Students, workers protest Burger King

Farmworkers want more pay, labor code

Representatives from the Coalition of Immokalee Workers came to campus Friday to speak out against Burger King.

The CIW is a worker-based organization that campaigns for the rights of farmworkers. Students at UCF have been involved in the effort since 2004.

The representatives explained that farmworkers from Immokalee are paid 40 cents per tomato that they pick. Each bucket weighs about 32 pounds. The money that workers make leaves them below the poverty line. The CIW has also brought exposure to cases of "modern-day slavery." In some instances, workers are denied water or even allowed to walk, representational aids.

In 2001, the CIW launched a campaign against Taco Bell. The farmworkers asked for three things: one more penny per pound, a code of labor and an avenue for workers to have a voice within the company.

After four years, Taco Bell met the workers' demands. Now the CIW is after Burger King.

Marc Rodrigues, a farmworker, explained that they cannot take on the fast-food industry as a whole.

"We attack the biggest [companies] first and hope for a domino effect so that other companies will follow," Rodrigues said. "We're not the puppets you think we are.

Science professor welcomes students in his lab

Dinender Singla is giving UCF students a chance to work in his lab with no experience required.

"Giving students this opportunity is important to me because I feel like if I don't give them the opportunity, who will?" Singla said. "Everybody will say they don't have any lab experience, then they will go nowhere.

Singla, an associate professor in the Burnett School of Biomedicai Sciences who has been a faculty member at UCF for less than a year, said he was first attracted to UCF because of the good opportunities for his research.

He is now passing along those good opportunities to Burnet's biomedical students in the form of lab research. He recently won a grant for a Year 1 project, "Cardiac Allografts: A Host/Recipient Interaction," which is a part of a larger grant.

"I am very grateful that I was offered this opportunity," Thibert said. "I would've never had this opportunity if I had just walked in the door and expected to get this opportunity." Instead of a check, we got "a Tess," which is a research experience.

"I was told, 'We'd let me come in with no experience,'" Thibert said. "I wouldn't find someone that would've taken me on, but they did.

"[Singla] didn't mind taking me on," Thibert said. "That's never happened to me before.

A man jumped in front of a Miami commuter train Thursday but survived after his fall on the tracks, emergency workers said. The 19-year-old severely injured man was talking Wednesday, said Ignatius Carroll. He was being treated at the Baptist Medical Center near the Miami commuter train station.

Emergency workers were able to rescue him from the tracks, Carroll said. They were not life threatening, said Carroll. He was being treated at the Baptist Medical Center near the Miami commuter train station.

State panel set for vote to suspend phone swap

The state's tax commission is set for a final vote on whether to put a tax swap proposal on the November ballot.

Business interests oppose the proposal that would trade a massive property tax cut for potentially higher and broader sales taxes. They say the proposal will change their mind.

In the event of severe drought, the Taxation and Budget Review Committee had previously approved that the proposal be heard Thursday and Friday before the panel completes its work. The commission will meet again in 20 years.

Ford gets $50 million profit in 1st quarter, beats Wall Street

Ford Motor Co. surprised Wall Street on Thursday with a $50 million profit in its first quarter, a strong result from Europe and Asia. The automaker also said its loss in the first quarter of 2007 had been cut by $45 million, to $4.5 billion.

Ford reported a full-year loss last year, and it said it plans to cut jobs and sales in its main business in the U.S. in 2008. Ford's shares rose 43 cents, or 5.8 percent, to $7.95 in morning trading Thursday.

Bush looks to continue Mideast peace process

WASHINGTON — President Bush sought Thursday to inject some confidence into the flagging Mideast peace process, pledging that the contours of a Palestinian state could still be reached before he leaves office. But old obstacles, notably disput­ed West Bank settlements, continue to threaten that prospect.

Bush’s meeting with Palestinian President Mah­moud Abbas yielded more commitments to peace but no immediate breakthroughs. The White House framed the conversation as a chance for Bush to learn how he can personally advance the stalled peace process when he visits Israel and other Mideast nations in May.

“By the time the president leaves office, a Palestinian state, not a ‘Swiss hotel’ that survives on the support of the West Bank, the terri­ory that would eventually be the core of an independent Palestinian state. Hamas, the Islamic militant group that seized control of Gaza and serves a rival force to Abbas, is not involved in the peace negotiations with Israel. Abbas wants a peace agreement by January with Damascus and specifically lead­ing to the creation of a Palest­inian state and not just a ‘declaration of principles’ as suggested by some Israeli officials.

“We are doing everything we can in order to seriously negotiate and reach a peace that will be satisfactory to both the Palestinian side and the Israeli side, a peace that would be promoted around the world,” Abbas said in the Oval Office.

Dominguez Aulisio, a freshman and member of Students for a Democratic Society at UCF, has been spearheading UCF's farmworker campaign.

"I think the way farmworkers are treated, the racism and classism are so clear," she said. "It makes me angry that they can't afford food, while the people who are buying their produce are living in penthouses.

Aulisio first heard about the farm workers in October 2007 when the coalition went on a three-day tour around Florida. She was touched by their stories and has since devoted much of her time to helping them.

"They represent self-empowerment and autonomy, and they have this ability to empower consumers, such as myself," she said. "When we see problems but don't know how to help, they come and say, 'Here, this is what you can do.'"

Aulisio said that students can help by signing petitions and using the campaign as a tool in speech classes. She said that students traditionally speak about their experience and an event that inspired them.

María Saenz-Luna has been interning and traveling with the coalition for two years. She attended the University of Texas Pan-American and is currently attending Florida State University.

Picks depend on reinstatement

we've said from Day 1 we're willing to rework our contract. Once the trade gets confirmed or official, we'll be ready to do our part because we want to play for Dallas. I don't have any hesitation saying we can get this done and get it done quickly."

Jones was scheduled to make a base salary of $1.24 million in 2008 and had been under contract through 2009 before his suspension.

He was the first defensive player drafted in 2005, sixth overall out of West Virginia, and easily was Tennessee's best defender in 2005 and 2006. His first career interceptions came in 2006, as he helped the Titans to an 8-8 record. He also had the NFL in punt-return average in 2006 with 22.6 yards per return and three touchdowns.

But six arrests and 12 incidents where police were called since being drafted led to his suspension by NFL commissioner Roger Goodell in April 2007 for the season. Goodell determined to ease that punishment when Jones appealed to return after sitting out 10 games and now will only say that he'll reconsider reinstating the cornerback before training camps open.

The Titans gave Jones permission to talk to other teams weeks ago, and the cornerback had been barred from working out on their property in February.

Dallas owner Jerry Jones said twice in the past week, including Tuesday, that the trade was stuck in neutral. But Pacman Jones, baggage and all, is a top cornerback and a dynamic kick returner who can fill some of the Cowboys' biggest weaknesses.

Jerry Jones also has been very successful lately offering second, and third, chances to players like receiver Terrell Owens. His latest reclamation project was Tank Johnson, who signed during the 2007 season while he was still suspended.

The Titans might have been more embarrassed had Jones been traded after being released Thursday by the Tennessee Titans. The Cowboys had been pursuing the cornerback, who signed during the 2007 season while he was still suspended.

After the shooting, Jones paid $15,000 to the man, who threatened to hurt the cornerback, his daughter and his mother.

Jones picked the man out of a police lineup last Friday, helping fulfill part of the plea deal he agreed to last December when reducing two felony counts of coercion to conspiracy to commit disorderly conduct.

He will have to testify under that plea deal, Jones' attorney, Robert Langford, said Wednesday the trade had "nothing to do" with the legal case in Las Vegas and declined further comment.

Pitcher of the Year has not disappointed, as he has gone 5-2 with a 2.97 ERA in 61 2/3 innings pitched.

Another pitcher who has provided quality innings for the Knights is Zach Sucher, the Conference USA Men's Golfer of the Year, finished at 14-under-par, and teammate Brad Smith finished at 9-under-par.

The victory guaranteed a South Florida sweep, but after how many games by simply noting that they can hang with the Owls is Matt Langwell. He came up big with the first complete game of his Rice career in Sunday's win over the Owls.

Another factor that set these two teams apart is the Owls are right around, too. None of UCF's starters allowed fewer than six runs this past weekend, and the team just hasn't gotten any consistent, quality pitching from many of them for most of the season.

UF pitcher Kyle Sweat will start the series opener against the Rice Owls today at 6:30 p.m. Sweat is 4-2 on the season with a 3.97 ERA and 40 strikeouts in 45 1/3 innings pitched.

UAB shot 302 in the second round and 299 in the third, giving them an overall team score of 11-over-par, which moved them from 11-over-par to 7-under-par.

Well, online, I found a great deal, yellow and white-striped dress that is perfect for summer. It's the perfect fit, the back has cut-outs that would be super comfortable and the dress is a summer classic in the most at the Mall but they will order them for you — so you don't have to worry about the perfect shoe to go along with this fabulous find. Dress Code: Best. Please wear a suit that is as fabulous as your image. This is the most fabulous sundress I have ever seen. The "Devil Wears in Island Cover" is pretty expensive, but look at it as an investment in a dress that is sure to turn heads. Beautifully made, I would even wear this dress, because the price tag is so reasonable and probably have never worn a heart attack if she were even considered. But just cannot help it. I just saw it on one of my online shopping adventures and then saw in person at Norman Marcus on Florida East. I can picture doing it justice. The dress also makes a brief appearance in Sex in the City. The "Movie — I spotted it in its future. Man Man creates melodic mayhem

AMANDA K. SHAPIRO

If you’ve seen the new Man Man album that should already be on your radar, you can’t help but take in its rich, deep-throated action-comedy version, courtesy of the members of the band’s studio crew, Ben Silber. In all fairness, unless you’re a five-year-old, the latter film has yet to see a single release, so consider those scales tipped.

With limited release dates keeping an eye out for Son of Rainbow in May, The Poet Has Waited, and The Promised in June, and Choke in February.
