GIRLS' GLEE CLUB MAKES FIRST TRIP OF THE SEASON

Program Given at Altamonte Springs Hotel.

The Girls' Glee Club of Rollins College made its first trip of the season last Saturday evening to Altamonte Springs Hotel. Mr. Bates, proprietor of the hotel, received the girls with cordiality, and the club found the guests most appreciative. Dean Enyart, Dr. Cook and several of the college boys were also present.

The program offered met with hearty applause and showed the result of skillful as well as very conscientious training on Miss Waterman's part. Program as rendered:

1. Three Flower Songs: (a) The Clover, (b) The Yellow Daisy, (c) The Blue Bell (Mrs. H. H. A. Beach)

GLEE CLUB.

2. (a) In Autumn, (b) Spring Song. (Oscar Weil)

FRIEDA SIEWERT

(Violin Obligato by Dr. Allen)

3. (a) Indian Mountain Song (b) Chinese Flower Fete.

(C. W. Cadman)

GLEE CLUB.

4. —

5. Trio—Two violins and piano.

Miss Dyer, Dr. Allen, Miss Rous.

6. (a) Behind the Lattice (G. W. Chadwick); (b) In May (Horatio Parker)

GLEE CLUB.

7. Daybreak — — — — (Mabel Daniels)

GERTRUDE HALL.

8. The Snow — — — — (Edward Elgar)

GLEE CLUB.

- (Double Obligato, Miss Dyer and Dr. Allen)

Mrs. Barze, unfortunately, was unable to be present on this visit.

The Glee Club includes:

First Sopranos—Frieda Siewert, Margaret Boggess, Gertrude Hall and Winifred Hanchett.

Second Sopranos—Florence Keezel, Elinor Emery, Vanetta Hall and Margaret Mulholland.

First Altos—Maude Barze, Katherine Gates and Elsa Siewert.

Second Altos—Hazel Lenfest, Harriet Mansfield, Geraldine Barbour and Anna Funk.

Accompanist—Louise Smith.

Members of the Conservatory faculty assisting: Miss Dyer, Dr. Allen and Miss Rous.

When the concert was two-thirds complete, three girls of the club passed among the guests and received voluntary collections amounting to a total of $27, which not only brought the club clear of all expenses of the evening.

ROLLINS WINS FIRST BASE-BALL GAME OF SEASON.

Last Tuesday afternoon the first baseball of the season was played on the Rollins Athletic Field. The contest was between the college team and the Winter Park Town team. The latter team was made up of many experienced players and several old "R" men. Just before the game a fast infield workout was given the Rollins men.

The game once begun, the enthusiasm grew steadily and close baseball was played all throughout the first three innings. During the fourth inning Rollins scored two runs which put her in the lead and this lead was never rivaled by the opposing team in the entire game.

The team worked well and as a team. Both Arrants and Stubbs were allowed to serve in the pitcher's box, and the final score of 8 to 0 proves that both stood well on the mount. Barze, an old Rollins pitcher, played his usual good game, opposing the present college team; but the batters showed that they were trained to swing the bat with telling effect. Joe Musselwhite showed that he was still good for at least 20 yards when he came away with a feature "home-run." Froemke made a pretty score on a steal home. Roberts proved himself also a robber of bases to the greater interest in the game. Captain Thoren played a sure and safe game at third. McGowan was taken on in the last part of the game as a "pinch-hitter."

The line-up was as follows:

Player.	Position.
Musselwhite	Shortstop
Roberts	Second Base
Rodenbaugh	Catcher
Thoren (Capt.)	Third Base
Froemke	First Base
West	Left Field
Faulkner	Right Field
Arrants	Pitcher and C. F.
S. Fletcher	Center Field
Stubbs	Pitcher
McGowan	Extra

WINTER PARK LIBRARY ASSOCIATION HOLDS BAZAAR.

A large number of town folks and winter visitors of the town visited the Winter Park Library Wednesday afternoon, when it was the scene of a lively bazaar prepared by the Library Association. There were interesting booths of fancy work and pretty baskets of flowers as well as candy tables and cozy little tables arranged for tea. A number of girls from the college served.

Mrs. H. B. Gibbs called on Dean Ferguson last Monday.

THE DELPHIC SOCIETY FORMED AT ROLLINS.

A number of college students met in Knowles Hall at 6:45 Wednesday evening for the purpose of forming a debating society. Mr. Hanna took charge of the meeting.

Miss Gladwin gave an interesting talk concerning the former literary societies with which she was personally connected. Dr. Hyde told of the origin of the word "Delphi," stating that it was very befitting as a name for the organization. After some discussion the name, Delphic Society, was chosen.

Then a committee, composed of Sara Muriel, Dean Enyart and Dr. Hyde, was nominated to draw up the constitution.

It was decided to hold meetings bi-monthly, on the second and fourth Wednesday evenings, from 6:45 until 7:30 o'clock.

The meeting adjourned until Friday evening, at which time the constitution will be presented for adoption and officers elected.

INTER-COLLEGIATE TENNIS MATCH WITH STETSON.

The first intercollegiate match of the year was played Saturday, February 24, with Stetson. The matches were begun at 2:30 p. m. on the clay court. The court had been sprinkled and rolled several times in the week preceding the match, and was in good condition.

The doubles were played first, Moore and Brotherton representing Stetson, and Tilden and Wheldon for Rollins. This match was the best of the afternoon, and the games were well-fought. However, our players were either not playing at their best or their luck took a vacation, as the match went to Stetson, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

The first of the singles matches was between Hully, from Stetson, and Tilden. Tilly played well and took the first set. At the end of the first set it looked as though Rollins had the match; but again the Blue and Gold supporters were doomed to disappointment, as Hully took the other two. The score was 2-6, 6-1, 6-2.

The last match was not as closely fought as the first two, Wheldon of Rollins losing to Bowen of Stetson two straight sets, with a score of 6-2, 6-1. This means more practice. However, we are not discouraged, but are thinking of the "next time." Four players came over from Stetson, two playing doubles, and two others playing the singles.

Arthur Ivey was a visitor on the campus last Friday.

ANNUAL ELECTION OF CABINET OFFICERS OF Y. W. C. A.

New President Succeeds Sara Muriel In Office, April 1.

The results of an interesting election of officers of the Young Women's Christian Association were announced last Tuesday evening at the regular weekly meeting of the association, as follows: Virga West, president; Ruth Greene, vice president; Marion Phillips, secretary, and Elizabeth Russell, treasurer. The election took place in the afternoon of the same day at real "polls" in the Y. W. C. A. reading room in Cloverleaf. Only those members who had paid dues were allowed to vote, so that a goodly sum of money for dues was collected during the day, which early in the morning had been advertised as "Pay Day" by an attractive poster. Besides electing its new officers, the association established at the same time, by approval, its new advisory board, consisting of three faculty members—Dean Ferguson, Miss Bellows and Miss Gladwin. Other members of the cabinet, which consists of the officers of the association and the chairmen of its standing committees, will, according to the constitution of the association, be appointed by the new president, who takes office on April first.

Miss West is well fitted for her new position by two years of work and training in the Rollins Y. W. C. A. cabinet, first as chairman of the news committee and during this last year as treasurer of the association and chairman of the finance committee.

ROLLINS STUDENTS ATTEND GEORGE WASHINGTON BALL.

Misses Ruth and Mary McCullough of Orlando entertained on the evening of February 23rd with a delightful George Washington ball in honor of Misses Galeny and Dosser. All present appeared in costumes of the Colonial Period. Cotillion figures added gaiety to the evening, at the close of which cotillion favors were distributed to the dancers. Delicious refreshments of vanilla ice cream garnished with Maraschino cherries, little cakes decorated with miniature flags and Martha Washington candy, were served.

Those present from the college were: Misses Mary Conaway, Rose Powers, Elinor Emery, and Messrs. Freddie Hanna, Alfred Krog, Wright Hilyard, Bert Cleave, Maynard Froemke, Sam Thompson, Leon Lewis, Byron Stevenson and Howard Weaver.

SATURDAY, MARCH 3, 1917.

Do you patronize Sandspur advertisers? And do you tell them that you trade with them because they are helping The Sandspur.

The first month of the second semester has passed. Only three more months of school! It's not too late even now to get busy and show your true worth and your ability to your fellow-students as well as to the folks at home.

"Birds of a feather
Flock together,
In fair or foul or windy weather."

This old adage is quite true and reminders of it may be seen in reality in clubs, schools or colleges. But, snob-bishness, or haughty aloofness between "flocks" need not be. Friendship may not always be possible or to advantage, because of varying tastes and pleasures; but with all "clans" and at all times, one may be friendly if not friends. It costs nothing and the returns are large!

"Elijah" In Orlando

The great musical festival which will be held in Orlando next week is the greatest undertaking of its kind ever attempted in the State of Florida. Too much cannot be said in praise of its promoters and those who have contributed to its success.

All students at Rollins should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear the noted musicians and singers who will appear on the various programs.

H. Clay Inman, who sings the title role of "Elijah," was formerly a student in Rollins College.

The Weather—The Lake

Why don't you try a dip in the lake or a hard paddle over the lakes for that "tired" feeling? These warm days are not the kind to spur one on to do a good, full day's work; but the lakes have the power to refresh one and to give new energy for school duties.

Don't wait for Monday for a picnic. Get a canoe and several congenial companions—and don't forget the provisions—and go out to Lake Maitland or to Osceola and cook supper. Enjoy the moonlight and firelight for a while after supper, then paddle leisurely homeward.

If you don't feel like tackling those books with more pep than ever when the 7:30 bugle blows, then there must be something really wrong with you. Better see a physician.

Students at the University of Chicago who fail to pay for their student publications and who become classified as "deadbeats" will not be recommended for graduation, according to announcement made by Dean Thomas F. Holgate of the College of Liberal Arts. The statement went further: "No student who habitually neglects the payment of personal debts will be continued in college," declared Dean Holgate.

According to statistics recently compiled at Harvard, a graduate of the business school receives on an average $1,450, or over twice as much as the graduates of the Law and Medical Schools, a year after graduation. But for the next three or four years the Medical School graduates and the Law School graduates increase their incomes much faster than the graduates of the Business School; so that in four years the Law School graduate is earning more than the man who received his training in the Business School, and after five years the latter's income is exceeded by that of the Medical School graduate. The School of Business administration has no figures for more than five years after graduation, as it was not established until 1908.

FAULT FINDING.

The signs is bad when folks commence
A-findin' fault with Providence,
And balkin' 'cause the earth don't shake

At every prancin' step they take.
No man is great till he can see
How less than little he can be.
Ef stripped to self, and stark and bare
He hung his sign out anywhere.

My doctrine is to lay aside
Contentions, and be satisfied.
Just do your best and praise or blame
That follows, that counts just the same.

ing, but placed $2 in the bank toward a hopeful sum.

Both Miss Siewert and Miss Hall were called upon for encores, and the entire program aroused murmured comments of approval.

After the singing, the floor of the hall was cleared, and all of the young people enjoyed an hour of dancing, a three-piece ladies' orchestra affording truly "peppy" music.

INSECTIVEROUS PLANTS OF FLORIDA (PART I.)

Spotted Trumpet-leaf, Photographs
41-42 In Baker Museum.

By MARY EVANS FRANCIS.

Insectivorous plants have a peculiar fascination on account of their strange habit of reversing the ordinary process of nature and preying on the animal kingdom, which, as the usual thing, preys upon plants.

The insect devouring members of the plant world are most commonly found in a soil poor in nitrogen, where the ability to supplement their diet is of special benefit to them. Florida is unusually rich in the number and variety of such plants—our sundews, butterworts, pitcher-plants, and bladderworts, all have this habit, and all get their food by different means. Sundew leaves, for example, spread a snare, lie in wait for days, and, having caught their victim, have sufficient power of movement to enfold it in a deadly and devouring embrace. In fact their tentacle-like glandular hairs move like scores of greedy fingers when an unlucky insect chances to alight on a leaf. Sundews (Drosera) are abundant in the marshes near the West Boulevard in Winter Park, and may easily be recognized by their small rosettes of glistening reddish leaves.

The spotted trumpet-leaf (Sarracenia minor), in the lure and deceit of its hollow leaves, is one of the most interesting of our insectivorous plants, and is found in bloom in late winter and spring in low pine lands a few miles out from Winter Park, in the direction of Lake Howell.

In this pitcher-plant no rain water can reach the interior of the pitcher, for the leaf ends in an arched dome that spreads over the opening and partly conceals it. A winged border leading up from the ground to the mouth of this trap is edged with a sweet secretion that attracts various insects. The inside of the dome also secretes honey, and the trap is not only well baited, it is also well designed to keep its booty. On the back of the leaf, opposite the opening, are a number of translucent spots through which winged insects vainly try to escape—the road by which they entered being darkened by the over-arching hood, they seldom notice it, but as flies in a house dash against the windows, these creatures try to find a way out through the light spots in the leaf. Exhausted, they finally fall into the base of the leaf, where a fluid is secreted in which they perish and become food for their treacherous host.

A plant in the house is an efficient fly-trap, and even catches wasps and roaches; but the leaves have the horrible habit of devouring their prey piecemeal when it is too large for the secretion to cover at once, and a roach or centipede caught in a leaf may be alive and wriggling in the upper part of its body while the lower part, resting in the secretion, is partly dissolved. This secretion promotes rapid decay and dissolution, but is unlike that of sundew and butterworts, whose glands secrete a digestive enzyme that resembles the pepsin of gastric juice.

There is still another peculiarity of these leaves: Above the darker portion, which indicates the presence of the secreting cells and is plainly seen in the photograph of the opened leaves, the interior is lined with smooth, stiff, downward-pointing hairs, making for crawling insects the easiest possible descent into the leaf, but—facilis descensus Averno—ascent against these cruel points is, to the average insect, impossible.

Yet, clever as the plant seems to be, a few flies and a small moth outwit it; and, being immune to the secretion, select these leaves as their home in order to use the food supply that the plant has secured. The caterpillar of the moth covers the hairs with a web, and so travels over them; the flies ascend by peculiar grapple-like feet, and their grubs bore holes for exit through the leaf.

On opening the base of a leaf the remains of many ants, flies, and beetles are found, filling it sometimes to a depth of several inches. Living in this unsavory collection a pale gray grub is often seen, not half an inch in length, and so nakedly translucent that the inner workings of its small body are nearly as visible as are those of a clock in a glass case.

The color of the fresh leaves in late winter and spring is very attractive, ranging through shades of green veined with crimson and tinged with pink. With young leaves rise the long-stemmed flowers with stiff stiff calyx, drooping yellow petals, and odd parasol-like expansion of the style. Several other species of the genus Sarracenia are found in northern Florida.

Last Saturday afternoon a small party, chaperoned by Professor and Mrs. Palmer, paddled to the picnic place above the Seminole Hotel. Little Fletch, as chief cook, got together a very appetizing chicken pirlieu; Carl Prange proved to be entitled to honors as a cook also, as evidence of which he offered very creditable coffee; Pat Richards, Hope Townsley and George Cutler, ably assisted by the chaperons, did the heavy looking-on and consumed the food. The party returned to Cloverleaf at about 9:30.

Monday afternoon Vanetta and Peggy Hall entertained their parents and Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Seminole Cottage at a steak roast. The people from the college met the guests at Mr. Brown's landing and trailed along in the wake of his "speed" boat to the picnic ground above the Seminole, where, after various incidents and accidents, supper was served. A sensational feature of the afternoon entertainment was a chase after a forgotten frying-pan, conducted in a canoe and run on a course between the picnic ground and the Brown cottage. Time, down and back 18 minutes. Others who enjoyed the delightfully "picnicky" supper were Miss Enyart, Miss Gonzalez, Coach Royal, Mary Hall, Hope Townsley and George I. Cutler.

We regret to state that Dr. Julia Allen has been ill, which necessitated the postponement of the Sonata Recital to be given by Dr. Allen and Miss Rous.

Helen and Alice Waterhouse and Dorothy Richards accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Waterhouse on a pleasure trip to Wekiva Springs, Monday.

Isabel Foley, Vivian and Antoinette Barbonr and Elsa Siewert were also visitors to Wekiva on Monday.

The Western and Ohio Clubs had their pictures taken by Photographer Siewert last week.

The Ohio Club was organized on Thursday, the 22nd, with Dean Enyart as president; Robert Stone, vice-president; Gertrude Hall, secretary-treasurer, and Norman Fletcher, cheer leader.

Emmett Russ, a former Rollins student, was recently married to Miss Maggie Youngblood of Mt. Dora. They intend to make their home in Texas.

Sadie Pellerin was the guest last Sunday and Monday of Gayle Davis of Orlando.

An assessment of $57 is levied on each senior of the University of California for raising a memorial trust fund of $50,000. Payment is due in instalments of $2.85, due in April of each year for 20 years.

Oberlin, last year, had a 14-year-old freshman, James Milton Eglin, who carried 15 hours' work, and made high grades.

Ex-Chancellor McCracken, of New York University, is to address a joint Association meeting next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. A. H. Froemke of Lake Alfred visited her son, Maynard, on the campus last Sunday.

Prof. and Mrs. E. S. Palmer, Miss Gonzales, Sadie Pellerin, Virga West, Eleanor Backus, Carl Prange and Maurice Wheldon witnessed the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," in Orlando, Saturday evening.

A full rehearsal of "Elijah," embracing the entire chorus of two hundred, was held last Monday night at the Presbyterian church lecture room in Orlando. Clay Inman, a former Rollins student, who will take one of the solo parts in the chorus, was present for the first time at this rehearsal.

Margaret Smith delighted her friends on the campus last Monday evening, when she returned from the north, where she has been spending some time.

Misses Mildred Smith, Ruth Knowel and Nary Hulley, friends of Elizabeth Russell, were among the Stetson students to witness the Stetson-Rollins tennis matches last Saturday afternoon. During their brief stay on the campus, they enjoyed a canoe trip on the lakes, with which they were greatly charmed.

Among the Rollins students who attended "The Birth of a Nation" last Friday evening at the Lucerne in Orlando were Warren Ingram, Paul, Harrison, Edward Douglas, Ruth Greene, Florence and Gladys Smith, Wyman and Ellis Stubbs and Marion Matlack.

Misses Ruth Greene, Florence and Gladys Smith spent last Friday with Ada McKnight in Orlando. During the day they visited the fair.

Evelyn Haynes was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Coffin at dinner Tuesday evening.

A number of of the Rollins faculty and students attended the library bazaar last Wednesday afternoon. The bazaar is an annual affair and is anticipated with interest by those who are accustomed to attend.

Evelyn Haynes was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. O. S. Robinson of Orlando last Friday. During the day she visited the fair and returned to Rollins Saturday morning.

Carl Prange arrived in Winter Park last week from Jacksonville, where he has been spending the winter.

TIPS from The TOMOKAN

(Contributed by Tomokan Editors)

The Winter Park Post carries in its last edition, as one of its important editorials, the following:

The Tomokan.

The Tomokan, the first year book of Rollins College, will be published in April, with a circulation of approximately 200. The book will be a beautiful souvenir of college life and a fitting memorial of Rollins. It will be a great work for the good of the college, for it will show people what the students are and are trying to do. It will be widely distributed because of the fact that nearly half of Rollins' students come from the north. It will, therefore, not only advertise the college, but the town of Winter Park and surrounding section. It will not be a mere transient thing, but will be kept for a lifetime by the owner. The undertaking is not only valuable to the town at the present, but as time goes on will enhance its value. The business men of Winter Park and Orlando ought to support this book generously; the better the support the better the book and consequently it will have more value. At least, people can subscribe for one or more copies at $3 each.

One hundred and thirty-five subscriptions have been secured for The Tomokan. Are you one of the subscribers? If not, secure one NOW, as only 65 are left, and alumni are sending in all the time.

Mr. Robert P. Oldham, first business manager of the first Rollins publication, has subscribed for one copy of The Tomokan.

The Art Editor hasn't said much, but it is understood that she has some startling caricatures. Perhaps a couple of seniors, who are more or less widely known, or even a certain faculty member who is addicted to tennis, will wonder or rave at no future date.

The dummy arrived from the Louisville offices of the Bush-Krebs Company the first of the week, and it is expected that the bulk of the pictures will leave the editors' hands today.

Mr. H. C. Rinaldi, manager of the Rinaldi Printing Company of Tampa, was in Winter Park yesterday conferring with the Editorial Board of The Tomokan. It is interesting to note that Mr. Rinaldi did some of his first work in the printing business for The Rollins Sandspur, while in business in Orlando a number of years ago.

It is absolutely necessary that more advertising space be sold. Each senior can help out by consulting the Business Manager and finding out where he may solicit. Do this now, as it vitally affects the make-up of the book.

Collections for cuts in The Tomokan will be begun within a week's time. This notice will give you time to have your money ready. This matter should be attended to immediately.

Hal (making an announcement): "All who sell one or more students will be admitted free."

Miss Katherine Gates read a letter from Miss Elsie Greene, the secretary who has been sent to Japan to represent the South Atlantic Field of the Y. W. C. A.. The letter was like a personal one from a young school girl who is interested in just living. She told of her daily life and duties and tried to make us see Japan and its people as one who comes in daily contact with them would do so.

Miss Elizabeth Russell next told us of Miss Young's ideas of personality. Miss Young is one of our field secretaries and is expected to be with us shortly. Her idea of personality is extremely interesting. It starts off: "Are you Triangular or Round?" and goes on to show the application of geometry to character. For as a triangle, with its three angles, can come in direct contact with but few parts of other figures, so a personality with only three interests can come in contact with another personality in only three ways. But the more angles and sides a figure has the more nearly round it is, and a round figure can have contact with any figure by rolling around it. So a personality with a greater number of interests can be interested in more people.

Finally, Miss Muriel announced the results of the election which was held Tuesday afternoon. They are as follows: President, Virga West; vice-president, Ruth Greene; secretary, Marion Phillips; treasurer, Elizabeth Russell.

The Advisory Board was approved, and stands as follows: Mrs. Ferguson, Miss Bellows, Miss Gladwin.

In view of the possibility of war being declared between the United States and Germany, a meeting of the men in college was recently held to determine what active Middleburg should take in preparation for such a declaration. Dr. Thomas, in addressing the gathering, stated that should the war become inevitable, the men of Middleburg should be prepared to offer their services. A committee was appointed, and it was decided to give the men elementary drill in squad formation.—The Middleburg Campus.

New ideas continue to take material form in the Polytechnic Institute. The latest is a course in practical cooking planned especially for housemaids. The class meets every Thursday afternoon, and has 36 enrolled. Thursday is their afternoon off, which they use to the advantage of both themselves and their employers. At present the class is interested chiefly in plain home cooking and marketing. Later household problems, such as arise in every well organized home, will be taken up.—The Tech Collegian.

A college orchestra has been organized under the directorship of Marion Lee Johnson, the violin teacher. Plans are being made to play for the Florida Pageant, which is to be given in May, and also for some of the other college events during the year.—The Florida Flambeau.

Little Willie had a mirror
And he licked the back all off,
Vainly thinking, in his terror,
It would cure the whooping cough.

At the funeral said his mother
To a neighbor, Mrs. Brown,
" 'Twas a chilly day for Willie
When the mercury went down."
