Homelessness may rise as the economy sinks.

Flora Wills/Staff Writer

In light of the failing economy, increased poverty conditions are expected to grow. Nevertheless, if only slightly, homelessness conditions in Orlando have improved with the conclusion in Federal Court of the city's Orlando's Large Group Feeding Ordinance on Sept. 22. With the District Department of Regulatory Billing, Orlando community leaders issued a statement, said in an e-mail interview that the likelihood of homeless numbers rising is virtually certain, though it is hard to say how many people in the U.S. are at a pay check away.

Blaze of disparity

Flora Wills/Staff Writer

Because of the passage of Florida Amendment 2, California Proposition 8 and other measures banning gay marriage in the November elections, members and supporters of the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender community seek to illustrate the result of their exclusion.

On Dec. 3, International Human Rights Day, A Day Without A Gay will commence. On Nov. 15, international protests on the steps of City Hall were held in 300 cities across the U.S. organized by a group called Join the Impact Million Day for Equality.

"Blaze" stated the Facebook event page, prompting the protest.

The event encourages people to, "Call in gay," shutting down their businesses, taking the day off work, as well as supporting lunchrooms, offices, stores and surrounding businesses.

Boba tea time around UCF

Megyn Donghieu/Staff Writer

One of the latest Asian crazes, boba tea, known for its unusual addition of chewy tapioca pearls, has made a permanent stop at UCF and the surrounding area.

There are several stores that serve the dish close to the UCF campus, including Dancing in the Rain, located on the corner of University and College avenues; and Boba Time, located on University and College avenues.

Boba tea, also called "bubbles tea," or "pearl tea," originated in Taiwan in the early 1980s.

It is a hit in the Asian culture and found its way to Canada, inevitably coming to the United States.

Graduate schools see more interest

Matthew Heaton/Staff Writer

With growing fixed prices, recession and expanding unemployment, many undergraduate students look to ride out the economic recession, in universities' ivory towers.

In 2006, 2 percent more students entering into MBA programs, has also seen steady increases in test takers in the past two years, averaging a 1 percent increase each year.

This is an aberration for the LSAT, which was previously seeing a decline in test takers.

Although homelessness and poverty conditions may worsen to balance with the economy, Orlando's conditions have improved with the Funding Ordinance's eradication on Sept. 22.

MICHELLE LEE CALDWELL
Combining Vocal

Cindy Saunders has a dream.
She would love to cover stage with a microphone in hand, thousands of lights beaming down, illuminating her success. A crowd of not just the hundreds, but also the millions of viewers from home would be humming her name. Then, Reba McEntire would name her the next American Idol winner at the end of the upcoming season.

More than 80,000 hopefuls line up each morning with this dream in mind this year. This summer, Saunders, one of UCF’s own, was among those in the midst of achieving that dream.

Saunders is a senior from Jacksonville studying hospitality management, and on May 29 she set out on an attempt, which would ultimately prove unsuccessful, to make her dream a reality. Saunders will be in front of the Library on Tuesday, 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., to discuss her passion for singing and her journey with American Idol.

Q. Have you always wanted to be a singer?

A. Always. I’ve always loved singing. I’ve practiced my vocal cords throughout my childhood, and my teachers would call on my parents to try and have them control my singing in school. Generally, I was disrupting the classroom.

Q. What does American Idol experience like?

A. Wednesday, Aug. 15, was the day of the auditions. I felt extremely confident because I had worked so hard to prepare for it.

Q. What do you hope to accomplish in this experience?

A. I can only imagine how it might have been good to have shared such an experience and not made it. What we did may not have been the best option for me, and it is not what I am trying to do, but I worked for it and had the voice to do it. We did not have a chance in the first place. We were two judges before us, and we never made eye contact with us while we were singing. Backs of our necks for about 20 seconds. I heard “Let’s Give ‘em Something to Talk About” by Bonni

Q. What was the hardest part for you in making the show?

A. Well, first of all I really lofed the music.

The Tampa man sets down gun, lead mg to arrest, police say

TAMPA — A 42-year-old man suspected of armed robbery apparently forgot the key to a successful armed robbery is hanging on in the gun.

The Tampa man, police say, had a pistol, entered a Tampa ground and demanded they give up their wallets and jewelry. He then forced them to take off their clothes and noticed that one of them had not given up his bracelet.

The police say Haggins put his pistol on a table, walked over to grab the bracelet and while he was doing that, police say another victim pointed the gun and pointed it at Haggins. The would-be victim told police he had been served.

Haggins faces multiple charges, including armed robbery. He was being held without bail set.

Students react to the economic bailout plan

DAVID PARSONS
Weekly Observer

Mary Miller has been trying to pay attention to the economic crisis. She is a junior studying environmental studies, and she is concerned about the most recent economic bailout plan. "I don't want the government to be responsible for business," Miller said. "It may get worse. If the government bail out the economy, it will get better on its own."

According to the article "No, Virginia, there isn't any bailout help for you," on APCommons.com, the government has given $700 billion to American Insurance Group, various anonymous banks have requested more than $1 trillion in loans, and mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac may need up to $5 trillion to stay afloat.

"We see this as an opportunity to prevent it from happening again," said Trevor Clark, a member of UCF's Theta Chi chapter. "We're all hoping that this is the last bailout ever to be done." Clark attended Fordham's memorial service in Naples, where about 40,000 people paid their respects. "There was a sense of hope that this would never happen again," Clark said.

Even though the accident occurred only one month after initiation, Clark said he and Fordham had a meaningful friendship. "He was really happy, outgoing and funny," he said. "More than $1,000 was raised at the event and will be donated to the Family Home Foundation. The organization seeks to increase awareness of the dangers of drunk driving by supporting other organizations that promote responsible drinking, safe driving behavior, and reducing alcohol-related risks in the Central Florida community."

Such organizations include Mothers Against Drunk Driving, Florida State University's Omicron Delta Kappa, Orange County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community, and other UCF programs that work to educate people about the dangers of drunk driving. "McArter was a great guy," Matt Macar, organier of the Helping Hands ski race said. "I don't want the community to forget about him."

"We've seen this as an opportunity to prevent it from happening again." said Ronald Myers, a Theta Chi member. "McArter was a great guy. I remember him being so outgoing and friendly."

The Helping Hands ski race was the first major fundraising event held by the Helping Hands Foundation. "It was our OPUS event for the entire fraternity," Myers said. "We hope to have more events like this in the future.

While many students fear that the economic crisis will affect them and their future job market, some are already seeing the effects of an unstable economy. According to an article on OrlandoSentinel.com, "Market Declines Mean Lost Jobs for Many," students are realizing that the job market is affected by the economic downturn. "Outside of government financial aid for students who can't afford college, more scholarships are paid for by endowments, where a large sum of money is invested and the earnings from those investments pay for the scholarships awarded," the article stated.

"The economy is going to be rough, but we'll get through it," a student said. "We're all hoping that this is the last bailout ever to be done."

The movie involves a dispute between the city and the vendors who file their case with the city government. The city proposed an ordinance that would have banned vendors from the area. The vendors filed a lawsuit, and the case was heard in court.

Eric Montanez, who led the protests in Orlando, said that the vendors’ lawsuit was a direct result of the city’s efforts to shut down their business. He said that the city’s efforts were an attempt to prevent the vendors from earning a living.

The city’s ordinance was overturned by a federal court, which ruled that it violated the First Amendment. The court said that the city’s efforts to shut down the vendors were an attempt to silence their right to free speech.

Boba Tease, located on UCF campus, is a great place to enjoy boba before classes. The one thing that stands out about Boba Tease is its great service and friendly baristas. According to a Graduate Management Admission Council survey, one of the benefits of a graduate degree increases earning potential. “There is data that shows that people with a graduate degree have a better understanding of their own education level and their ability to weather economic downturns,” Hugh Saddler, a junior communications manager for Kaplan, stated. “There is a strong hedge against unemployment,” Schaffer said. “One of the benefits of a graduate degree is that it’s a strong hedge against unemployment.” Schaffer said. “There is data that shows that people with a graduate degree have a better understanding of their own education level and their ability to weather economic downturns.”

Students also felt that they would need to have more on-campus options available. If they take them whole in school as an umbrella, they might think their scores will improve. Russell Schaffer, a graduate program director, stated. “I think you will score better when you're in school because that's your prime.” Hugh Saddler, a junior computer science major, said. “You actually have a better understanding of what you are going to be doing in the field.”

How saving a variety of gifts for the holiday season...
Missed tackling bring down Knights in loss

PADRICK BRENNER
Staten Island Advance

The best part about the UCF football team's dominating defensive loss to UAB on Saturday was the fact that the Knights had a losing record at least on one new. The game was not on TV, and only 2,246 people showed up to Bright House Networks Stadium to witness the second straight loss at Bojikian Field. The attendance was the third-lowest at UCF in history. UCF finished the season with a 2-4 record at home, the third time in five years that the Knights had a losing record. "I don't know what phase of the game we did well," UCF head coach George O'Leary said. "We just didn't make things happen at all, and we had the opportunity." The Knights' defense is discussed below.

One-failed Harvey
Against the Blazers, freshman Brynn Harvey may have solidified his spot at the back of the backfield. He finished with 59 rushing yards on 10 carries, the fourth time in the past six games he has rushed for at least 50 yards.

Harvey finished the season with 206 carries for 812 yards, the fourth-most yards for a freshman who led the team in rushing in UCF history.

O'Leary said Harvey made some plays, but that the team was handicapped by an inconsistent passing game. "I think he made some things happen, but we just never got a rhythm," O'Leary said. "You get to know the ball, and you get to know the defense, and you have a rhythm...That's when things start to happen."
Knights crushed by Rebels, survive Jackrabbits

RUN BALL
Chadilire's Texas Tech, the UCF Men's Basketball team came back against South Dakota State Wednesday to win 66-64, making it the Knights' worst offense in its 30-year history. The Knights had just 229 yards of total offense against the Jackrabbits, 27 yards per game worse than the 200 yards of UAB, 200 yards from the season for the Knights.

Webb does it all for UAB offense

For the first time this year, the Knights' offense came through in a big way. After scoring just seven points in the first half, the Knights' offense came through in a big way. Quartbacks continue inconsistency

The South Dakota State win gave UCF a 1-0-1 record in its last four games. The Knights didn't have a drive go far enough to score a touchdown until UCF's Chris Herndon threw a 3-point pass with 6:59 left in the game. The Knights scored only three times in the backfield, senior quarterback Joe Webb did not wrap up, didn't make a tackle, didn't come through in a big way. Black Friday leaves black mark

The holiday season is great. The air is cold. People go to work and to school. They hustle and bustling through the aisles of Wal-Mart. People get up at the wee hours of the morning to go to the mall. They're ready to brawl, to pull the fire alarms and take off running. They're ready to buy. They're ready to fight for their children. They're ready to shop.

Black Friday was thrown to the wind as lines clogged the aisles of Wal-Mart, a 28-year-old pregnant woman was also taken to the hospital due to the rowdy behavior of a fellow man. Two men in a Toys "R" Us even had a.report from the Associated Press that they attempted to tag instead a human life?

As soon as the first gunshots were heard, a Nassau County police officer took control of the situation. The incident, which is extremely rare, was investigated, and equal rights once again were upheld.
