 Lahore-based students crowd for the global rollout of the new model iPhone to go on sale in many countries worldwide. On the morning of August 25, just in time for the start of the new school year in most countries, the new model iPhone went on sale. The demand was so high that many stores ran out of stock before the official launch.

The original amnesty proposal was intended to protect students who were facing disciplinary action for using or possessing illegal drugs. The proposal, which was approved by the University of Central Florida, is working quickly to re-open the garage in time for fall.

The repairs are focused on same problems with a sign announcing the closure have blocked off no other pathways have been opened. While yellow construction tape and sign announcing the closure have blocked off no other pathways have been opened, the garage was marked for fall.

The objective of MommyMixer is to provide a venue for parents to interact and make friends. The mixer has been well-received by parents and has become a popular event on Central Florida Future's calendar.

The next mixer will be held in September and will feature a special guest speaker and a variety of activities for both parents and children. For more information, please visit the MommyMixer Facebook page.

Many lingered, however, taking pictures of the0e gathering.

Tourism was not far from the minds of those attending the event. Many commented on how beautiful the beach looked, despite the storm's impact on operations.

"It's a great day to be outside and enjoy the amenities that are available," said one attendee.

The event was organized by the Beachside Animal Rescue and the American Red Cross, with proceeds going to support their efforts.

Local businesses, such as the Beachside Surf Shop and the Beachside Grill, also participated in the event, offering discounts and promotions.

"We're excited to be a part of this event and support the community," said Beachside Surf Shop owner John Smith.

The event concluded with a fireworks display, lighting up the sky as the storm began to clear.

"It was a beautiful way to end the day," said one attendee. "We're already looking forward to next year's event!"
Christopher Estoch, a political science major at UCF, was one of 20 students of the nation chosen to receive the Pickering Fellowship in 2008. After completing his graduate studies Estoch will serve as a foreign service officer at the U.S. Department of State in D.C.

The fellowship program is funded by the United States Department of State and administered by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation (WWNFF). The fellowship is designed to recruit students who show outstanding potential and commitment to a career in foreign affairs, as well as people from diverse backgrounds and national origins.

The fellowship includes a stipend for tuition, room and board for two years each, and a commitment to serve for a minimum of three years at the U.S. Department of State. The fellowship is open to students majoring in fields relevant to international affairs, such as political science, international relations, economics, law, or a related field.

Christopher Estoch was chosen out of about 1,000 applicants to receive the Thomas R. Pickering Undergraduate Foreign Affairs Fellowship.

"The fellowship will pay for Estoch's tuition, room and board for his last two years at UCF and his first year as graduate school for international relations," Estoch said.

Estoch had to complete an application, an exam and attend an interview in Washington, D.C. in order to be selected, according to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation's Web page. The foundation manages the Pickering program in conjunction with the U.S. State Department.

The fellowship is funded by the U.S. Department of State, and the selection is based on academic achievement, leadership qualities, and career aspirations.

"I'm very excited when they heard that I have about eight years left and have to make a career out of it," Estoch said. "They send you to two locations where you are during the Cold War," he said. "It feels good to know a lot is taken care of," he said.

Estoch wishes that more people from Central Florida would become interested in foreign affairs. "More people are in the Foreign Service," he said. "And that clearly shows the current situation in our country."

Pope Benedict XVI arrives in Australia, speaks on scandal SUNDAY, SYDNEY — Pope Benedict XVI arrived in Australia on Sunday, saying the time has come to raise awareness about global warming and the crisis of clergy sexual abuse.

Benedict suggested to reporters on the flight from Rome that he would express regret about abuse by priests, through various groups are demanding he take a direct formal apology.

The 5,000-strong audience is a small note in the pope’s 14,000 visit to Australia — his first during which he struck a chord with his climate change stance yesterday.

Benedict, 10, few more than 20 hours from Rome to touch down as military aircraft air base by Sydney’s exit. He was said he was climbed down the plane’s stairway and was greeted on the tarmac by Prime Minister Kevin Rudd and other clergy and government officials.

He was driven to a city in Sydney where he will stay out of the public eye before leading the youth festival begins Thursday.

President Bush says energy problems are congress WASHINGTON — President Bush on Saturday tried to join the blame on Congress for acting energy prices and said legislation need to lift huge reserves of fuel.

Biden: 10, for time not for Congress to address the pain that higher gas prices is causing our citizens,” the president said.

Henderson: 10, a dollar that American families spend because of high gas prices is one less dollar they can use to put food on the table or spend on a child to college. The American people deserve better.

With gasoline prices above $4 a gallon, Bush and his Republican allies think Americans are more willing to allow drilling in the Gulf of Mexico and in an Alaska refuge that environmentalists have fought successfully for decades to protect.

Nearly half the people surveyed by the Pew Research Center in late July said they now consider energy exploration and drilling more important than conservation, compared with a little over a third who felt that way only last year.

The sharpest shift in energy plans among political liberals.

Democrats said they are for drilling, but argue that oil companies aren’t going after the oil where they directly have the right to explore. They’re open new, protected areas they ask.

Democrats say there are 6 million acres of federal land and waters where oil and gas companies have interest, but aren’t producing oil.

“Americans are fed up every time they go to the gas pump and they have a right to demand more. But instead of having a government that works for them, President Bush and his allies have said the same old line more drilling. It’s time for action,” Rep. Chris Van Hollen, D-Md., said in the Democrats’ radio address.

McCart and Obama try to gain Hispanic vote

LAURA WIDE-MINTER

ORLANDO — Like eager back-to-school suitors, Barack Obama and John McCain are showing off their most recent distinctions, hoping to win at least one half of the Hispanic vote that could swing November’s presidential election.

For the African-American Obama, and white-former governor McCain, the problem is less one of language than of trying to understand a group whose own diversity makes it a mystery to others, its “very method of speaking,” according to one reader’s story.

“Tell me about your leaders,” Obama told him.

But there, in essence, is the ground game the presidential candidates and their campaigns have been playing in pushing to win over voters who could form decisive constituencies in 2008’s battleground states.

“They just come to me and say, ‘Who are the bosses of the Latin community?’” said Periél Manteiga, who runs a family-owned newspaper for Hispanics in Tampa’s historic Cuban neighborhood of Ybor City. “They talk to me and ask me, ‘Who are the bosses of white America?’”

Both candidates are pressing aggressively to court Hispanics in as many weeks to Hispanic votes as the Republicans were working to do in the absence of a white-rating President Bush, a campaign that has been larger, more visible.

Obama is vivid and soaring — oatory appeal to Hispanic vote is similar to its others. Whose of approval were evident in the presence of the speech at the League of United American Citizens Convention in Washington, D.C., held September 7.

But the Republicans are featuring their own at Hispanic voters, especially in Florida, where the elderly problems are. Many Hispanics inter-

Genao, a Dominican native, said people in his neighborhood complained about an arrest in crime with the term “the diverse people” who provoked in from New Orleans following Hurricane Katrina.

The next place, he said the Bush administration was ignoring, he said he views McCain as more of the game. Then he compared Obama’s specter to those of Martin Luther King Jr.

“I’m still undecided,” he said.

McCain and Obama try to gain Hispanic vote

WASHINGTON — Tony Snow, a conservative writer and commentator who chal­lengingly sparred with reporters in the White House briefing room during a stint as Presi­dent Bush’s press secretary, died Saturday of colon cancer. He was 53.

"America has lost a devoted public servant and a man of character," President Bush said in a statement from Camp David, where he was spending the weekend. "It was a joy to watch Tony at the podium each day. He brought wit, grace and a great love of country to his work.

Snow died at 2 a.m. at George Washington University Hos­pital, according to the employer Fox News.

Snow, who served as the first host of the television news program Fox News Sunday from 1996 to 2002, would later say that in the Bush administration he was enjoy­ing "the most exciting, intellectually enriching job I’ve ever had to go to work at.

Snow was working for Fox News Channel and Fox News Radio when he replaced McClellan as press secretary in May 2006 during a White House shake-up. Unlike McClellan, who came to define caution and bland delivery from the White House podium, Snow was never shy about playing in the camera.

UCF golfer to compete for 2009 Masters invite

UCF golfer David Johnson will play in the 2009 U.S. Public Links Amateur Championship in Aurora, Colorado, beginning today.

The tournament will be held at Murphy Creek Golf Course from July 14-18. It is one of 10 individual amateur championships organized by the United States Golf Association.

Johnson shot rounds of 69 and 72 at Bluffton Island Golf Club in a sectional qualifying tournament last month in Myrtle Beach, S.C., to earn a spot in the event.

The 10 players, according to Johnson, will have to take on "t.a." (a hat and glove course) and will have to battle the heat and windy conditions that may get worse as the week progresses.

"They set these courses up to get the best out of everyone," Johnson said. "They make it tough, and I hope it's hard so you have to go out there and grind it out."
B-ball's Sosa to play on Puerto Rico's U-18 team

BRIAN MORPHET

The transition from high school to college is tough for most. UCF Men's Basketball commit Miguel Sosa will try to prepare for what the ride of Coach USA has to offer by competing against some of the best young players around the world.

The Puerto Rican team, which has won the gold medal four times in the Americas Under-18 Championship, has been held up as a proving ground for Puerto Rican basketball. Last summer, Sosa helped Puerto Rico qualify for the 2008 FIBA Americas Under-18 Championship. He has helped Puerto Rico qualify for the tournament this year, which is scheduled to be held on July 2-12 in New Zealand.

``Winning the championship would be awesome, and just to be there is an honor,'' Johnson said. ``To be a huge boost to my confidence and could be a cornerstone changing event."

The rigorous college season has prepared Johnson for tournaments such as this one, he said. With the 2008 season approaching, Johnson hopes to have his steady play from the summer carry over. "It’s one of those things where practice makes perfect, and all of these tournaments are great stepping stones," Johnson said. "And you can learn something from them and then can carry it over into the season."
Students are being bilked on all sides

Laptops are comparable to modern-day filing cabinets, the fusion of confidential personal documents, personal information and sensitive correspondence. There- fore, the last group that you would think would be bilked is Big Brother. Our laptops. Don’t think we haven’t been bilked into submission.

The Department of Homeland Security has recently started profiling travelers, checking tickets, and stopping people at the borders of the United States. This, in addition to our constant fear of identity theft, has made us all carry laptops. And so, what documents can we not have on our person anymore?

 Students and business people are being selectively targeted for searches because they are perceived to be carrying confidential business documents.

In the event that law enforcement believes there is a need to search laptops, Homeland Security has the right to do so, but it must respect the individual’s right to a speedy and impartial hearing. The search is invalid if the government cannot show probable cause for the search.

Many students, along with others, are not aware of the legal implications of their actions. They believe that they are not infringing on anyone’s rights, but the reality is that their actions could have serious consequences.

The government has the right to search laptops without warrants if it believes that there is probable cause to do so. However, this does not mean that the government can search any laptop it wants. It must follow the guidelines laid out by the court.

In conclusion, it is important for us to be aware of our rights and to know when and how we can refuse to have our laptops searched. We must also be aware of the potential consequences of our actions.

don't have a problem with it because they are thoroughly searching the game anyway.

It's stirred. Their reasons can vary from a desire to avoid being caught or the need to defend their production. So, what do we expect from the law enforcement agencies?

Nobody is happy about the current situation. Many people feel that they are being unfairly targeted and that their rights are being violated. It is important for us to voice our concerns and to work towards finding a solution to this problem.
