ROLLINS AND STETSON REMAIN BITTER RIVALS

From all that happened Monday night in the gymnasium during the basketball games, it is evident that the old spirit of rivalry between Rollins and Stetson has not died—it has only lain dormant for a period of three years, ready to fly into full force on the slightest provocation. The provocation was furnished Monday evening.

Both the freshman and varsity games with Stetson proved to be one of the bloodiest battles Rollins has seen in a long time. Two open fights marked the evening's progress, and more than one hard word was passed, but those men who were so unsportsmanlike as to engage in fisticuffs were immediately put out of the game, regardless of where the fault lay. The hard words hurt no one and lent spice to the program.

If basketball can bring on such bitter competition, what ought to be predicted for next year's football fracas with Stetson? A battle royal? Yes, we guess. Rollins and Stetson are traditional rivals, and memories still linger in the hearts of old fans and loyal alumni when Rollins used to defeat her ancient enemy regularly each year. For instance, a certain basketball game which resulted in a 37-34 triumph for the Tars.

Stetson defeated Rollins the first game of the year, but Rollins will be granted a return game sometime in February. It is hoped that the team will then even accounts with the Hatters.

SANDSPUR NOTES

Saturday, January 16, the time. The "Sip and A Bite" the place—Good Eats?—Oh, Yes! (And fashionable too!) Then the theatre—much fun. By whom? Phi Omega Pledges!!

We know where Helen G. Reed was this last week-end. There's no use saying she was in New Smyrna.

Florence McKay came back from Sanford rather late last Sunday night. Had a fine week-end, she sez.

STETSON INVADES ENEMY TERRITORY FOR FIRST TIME IN THREE YEARS; ROLLINS VARSITY LOSES 34 TO 21

Revival of Old Athletic Connections
Marked by Bitter Competition on the Part of Both Teams. Freshmen Far
Outclass the Junior Hatters.

Monday evening at Lyman Gymnasium, both the freshman and varsity basketball teams of Rollins faced the respective teams of their old rivals, Stetson, for the first time in two years; and, as a large crowd from both schools was present, the spirit ran to a high pitch.

The first game played, between the two rat teams was one of the peppiest of its kind seen in this section of the State for some time. The Baby Tars had a decided edge on the freshman Hatters from the start; and, although both sides put up the stiffest kind of a battle, superior passing and teamwork on the part of the Tars gave them a decided advantage and they won by the comfortable margin of eighteen points, the final score being 34-21.

The playing of all the members of the rat quintet was superb and it is difficult to state just who were the superior players, although the consensus of opinion manifested by the spectators was that Zoller and Moore showed a little better form than the rest.

The lineups were as follows:

Rollins	Stetson
Reeves	Welsch
RF
Moore	Daniels
LF
Zoller	McFate
Center
Williams	Derbeshire
RG
Crawford	Eustice
LG

With the termination of the freshman game in a victory the varsity came on the floor with the determination to end the evening with a dual victory. At the end of the first quarter the score stood 9-6 in favor of Stetson. From that time on, however, the Stetson Quintet opened up and proceeded to run up a very uncomfortable score with the Tars fighting like tigers to recover. The Hatters once getting the lead proceeded to hold it, and, due to numerous fouls and poor shooting on the part of the

THETA KAPPA NU STAGES SECOND ANNUAL BANQUET

Theta Kappa Nu fraternity celebrated its second anniversary as a national chapter Saturday evening when members and alumni together with associates enjoyed a banquet at the San Juan Hotel in Orlando. It was Theta Kappa Nu's second annual banquet.

Professor E. F. Weinberg filled the office of master of ceremonies admirably. His mathematical precision and forceful personality dominated the affairs of the evening and made of it one of the greatest successes Theta Kappa Nu has ever achieved.

Speeches opened with a toast by A. F. Shreve. He told of the growth of Theta Kappa Nu, and of its accomplishments—how it had done more in one year to establish itself than had many other older national fraternities in thirty years. His talk was followed closely in context by that of J. H. Evans, who emphasized Mr. Shreve's statements by startling facts and brilliant prophecies.

Mr. J. E. Bartlett, Sr., close friend of the fraternity representing the alumni, gave a true after dinner talk pungent with humor and the old "which reminds me of a story," and full of sound advice to young men preparing themselves to start out in the world.

Following Mr. Bartlett's talk, came words from Dr. Taintor, Professor Harris, Dr. Boyce, "Six" Sutliff, "Pop" Donaldson, and Charles Zehler, captain of next year's "Orange Typhoon."

Brilliant masterpieces of after dinner speeches were heard from several pledges, each sincere, and each expressing loyalty and devotion to Theta Kappa Nu fraternity.

The evening ended with a rousing rendition of the fraternity song.

Birthdays always are the occasion for spreads. Elizabeth Atkisson had one and the spread was enjoyed by the K. E. girls in Martha Mathis' room Sunday night. The only trouble with it was that Elizabeth didn't get back from Orlando in time to partake of her birthday party. Poor Elizabeth. Better luck next time.

TARS GO DOWN BEFORE U. OF FLORIDA ATTACK

Rollins met defeat in her first basketball game of the season, when the University of Florida cagers romped on the local quintet in Lyman Gymnasium Friday night to the tune of 48 to 13. Getting away shortly after the whistle blew, the 'Gators piled up a substantial score. Although the Tars fought valiantly to the end, it became evident that they were not the equal of the Florida men in shooting or in pass work.

The passing of the Florida team proved to be the outstanding feature of the game, and their deadly short shots were a source of constant danger to the home team. Their passing, together with the work of Smith at forward, proved the power behind the Florida quintet.

Bob Wilson played the best game for the home team, and seemed to be the only man who was capable of finding the basket with anything bordering on consistency. He accounted for practically all of the Tar scores.

Rollins jumped into the lead at the outset when Wilson hooped one into the basket from the middle of the floor. Play became fast. Finally, Smith got into action, and Florida began piling up a score which rapidly grew until the end of the half left it 29 to 6 in favor of the visitors.

The second half was a repetition of the first, with Bob Wilson again leading his teammates in scoring. The game ended with the final score 48 to 13. Captain Bowers of the Tars was unable to play because of a lame foot, but he will be in condition to meet the Stetson Hatters Monday evening in Lyman Gymnasium, when the Tars will meet their ancient enemies for the first time in three years.

NOTICE

Attention has been called to an error made in last week's issue of the Sandspur.

It was stated that the "R" Club had met and elected next year's football captain. This was erroneous. It was not the "R" Club which elected the captain of next year's "Orange Typhoon," but the football letter men called together in a special meeting by Coach Talman.

A national inter-collegiate conference was held in December at Princeton for the purpose of encouraging enlightened and militant student opinion in regard to the World Court and other matters of national importance.

DR. HOLT RETURNS AFTER LONG TRIP

Dr. Holt has returned from his journey into the northland. Tuesday morning he appeared in chapel for the first time in two months and a half, and addressed the student body in such an encouraging tone that everyone left the chapel just a little lighter in spirit, and just a little more optimistic, if possible, about the future of Rollins.

Rollins' famous president is carrying on a program of expansion which is destined to make of our alma mater one of the best small colleges in the south. Dr. Holt has taken for his goal a student body of approximately seven hundred. Those who know existing conditions fully realize what a gigantic task he has taken upon his shoulders.

We welcome you back among our ranks, Dr. Holt.

WORK

The most important thing in the world to you is your work.

Great men have reached that conclusion. We may apply it here: the most important thing to a student is his work.

Work is going to be paramount for the next two weeks. Soon examinations will be here, and whether or not you have worked will make itself evident. Remember: a stitch in time saves nine.

Those men who do their work regularly, or, at least, begin doing their work regularly more than two days before examinations are going to profit thereby. Now is the time to get to work. Now is the time to begin making examinations pleasures instead of nightmares.

A word to the wise should be sufficient.

THE QUESTION OF THE HONOR SYSTEM

Again the question of whether or not Rollins should have an honor system has been brought forcefully before the student body. And the problem has arisen: is Rollins prepared to inaugurate the honor system?

Rollins is prepared to inaugurate the honor system.

For the first time in its history, Rollins fosters bright prospects of becoming a larger institution than it has ever before been. President Holt has promised us a freshmen class of at least seventy-five next year. What have we to offer to these new students? An effective honor system would be one of the strongest drawing cards Rollins could produce.

However, an honor system is based upon honor among men and women. It is not a vehicle for cheating.

Opponents of the honor system have said that students must be educated up to the honor system before it can be effective. Just what is meant by this statement? History shows that heathen peoples have never been converted from ignorance to a state of knowledge without some change. Students cannot be "educated up" to anything without some change. The change is the honor system.

If we would have an honor system, let us begin now. The only way to educate people to the honor system is to have a system of honor.

It might also be remembered that discussion of the proposed system in assembly is not an excuse for would-be orators to rise from their seats and waste time by attempting foolish speeches.

Strive to make of Rollins a better college. In criticizing the honor system and belittling it, think beyond your own ego's horizon. There might be something worth while outside.

CONCERNING COLLEGIATE CHASTITY

Recent novels about college life have given the young people of the campus a bad name. Concerned parents are warned by ever active busybodies with ingrowing religious complexes that college life works terrible havoc, and that Jack may grow overnight into a dangerous radical.

Overly-abundant newspaper publicity in a few isolated cases of student viciousness has contributed to the popular conception that the campus is the devil's playground.

Just what sort of a fellow is the college boy or girl, when seen as he or she really is? Charles A. Selden, graduate of Brown University and former newspaperman, wanted to find out, so he visited twelve of our institutions.

At Harvard he attended dances, both private and public, visited the clubhouses and class-rooms, took part in "bull-pens," talked with professors and with parents of boys studying in Cambridge.

Writing in The Ladies' Home Journal on the subject of "Fashions in College Morals," he reports that conditions among student bodies have been grossly misrepresented. He found immorality and drinking, but contends that they were restricted to an extremely small per cent. Recent fiction and critical essays, he says are more than anything else responsible for the exaggerated views.

Chambers of Commerce are working themselves up over the terribly young radicals in college. Some luncheon clubs have chimed in on the chorus.

"Their spirits have suffered needlessly," assures The Ohio State Lantern. "George F., Jr., is even more secure in college than he would be in the world of business."

"If George F., Sr., along with some of his friends, could step into a classroom during a discussion of some of the points on which George F., Sr., and his friends have exceedingly strong convictions, they would be enlightened and their minds freed from worry. They would discover the staunch young upholders of their pet ideas to be chips off the old block and not lacking in the desire to uphold the good traditions."

Mrs. Mary A. Hewitt, Dean of Women at Marquette University, defends the college girl:

"I refuse to believe our girls are going to the dogs because they bob their hair, wear short skirts and dance the Charleston."

"Youth is a bit more frank, more daring, than the youth of a generation ago, but at heart, it is still the same youth—thoughtful, intelligent and sweet."

"You are young but once," she counsels Marquette co-eds. "Enjoy your health while you can—but don't lose sight of your womanliness at any time."—American Campus.

The average age of marriage in India is 12 1-2 years.

City Commissioner F. W. Fletcher has given the City of Orlando 2,000 calla bulbs for planting in the many parks of the City Beautiful.

The Orange County Beautification Commission is co-operating with the County Board of Education, the County Commissioners and the State and Federal bureaus in supporting a Smith-Hughes County Agricultural High School in the Taft-Pine Castle district. ## PERSONALS

Gladys Wilkinson returned from her week-end visit with plenty of food.

Florence McKay, Louise Holland and Helen Grace Reed spent the week-end in their respective homes.

Van Dresser has a real collegiate car—each girl who takes a ride in it must write her name on it. Don't all make a dash at the same time, girls!

The campus misses Lois' cheerful countenance and we all hope she will soon be better.

We had two welcome guests on the campus this week, Vaudine Logan and Shorty Draa.

We hear there was quite a bit of excitement in Cloverleaf the other night. For all details, see Edna Wells.

Anne and Evelyn have changed rooms with Billie and June. The latter have bid the dorm goodbye.

The K. E.'s entertained with a spread Sunday night, and much fun was had by all.

Doc Krueel motored down to Vero for the week-end.

We hear Van Dresser has quite an appetite for grape-juice, cake, candy, and even fish.

Ever since the "Cloverleaf Scare" Saturday night, Louise Mathis is carrying a knife for protection.

Red Fralick paid us a week-end visit and was seen at the basketball game with———?

At the T K N banquet, Scotty absent-mindedly put sugar in his consommé.

Everyone is looking forward to the Football Formal February 1st.

Les Taylor's car has been seen on the campus lately. Guess after the repair work, it is in fine order.

Now that everyone's grades have been posted we can see that everyone will have to do some extra studying.

It is whispered that Scotty has a rival—three guesses!

CLOVERLEAF SCARE!

Of course we like to have men over at Cloverleaf but when they decide to come at three A. M., we don't appreciate it so much. I guess they won't visit us again very soon because Miss Gartland is such a fine detective. Now we are going to have a night watchman so we'll be well protected. We believe in safety first. Men won't be raising windows and scaring girls as one did last Saturday night. You haven't heard about the excitement? We thought everyone on the campus had heard about the MAN. It was really quite thrilling. If you don't believe it ask Edna Wells or Martha Mathis. They saw HIM. He tried to get into Edna's room. He raised the window six inches. They scared him away. Miss Gartland called the sheriff. He came to the rescue. Footprints were found in the sand. Beware to the man whose footprints correspond to these. Watch your step, from now on. You might be suspected.

AGAINST BOBBED HAIR

"A Student" writing to the editor of the Morgantown morning newspaper recently preferred charges against the traditions committee and all its work, pointing out the "hair-cutting episode" at Fairmont Normal, and declaring it against the Declaration of Independence.

The students thinks that hair cutting is taking away an individual's rights. He says, in part:

Many of our eminent college presidents and college professors have openly voiced their disapproval of freshmen rules, the source of the troubles in the Fairmont school. After years of observation they have arrived at the conclusion that the ruling of freshmen by upperclassmen is injurious not only to the freshmen, but likewise to the upperclassmen themselves and to the school as a whole. It discourages and deadens the ruled and develops the spirit of the bully in the rulers. This in itself is enough to warrant the abolition of such practices, but there are also other reasons of even greater importance.

Any custom or convention which tends to destroy the equalities of man should not be allowed to flourish in our state institutions of learning. A very recent student tradition has it that all freshmen must be subjected to restrictions in order that they may be properly subordinate. The Declaration of Independence opposes this theory and the pursuit of happiness it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it. We speak with derision of any nation which still maintains a monarchy, while in truth it is not nearly so tyrannical as the government which exists in our universities and colleges.

"The Student," whoever he is, should be pitied, not condemned. He cries for liberty and stops at the traffic officers' commands; he begs for inalienable rights and takes English and Spanish when he wants something else; he twitters of the "land of the free" and praises the anti-smoking laws on the campus.

But he has not gone deeply enough into the matter. All must serve apprenticeships. This is true in all departments of life. The college professor today has gone "through the mill" of being an apprentice; the banker had his apprenticeship as messenger boy. And the freshmen, before the traditions committee, are merely serving theirs and being punished for refusing to serve them. It is the primeval law of man that newcomers must stay in the background; seniority rights always prevail. And "the Student" proves his foolishness and makes his case only an argument for a traditions committee.

Ask any sane freshman if he doesn't approve of a committee and unless he answers on the spur of the moment he'll say "yes".

WIDE RIGHTS-OF-WAY AS THEY REFLECT ON PROPERTY VALUES

(Some remarks made by Carl G. McClure of Fort Myers at the Winter Haven Convention)

Speaking of values, if we would believe those humorous writers in many of the metropolitan dailies of the north at the present time we would be forced to the conclusion that there are no real basic values of Florida property. I say "humorous" advisedly, for while many of those are on the front pages and are heralded in large headlines, I do believe that there is just a short time going to elapse before they will appear in the funny columns of Judge, Frolic, and other humorous papers in the country. They vie with other humorous jokes. So that after all we, who are in Florida, know that there is value to Florida real estate and Florida property. We who have had the privilege of basking in the sunshine of Florida, who have had the opportunity of wandering through the shady nooks of Florida's woodlands, who have had the pleasant experience of boating on her waterways and lakes and along the beautiful rivers, I say we who have had that privilege know from a sentimental standpoint that there is value in Florida property. Can he who has farmed the soil of Florida and has had the opportunity of drawing from the land of Florida a livelihood and a very prosperous living, and has been able to realize profits varying from $100 to $2,000 per acre, help but know that there is an intrinsic basic value to Florida property? These efforts all the writers who speak of Florida and say that the boom has already reached its peak and that Florida property is selling at way beyond its real value, and that you cannot live in Florida because of the mosquitoes and excessive heat, and that it is a good place to raise alligators and ducks. I will say that that is overcome by so many of us who live in Florida and the many others who have been in Florida and returned north and who know the possibilities of Florida and what it is to have a home here—that after all value of Florida property is an established fact. I would not wish to be construed as indicating that I have subscribed to that statement which would carry the thought that all Florida real estate is worth just as much as you can charge the other fellow for it and get him to pay. Quite the contrary, I would be much more inclined to caution in the matter of fixing values of Florida real estate, and I would take into consideration the fact of what the land is to be used for, as there are three distinct uses—home site, business site or farm. I have purposely mentioned farm last because I consider it the most important. Personally, I cannot visualize Florida laid out in 50x150 foot lots, but I can visualize it in five and ten acre farms and making a good living. Those are some of the things we must take into consideration in this movement for beautification in Florida. Many phases of this subject have been discussed. I am forced, from lack of time, to concentrate on the subject of beautification of the highway, and more specifically on that phase of highway-beautification that has to do with the wider rights of way. After all this takes into consideration and covers all of the other points that might undertake to discuss because it gives you a wider right of way from which to eliminate signs. It gives you a better roadway. The point at issue is "Does it add to property value or is the owner, in giving a wide right of way giving something for which he gets nothing in return?" We, in this meeting today, are so much interested that we are inclined to overlook possibly the value point and the commercial side of this question. It is very nice, indeed, and so inspiring to look at it from a sentimental viewpoint. We have to take into consideration that the thing in mind is whether it will add to the value of the property. So we come to the specific point of the added value reflected by wider rights of way. (Here Mr. McClure went into detail in telling that in Lee County property values had actually increased because of wider rights of way.) In Lee County we have 20 miles of paved 70 feet. We have at the present time petitions in process for the widening of 25 miles more. This makes a total of 45 miles paved 70 feet and under 100, but the point I wish to make is that we have today officials roads in Lee County 100 feet or more of 46 miles. We have of that about three or four miles 140 feet wide. The wide right of way idea has been sold to the people of Lee County and people who are interested in land in Lee County. One instance especially of where a group of men saw the possibility of creating value. We cannot be content with the values that we have already created. We must create more by roads, by development, by improvements. (Case cited of increased valuation 225% because of wide right of way, and now worth four or five times as much with the road finished.)

I would leave this thought before you—as owners of property and as those who are interested in property in some way, I would urge upon you the necessity of taking into consideration at this time the right to reserve wider rights of way which will make the property not only sell for more but it has already been done. It is not theory but actual fact. I would ask that you take this matter into consideration. Take it up with the county commissioners. Sell them on the idea of wider rights of way. You will find that your county commissioners will be glad to help if you go about it in the right way.

EXCHANGE

That students are more ignorant of daily affairs than are day laborers is the opinion of many at the University of Washington. The students are desirous that a course be offered in Current Events.

Nebraska State Teachers' College has an organization composed entirely of the red headed students of the school. They call this organization "The Order of the Pink Haired Sheiks and Shebas."

In his talk on "Christmas in Italy," Dr. Charles Goggio, at the University of Washington, said that the Italians do not have Christmas trees and presents on December 25th. They give their presents on January 6, and the period between the two dates is given over to feasting, church services and general jollification.

At Stanford the registration has passed the three-thousand mark. The increase is in upper-classmen and graduate students; the number of freshmen is fixed, being limited by the resources of the University.

The Bureau of Employment at New York University last year obtained positions for 1,560 students and alumni, at salaries amounting to approximately $1,500,000.

BROAD-MINDEDNESS

One of the major purposes of a college education is to impart a broader view of life, making the individual more appreciative and tolerant of the numerous imperfections in the present social order.

The average college student will assert too, that his view has broadened. But has it?

How many over the vacation period found their home town perhaps a bit drab in places, a bit rustic in ideas and customs? How many surprised a smile when the neighbor women said "don't never," or laughingly commented on the close-fitting trousers worn by some of the village swains? Peradventure, some even tried to set themselves up as examples of culture to the juveniles of the community.

One, two, even four years of college does not suffice to make a critic or reformer of an individual. An education can in some respects be likened to a club. Put the club in the hands of one individual and he will thrash grain. Another might use the same implement to ward off flies. It is well to find the right use for the educational club, since he who thrashes hard and constantly will not find the flies at all irksome.

Regardless of the many faults of fraternities, the fraternity domicile makes an excellent market place for the exchange of undesired Christmas presents.

Clothiers predict that the peg top trouser, "full peg" and "half peg," is to be the successor of the present comfortable style. When this announcement becomes generally known all of the men will swear they will never wear them, and all of them will purchase when the trousers are placed on sale, unless the same reception accorded the balloon trouser is given the peg top.

And I doubt not through the ages,
One increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened
With the process of the suns.
— Tennyson.

RECIPROCITY

(Daytona Beach Journal, Dec. 10th)

Many residents of this state spend the summer in states represented in Florida during the winter, and thereby renew pleasant acquaintanceship formed here. Florida also advertises handsomely in all states of the Union, attracting hither responsive thousands each and every year.

Some of these tourist friends have decided that "turn about is fair play," and the Michigan contingent proposes to put on an advertising campaign in Florida this winter which will extol the virtues of Michigan as a summer resort state. To this end a tourist and resort bureau has been organized and a free service information bureau has been established in one of the larger East Coast resort cities. Proponents of Michigan idea are advising other central western lake states to follow the example set, with the result that a summer resort boosting program has been practically and successfully launched, according to accounts.

This is all very well, and Florida raises, or should raise, no objection. Florida advertisers and promoters have invaded other states, and should be willing to share privileges and to reciprocate favors, and the newspapers of the state will no doubt be willing to aid the campaign on the same terms that Florida maintains an advertising campaign in Michigan and elsewhere.

There is one fly in the ointment of reciprocity, however, and certain organizations and institutions in this state will wage a vigorous protest against one certain feature of the Michigan campaign as tentatively announced. As a starter the announcement has been made that "signboards also will be posted throughout Florida pointing out Michigan's virtues as a summer playground."

The signboard is the fly.

Florida is trying, with considerable success, to outgrow the signboard. All the women's clubs, the State Beautification Society, the Garden Clubs and their respective federations waged and still wage warfare against the signboard. Many counties of the state have, through their boards of county commissioners, forbidden signboard advertising, and all beauty lovers in the state have pledged themselves to adopt every reasonable measure to rid the state of a method of advertising which militates against development, detracts from natural scenery effects, and which has proven of little or no use to advertisers. The latter consideration, however, is not the determining one, for Florida has come to see that commercial advantage is not the only one to be counted in the progress of the state.

All friends of our tourist visitors will wish them success in their summer advertising campaign, in which Florida herself will be glad to join, but nobody who loves Florida will willingly further a program which includes billboard advertising, and the Michiganders and Wolverines and all the others, contemplating similar methods in Florida would as well make up their minds to face fierce opposition to a method which Florida herself has discarded.

Emerson once said: "What you are speaks so loud I can't hear what you say."

The only nobility worth while is the aristocracy of intellect and character.

If a man have not self-respect, of what value the adulation of the multitudes?

Mr. Hagen: "Your honor, my windshield was almost totally obscured with safety first stickers."

She: "Stop!"

He: "I won't."

She (with a sign of relief): "All right; I've done my duty."—Texas Ranger.

Poor Studies

Newspaper story comes out of Cuthbert, Ga., that people there will raise funds to allow "worthy boys and girls of the public school here to prosecute their studies in college." Prosecute seems about the right word. To prosecute: to accuse studies of every crime in the calendar and condemn 'em. That's college.—Ex.

Dale: "What makes the red spot on your nose?"

Prince: "Glasses."

Dale: "Glasses of what?"

Miss Tarrer: "Elizabeth, will you decline the verb 'amo,' please?"

E: "Yes, mam, I'm afraid I'll have to."—Sara-So-Tan.

Stetson Invades Enemy Territory

For First Time in Three Years;
Rollins Varsity Loses 34 to 21

Tars, ended the game with the score 33-15 in Stetson's favor.

Although Rollins made a far better showing against Stetson than they did against Florida, they did not as a whole play up to form in the last part of the game. Captain Bowers' work as forward was the outstanding feature of the contest and even with an injured foot showed himself to be thoroughly familiar with all the phases of the game from the manner in which he conducted himself and the team. It is hoped that in a return match to be played at Stetson the players' hopes for a dual victory will be realized.

The lineup:

Wilson	Smith
