The Sandspur Welcomes You Back to Rollins College!

■ It's that time of year again! Rollins College students roll back in to start a new year.

by Caitlin Geoghan

editor-in-chief

What does it mean when the daily rain showers combine with flustered freshmen meeting their roommates for the first time and all of those experienced upperclassmen strolling into the residence halls? Looks like Rollins College is open for business for the 2004-2005 academic school year.

A lot of changes have taken place during the summer. A great deal of construction has been completed, and some projects are still in progress.

One major completed project from the summer is the soccer field. Recall the gravel pit inhabiting the Cahall-Sandspur field at the end of last year. It has been transformed into a lush NCAA sized field complete with bleachers.

Updates have also been made in the traditional residence halls. New carpeting has been laid in Ward Hall and Rex Beach Hall.

Continuing projects include Keene Hall (the music building), The Bush Science Center, and the Cornell Art Museum. Keene Hall is in pieces while it undergoes its renovations. Upon its reopening, which is currently slated for Fall 2005, the art museum will have a brand new configuration and appearance. Bush has also had a face lift and now matches the majority of the buildings on campus. Further cosmetic additions are planned to improve the aesthetic value of the building.

Additionally, some Greek organizations have shuffled positions on campus. The fraternity Phi Delta Theta is now located in Plug and Harmon Halls and X-Club has moved to Gale Hall. Rex Beach Hall is now a regular residence hall again. Hooker Hall, home of Chi Psi has had serious repairs due to water damage from last year.

Buildings are not the only changes this year. We at the Sandspur would like to take this opportunity to extend a warm welcome to our new president, Dr. Louis Duncan. We look for great things to come from the former Dartmouth Dean of Engineering and are excited about working with him.

A portion of the freshman class will once again be living in Nexus "Living Learning Community" along with the Honors Program freshmen. These students will live together in McKean Hall and take similar RCC courses.

An important event for all students is the Student Involvement Fair, which takes place on Sunday, August 22, in the Alford Sports Center. This program can benefit both returning and new students find organizations that match their individual interests.

Overall, the 2004-2005 academic year is shaping up to be an exciting year full of new faces and campus improvements. From everyone on the Sandspur Staff, welcome back Rollins and good luck!

Leading the Way

■ It's time for the First Year Fall Leadership Retreat.

by Jami Furo

copy editor

This retreat is organized by the Office of Student Involvement and Leadership, and it helps welcome students to Rollins College and get them involved in the various activities on campus. At the retreat, students will learn about good leadership, bond with their new classmates, and get away from campus for a weekend to relax and have a good time.

This year's Fall Leadership Retreat is entitled Flight School III: Return of the King. It is the third in the Flight School series of leadership retreats.

This year, the retreat will be held in Umatilla, FL.

Hurricane Charley

Friday Night, August 13, Hurricane Charley tore across Central Florida, leaving tens of thousands, including Rollins, without power.

Hurricane Charley

Charley Sweeps Across Central FL

■ Charley forces an evacuation of campus and teamwork from all who remained.

by Mark Bartschi

managing editor

Friday the 13th proved to be particularly unlucky for hundreds of thousands of residents in Central Florida as Hurricane Charley crossed the state packing winds in excess of 145 miles per hour.

The Rollins Emergency Management Team, after reviewing reports that Charley was almost certain to impact the Orlando area, made the decision to close all campus services Friday at noon and evacuate the campus by 4:00 p.m.

For the 160 peer mentors and resident assistants on campus who had nowhere to go, the Cornell Campus Center served as their emergency shelter while Charley swept through.

Rollins did not incur any significant structural damage; however, they were left without power for quite some time. The campus also lost several trees and was covered with debris blown about by the storm.

As soon as the storm passed, administrators, facilities management, and student leaders swung into action to survey the damage and begin repairs.

Ann Marie Varga, Asst. VP of Public Relations, said, "We sustained minimal damage, but there was a lot of cleanup effort, and the facilities department was particularly wonderful in the time they invested making sure we got the campus back in order."

Cara Meixner, Director of Student Involvement, worked with the student leaders, remarking, "The Resident Assistants and peer mentors have pitched in above and beyond, calling every new and returning student to let them know about changes. As a thank you, they all were treated to Universal Studios."

Now that the storm has passed and recovery efforts are nearing completion, Rollins plans to resume normal operations and kick off the 2004-2005 school year as originally planned, only a few days later.

But for those who weathered the storm, it will be an experience not soon forgotten.

I woke up Saturday morning behind the IC desk of the Campus Center sometime around 5:00 in the morning... I couldn't tell, because my cell phone had died and there was no power except to generate some light. I shuffled around to find something to drink or someone to chat with, and I found both... the Dining Services staff was up and had hot coffee and tea available, and there were other troopers up and at it as well. Lots of students, including RAs, Peer Mentors, and others, began waking up from their slumber, and members of the administration and staff and their families were all up by the time a hot breakfast was served.

I cannot even begin to tell you how impressed I was with the way the community came together to get through one of Rollins's toughest times. The campus Emergency Team was outstanding. Campus Safety handled things extremely well and put in some really long hours, and Residential Life made sure all the students could get back into their rooms the next morning. The Dining Services members were amazing, providing food for all meals for both the campus community and the Winter Park community - Winter Park Police and Fire Department members oftentimes swung by to take a break at Rollins. As a student forced to evacuate to the Campus Center, it was quite a relief having campus administrators and staff such as the President and Vice Presidents toughing it out with us. IT and Facilities were definitely on the ball, giving the Emergency crew all of the services they needed.

A few of us ventured out to sneak a peek at Rollins once the sun came up. Trees were snapped in half as if they were twigs, and leaves and branches covered the sidewalks. The whole campus was green. I will never forget the experience for as long as I live - it was surreal. Power was gone for days, but we "rolled with the punches," a phrase that came up over and over throughout the week. The Peer Mentors definitely stepped up by calling all Arts & Sciences students, updating them with Orientation and move-in changes. Facilities had this place looking ten times better within days. Despite the power outage, IT helped us tons by getting us all the information we needed to call everyone. The Rollins community was sort of knocked down, but everyone got back up with the help of one another, no complaints or anything. Somehow, I suppose by working until midnight every night, we're making Orientation happen.

So if you were part of this experience and helped in getting through a really difficult week, I just wanted to thank you. I know I didn't mention everybody involved, but you all deserve a huge pat on the back. If there's anything I've learned in this experience, it's that we've got a great family here, and no matter what happens, we can get through it one way or another.

REVISED 2004 ORIENTATION SCHEDULE

Editor's note: As of press time, power is still not restored to some areas of the campus, which may affect some times and locations. Please listen and watch for announcements and updates to this schedule.

Welcome Back!

A Word From the President

Dr. Lewis Duncan took office as Rollins' 14th president on August 1. The former dean of Dartmouth College's Thayer School of Engineering has also served as provost and senior vice president for academic affairs at the University of Tulsa. He earned his bachelor's degree in physics and mathematics and his master's and doctorate in space physics from Rice University in Houston. President Duncan continues to conduct research, and his current interests include experimental space plasma physics, radiophysics, and technology and public policy.

On behalf of the entire Rollins academic community, I am delighted to extend a warm welcome to our new and returning students. I share many of the feelings of the members of the Class of 2008 and students transferring from other colleges and universities. Like you, I am learning my way around campus, meeting new people, and getting to know about Rollins. I have described my plan for my first days as the college's new president as "hitting the ground listening." I do, indeed, plan to listen carefully, and also to ask many questions. I encourage all of our new students to do the same.

I am asked frequently what drew me to Rollins, and I imagine that much of what I liked about the college also appealed to you: a welcoming academic community committed to student-centered liberal education, a dynamic faculty dedicated to quality teaching, and a supportive campus environment. The people I met during my visits last spring—students, faculty, and staff—impressed me with the ways they enjoyed one another and responded to one another, much like an extended family. This type of community creates a safe environment for earnest intellectual inquiry and a diversity of perspectives and opinions, requisites for the type of education we strive to provide. Each of us shares together in the responsibility for keeping our campus community strong and vital.

This fall, I will begin holding a weekly "open office" at the Cornell Campus Center for all members of our Rollins community to stop by and share with me your thoughts, ideas, hopes, concerns, and needs. I look forward to meeting many of you there over the months to come. Please watch The Sandspur for announcement of the times.

As we step across the threshold into this yet young 21st century, the year ahead promises exciting opportunities for shared learning and service. We also will take this time to reaffirm Rollins' many traditions, and to build new friendships for the future. I ask each of you to be not merely a spectator, but an engaged participant in the active life of the College. Together we will celebrate our shared experiences at Rollins.

Best wishes for a successful academic year!

Welcome From SGA President

YOUR PRESIDENT:
Incoming SGA president
Pierce Neinken.

On behalf of the current student body, I would like to welcome all of the incoming students. Congratulations, for you are now part of our Rollins Community. You may proudly refer to yourself as a Rollins student.

You may ask yourself, why be so proud to call yourself a Rollins student? This is because you are now a student with arguably more opportunities in front of you than most colleges and universities have to offer. Here at Rollins your potential to make change ends only at the limit of your own initiative. If you want it to happen, there is a way for you here at Rollins.

Whether you want to plan a party at the pool or meet one-on-one with one of our first-rate professors, it's all at your fingertips. Rollins is an evolving environment, constantly changing to meet the needs of its students. If you have concerns about how something is being done here, please don't hesitate to be proactive; change is always just around the corner.

As president of the Student Government Association, I have the privilege and honor of representing our exceptional student body. Rollins students are uniquely diverse, in that everyone is different while still being able to unite in a close knit community. If anyone ever tells you that there is a typical Rollins student they are lying to you. Students at our college are all different.

They all have their own story and their own perspective. I encourage you to step out of your comfort zone and learn just how much your fellow students have to offer you. We are all united in this opportunity to share an amazing place.

As I mentioned before, the only thing you need in order to make Rollins work for you is a bit of initiative. If you want to create change just let the people around you know. I, along with my talented Vice-President Chrissy Cardinell, am dedicated to helping you make Rollins a college in which we as students take pride.

I strongly encourage you to get involved with campus organizations, particularly the student government association. S.G.A. is a very powerful voice on this campus. It is your voice, so let it be heard. If nothing else, please let me know what concerns you; I am determined to help students feel satisfied with our college community. You can reach me at Pninken@rollins.edu or you can call me at ext. 6346. The relationships you forge and experiences you share at Rollins will make up the foundation upon which you live the rest of your life. Put everything into the time you have here and be proud of the fact that you are a part of Rollins College.

A Warm Welcome

"There is just something special about this place." Every morning as I walk to work I find myself saying this, sometimes out loud. Morning is a great time to see Rollins. It's beautiful, fresh, and full of promise. But then the night is also a good time to see Rollins. The day has been packed with activities—classes, athletic practices, meetings and so many programs one simply could not go to even a quarter of them. After a full day, we rest to start again.

A day in the life of a college, its students, its faculty and its staff. And we are all here for the same reason. We are here because we believe there is nothing more important in the world than the education and development of the future generation of its citizen leaders.

It seems in many ways that our world needs you now more than ever. So our job is to do everything we can to assist you in realizing your dreams. Whether you are a biologist, actor, psychologist or environmentalist, you have an important role to play in our future.

We promise that we will do everything possible to help you along the way. But there are many things that you can do yourself to help make this a great experience. Get to know as many people as possible, people different than you. Get involved in the life of this community. Respect and trust others; you'll find they respect and trust you. Study hard, work hard, and have fun!

If there is anything we can do, please call on us. We want to help make these the greatest years of your life!

What's New in Information Technology

■ An informative update of IT's efforts to give students effective resources.

by Heather A.H. Smith
information technology

Welcome, new and returning students! The Information Technology department is here to make sure that you have access to the computer technology you need for learning and researching at Rollins. Here are some of the new kinds of technology on campus.

FoxLink (formerly Campus Pipeline)

Campus Pipeline has been updated and is now called FoxLink. The name FoxLink was chosen by a majority vote from students, faculty, and staff. The naming contest was held over the summer months and received several hundred e-mail responses. The winner of the contest was Prof. Bob Lemon, who won a $25 gift certificate to the bookstore. The new look and feel of FoxLink is designed to bring the Rollins user community into the latest web portal technology and offers features like calendars, web e-mail, groups, targeted announcements, chat, and academic services (such as course catalog, grades, transcripts, registration). Foxlink also provides the latest news stories, stock quotes, sports scores, and other information services.

New Campus Network and Internet line

Over the summer, the entire Rollins network was upgraded to a much faster Cisco-brand network. Our Internet connection is now six times faster than last year's. This should provide much smoother network services to everyone on campus. The new network has built-in virus and worm protection so be sure you have an updated virus program (such as Norton's) on your computer. If the network determines that your machine is compromised either for viruses or illegal file sharing, it will automatically disconnect it from the network. Please contact the Help Desk if you have questions about this.

As a reminder, Internet service is provided for students in Dave's Down Under and on the front and back Campus Center patios, which is a great asset for students on the move.

Register for network access

Students will need to register for network access in order to get the faster Internet speed and access to AIM and other programs. To obtain this service, click on the RESNET icon on the Rollins Home Page by September 1.

Wireless networking at Rollins College

Residence halls will have wireless and wired network connections by mid-September; the largest buildings will have this access when you arrive. You'll receive more information from Information Technology on how to access this. Also, during the early fall, Cornell Social Sciences, the Olin Library, the Cornell Campus Center and a large part of Bush Science Center will also have wireless access.

New events calendar

A new plasma screen above the Information Desk in the Cornell Campus Center, the large screen in Dave's Down Under, and another screen in the Olin Library will display campus events. The new Rollins Home Page also shows a list of current campus activities and dates.

Viruses and Spam (junk e-mail)

The job of Information Technology is to make life for the Rollins community more convenient in terms of technology and to protect the community from the threat of computer viruses. The problem of viruses being transmitted via e-mail attachments is a global one. It is extremely important that the Rollins community is aware of the dangers of opening attachments from senders that they don't know or don't trust. E-mails that are received from unknown senders should not be opened, and they should be automatically deleted. There is no need to open an e-mail from someone you don't know. Don't feel the need to be polite because it could just cause an undue amount of stress when your computer is corrupted as a result of virus infiltration.

Also regarding e-mail, there are the unfortunate hackers who have found the time and energy to create e-mail that looks legitimate. The e-mails are usually sent from the phony address administrator@rollins.edu but e-mails can be sent from other phony addresses that are disguised as legitimate. The address administrator@rollins.edu does not exist. Rollins I.T. staff will never ask you to click on links with ZIP files or ask for your password or ID via e-mail; don't be fooled by outsiders who may try to do this. You are now forewarned.

Once in your life
you get the chance

Holt Students

■ The Sandspur launches a new section devoted to the evening/week-end community.

by Brian Hernandez
production manager

Greetings, my fellow Holties. Beginning with this first issue of The Sandspur for the 2004-2005 school year, we will be introducing a new segment within our illustrious pages that will focus on the news, events and people that make the Rollins College Hamilton Holt School so unique.

Each week, Holt News will provide the latest information from Holt School administrators, insights and explorations by our talented faculty, as well as submissions from students reflecting on their experiences.

The Holt program is comprised with individuals with backgrounds and personalities that are as diverse as they are numerous. Holt News will serve as a resource to help forge a sense of community amongst this melting-pot of parents, professionals and degree-seeking dreamers.

In the process, this new section of The Sandspur will also provide a long overdue connection between the Arts & Sciences Students and the evening/weekend degree seekers that would normally be lost to the nuances of commuting and daily responsibilities.

The Sandspur's chief goal each week is to enlighten, entertain, and inform. Through this new endeavor we hope to encourage dialogue between communities and individuals that otherwise may not exist; we may all attend classes at different times, but we face many of the same academic and personal challenges.

For those new to campus or those looking to further connect with different people, don't forget that Holt students have access to just about every extracurricular activity the Rollins College campus has to offer. From joining a variety of clubs to training as an on-air DJ at the campus radio station (WPRK 91.5 FM), opportunities abound on this campus and are limited only by your desire to be involved. I encourage you to take advantage and have fun. You may just end up as member of the editorial staff of The Sandspur.

So turn to Holt News every week for student and faculty spotlights, program information, and insights from students just like you who have an interesting story to share.

A Word From the Hamilton Holt SGA President

Dear Holt Students,

Welcome to Rollins College on behalf of the Hamilton Holt Student Government Association. I would like to welcome you. We are looking forward to an exciting school year full of new plans and many fun activities. The HHSGA is here to help with any of your school needs, and is interested in building a stronger community for our Hamilton Holt Student. We look forward to seeing you at our meetings and events this year - for more information please visit our Web site www.rollins.edu/holt/hhsga

Area college student dating self

THINGS ARE REALLY STARTING TO HEAT UP

Eric Peterson, top, has one of many romantic dinners with himself at their favorite restaurant.

By LISA CHENEY

Local college student Eric Peterson recently announced that he's entered a committed relationship—with himself. Peterson vehemently denied rumors that the two were dating other people. "We're totally committed to each other. We've never been happier." When asked what prompted the campus heartthrob to take himself off the market, he chalked it up in large part to his current financial situation, claiming that monthly fees from his checking account were making it too expensive for him to date around. "It was partly a cost-effective decision on my part, but it's been really nice for us to spend more time together." Peterson was apparently unaware of Free Checking from Washington Mutual. It's an account with no monthly fees and the option to add Deluxe services like free online bill pay. And he could have gotten Free Checking just by visiting a Washington Mutual Financial Center, then signed up for online bill pay at wamu.com. "Dang," said Peterson, "if I had known about Free Checking Deluxe, my current dating situation would be different. I probably wouldn't have settled down with someone so soon."

Get to Know the Olin Library

■ Here are a few tips to utilizing the many resources available at the Olin Library.

by Dorothy Mays

olin library public services

It has often been said that the library is the intellectual center of a college campus. The Olin Library provides access to over 300,000 books, thousands of online resources, and great study spaces.

Beyond serving as your source for research, the library is the place to visit when you wish to check out a video, need a quiet study space, want to surf the web, or even satisfy a late-night craving for a cup of coffee.

Perhaps most importantly, it is always a great place to turn when you need academic help. Librarians are happy to help students navigate through your most challenging assignments.

Here are a few things you should know about the Olin Library:

1. Your R-card is your library card.
2. Laptop computers may be checked out for use inside the building.
3. Private study rooms are available for group study sessions.

4. A multimedia area is equipped with the latest technology, including scanners, color printers, DVD burners, and video-editing programs.

5. Librarians are available to guide students who are unfamiliar with the research process or need help tackling an assignment.

6. The library is open Sunday through Thursday until midnight and until 6:00 pm on Friday and Saturday. A late night study area is available for computing and studying.

7. The Bookmark Café offers gourmet coffee from 3:00-10:00 pm, Monday through Thursday.

(about 1 hour northwest of Rollins), at the Florida Elks Youth Camp, which includes air-conditioned cabins where the participants will be staying overnight. The center is located on a lake, and there are facilities for swimming, softball, basketball, and volleyball. The camp is the headquarters for the Florida Elks organization.

The retreat will be held between September 10 and 12. The group will leave from Mills Lawn on charter buses on Friday, September 10, at 5:00 pm. They will return on Sunday, September 12, at approximately 2:00 p.m.

This retreat is free for the participants, and students can sign up for the retreat through the Office of Student Involvement and Leadership at Chase Hall.

Making The Most Of First Year

■ The freshman experience: Fairy tale or scary tale?

by Jami Furo

copy editor

So, you're a freshman. Congratulations! You've made it through the admissions process, and possibly financial aid, and here you are.

You're ready for college (because it sure beats high school), but you may be a little nervous about what exactly you're going to face. You're away from your family, in a school where there is a good chance that you don't know a single person. You're more on your own than you've ever been, most likely. So what's going to happen to you?

So you show up on check-in day. You walk into the campus center, and a barrage of people at various tables push different items at you that you will need for your college experience. They'll give you a class schedule, a room key, a mail box number and combination, a voice mail number.

You're still going through all of that in your head, trying to keep it all straight, but now there are more pressing matters at hand. You have to move every item that you have ever owned since your birth, and many that your parents have bought you just for the occasion, into a small cinder block room that you are sharing with a person that you have never seen before in your life. Personally, I had never shared a room with anyone before—not even a sibling. You might be in that situation as well, and it could be intimidating.

This meeting could go either way. You might get along really well, you might not. You might like different kinds of music. Maybe you differ on politics. Maybe your dorm decorations clash. Maybe you're exactly the same in every single way imaginable, and that's enough to totally drive both of you nuts.

But maybe you're meeting your future best friend. You can't tell at first, but either way, you have to make the best of it. Give your roommate a chance. It's a stressful time in general, but try your best to at least get along with the person occupying the other half of your living space. If things don't work out after you've attempted to make it work, room changes are possible after the first two weeks. Until then, just relax and try to get along.

The next day, you will attend your first college class: your Rollins Conference Course. This is likely either in your intended area of study or a part of the Honors Program. Either way, it's a course specifically geared for class discussion.

This was one of my favorite classes that I took my first year, and this is why:

The major difference between college and high school is that in high school, you're told what to think, and when your teacher asks a question, you are expected to regurgitate the information to them. In college, your professor will ask you what you think. Don't be afraid to contradict your classmates or your professor. College is about hearing a variety of opinions, evaluating them, and then deciding what you believe. It's okay to disagree, and it adds a lot of depth to class discussions when you do.

I am notorious for this. People say that I would argue with a brick wall. If that's not your thing, then it's not your thing. But don't be afraid to speak your mind.

A few weeks after classes began my first year, a speaker came to the campus. He was an author named Paul Loeb. I had read his book, Soul of a Citizen, for my RCC class. While it wasn't my favorite book I had ever read, I agreed with many of the ideas in it, which mostly involved humanitarianism.

However, at the lecture, he used most of the time as a political soap box. I didn't appreciate his use of time anyway, but to make matters worse, I strongly disagreed with almost every word that came out of his mouth.

So I got in a bit of a debate with him. Now, by my own admission, I am not particularly skilled at effectively arguing, though I enjoy it immensely. Thinking before I speak is not really my forte, unfortunately. But even so, I feel that it is incredibly important to voice your opinion when the time is appropriate.

Not only did I argue with Mr. Loeb on that evening, I went back the next afternoon to hear his second lecture—and I argued with him again.

This may make you uncomfortable. My point is that you don't need to be afraid to voice your opinion or to disagree.

So you've got it together with your dorm, your roommate, your classes. The last and most important advice that I can give you is to have fun. Get involved in activities on campus, such as music, sports, Greek organizations, clubs, or whatever. Balance that with your class load so as not to overextend yourself. Make the right decisions, and don't be afraid to say no.

Enjoy your first year of college. Don't change your beliefs or personality for anyone, and this can be a wonderful growing experience for you.

I met some great friends and even my current boyfriend in this first year of college. I grew intellectually, socially, and spiritually. Good luck, and make the best out of the coming year.

Reflections On Reagan

■ One Rollins alum's experience with Reagan.

by Paul Vonder Heide

contributing writer

On March 8, 1983 I spent the day with President Ronald Reagan here in Orlando, Florida.

At the time, I served as Student Government President of Rollins College in Winter Park, Florida and the White House called the college to ask for volunteers to assist with the President's visit.

After passing the Secret Service background check, I met members of the President's advance team the day prior to his visit. We then drove through the route the President would take the next day, first arriving at Orlando International Airport, then driving to the American Pavillion at Epcot, and then to the Sheraton

Twin Towers (now known as the Doubletree Orlando across from Universal Studios). I was told that my responsibilities were to drive my car in the President's motorcade and direct the White House Press where to set up their cameras at the two venues where the President would speak. I was given a special pin to wear for access to the areas where President Reagan would be speaking.

It was pouring rain that day, and some of us were concerned because President Reagan's speech at Epcot was scheduled to be outdoors. I remember Ed Murnane, head of the White House Press Advance, saying to us, "It never rains on Reagan."

The next day was a beautiful, bright, warm Central Florida day, and Mr. Murnane exclaimed, "This is Reagan weather!"

Little did I know then that historians would note the day as perhaps one of the top three most historic dates of the Reagan presidency (the Berlin Wall speech and the D.C. assassination attempt being the others).

Driving in the Presidential motorcade was a thrill for me, and I just hoped that my 1971 Chevy Impala had at least enough miles left in it to get through the day. We arrived at Epcot near the American Pavillion. I got out of my car and walked to the America Gardens Theater, and directed the press where to set up their cameras after they had finished leaving their bus. I remember the thrill I felt when they announced, "Ladies and Gentlemen, the President of the United States!" Hail to the Chief played as President Reagan walked in smiling and waving along with Disney executive Dick Nunis. President Reagan spoke to a group of honor students with the World Showcase Lagoon and the huge Space Ship Earth silver sphere as his backdrop there. Soon we were back in the motorcade to the Sheraton.

There I again showed the press where to set up their cameras and stood towards the back of the Citrus Crown Ballroom as President Reagan delivered his now famous "Evil Empire" speech to the National Association of Evangelicals, where he denounced the Soviet Union and predicted that government's demise. As he finished his speech to a standing ovation, I walked to the front of the room and waited as he stepped down and shook hands with those crowded near the stage. A few seconds later, I felt his hand grip mine. I will always remember.

May God Bless President Reagan and may God Bless America.

THE HOT SPOT: ROLLINS TOP 10 WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE

So you've driven in, unpacked all you own in the world, been hustled and hustled from one repetitive orientation session to another, and for the first time after a week of insanity you've finally been given an afternoon/day/weekend off to explore the town with your new-found friends. But wait, one major problem—you're car-less and don't know where to start.

Well, no worries. Your friendly staffers here at the Sandspur are here to give you our tried and true list of Rollins' Top 10 Hot Spots. You may need a few bucks in cab fare for a few of these, but trust us, it's well worth it!

10. Starbucks - located on Park Ave. Starbucks is that American staple that will remind you that whether a Californian or Minnesotan at heart there is always a piece of home close by. What better way to finish off a good salad and soup lunch at Panera?

9. Katmandu - This hippyish mix of middle eastern art, strange instruments and beautiful jewelry located on one of Park's many side streets is just what you'll need to balance the country club class of the Rollins campus. Who doesn't need some help finding their inner chi?

8. Regal Cinemas - Inside Winter Park Square this plush movie theatre with fold up armrests shows the latest and greatest movies at a discounted rate to Rollins students with ID. Removable armrests = "cuddle seats" = great for first dates with that hottie from Orientation.

7 and/or 6. The Cheesecake Factory/PF Changs - Great cuisine after a good movie is a must, but we just couldn't decide a favorite from these two great Winter Park Square eateries. How about both? Lo Mien and chocolate truffle cheesecake? Uh, maybe not...

5. EB Games - For all you console addicts who haven't seen the sun since 1997, rest assure that you can always keep up on your gameage at this hot spot in the Winter Park Square. God help us when Halo 2 comes out soon and the grades start dropping.

4. Big Daddy's Pub - Thursday night. College Night. Anyone eighteen and up admitted. Pool. Karaoke ALL NIGHT LONG. Need I say more?

3. Roxy Nightclub - Close, convenient and a rocking (or is that rapping? Hip-hopping?) good time. Great atmosphere and a must for out-of-town dance club junkies that's just a ten dollar cab ride away. Shake and swerve and hump those school blues away.

2. Downeast - Right on the corner of Park and Fairbanks this preppy and posh icon is a must for the latest line of Ralph polos to pop, Lily skirts to sway, and flip flops to flaunt. Constantly restocked so you'll never miss a beat looking like everyone else on campus.

And when all else fails...

1. Rollins' Swimming Pool - Grab a delicious (and R-Card swipe-able) smoothie made by the incredible Ms. Mac and staff at the Grill and head on out to catch some Florida rays with about 50 other of your fellow Rollins students. And really, isn't the year-round sun, freedom, and cool drinks the reason you came here anyway?

Baseball Team Attends World Series

■ Tars capped off a successful year with a trip to the NCAA Final Four.

by Heather Williams
copy editor

At the beginning of the 2003-2004 season, the players on the Rollins College baseball team knew they had what it took to win. They were confident because of their previous performances, excited about the young players that were coming in as an asset to the team, and hopeful for what the season would hold. But the main question in all of their minds was if they could actually do it. Could they continue to win and perform as well as they all wanted? The answer was yes. They not only won, but they won big.

After enduring a year of practices, training, and months of games, the home stretch was near. The end of the year was winding down, final exams were approaching, and everyone was preparing to go home for the summer. Everyone, that is, except the men of the Rollins Baseball Team. They made it clear from the very beginning that they were not going anywhere. After winning the SSC Conference in April, Rollins went on to host the NCAA South Regional Conference at the Alford Stadium in May. During this conference, the Tars defeated Catawba, Tampa, and Florida Southern to emerge as the number one standing team.

This number one position granted the Tars a spot in the College World Series in Montgomery, Alabama, a feat that has not been accomplished since 1989.

The Tars played four games in the World Series, losing the last one to Grand Valley State. However, the strength the team showed throughout the previous three games was unparalleled to anything they have ever displayed before. As Mike Crane, a sophomore pitcher for the Tars, states about the success of the team, "The main key in our season last year was the depth we had in our lineup. We had our starters, but not a set lineup every time. Every player would do the job as well as the starters would. There is no weak link on our team and no matter who we put in they would greatly help and serve as a valuable asset."

This attribute that the Tars hold makes it clear why they had such an incredibly victorious season. Losing four seniors who made such a huge impact on the team, the Tars look forward to the young players that will be coming. The team begins fall practice in early September, and the promise that this year's team holds for success is anticipated by all.

Rollins Golf Wins Second Straight

■ Tars take top honors at the NCAA Division II National Championships.

by Dean Hybl
faculty advisor

The Rollins College women's golf team won their second consecutive NCAA Division II National Championship by firing a school-record 294 during the final round. Sophomore NGCA Player of the Year Charlotte Campbell repeated as the individual champion by shooting a two under par 70 for a four-round score of 299. The title marks the second NCAA women's golf title for Rollins and ninth women's golf national championship in school history.

The Tars tallied a four-round score of 1196, 68 strokes ahead of second place finishers Ferris State and Florida Southern. The Tars had all five of their competitors finish in the top seven. Senior Freddie Seeholzer shot a 73 to move into second place and finish one stroke behind Campbell with a 300. Sophomore Mariana De Biase, who led after three rounds, finished tied for third place with a 303. Florida Southern's Pamela Feggans also shot a 303. Junior Ulrika Ljungman finished in fifth place with a 305 and senior Sabrina Gassner shot a 307, tied for sixth place with Western New Mexico's Kristen Kennedy.

Fall Sports At A Glance

MEN'S SOCCER PICKED THIRD IN SSC

The Rollins College men's soccer team has been picked to finish third according to the preseason poll of the Sunshine State Conference coaches and sports information directors. Defending NCAA Champion Lynn University was selected as the likely league champion with Barry University as second.

Last season the Tars posted a 14-3-3 record and reached the NCAA Division II Championships for the first time in 20 years. Leading the way is All-American defender Daniell Robertson, who is a strong defensive player and also led the team with 12 assists a year ago. Sophomore Chris Cerroni, the SSC Freshman of the Year, led the Tars with 11 goals and 29 points in 2003. Junior Ryan Dodds scored 10 goals last season while senior David Pitt added four goals. Anchoring the defense is senior Ben Munson, a two time All-SSC selection, and junior David Dwyer.

The Tars open the season August 27 at Southern Connecticut. They will open play in the new Barker Soccer Stadium on September 3 against Montevallo.

VOLLEYBALL TO FINISH FOURTH IN SSC

The Rollins volleyball team was picked to finish fourth in the Sunshine State Conference according to the preseason selections of conference sports information directors and coaches. The University of Tampa was picked second with Florida Southern third.

Rollins has finished fourth in the conference in each of the last two seasons. Last season they finished with a 7-7 conference record and 15-20 overall mark. Junior Allison North, an honorable mention All-SSC pick a year ago, is the leading returner. Sophomore Ami Fox was a member of the SSC All-Freshman team a year ago while junior setter Megan LeBlanc established a new school record with 1,385 assists.

The Tars open the 2004 season by hosting the Rollins Invitational August 27-28. Rollins will face Mars Hill at 1 p.m. on Friday, August 27, in their first match of the season.

WOMEN'S SOCCER PICKED FOURTH IN SSC

The Rollins College women's soccer team has been picked to finish fourth in the Sunshine State Conference according to the preseason vote of conference sports information directors and coaches. Defending conference champion Barry University was picked first, followed by the University of Tampa, Saint Leo and Rollins.

The Tars return five All-SSC players from a squad that finished with a 13-6 overall record and 4-3 mark in the conference a year ago. Junior Laura Guild was the top scorer last season with 23 points. Jordan Ward and Whitney Chamberlin each had 13 points while senior Keri Dye added eight points despite getting a late start to the season due to a previous injury. The defense was strong a year ago with nine shutouts, and sophomores Lindsey Taylor and Fran Nicoloso return.

After opening their season with a pair of games in Tampa, the Tars will host Montevallo on Friday, September 3, in the opening game in the new Barker Soccer Stadium.

Welcome Back, Rollins!

Rollins Welcomes Lewis M. Duncan, The College's 14th President

Lewis M. Duncan, Rollins' 14th president, took office on August 1, 2004. Born in West Virginia and later raised in Texas, Dr. Duncan (he actually prefers to be called Lewis), is a self-described member of the "Sputnik Generation." His childhood fascination with satellites and the space program guided his educational and career paths. And while today Duncan is literally a rocket scientist, he is remarkably down to Earth. Warm, friendly and approachable, he was attracted to Rollins because of the College's commitment to excellence, innovation and community. He believes in the value of a liberal arts education and that Rollins has an important role to play on the national stage in raising the issue of how to make liberal education relevant for the 21st century.

Fortunately for Rollins College, it was the right place at the right time. At a point in his career when he was considering a college presidency, Lewis

Duncan had turned down offers from other schools. "There are still more than enough presidential vacancies where someone is needed to save the institution," said Duncan. "But I didn't want to do that. Rollins is a school that's in excellent health financially, great shape physically and poised to move to higher levels of national academic quality. I believe you make the big decisions with your heart, and this just felt right."

With an Ivy League lineage—he led Dartmouth's Thayer School of Engineering for the past six years with great success—Duncan was Rollins' first choice to be the next president of the College. His election by the Rollins College Board of Trustees culminated a six-month national search that drew more than 200 applications.

"Lewis Duncan promises to build on the strong foundation and hard work of the Rollins presidents who preceded him," said Frank Barker, chairman of the Rollins Board. "We are confident that under his leadership, Rollins can advance to the next level of academic excellence and national recognition."

When asked about his immediate plans for Rollins, Duncan answered, "My plan is to listen. I'll listen and ask questions ... and actually those are two very different things." For the long term, he said, "I would like to leave Rollins a better place than it is today, and that's quite a challenge because it's a wonderful place today. I think a new president has an opportunity to revisit how things are done ... in many cases reaffirm our traditions and in some cases find new ways of doing things that are different because the times are different."

Duncan received his bachelor's degree in physics and mathematics and his master's and doctorate in space physics from Rice University in Houston. As a National Science Foundation post-doctoral fellow, he conducted research at the National Astronomy and Ionosphere Center in Puerto Rico. He subsequently joined the Los Alamos National Laboratory as a research scientist, and later became a section head in the Division of Earth and Space Sciences. Following service as associate dean of the College of Sciences at Clemson University, where he was founding director of the South Carolina Space Grant Consortium, Duncan held positions of dean, provost, senior vice president and acting president of the University of Tulsa.

Duncan's achievements during his tenure as Dean of the Thayer School of Engineering at Dartmouth included: significant growth and greater diversity of the School's student body, faculty, staff and Board of Overseers; enhanced research opportunities for both faculty and students, including a near tripling of externally funded research; doubling the annual fund and planned giving programs and increasing alumni participation rates to nearly 50 percent; conservative financial planning leading to substantial annual fiscal surpluses; and a strategic planning process guiding selective faculty growth and major facility expansion and renovation.

Duncan believes the coming years are certain to be ones of extraordinary change, challenge and opportunity in higher education. "The world has never faced greater need for quality liberal education for a rising generation of citizen leaders," he said. "Rollins College is exceptionally well positioned to answer this call, and I look forward to sharing in leadership service as Rollins' president."

Rollins Athletes Achieve Grand Success

Wins Achieved Both In and Out of the Classroom

In the rich history of intercollegiate athletics at Rollins College, the 2003-2004 school year was indeed "one for the ages." The student-athletes established many new records on various fields of play, as well as in the classroom.

The Tars finished sixth among the 282 schools in National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division II in the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics

(NACDA) Directors' Cup standings. The only private college in the top 10, Rollins had the smallest enrollment of any school in the top 10 and was the highest finishing school from the South or East. Director's

Cup points are awarded based on success in NCAA Tournament competition and Rollins had eight teams reach NCAA post-season play during the 2003-2004 school year. The women's golf team claimed the NCAA Championship. The baseball, men's tennis and men's basketball teams all finished in the top five. The Tars also earned points in men's soccer, softball and women's tennis.

The water-ski team, which does not compete in the NCAA but is part of the Collegiate National Water-ski Association, claimed the Division II Collegiate National Championship for the second straight year.

Rollins also claimed the championship in both the men's and women's Sunshine State Conference (SSC) Mayor's Cup standings for the second straight year. The Tars earned a school record five SSC

What is a Tar?

Centuries ago, during the age of tall sailing ships, British sailors were known as "Tars." Rollins connection with the Tars began in WWI when a small Navy vessel was stationed on Lake Virginia, which borders half the Rollins campus. With the war leaving only 10 male students at Rollins, attention shifted to the snappy uniformed male trainees going about their duties. The girls called them "Tars." Before then, Rollins' varsity teams had been called the "Blue and Gold," but soon the new title was adopted.

The new Cahall-Sandspur Field and Barker Family Stadium is an exciting addition that should help elevate the already outstanding soccer programs at Rollins. The new field and stadium are the third and final enhancements to the Rollins entranceway—the first formal entrance ever for the 119-year-old College. Together with the McKean Gateway and the Rinker Building, the new Cahall-Sandspur Field and Barker Family Stadium create a grand entrance and strengthen the College's ties to the Winter Park community.

Championships and also won 74.2 percent of all athletic contests during the school year.

In addition to great successes on the playing fields, the Tars also enjoyed the finest academic grade point average (GPA) ever posted by the student-athletes. Rollins' 270 student-athletes registered a GPA of 3.16 during the spring 2004 semester and 65 percent of all student-athletes had a GPA of 3.0 or higher. For the school year, Rollins student-athletes had a GPA of 3.13, which established a new school year record for the department.

"It truly was a remarkable year for our student-athletes," said Director of Athletics Dr. J. Phillip Roach. Roach was recently touted in the Orlando Sentinel for not

Student Achievements

Cherie Ramirez received an honorable mention and was selected as the only academic "all star" at a southeastern comprehensive college or university by USA Today. Each year, the All USA College Academic Team honors 60 undergraduates as representatives of all outstanding students at the nation's colleges and universities. Ramirez was also one of two Rollins students named as a winner of the prestigious Goldwater Scholarship during the 2002-03 school year.

Lara Bueso was honored as a National Hispanic Youth Winner during the 17th Annual Hispanic Heritage Awards on NBC. Bueso was featured as the National Hispanic Award Winner for Journalism. She is one of six students from across the country who were honored. Among many other accomplishments, Bueso started her own non-profit company called "4 My Students" when she was 15. Today, the organization distributes school supplies donated from large companies to public schools in Miami-Dade County.

Bornstein Embraces New Role

Dr. Rita Bornstein, who concluded her 14-year presidency of Rollins College this summer, will remain associated with the College as George D. and Harriet W. Cornell Professor of Philanthropy and Leadership Development. Following a sabbatical, she will contribute to leadership education efforts throughout the College. She also plans to continue conducting research and writing about leadership issues.

"I am delighted to continue my relationship with this wonderful College," said Bornstein, who was also named President Emerita. "I look forward to working with President Duncan as he guides Rollins in the next phase of its extraordinary history."

Habitat for Humanity – Students Help Make a House a Home

For the third year in a row, Rollins students gave back to the Winter Park community by pounding nails and painting walls to help a family build a home for a family in need. The seven-day Habitat for Humanity course includes time in the classroom and hard labor on home sites. In addition to working on two Habitat houses, the course also features classroom sessions on the history, core values and philosophy of the organization. The Winter Park-Maitland Habitat for Humanity affiliate and Rollins students have helped build 35 homes in Winter Park and Maitland.

Darwin Land

Thirteen Rollins students boarded a 93-foot Motor Sailer Trimaran this past May and set sail with guides and professors through the Caribbean Sea, where they visited nine of the Galapagos Islands. The students, all Sustainable Development minors, who completed a semester-long course on national parks and protected areas in the spring, viewed the islands' volcanoes and sea- and wildlife, such as birds, sea lions, penguins and whales. They also swam with huge sea turtles. Associate Professor of Environmental Studies Barry Allen, Dean of the Faculty Roger Casey, and his wife Robyn Allers, participated in the study trip. In this photo, the participants are checking out a nesting Swallow-tailed Gull, one of many bird species that exist only in the Galapagos Islands.

Alternative Spring Break – Students Get Down and Dirty

This past spring, eight Rollins students chose an alternative to normal Spring Break rituals by camping out for a cause. The alternative spring break project involved cleaning up Sebastian Inlet, IMPACT (a campus peer education group) students camped out at Sebastian Inlet State Park in Melbourne Beach for three nights and four days. During the day, they installed nature trail signs, cleaned up trails and the beach, and placed traps along two miles of beach to count the beach mice population. They cooked their own food, played cards and roasted s'mores in the evenings.

The IMPACT program encourages students to work together through community engagement to promote a sense of citizenship as well as community through service. Plans are in the works for a similar trip during Spring Break next year.

Exploring College Life

Thanks to a new effort at Rollins, incoming students now have more resources than ever to ensure their academic, social and community success. Rollins Explorations allows freshmen to control their own destiny and make the most of their college experience. "This innovative program enhances the first-year experience of students who are exploring who they are, what they value and what they want to do for their next four years here," said Assistant Director of Student Involvement & Leadership Doug Little. "It is thrilling to be part of this process and interact with the next generation of Tars."

The goal of the multi-faceted program is to integrate students into a curriculum of courses and programs both inside and outside of the classroom that help them learn, make connections and have fun. It all begins during Orientation Weekend with "Reach Out"—a community service project that familiarizes them with the Central Florida community. Students participate in various renovation and clean-up projects at several locations in an effort to make a positive difference in the lives of others.

A key component of Rollins Explorations is participation in a Rollins College Conference (RCC) course. The classes introduce students to academic life at the College and encourage participatory learning by offering a variety of interactive and one-of-a-kind courses. Thirty RCC classes, which cover a variety of special interest areas, are offered each semester and some of them include:

- Visions of Harry Potter
- Darkness Visible Radio
- Conversations Across Difference: Embracing the Power of Diversity
- Multicultural Thinking and Writing

Students are also assigned peer mentors and faculty members to guide them and help them get back on track if their grades begin to drop. Rollins Explorations is an integral part of the comprehensive offerings of the Office of Student Involvement & Leadership. With more than 70 student organizations and various leadership programs, Rollins students are able to explore all the possibilities.

sacrificing academic integrity by lowering standards to attract great athletes. "We believe in graduation and life preparation through athletics," Roach said. "A college degree is a ticket to a better future. Our student-athletes take great pride in being successful both in their athletic endeavors and in the classroom."

Roach is very proud of last year's accomplishments and knows it will be difficult to maintain such a high level of success. "But I am excited about the upcoming year," he shared, "as I know our student-athletes will continue to rise to the challenge."

The Heart of Rollins: A First-Class Faculty

A stellar faculty is Rollins' greatest resource and continually brings national recognition to the College. To honor our faculty's intellectual achievement, teaching excellence and dedication to learning, Rollins presented a number of awards last spring, including:

■ Bush Professor of Science Donald C. Griffin received The Bornstein Award for Faculty Scholarship, which recognizes a faculty member whose outstanding scholarly achievement or creative accomplishment has helped bring national prominence to the College.

■ Three new awards were established by the Board of Trustees of Rollins College in honor of Rollins' beloved alumnus and longtime trustee George Cornell, whose generous bequest made the awards possible. Recipients were: Crummer Graduate School of Business Professor J. Clay Singleton, who received Crummer's Cornell Distinguished Faculty Award; Assistant Professor of Sociology Rhonda Singer, who received the Cornell Distinguished Service Award; and Professor of Biology Eileen Gregory, who received the Cornell Distinguished Teaching Award.

■ Associate Professor of Physics Thomas Moore received the Hugh and Jeannette McKean Grant for his proposal entitled "International Collaboration in Musical Acoustics."

■ Rollins annually recognizes three faculty members as Arthur Vining Davis Fellows. Recipients were: Assistant Professor of Communication Lisa Tillmann-Healy, Associate Professor of Graduate Counseling Kathryn Norsworthy and Visiting Assistant Professor of Philosophy Ryan Musgrave.

■ Visiting Assistant Professor of English and Coordinator of Expository Writing Sean Butler received The Walter E. Barden Distinguished Teaching Award, which is presented annually by the Holt School Student Government Association to a faculty member who has demonstrated innovation and creativity in teaching and responsiveness, as well as commitment to adult learners.

■ Assistant Professor of Education Debra Wellman was chosen as the recipient of the Hugh F. McKean Award. The McKean Award recipient is annually selected by the senior class of Rollins to celebrate the art of quality instruction.

Hamilton Holt School The Right Choice for So Many

Individuals of all ages and diverse backgrounds gravitate to the evening degree program at Rollins' Hamilton Holt School for intellectual challenge, professional development and personal enrichment. Many work full time while managing college studies and a family. Recent graduates of the Holt School illustrate a diverse group of students drawn together by a common thread—the desire for personal growth and achievement.

Marge Betts, 58, received a master's degree in teaching, realizing a long-time dream. "I wanted to be a teacher before entering college in 1977," said Betts, who worked for more than 30 years as a customer service supervisor for various Florida companies. "But I couldn't afford to quit my job in order to do the one-year teaching internship required. I've always loved working with children." Betts now teaches first grade at the Hope Charter School in Winter Garden. "I'm doing what I always wanted to do."

Dientje Francis, 24, an undergraduate international student from the Commonwealth of Dominica in the West Indies, completed a bachelor's degree in English and psychology in four years and now aspires to law school and a doctorate in clinical psychology. An accomplished writer, she was named the outstanding senior of the Holt undergraduate class of 2004.

Francis enjoys the process of growth associated with education. "It's important to take on different roles and challenges in order to always move forward to become something other than who you are at the moment," Francis said. "If you aren't moving forward, you are dying."

Ann Moore, 66, a lifelong community activist and professional volunteer, returned to college seven years ago seeking a contrast to volunteer work. Articulate and energetic, Moore was one of five Central Floridians to receive the Jefferson Award in a national volunteer recognition program. Moore graduated in May with a master's degree in liberal studies.

"Volunteering can be a full-time job," Moore said. "I had the great fortune of not having to work—something few women have today," she said, "so I made a commitment to my family and community." Because her daughter has a developmental disability, Moore took a keen interest in Special Olympics for 10 years, and she served for six years on the Florida Developmental Disabilities Council.

Moore now devotes 30 hours each week as a volunteer governing board member of the St. Johns River Water Management District helping educate the public about environmental and water issues. "Most people really do not understand how critical the water issue is in Florida," she said. "When I was a kid, there were two million people in Florida. Now there are 15 million. We can't just keep sucking water out of the aquifer."

Harry Straight, 58, a freelance writer and "house husband," also received the master's degree in liberal studies in May. Involved in a book club with graduates of the program, he realized that going back to college would help him update his undergraduate education of 30 years ago. "So much has changed. It was a way to get back into a learning mode, and inspire my children to continue learning."

After working for 25 years as a newspaper reporter, Straight quit his job in 1990 to stay home with his two children, now 14 and 12.

"Every father should try reversing roles," he said. "What you get back is unbelievable. And being in a different role makes you more understanding of what women go through." Straight still has time to write, travel and play saxophone in a rock-and-roll band he formed five years ago. "I'm doing everything I want to do."

Rollins' Business School Serves Community

Programs in Executive Education, Entrepreneurship, Leadership and More Offer Students and Community Opportunities to Learn

Since its founding in 1957, Rollins' Crummer Graduate School of Business has served as a resource for Winter Park and the surrounding community. With the philosophy that life-long learning distinguishes successful people and organizations, the School continues to expand its reach into the community with education, training and services for everyone from small business owners to senior corporate executives.

Hosting Executives

Last year, the Crummer School's Management and Executive Education (M&EE) hosted more than 800 executives, managers and front-line employees from local and national companies through its public, Corporate University and custom programs. These successful individuals attended public programs in human resources, leadership, supervision, finance, management and sales. Others were involved with Corporate University, a strategic alliance between the M&EE and seven Central Florida-based companies, which is designed to meet the collective management development needs of member companies through the pursuit of common educational objectives. Embracing Leadership Excellence was a custom program designed for Darden's Olive Garden restaurants and offers restaurant and general managers from the U.S. and Canada opportunities to enhance their leadership skills in an interactive, dynamic learning environment that focuses on Olive Garden's guiding principles and commitment to their guests.

Serving Entrepreneurs

Historically, small- and mid-sized companies have been the economic drivers responsible for the majority of new jobs. This is particularly true in Central Florida where Rollins launched the Center for Entrepreneurship to better serve this critical sector. With a focus on established enterprises with significant growth potential and a strong entrepreneurial spirit, the Center has provided a variety of symposiums, lectures, workshops and networking opportunities to area entrepreneurs. The School also partnered with Dynetech Corporation to organize an Entrepreneur of the Year Award and founded a Student-Alumni Entrepreneurship Society, which includes more than 70 members.

Developing Leaders

Last year, the Center for Leadership Development was established to complement the curriculum and focus on character, communication skills and creative problem solving. Local and national executives came to campus to meet with students and provide a real-world perspective on decision making at the highest ranks of an organization. Students were given leadership assessments, one of which was developed by Crummer School Professors of Management James Higgins and Sam Certo, designed to measure and evaluate the effects of the MBA curriculum on the development of leadership skills. The purpose of the assessments was to outline areas for improvement and serve as a basis for program planning and curriculum development. Results were used in advising sessions with students, which helped ensure focused growth efforts. Given the targeted classroom teaching, workshops and individual advising, there has been an improvement across the board with each successive assessment.

In addition to discovering how factors such as personality and emotional intelligence shape their leadership style and career progression, students are offered an opportunity through the Leadership Center to participate in a defined certificate program, and a select few earned honors as Distinguished Leaders of Merit.

Offering Real-World Experience

Crummer School students receive real-world experience with practical projects called "Global and Domestic Practica," which are the cornerstone to practical learning at the School. Companies identify a project in such areas as finance, accounting, marketing, business-plan preparation, general business research, operations and organizational issues. A team of students then spends 12 weeks learning about the project and offers suggestions for improvements. Last year, more than 130 students and 30 companies, including CNL, Coca Cola, Bank of America, Gaylord Palms and Middleton Pest Control, participated in this program. One such project involved Winter Park's PCE Investment Bankers. Several teams of students designed the PCE Florida Index, the first-ever index to measure the performance of Florida's small, publicly-traded companies. Another team of students helped the City of Winter Park conduct a sister-city evaluation to find international cities that might make good partners for our city.

Extremities, November 12-20, 2004 • Written by William Mastrosimone and directed by Thomas Ouellette. This gripping drama explores the consequences when an assaulted woman takes matters into her own hands. What happens when a person is pushed to extremes—and whose side will you take?

Twelfth Night, February 18-26, 2005 • Written by William Shakespeare and directed by David Charles. One of the Bard's best romps conjures up a combustible mix of mistaken identity, madness and misdirected passion. This not-so-traditional romantic comedy boasts some of Shakespeare's most memorable characters and quotable repartee!

A Day in Hollywood / A Night in the Ukraine, April 22-30, 2005 • Book and lyrics by Dick Vosburgh, music by Frank Lazarus, and directed by W. Robert Sherry and Thomas Ouellette. This charming and tuneful "double feature" opens at Grauman's Chinese Theatre with a loving tribute to the movie musicals of the 1930s. Zany Act Two is a (very) loose adaptation of Chekhov's The Bear as interpreted by the Marx Brothers. This magical evening opens with a loving celebration of vintage Hollywood and closes with the trademark schtick of the cinema's greatest clowns!
