Cyclists meet for their own legal and equal share of roads

WHITNEY HANNICK

At 6 p.m. the last Friday of every month, more than 200 cyclists pedal around Colonial Drive as an answer to the world's greatest road to a spread awareness around legal and equal rights in the Central Florida area.

"I ride for Sid Bikel because it's freedom," said attendee Matt Huggins, 22, who studies biology at Valencia Community College. "Everyone (does) stick in their little cars and I just go my own way." (Photo by Whitney Hannick)

Fernandez aids in research on infrared

Fernandez said that looking through the infrared telescope will aid in researching the origins of the universe. The telescope's ability to see a lot more infrared than visible light is something that might help with the research of the universe's origins.

Another plus is that sometimes particles can obstruct the telescope. Fernandez said that with the infrared telescope, they'd be able to see a lot more infrared than visible light is something that might help with the research of the universe's origins.

Infrared is also good because the universe turns out to be a very deep place and a lot of optical light, visible light, gets mixed up by dust. But the infrared light passes through the dust and doesn't get absorbed, so you can actually see a lot better in the infrared, Fernandez said.

Questions of age and abuse brought up inippy courtroom case

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah

Child welfare officials have had to reschedule trials for another year for the two young men accused of raping a little girl who was under the age of consent.

The trial for 16-year-old Michael Jones and 17-year-old Roger Pearlman, who had been living in the same household, was rescheduled to next year due to the slow pace of the legal process.

The expansions will take place in the back area of the gym, where the lap pool and building 15 will eventually reside. "The lap pool was built in 1970," Williams said. "It has some structural problems and leaks. Eventually it isn't worth it in the future.

A few lap pools will take its place in three phases, which will cost upwards of $10 million and include a MAC gym and multi-purpose rooms for some practices and events. This new lap pool will be in the same location as the current one, because the relocation of locker rooms and restrooms would be too costly, Williams said.

The funding for these expansions is coming from the Capital Improvement Trust Fund, which is a statewide collection from all the public universities, and is directed by state and school of funding. The CITF funds were also included in UCF's total.

Although SGA, a UCF senior communications major, agrees that the gym can get crowded and agrees with the expansion plans, "During the fall to spring, it's crowded," Sosa said. "Your [gym] membership is when you pay your tuition."

Crystal Williams, a UCF游泳 coach, swimmers believe the expansion is going to take place. "Building 15 was built with 1900 funding," which is Federal money, Delanois said. "That is funded by expansion to take place and is statewide funding. It's hard because wasn't enough, Florida public university, so it's probably on the CITF fund because it's being compensated and therefore the budget for the gym would be in state."

"Director of Government Affairs" Matt Petrocco and I looked hard - and won," Delanois said. "We were going for only SGA in the state that looked against this.

Despite these setbacks, one benefit of the delay is the chance to design the building 2 and three floor that will be shared and expect with current gym programs.

Sens said. "Your female membership is when you pay your tuition."

Brandon Delanois mentioned other delays in the planning of the expansion. "Originally CITF only gave us 1977, but that wasn't enough," Delanois said.

Additionally, Delanois and the SGA had difficulty getting permission to demolish Building 15, where much of the expansion is going to take place.

"Building 15 was built with 1900 funding, which is Federal money," Delanois said. CITF, which is funding the expansion to take its place, is statewide funding.

If those hurdles weren't enough, Florida public university, the possibility of the CITF funds being compromised and therefore the budget for the gym would be in jeopardy."

LONG-SHOT BULLS TAKE HOME
NBA DRAFT'S NO. 1 SELECTION
They weren't even coaching when the Bulls won their last title. Now they have to figure out what to do with the No. 1 pick in the draft.

The Bulls were the surprise winners of the draft lottery Friday night, giving them the right to choose between Michael Jordan of Tennessee and Deron Williams of Duke.

Coming off a miserable season and still without a coach, the Bulls cashed in the No. 1 pick when they had a 50 percent chance of landing the top choice.

"From this moment on we need to work hard and I think we just got one tough nut to crack," said Scottie Pippen, the Bulls' executive vice president of business operations who represented the team on the podium.

The Bulls will almost certainly choose between the Baron Davis (Memphis), consensus No. 1, and Jordan, the 6-foot-7 forward who averaged 26.2 points and 8.1 rebounds.

"I think it's going to be a long season," said Pippen.

But the 33-year-old said
he still plans to play this season.

"I am excited with the opportunity to coach at UCF, especially with the direction the athletics department is heading," Prosser said in a press release. "I am looking forward to building on the success and pride that has been established by past coaches, and I look forward to working with Bryan (Cunningham) and the assistant coach Brunswick, and looking forward to meeting the men's soccer team for the 2008-09 campaign.

James Prosser, who spent his past two years as a graduate assistant coach at Louisiana, will take the lead coach.

As part of the 2007 varsity rowing team, the Knights are going to lose a large majority of the team will return for another postseason run in 2009. Among them, 2008 Conference USA Player of the Year, Ken Lalla. He has made its made its first-ever NCAA Tournament next season.

"I'm extremely proud of them, honored to have been a part of such a momentous season, and I see very bright things for each of them in the future."

The Knights continue their season on May 30 with the NCAA rowing championship.
Florida Music Festival resonates downtown

First stop, the bar, and then secure a place in the crowd. Wall Street Plaza is the perfect vantage point to see the stage and watch the audience from a human conyor belt. Formed everyone had the same thing on his or her mind at the 2008 Florida Music Festival. The physical makeup of audience members ranged from spandex and stiletto getups to hemp bracelets that overlay shirts and pants that hadn’t been washed in weeks. Blue neon necklaces illuminated the necks of many, and industry badges could be seen among the crowd of fans and artists. Miller Lite girls threw shirts to people, igniting a battle when crowd members attacked one another for their cotton keepsake.

Then, three awkward blue figures emerged from the smoke into an eerie ambiance, opening the percussive Armageddon created by Blue Man Group. The setup showcased the music from the How To Be A Megastar Live 2.0 show, encompassing some of the visual theatrics proving the versatility of the musicians and characters. Pounding large PVC pipes, the group maintained rhythm while connecting the tubes, and adjusting the length changed the melody creating such heavy bass tones that the streets of downtown Orlando were forced to feel the rhythm for blocks. Although the blue men may have seemed out of their element, the FMF audience was more than receptive to the performance. The set transitioned well into the open environment, especially when the group broke out into a medley featuring music by Lynyrd Skynyrd and the Eurythmics, sending the audience into a screaming rampage.

When asked what motivated his attendance at the show, Alex Berkun, 22, political science major said, “I’m sick of the ‘Reflex.’ Infection and irrelevent, can this give the bubblehead Diabolic Golf ball mail another run for its money.”

In fact, Duran Duran is so inaccessible that Alex Berkun came all the way from Russia to see them, and she spent 2008 promised expenses. People still love Duran Duran in Russia, but they don’t come to Russia too much. Berkun said, “It’s Russia, a ticket costs 10,000 rubles, which is equivalent to 800 USD. I cannot afford it in Russia.”

Professors deserve freedom of speech

Freedom of speech is something that is cherished in the world of academia, especially among university professors. The First Amendment guarantees the right of citizens, as well as university professors, to engage in open and intelligent debate and to interact freely with others who share their beliefs. This freedom of expression is critical to the functioning of American society and is essential for the advancement of knowledge. The United States Supreme Court has ruled that university professors, protected by the First Amendment, have the same right to freedom of speech as everyone else. In short, the right of universities to permit free speech is a protection for the freedom of mind that is the essence of an university education. Free speech is inherent to the concept of freedom itself and is a fundamental right that we cannot do without. It is the bedrock upon which our system of government is founded. As President George Bush once said, "We must ensure that our system of government is founded on the bedrock of freedom of speech."
