
3. Turn off your air conditioning when you aren't in the room, and try to use it only when you absolutely have to. This includes your car A/C, which protects the ozone from possible freon leakages.

4. When washing your face or hands, or when brushing your teeth, use the water only when wetting or rinsing. This could save gallons of water each time.
5. Use paper over plastic or styrofoam products. Both cause real damage to the environment. Pressure the school to stop supplying these products.
6. Encourage your hall or dorm to join the recycling program that is being started up for paper products. Our school could save many trees from being cut down.
7. Walk or hike when you really don't need to drive. Share rides whenever possible.
8. If you have lamps or supply your own lightbulbs, replace your incandescent bulb with a compact fluorescent bulb. For every fluorescent bulb used, one fifth of a ton of coal is saved in a year, preventing that much air pollution, acid rain, and global warming.
9. Concerning personal hygiene, use soap without artificial scent or color. Replace shaving cream with a thin layer of soap. Shaving cream often contains ammonia and ethanol, which can potentially be harmful to the human body and the environment.
10. To make a shampoo from nontoxic ingredients, mix one cup of liquid castile soap with a half a cup of distilled water and one-quarter cup of olive or avocado oil.
11. Use cornstarch instead of baby powder, which contains petroleum products.
12. When sunbathing, use sesame oil, which blocks out 30% of the sun's ultraviolet rays and contains vitamin E.
13. Use vegetable oil instead of baby oil to soften skin. Baby oil is made from petroleum products.

14. Instead of using insect sprays to kill bugs, do the following: Place several shallow dishes filled with soapy water a few inches below lights. The heat attracts bugs, and they drown in the soapy water. Use boric acid to get rid of ants, and keep a few mint or onion plants in your room to keep them out.
15. To get rid of the damp musty smell in your room, buy some plants to absorb the excess carbon dioxide, and keep an open box of baking soda in your closet to absorb the odors.
16. Use rechargeable batteries instead of disposables. They are made of toxic heavy metal and tend to corrode in the landfills and seep into our groundwater supply.
17. If you visit a natural area like a lake, park, beach, or forest, don't pick the natural vegetation. Leave the area the way you found it, cleaner if needed. Bring a trash bag and fill it if you can.
18. Pick up your own and others' litter whenever possible.
19. Participate in a beach or river clean-up.
20. Try to eat natural, unprocessed foods over manufactured foods.
21. Eat less red meat, none if possible. This will cut down on the need for grazing land for cattle and possibly protect the shrinking rain forests.
22. When buying fruit or vegetables, buy the loose ones and bring an old paper bag to take them home in. Also, when shopping for just a few items, try to bring your own shopping bag to save on waste.
23. If you must eat in a fast food restaurant, ask them to put your food in paper instead of styrofoam or plastic boxes.

24. Do not eat any kind of tuna except Albacore tuna. The fishermen who catch the yellow fin tuna needlessly kill thousands of dolphins a year with their nets. A cheap and simple adjustment is all that is needed on their part. The school buys the cheaper tuna, so don't eat it.

25. Do not eat veal. The calves are raised in inhumane conditions. They are shot full of chemicals and kept in dirty pens as wide as their bodies. Most of the time they are unable to walk or stand on their own, because they haven't formed legs.

26. And finally, join or contribute to a group that is dedicated to preserving the environment. Two examples are:

The Sierra Club	Greenpeace USA
730 Polk Street	1436 U. Street N.W.
San Fran, CA	Washington D.C
94109	20009
(415) 776-2211	Local 648-8222

I know this all seems like a tremendous amount of work, but if you can make at least one of these changes into a habit, you could save money. You may let us enjoy the earth's natural wonders a bit longer. It could also help you feel like you are making a real effort to live as humanely as you can. (Some of the information in this article was compiled from the September, 1989 issue of Omni Magazine, in the supplement titled "Help Wanted: An Activist's Guide to a Better Earth," by Cathy Spencer)

S.G.A. Funds: How to Get Them

by Chip Tedeschi, S.G.A. Comptroller

Extensive changes have been made with regards to the allocation of S.G.A. funds. The S.G.A. has decided not to allocate individual club budgets but rather to provide funding for each club's functions as they occur. In order to help you understand these new guidelines, here are some things to remember.

When you have a function you want to sponsor, you must contact John Gurke, the Chair of RCP, between noon and 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. The RCP has a budget in which they can cosponsor events with clubs.

Handling events in this manner has its advantages; especially, since events will no longer conflict in time. This allows for more people to attend each of the functions. From the economical point of view, this new procedure is more efficient. Previously, money was allocated for certain events which never occurred. If all S.G.A. sponsored events are channeled through RCP, they will be much more likely to happen as well as coordinated with more organization.

If RCP cannot cosponsor an event for any particular reason, the Appropriations Committee serves as the appeals board. It meets on Sundays at 8:30 p.m. If such an event were to occur, you need to contact John Pokorny at the S.G.A. office, ext. 2186.

As far as office expenses are concerned, the Appropriations Committee has allocated each club $125. This includes print shop expenses, posterboard and markers, and other miscellaneous office expenses. As S.G.A. comptroller, I am in charge of this. My office hours are noon-1:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. Sunday and Wednesday. If you have any questions, call the S.G.A. office at 2186. If I am not in, you may leave a message.

The next topic is food. Due to the limited amount of funds available to S.G.A. and RCP, funds for food can no longer be provided for any club. Each club is on its own to provide for food at its meetings. If you want any ideas on raising money for your club, please call Bernard Franklin, Director of Student Activities and Organizations at Ext. 2186.

Affirming Affirmative Action

by Carmen J. Ortiz

After reading issues #6 and #7 of The New Sandspur, both of which contained articles dealing with affirmative action, I find that I must write my own thoughts and feelings on the matter.

I'm going to start out by stating that I am in favor of affirmative action. I must give my sincerest thanks to Ms. Falecia Douglas and Mr. Derrick Henry for responding to an urgent issue that needs to be addressed on the Rollins campus.

First of all, I'm going to clear some misunderstandings for both Mr. Bill Boyd and Mr. Stephen Berry.

I appreciate Mr. Berry's statement on solving educational problems at their foundations and not from their roofs. He should realize, however, that just giving public schools the same academic standards as private, suburban schools is not going to solve all of the social and financial problems faced by their students. Mr. Berry must consider another fact; the fact that the people of color have cultural differences which must be taken into account. Let's face reality, the way a white, middle-class child is brought up is certainly not the way a person of color is raised!

Poverty is no excuse for not scoring as well as the white, middle-class student on standardized tests. No matter who you are or where you're from, everyone has the same capacity to learn.

I can vouch for this by giving you a good example of what affirmative action can do. I grew up in a pretty rough neighborhood in the South Bronx. My neighborhood was approximately 85% Black and 15% Hispanic. As you can see, there were no Whites in our presence.

I attended public school from kindergarten until the eighth grade. During my last year in junior high, a wonderful, golden opportunity presented itself to me. I was encouraged to apply to the most prestigious, private, college-preparatory school in the nation.

At first I was doubtful and didn't think such a nationally known institution would be interested in me. They, in turn, proved me wrong. The institution demonstrated that it had such a positive faith in my being competent enough to manage the work and awarded me a full scholarship, including books and travel costs for the four years I remained there. Granted, I never did assimilate or change to fit in culturally, but I did complete my work equally if not better than the majority of the students at the school.

I graduated as a four year senior from Phillips Exeter Academy, and now I attend an equally prestigious institution, Rollins College. I must stress my appreciation and thanks to these institutions for having the confidence in my abilities and allowing me to obtain an education I am equally capable of accomplishing.

It is because of situations like the one given in the previous paragraphs that affirmative action must be a continuing process. It is one way for the people of color to achieve equality to the white, middle-class.

We Need Your Ideas

One of the newest S.G.A. Standing Committees created by our revitalized Constitution is the Student Services Committee (S.S.C.). We the members of the S.S.C. are here to serve you the student by making your life a little easier while at Rollins. Our committee is the branch of the college governance system that creates and oversees those little changes on campus that make a big difference. For example, S.S.C. at the moment is working on hiring a full-time, on-campus lawyer for students who need legal aid. Some other projects the committee will be attempting to initiate is an airport limo service, a video movie loan program, a monetary loan program, and a weekly haircut service in which local salons can participate. These services will be provided to the students at little to no cost. We need more ideas, however, in order to make our committee successful in serving the community. At other college institutions, the Student Services Committee is always the largest and most active branch of student government. So send in your ideas, no matter how outlandish they may be, to S.S.C. chairperson, Jay Amos (Box 1018). Remember, as our name implies the only person who benefits from the Student Services Committee is you.

Read a Newspaper Today

by Don D'Orto

I, on several occasions while on this campus, have been shocked at the apathy many students have shown about knowing current events and understanding what is going on in the world. Every weekday morning I go to pick up my New York Times and I am amazed at how many are left over from the day before, because students who have paid for subscriptions don't bother to come down and pick up their newspaper, much less read it. I often ask some of my friends why they don't read the paper. The responses are always, "I don't have the time," or, "What has that got to do with me?"

Let me tell you, it has everything to do with you!!

You tell me you are too busy getting ahead in life to bother; that it won't matter because you will be successful anyway. But yet the exact opportunities you are looking for are in the newspaper you failed to read today. What does the year 1992 mean to Western Europe? Some savvy American investors and businessmen know and are ready to make a fortune too, but you don't know about it, so how can you make your fortune? Those savvy American businessmen read the paper, and they know. What do recent events in Eastern Europe mean to you? Well, to some they are opportunities to be on the cutting edge of something that could be very profitable. They could be great opportunities for you too, but how can they be if you don't know about them? Don't you wish you knew?

And for those people who wish to make a change in this world, to make it a better place, how can you make a change for the better if you don't know what needs reform? And how will you go about making a difference if you don't know how to? Would you like to know how? Then pick up a newspaper and find out. Watch the news and see what is going on in the world. Learn about this world and see how many opportunities there are for success in whatever you want to do or be. That New York Times in the bookstore is still waiting, just for you.

Letters To the Editors:

Dear Editor:

One man lost his life and another was seriously, if not permanently, injured in what is left of that car which was "parked" outside of Beans during Alcohol Awareness Week. I am astounded at the total lack of sensitivity so blatantly displayed by the student organizations that used the wreck scene as a bulletin board.

Sincerely,
Barbara Przygocki

Dear Editor:

Alcohol is cunning, baffling and powerful. If you do not believe this, look at the crunched car that was sitting in front of Beans. It was indeed an ugly sight, but perhaps this car should stay right there all year long, not just for one week. Death is ugly, especially when it is violent and when it happens to someone near and dear to you. There is a problem with alcohol on this campus, as there is on most every campus. I have overheard students say, "Hey, I can't deal with life, school, and daily problems without drinking or getting high."

If these young people feel this way now, how in the world are they going to cope later, when they face daily problems and struggles whether it be in the workplace or in their personal lives. The answer to this is simple. They won't face the problems then either. By this time, they will be addicted to their drug of choice. Alcohol is not their problem in the beginning. The problems are pressure, stress, low self-esteem, lack of self-confidence, and the list could go on forever. Instead of asking for help, having faith in a Higher Power, dealing with life on life's terms, they choose to blot out these problems with drugs.

Having read many books on alcoholism and adult children of alcoholics, there is one sentence that sticks out in my mind: "If you think you have a problem with alcohol, you probably do." Denial is the main symptom of this disease of alcoholism, and while a person continues to deny that they have a problem, the disease is progressing. Also, it doesn't matter how much or how little a person drinks or does drugs, it's what happens to them when they do.

Another saying to think about is, "You may not get in trouble every time you drink, but every time you do get in trouble you've probably been drinking." There are three choices if you are addicted and do not get help: locked up, covered up, or insane. However, if you feel terribly alone, sick, sick and tired of being sick and tired, frightened, hopeless, and helpless, there is help if you will just ask or call someone. It's never too late unless you're dead. To drink is to die if you are an alcoholic!

Sincerely,
Nancy Marshall

FEATURES

ACTIONS/REACTIONS

Actions/Reactions is a weekly column in The New Sandspur used to present the views of Rollins Community members on various topics.

Rollins has a fairly well-rounded curriculum, especially, taking Winter Term into account. But, just for fun, if you could add any class to the current listing, what would you like to see?

"I would add Introduction to the Sociology of Rollins College. A lot of students would like to know how to deal with the social scene here." Elizabeth Murphy, junior.

"Snow skiing." Kendra Brill, sophomore.

"We need a class teaching the finer techniques of Night Club Dancing. There are unfortunate students all over campus who have no rhythm." Ralph Fabian, junior.

"I would add the entire Business Major back to the curriculum, but if I could only add one, it would be Time Management." Jim Innocent, senior.

Its All Greek to Me

CHIPS

The Brothers of Chi Psi want to welcome everyone back from vacation and hope that it was an enjoyable break.

We extend congratulations to Mr. Barry Hayes, our first recipient of the Employee Recognition Award. Look for our article on Barry "The Burglar" Hayes in the News Sections.

This Friday night we will be joining Kappa Kappa Gamma and Chi Omega by the pool for an all-campus fund raising party. Admission is either three cans of non-perishable food or $2 to go to the homeless. Goodings Supermarket and WCPX- Channel 6 are assisting in promoting this event.

Due to extenuating circumstances, our Annual Softball Tournament is delayed until Winter Term. Look for details from Mike Reeves, junior, about this upcoming event.

Finally, we would like to wish the best of luck to the Rollins Mens Tennis Team and in particular, our brother, Rob Ober.

Do You Know Any Sloths?

R.O.C. Announces the Sloth as Animal of the Month

This December will mark the first month of R.O.C.'s Animal of the Month Club. This club was created to increase awareness of the Rollins community for the world of animals with whom we share this planet. The Animal of the Month is chosen during the last R.O.C. meeting of each month by all who wish to vote. At the time of the vote, animals may be nominated, and voted on.

This month's and first R.O.C. Animal of the Month is the Three-toed Sloth. The sloth is a very slow moving, tree dwelling, tropical American Mammal. A slow moving sloth in a tree may be likened to a tuft of hay or lichen, or a hanging ants nest. Its long hair is a mixture of many tints of black, brown, yellow, orange, or white. The hairs are grooved and inhabited by algae which turn yellow in periods of drought and green under damp conditions, thus contributing to the camouflage of the sloth among the foliage at different seasons. Jaguars and Eagles, its chief enemies, are often defeated by its remarkable camouflage and immobility. The likeness to a hanging nest is increased by the fact that the animal spends most of its active life hanging down, face upwards, from the branches by the three long claws on each of its feet. It has a short, stumpy tail and a head as round as a monkey's, with a face devoid of expression. One of the sloth's most striking features is its sluggish movement or inactivity. It has been claimed that some spend their whole lives on a single branch. One sloth, kept under observation for 168 hours, fed for eleven hours, climbed for about 18, remained motionless during 10 and slept for 129. In other words, the creature's day consisted of 18 hours of rest and five hours of activity.

Do you know any sloths?

(Facts about the sloth were gathered from The Larousse Encyclopedia of Animal Life.)

others and encourages you to develop projects for your favorite charity. Our meetings are on Tuesday nights at 7:00 p.m. in the Sullivan House lounge. SEE YOU THERE!!!!

Save Our Skills

Question: Why do I have trouble getting good grades on a test if I am conscientious about reading my textbook assignments?

This is a common question that has been asked recently by some frustrated students. We wish we could tell you just to pick up the book and read your assignment and you would know the material when it is time for a test. However, the answer has to do with how efficient a reader the student is. We recommend you use a popular method of efficient reading. It is SQ3R (Survey, Question, Read, Recite, Review).

Simply put, preview the reading by surveying the introduction, the conclusion, headings and graphics. Turn the headings into questions to test your focus your mind on the important parts of the reading. Then, read the section, looking for the answer to the question you formulated from the heading.

In order to retain what you've read, put the relevant material in your own words. Set aside the textbook and recite the question and answer. At this point you can underline or highlight only key words or phrases that trigger the entire meaning of the reading. After you have finished the reading assignment, review what you have learned. Write a summary covering the main ideas giving enough supporting details. Your written notes can be added to other lecture notes to study for future tests.

This formula will save you much time when the exam periods come, as you have already efficiently read the assignment, not just superficially think you have done so.

Squirrels on Park

by Jacqueline Colross

Every Sunday afternoon, I stroll down Park Avenue headed for the park. What do I do there, you ask? Well, since the second semester of my sophomore year I have held the position of "peanut and bread crumb distributor." Every Sunday I feed the squirrels.

This ritual started when I was having a hard time living with my roommate. We were constantly fighting, and Sundays were the days when flying fists could be seen in action. Attempting to avoid confrontation at all costs, one Sunday I decided to take a walk. Before I knew it, I was sitting by the fountain. When I came back to the reality of where I was, I noticed little children dressed in Sunday clothes running around in the park. Other children were attempting to catch the pigeons and squirrels. The animals were too swift for their awkward and little chubby hands.

Sitting next to me was an elderly woman eating a sandwich. She apparently was a regular at the park, because I noticed she had carefully saved the crust of her bread and stored it carefully in a plastic bag. When she was finished eating, she made a clicking noise with her mouth and summoned the squirrels. The sight of about ten squirrels circling all around this elderly woman was amazing. The squirrels seemed to patiently wait for their reward, having responded like Pavlov's dogs. When enough squirrels had congregated, the elderly woman began distributing the bread crusts. Amazingly, the squirrels came right up to the woman's hand to receive their meal.

They did not bite and they did not seem scared or even aggressive. They became tame pets.

The next week, I went to the park to try this experiment. I clucked and held out the crumbs with my hands. Squirrels came from everywhere. They were as gentle as could be when retrieving their reward. They immediately became the pets I could not have the dorm. Eddy, Sam, and Yoda, they all became mine.

What I noticed when feeding my pets was that I had completely forgotten my problems of the day. Feeding these squirrels relaxed me. I forgot the world around me and focused on 'my friends' and the simplicity of this act and of their simple lives.

Jackie Colross is currently a senior English major at Rollins College.

1000 Points of Interest

(Well, Maybe Only Four or Five)

C. L. Corbett

What a nice surprise to come back to school after a great Thanksgiving and find an actual response to one of my columns in my box here at The New Sandspur. (Imagine the shock - someone besides my mother actually reads this column. But I digress.) So anyway, the letter is from Susan Curran, '76 (Computer Services), who tells me that she remembers Park Promenade Jewelers as being Winter Park Photo and Hobby before they moved elsewhere. I'll buy that, but I could swear it was an antique gallery or something in 1986 or '87. I asked my friend (you know, the one who opened this whole can of worms by mentioning the YumYum Tree-or-Shop-or Whatever-It-Was) if she could remember what was there, but nooooo, she can only remember ice cream stores. So at any rate, I'd like to thank Ms. Curran for not only reading my column, but actually taking the time out to respond.

And after all, folks, isn't that what this great Christmas season is all about? People taking the time to go out of their way for someone else, just to be nice or do a favor for a friend. Well, I happen to know of a couple of dedicated theatre students who are doing just that all this week. You can find them in front of Beans from 11:30 to 12:30 everyday this week til Friday. You wanna know what they're doing? Well, I'll tell you - they're selling tickets to... SUMMER AND SMOKE! !! That's right, you knew I was going to mention it eventually. Tickets went on sale on Monday, so stop in on your way to or from lunch and pick up yours before they're all gone.

While I'm on the subject, another great performance is going to be held on campus on Tuesday, December 5. It's the Annual Holiday Concert, sponsored by the Music Department here at Jolly Rolly Colly and it features some of the finest musical groups on campus. It will be held on the Mills Lawn at 7 PM.

As promised a couple of issues ago, Dr. Arthur Blumenthal did write a very interesting article about the museum for us, so be sure to check out the current exhibit. It's a great way to relax in between studying and classes.

Incidentally, they boarded up what used to be East India and put up a little sign promising us that Elliot's will be opening there soon. Wow, what a relief. Now Haagen Dazs can lower their prices again.

And now that everyone's been tortured with four too-short days of rest, it's time to jump back into the muck of classes, papers, and - gasp! - exams. Not to mention Christmas shopping. (Which just may be the worst prospect of all.) Anyway, have a good week, hang on for one or two more, and go see "Summer and Smoke".

C. L. Corbett is a senior Theatre Major and the Arts & Entertainment Editor who desperately hopes to not flunk out of school, or if she does, to at least win the Lotto so she won't really care.

"SUMMER AND SMOKE"

Opens at Annie Russell Theatre

"Summer and Smoke", the Broadway hit from the pen of Pulitzer Prize dramatist Tennessee Williams, will open at the Annie Russell Theatre on the campus of Rollins College on December 1. Described as "a vibrant work of art, tremulous with beauty", by the N.Y. Times, it has been hailed as a worthy successor to Williams' previous dramatic successes, "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Glass Menagerie".

As in Williams' earlier plays, frustrated love is the keynote of "Summer and Smoke", and a tormented Southern belle his heroine. She is Alma Winemiller, a music teacher in a small Mississippi town, the inhibited and painfully affected daughter of a weakling minister and his demented wife.

As indicated by its title, "Summer and Smoke" is a play of shadowy moods, of fragmentary wisps of poignant experiences that shape whole lifetimes. It tells the story of Alma Winemiller's lifelong unrequited love for the doctor's son who lives next door.

Rollins theatre students Kerry Hansen and Rayme Adair Rossello will alternate in the role of the repressed Alma in the Annie Russell production, while Joseph Frank Mahan will be seen as the disdainful but not unpitiful doctor.

For information and ticket reservations call the Annie Russell Theatre box office at 646-2145.

Why Visit the Cornell Museum?

logue to our Winslow Homer exhibition is published. Furthermore, as an associate professor in the Art Department, I will be teaching an upper-level seminar next fall on Museum Studies; students will receive a good insight into museum work and art connoisseurship by organizing an exhibition themselves and writing the exhibition catalogue as well.

Rollins students Terre Levy, '92, and Deanna Hearn, '93, work at the Cornell Fine Arts Museum as student assistants. (We also hope to have museum internships in the future.) Philosophy, English, French, Art and Art History courses are often held in the Cornell Museum's galleries. And every September, the museum holds a free Student Open House to show the galleries off to all Rollins students. Students, by the way, can become members of the Friends of the Cornell Fine Arts Museum, the nearly 350-member museum support group.

Most students attend the Senior Art Show every May. It is one of our best-visited shows by students. The exhibition is an opportunity for graduating art majors to show their very best paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, and photographs.

I'd like to encourage all students at Rollins not to wait until May. Visit the Cornell Fine Arts Museum now - especially if you're not an art major. Visit the Museum to see great art, (the Masterpieces of American Photography is a stunning show), and to relax; visit the museum because it's educational and it's free. Most of all visit the Museum because it's part of the experience of being a Rollins student. Besides, you may just find it to be fun!

Dr. Blumenthal is director of the Cornell Fine Arts Museum at Rollins and Associate Professor of Art.

Dr. Arthur R. Blumenthal

For many students at Rollins, the Cornell Fine Arts Museum at the bottom of Holt Avenue is a mysterious edifice best left to visits by art majors and the senior citizens of Winter Park. Part of my mission is to change that.

With the Museum's programs of free exhibitions, lectures, gallery talks, publications and concerts, we are overcoming the students' inattention and indifference in one of the treasures of Rollins College. At the Cornell Museum, a student can: attend a reception for exhibition openings (next one, January 13 for Winslow Homer's Wood Engravings); visit an outstanding exhibition (up now Masterpieces of American Photography); hear an exciting lecture (Sunday, December 10, on "The Adoration of the Christ Child"); or enjoy a Christmas concert in the galleries (next one coming up, on Sunday, December 10, 3 PM) - all for free.

There are many connections between the Cornell Museum and the student body. Rollins students, for example, are regularly represented on the Board of Visitors - the advisory council of the Museum. In addition, all Fine Arts House meetings are held at the Museum on Thursdays at 6:00 PM; I am the faculty sponsor to the Fine Arts House - a group committed to supporting the visual and performing arts. I taught a museum study tutorial last spring to Lynn Pool, '90, whose efforts will be seen when her cata-

Airline + Airport . Fun

Jen Pitts

Phew! I finally made it to the airport. After frantically cramming clothes into a suitcase, speeding down Route 436, hysterically looking for my ticket in the midst of all my junk, and finally checking in, I'm standing around the airport with bunch of time to kill. What's a person to do? Well, there are a few things you can do to occupy time. Reading magazines and sleeping are the typical airport and airplane pastimes, but there are few more activities I engage in to make the time go by.

One of the first things I do in the airport is check out the gift shop or shops. Everything is overpriced, so the only stuff I buy are magazines and candy bars. If I'm trying to fill up a lot of time, I'll read bits and pieces of magazines that I wouldn't want to spend money on like The National Enquirer. I'm always amazed at the amount of Florida souvenirs people buy from gift shops. At Orlando International Airport there's a whole store devoted to Disney World paraphernalia. Vacationers could skip Disney World and do all there shopping here. The airport doesn't have rides like the Magic Kingdom unless you want to ride the baggage carousel and then you run the risk of being kicked out.

After I finish my gift shop tour, I usually grab an expensive diet coke, go to my gate, and sit down for a bit. People watching in the is one of the most entertaining airport activities. So many different people are bustling around that there is always someone interesting to watch. I'll observe people and try to guess where they're flying to and from. The beet red skin peeking out from a wool sweater is a dead giveaway for a northern tourist. Watching families struggle with screaming children and luggage is not an activity I recommend unless you're looking for a reason not to take children on vacations.

Finally, the plane boards and airplane entertainment activities begins. Although I always have magazines with me I read the material provided by the airlines. It's not the most exciting reading, but you won't waste your magazines while you're waiting for your peanuts and drink.

Now, this next suggestion has to be taken carefully. Talking to fellow passengers can be entertaining or it can be annoying as hell. With the variety of people who fly these days, you're bound to have an interesting conversation with someone. This all depends on luck and if your seatmates are in the mood to talk and if you are as well. Who knows who'll you meet on the plane. It could be your second cousin's wife's brother's ex-wife, a CEO who's looking for a vice-president with your qualifications, or your future spouse. It could also be Mr. or Ms. Chatterbox. These people generally show up when I've decided that I want to catch up on some sleep during the flight. Sometimes, these people will realize you want to rest after you've yawned about a dozen times and sometimes they'll keep talking. I just try to make the best of it. At least I'll have a good story to tell when I get off the plane.

Air sick bags are also another source of entertainment. No, I'm not suggesting you vomit for pleasure. You can doodle on them, make them into puppets (very useful when traveling with crying children), or collect them as souvenirs for family and friends. Creativity is the key to entertaining yourself!

The flying season will be in full swing soon, so don't fret about long waits in airports and long flights. Keep in open mind and try to think of things besides sleeping and reading to keep yourself occupied. Hey, you can always do homework, but I'll take barf bag drawing over it any day!
