ROLLINS OBTAINS CREW SHELLS OF CORNELL; CHARLES CHASE, YALE LETTER MAN, WILL COACH TEAMS

Plans Being Made for a Greater Aquatic Future at Rollins

During Chapel hour last Friday morning Dr. Holt sprung his customary surprise, this time in the form of an athletic one, yet as usual, concerning to a major degree, the betterment of the college.

This surprise brought up the subject of a crew for Rollins College and also the introduction of Mr. Charles Chase, a Yale man of the class of '23 who had served as coxswain on the Yale crew and has been instrumental in bringing the topic of a Rollins crew to the attention of Dr. Holt.

After his introduction, he stated that he had been in correspondence with a number of colleges that maintained crews, and had received very generous response and assistance from Cornell. They had replied that as their equipment was ample, they would be pleased to donate to the crew movement at Rollins, two shells in excellent condition in order to start the college off, providing Rollins would bear the shipping expense. Mr. Chase further stated that similar letters had been sent to Yale, Harvard, Princeton and other colleges and possibly like benefactions would be received from them.

At this point Dr. Holt informed the chapel that Mr. Chase had offered his services to the college as coach in order to aid in development of the crews and to aid in every way possible the movement which promises to develop a sport of major proportions.

Asked as to this possibility Mr. Chase replied that the natural facilities were excellent for a short rowing course to be layed out on Lake Maitland equal to the distance called for in the American Henley Cup race to which he would be anxious to send a crew next year as all colleges possessing crews would be represented there and the odds would not appear so great as against the big three.

HOLT REFUSES PROF'S OFFER TO AID ROLLINS

Tells Newly Elected "Professor of Books" He May Use Money in Own Department

Edwin O. Grover whose election as Professor of Books in Rollins College was announced a few days ago by President Hamilton Holt has given a concrete illustration of his interest in the future of the college by offering to contribute $500 to the Development Program. This offer, however, has been refused by President Holt in the following letter to Professor Grover.

"I was especially pleased to receive your offer of $500 toward our present campaign, but we are not asking any members of the faculty to contribute toward the campaign because a part

ROLLINS LOSES CLOSE GAME TO TAVARES 6-5

"In the best exhibition of baseball seen on the local diamond this season," states the 'Lakeland County Citizen.' "Tavares defeated the Rollins College boys by the close margin of 6 to 5."

The game was an interesting one for the spectators thruout—with the final result in doubt until the very last play, when Moseley tagged Warner at the plate for the final put-out. Each team used two pitchers, Michel giving up eight hits in six innings until replaced by Larkin, who gave up one hit during the remainder of the game. Robbins for Tavares gave up nine hits in six innings, and V. Barksdale allowed three hits in three innings.

Things looked bad for Rollins in the first, when Fuller led off with a hit, but was caught at second. Price got on safely, but Strickland flied out to center, and Price was forced at second on Anderson hit. For the next three innings, Michel pitched good ball, only nine men facing him.

In the fifth, Tavares got five hits and four runs.

However, the game was no walk-away for the Tavares nine. Says the 'Lake County Citizens':

"Manager Pace was exceedingly fortunate to get Rollins to play here, for the boys play clean, fast ball, and make the game interesting. The two teams were evenly matched, and furnished plenty of thrills for the spectators. Everyone of the visitors got a hit."

FOUR RECORDS SHATTERED AND ONE EQUALED WHEN ORLANDO GIRLS AND MIAMI BOYS SWIM TO BIG VICTORY

SHORT STORIES ARE IN DEMAND BY THIS PAPER

Due to the great interest displayed in the last short story published in the Sandspur, and the increased demand for this kind of fiction, we are departing slightly from the field of newspaper journalism in order to meet this demand. Rollins is situated in a literary center. It is fitting that literary expression should find a source somewhere. We want short stories. Below is one of the latest:

Smoked Glasses

By A. Carter Bradford.

The world must be viewed through smoked glasses, to successfully record the truth as it is not practiced, mused Bob Caruthers, playing aimlessly with the keys of his typewriter in the editorial rooms of the Evening Star. Bob was only 21, yet an acknowledged man of the world, as most successful newspaper men are. He knew all of the "sacred cows" of the Evening Star office.

A "sacred cow," Bob might have explained to one outside of the profession, is a tabooed subject that must never appear in print. It might be the fact that the Mayor's father was hanged for horse stealing, that the wealthy Mr. Adrian Bibbs had two imbecile children in a private asylum, or any number of similar facts peculiar to the locality.

Journalism was a cursed profession, after all, but somehow one never can get away from it, once he has been caught in its meshes. A reporter can say the right thing a thousand times and no one murmurs, yet let him make one little mistake and the very heavens pour out their wrath upon him. Lies—lies—lies, a drunken old reprobate must be spoken of as a "prominent business man of this city" and the most God-forsaken old sinner in town referred to in hallowed terms, all because his bank account is read in six figures.

He would chuck this business and get another job, if it wasn't for Celeste—wonderful little Celeste, decided Bob, running his nervous fingers through his thick, curly black hair. He must work hard and save up enough to make a first payment on that Spanish bungalow out on Magnolia avenue, the one with the red tile roof and the patio garden. Celeste would be wonderful in those surroundings. At this thought a look of elation crept over his well-chisled countenance.

The purr of the electric wall clock winding itself awoke him to the fact that it was long past quitting time. He hurried out. He must dress quickly and be there on time—it would never do to keep her waiting. That he sometimes waited for an hour was a matter of small consequence.

Celeste Crain paused before her boudoir mirror and gave her fluffy

Pete Desjardines Takes Individual Honors With 13 Points; Virginia Lawrence Heads Girls

Over seven hundred people lined the shores of Lake Virginia Saturday from morning until evening, and witnessed the Orlando girls and Miami boys cut the clear waters of the lake to victory in the seventh annual State Interscholastic Water Meet. Four state records were broken and one record equaled as high school boys and girls fought desperately honors on the Rollins swimming course.

Virginia Lawrence of Orlando claimed the greatest number of points in the individual scoring for girls, taking a total of 15, while Harriet Provost of St. Petersburg ran a close second with 13 points. Pete Desjardines, Miami, famous Olympic diver, gained for himself greater note by annexing the highest number of individual counters for boys, his total being 13. Desjardines also distinguished himself when he went out of his natural sphere into that of the swimmers and won second place in the 220-yard free style and first place in the 440-yard free style swims.

The lineup of scoring in the ranks of the boy teams was as follows: Miami 25, St. Petersburg 23, Orlando 19, Lakeland 9, Duval High 8, Winter Park 6, Hillsborough 5, and Daytona Beach 4.

Twenty events, 10 for boys and 10 for girls, made up the program of the day, and interspersed with these numbers were canoe tilting and various other boat races.

Many of the high schools of the state were represented in the various events, and entries for the most part were large in each feature.

Virginia Lawrence, of Orlando, broke her own record in the 150-yard free style event, reducing it one and two-fifths seconds, the time being 2 4/5 seconds. Harriet Provost, of St. Petersburg, also eclipsed a record, making the 100-yard free style in

MRS. OWEN ADDRESSES CHAPEL ON MOTHERHOOD

A striking appeal on behalf of modern womanhood was made by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, versatile daughter of the great Commoner, in her address at the Rollins chapel exercises yesterday morning.

"It has been said that woman's place is in the home, and that is true, but 'home' now includes a great deal more than it formerly did. Home is as much space as my children can cover in an automobile in a few hours," stated the speaker.

Mothers must interest themselves in public affairs to safeguard the interests of their children. Motion pictures are the greatest modern propaganda agent, declared Mrs. Owen. This has of the money is being raised to relieve the underpaid condition of the faculty. I would suggest, therefore that you spend the $500, if you are so inclined, in improving your own department, when you come here in any way that seems to be wisest."

Professor Grover has spent many years publishing books and is eager to work out with President Holt the experiment of a Professorship of Books. After a visit to Winter Park he purchased a home not far from the campus and plans to devote himself to this ideal.

Professor Grover is a native of Mantorville, Minn., according to "Who's Who." He was educated at Dartmouth and at Harvard and for a time was an editor on the staff of Ginn & Co., Rand McNally & Co., Atkinson, Mentzer & Grover and since 1911 has been president of Prang & Co., publishers. He has served as president of the Chicago School of Industrial Art and is a trustee of the Congregational Training School for Women. He is the author of six or eight books which are widely read.

In accepting this professorship, which as far as is known is the first of its kind in any college in the world. Prof. Grover wrote President Holt as follows:

"I believe your action in establishing the first chair of Professor of Books in America will in time be followed generally. It will be a great adventure for me, as well as for the students taking the course, but by working out the experiment together, I am sure we shall find endless opportunities for pleasure and intellectual development.

"After twenty-five years spent in the editing and making of books, I hope to be able to interest a group of selected students in a wider reading and keener appreciation of books, and even in the making of beautiful books, until they agree with me that the companionship of a good book is better than the company of a thousand men.

"The accumulated knowledge of centuries is buried between the covers of books, and unless we unlock their pages to the coming generation, the ideals and culture of the past will be largely lost to America. It is appropriate that the new Rollins under your leadership should be the first college in America to establish this unique chair with the large cultural possibilities.

"I shall send you soon the data requested for the forth-coming catalog. I appreciate the privilege of being associated with you in this modest way in working out your plans for making Rollins the best small college of liberal arts in America."

been proven by experiments with school children showing that visual instruction is much more successful than methods now in use.

"Woman's sphere" was fittingly illustrated. A rabbit was thrown into the air and it fell, placed in water and it sank, but put on land and it ran, for here was its natural habitat. A fish, likewise, is helpless in the air or on land but at home in water. A duck was thrown into the air and it flew, placed on land and it walked, dropped in water and it swam. Woman's sphere was likened unto a duck in versatility.

An appeal for civic responsibility was a prominent note in Mrs. Owen's talk. The best opportunities must be given to all in order to have a good nation.

That each person might realize the weight of public opinion and assume his rightful responsibility as a voter were the final words of this talented lady to her interested audience of college students and townspeople.

Crows

In a field in sunny Spain stands a stone mortar. Crows hover around it, picking up bits of grain and chaff—cawing.

Here Marcheta, in the fresh beauty of her youth, will come to pound maize. For years she will pound maize. The stone will stand up under the blows; not a dent has the muscle of three generations of women made upon it. But the crows will hurl their black gibes upon a woman aging early and bent with toil. Old Marcheta—still in her thirties.

The American woman does not pound maize. But she still beats carpet; she still pounds clothes; she still pumps water. She exhausts her strength in tasks which electricity can do better, and in half the time.

The high ideals of a community mean little where woman is still doomed to drudgery. But the miracles which electricity already has performed indicate but a fraction of the vast possibilities for better living and the tremendous opportunities which the future developments in electricity will hold for the college man and woman.

Electricity, which can release woman from her burdens, has already created a revolution in American industry. Wherever mankind labors, General Electric motors can be found carrying loads, driving machinery and saving time and labor. And there is no branch of electrical development today to which General Electric has not made important contributions.

A series of G-E advertisements showing what electricity is doing in many fields will be sent on request. Ask for booklet GEK-1.

Last week Sigma Phi sorority of Rollins sponsored an affair for the benefit of the college campaign fund. The occasion was a garden party, held from four until six o'clock on the beautiful grounds of Green Gables, situated directly opposite Virginia Inn.

Plans included everything for an enjoyable afternoon—music, delightful surroundings, delicious refreshments served indoors, while outdoors home-made cakes were on sale.

K. E. NEWS

Miss Elinor Flood, an honorary member of Kappa Epsilon turned her beautiful grounds into a Japanese garden last Friday evening. The older guests took possession of the home while the K. E. girls and their friends danced on the boat house roof and waited for the moon to come up. There was lots of punch and lots of sandwiches and a bonfire was built for the purpose of roasting marshmallows. Numbers of the young folks paddled over in canoes and it is rumored that some of them had trouble in finding Miss Flood's home.

The moon finally arose and shone through the trees throwing weird shadows over everything. Florida nights at this time of year are just suited for parties like this.

Kappa Epsilon alumni of Orlando gave a benefit bridge for the K. E. House Fund at the Sorosis House in Orlando last Monday afternoon, May 3.

PERSONALS

Theta Kappa Nu entertained about a dozen men from the Florida Beta chapter over the week-end. They all enjoyed the water meet—Especially the dance at the Orlando Country Club.

Prof. Anderson initiated Prof. Podmore into the mysteries of a new car trick last Monday. According to both Profs. it is entirely mathematical.

Buster Luther no longer spends his week-ends in Daytona. A little bird told us that Charlie spends all his spare moments in Orlando.

Charlie Sehler thinks the Imeprial Policy is some form of insurance.

Evelyn Green is still waiting for a letter from Emory College.

If you're interested in mental telepathy Ann Hathaway would like to hold a seance with you.

Come out of the fog Ed, some way to lock a car and leave the keys in the door. Ask Ray and Army.

There seem to be a number of bottle babies around here.

The water meet was a big success. All the bathing beauties made quite a hit.

Yes girls do get up early—a bunch of them paddled to the family tree for breakfast the other morning.

Midnight swimming is quite the rare on the campus of late.

Carol Warner of Crescent City spent the week-end with Trixie Larson.

Barbara certainly knows how to make waffles. Ask those who intended to go to a bridge party and ended by spending the night—Estelle, Florence and Beata.

A crowd of girls enjoyed breakfast at the family tree Sunday morning. After paddling across the lake the following proceeded to devour the good eats: Edith Trao, Louise Holland, Bertina and Mary Coughdon, Helen Wilson, Gladys Miller, Evelyn Dula, Pearl Millar, Tiny Peterson, Ina Hock and Anna Lee Rankin.

Bertina and Mary Coughdon spent Saturday night with Edith.

Katharine Wells spent Sunday with her folks in Orlando.

GRAND ARCHON OF THETA KAPPA NU VISITS HERE

Winslow S. Anderson, Grand Archon of Theta Kappa Nu fraternity, was the guest of Florida Alpha chapter at Rollins for three days during the past week. His trip is a hurried one carrying him thru Gainesville, Winter Park, Lakeland, Tampa, and thence back to Indianapolis.

Prof. Anderson, as he was formerly known while a member of the faculty of Rollins several years ago, was delighted to see all his old friends whom he knew in the days of yore.

"Where's old Pod?" were his first words when he began asking of his friends. "Pod" lurked in the offing.

Professor Anderson left Tuesday afternoon for points north. It is his intention to visit many Theta Kappa Nu chapters between here and Indianapolis.

K. E. HOLDS BANQUET

Kappa Epsilon held its twenty-fourth annual banquet at Dudsread Country Club, Friday evening, April 16. The table was artistically decorated with red and white flowers carrying out the fraternity colors. Miss Ada McKay presided as toast mistress. Speeches were made by Miss Elinor Flood, an honorary K. E.; Mrs. Donald Cheney, Miss Florence Bumby, alumni; Mrs. H. F. Harris, Faculty Advisor; and Misses Eva Thompson and Virginia Mitchell, active member of K. E. Musical selections were given by Misses Ruth Richey, Elizabeth Atkisson and Gladys Richey. A large number of the Alumni of Kappa Epsilon were present at the banquet and great plans were made for the future of K. E. and Rollins.

(Note: this article was given to the Sandspur three weeks ago, but due to misplacement in the office, was not published).

LUCILLE WATERS GIVES CHARMING PIANO RECITAL

Miss Lucille Waters of Orlando gave her graduating piano recital Monday evening in Knowles Hall.

Miss Waters displayed a fine talent, playing with clean technic and lovely, colorful, tone.

She has studied the past three years with Lela Niles, head of the piano department, and has developed a technical control and musicianship that does fine credit to her instructor and herself.

The numbers from the Suite 'The Childrens Corner' by Debussy, were given with delightful touch and style. In her performance of the Grieg Concerto she showed the technical development she has made this year.

Mrs. Edna Wallace Johnston, contralto, was assisting artist, singing a group of songs with fine voice and unusual interpretive power. Included in her group was one of Miss Waters own compositions, a charming musical setting of the Turner-Salter poem, 'The Pine Tree.' Mrs. Johnston sang this with beautiful tone and fine feeling for the spirit of the song.

Miss Niles was the accompanist for Mrs. Johnston and played orchestral parts of the concerto on second piano for Miss Waters.

The following program was given: Andante with Variations Haydn From Suite "The Children's Corner" Debussy

PRESBYTERIAN YOUNG PEOPLE TO MEET HERE

The fourth Presbyterian Young People's Conference of the Synod of Florida will be held on the campus of Rollins College here during June 15-24, it has been announced by Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of the college.

A. J. Coakley, who has been in charge of the previous gatherings, will direct the approaching conference, it was stated.

This conference is designed to give the young people of the Southern Presbyterian church an opportunity to study church methods for ten days under inspirational environment, according to Dr. Holt. Noted leaders give instructions and help those who attend to master the principles of leadership so that they will return to their various homes qualified to intensify the work of the church.

A conference committee from the Synod of Florida, composed of the following: Rev. E. F. Montgomery, Jacksonville, chairman; Rev. P. W. DuBose, Miami, vice-chairman; Duncan B. Curry, Tampa, educational director; Mrs. P. W. DuBose, Miami, synodical representative.

The entire plant of Rollins College is turned over to the committee for the use of the young people.

yellow hair an approving toss. With the perfume bottle stopper she toughed lightly behind each ear, applying a drop or so of the intoxicating aroma especially brewed to infatuate the masculine senses. She looked well in light green—girls of her type usually do.

"Ce-e-LES-te! Bob's here," bawled old Joshua Crain, from the foot of the stairs.

"All right, Papa, I'll be there in a minute."

Old Joshua did not exactly approve of Bob but he felt sorry for him,—he would feel sorry for anyone who would marry Celeste. To his way of thinking it was to take on an enormous liability and increase the overhead at least a hundred fold. Thirty years in the farm implement business had made him a keen judge of values—so he thought.

Three hours later, after the show, Bob's roadster was again parked in front of the Crain residence.

"Sweetheart, I love you more and more," declared a masculine voice, in a husky tone.

"More than Jenkins' stenographer?"

"Of course, honey, I never even look at her."

"I think you're the dearest boy in all the world."

"Celeste—ah-h-h-h!"

"Please Bob, I'm smothering."

"Say it again—it—it sounds so good."

"Honey boy, there'll never be any one but you."

"My precious."

"Celeste, let's get married right away."

"No, Bob, let's don't talk about that now."

The following week brought its usual round of work. On only one night was Celeste well enough to see him. Strange, he thought, she had always seemed healthy enough.

On Tuesday, three days later, the bottom fell out of Bob's world. The morning's mail contained a large, square white envelope. Opening it, he read:

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Crain request your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Celeste Nadine, to Mr. William R. McClellan of Williamsport, Ohio on Friday—" He could read no more.

Celeste! Oh, it couldn't be! Yet, it was. And the man, why, he had never seen him. It must have been someone she had met at boarding school. Oh, the unfaithfulness of women! Only a few days ago she had whispered to him, "there'll never be anyone but you." And now she was to marry another man. The walls of the bungalow crumpled and the patio garden vanished in thin air. Gone—all of his hopes and ambitions—utterly gone!

By Friday morning Bob had rallied slightly from the shock. The city editor phoned, saying he was too sick to come to the office and asked him to take charge. Ordinarily, this would have been a welcomed opportunity. Now it was only an added cloud of trouble to the dense mental fog that obscured everything.

At nine o'clock he thought of the wedding, scheduled to take place at ten. For some unaccountable reason he determined to go, and he did.

At the sight of Celeste he felt better, when he had supposed it would make him feel immensely worse. The reaction had set in. She wasn't so AWFULLY pretty, after all, and the wedding dress was not at all becoming.

At the close of the ceremony he shook hands with the groom and did all of the other usual things except kiss the bride.

"Oh Bob, you're going to give the wedding a fine write-up, aren't you?" she cooed, as though he had been only the most casual acquaintance.

"Certainly, it will be the best that has ever been printed in the Carson City papers" he assured her.

Back at his desk Bob smiled cynically at the typewriter.

"And here's where I take off the smoked glasses," he stated to the world in general.

In due time the story was written and sent out to the composing room. The foreman returned with it in his hand.

"Are you sure you want to print this," he had asked.

"Certainly," Bob snapped.

"Well, remember, it ain't no fault of mine."

The society column of the afternoon issue contained the following account:

"A marriage that interested only a small minority of the city was that of Miss Celeste Crain to Mr. William R. McClellan, which took place this morning at Trinity church. Rev. H. A. Betts officiated.

"The church had its usual appearance except for the arrangement of six flower baskets containing a few sparse bunches of badly shattered crysanthemums and a sprinkling of fern. White tapers lent a sickly light to the ceremony.

"Preceding the wedding march Miss Maud Brown bored the gathering with three poorly rendered selections, "Oh Promise Me," "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." As might be expected, her voice broke on the high notes.

"Acting as bridesmaid was Miss Mary Bronson, daughter of one of the city's leading restaurant men and bootleggers. She wore a blue satin gown and a sagging white under-slip.

"The best man looked his worse in a new outfit presumably purchased from a credit clothiers. He appeared very comfortable.

"The little flower girls were Helen and Marie Thomas. They were adorable in their dainty pink and white dresses as they tripped gracefully down the aisle scattering the petals in all directions.

"The bride was given away by her father, and it has been maliciously said by some who are in a position to know, that it was the first thing he had given away in twenty years.

"Much favorable comment was heard from the ladies over the handsome appearance of the groom. He was immaculate in his well-tailored dark brown business suit. He wore a russet and gold tie to match and fawn colored spats. Unfortunately, his collar was too tight, causing him to perspire freely.

"The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Betts, who looked disappointed at the bill slipped him by the groom afterwards.

"At high noon the young couple left on a short trip in the groom's 1919 model roadster. They have the best wishes of many friends for a safe and pleasant journey."

Before the first press run was completed Mr. Robert Caruthers had penned a farewell note to the editor and purchased Pullman reservations for a small city far out in the wide open spaces.

BATTLE WILL BEGIN FOR NICKERSON TROPHY

Beginning Monday, Rollins' tennis experts will be engage in the annual struggle to possess the Nickerson Trophy, offered each year to the man coming out on top in a singles tournament.

Robert Colville is the present holder of the cup. By defeating all comers last year, he won for himself one leg on the coveted trophy. This year it is going to be a good game of tennis that defeats the present title holder.

However, there are many good games of tennis being played on the courts daily. Colville holds on leg of the cup. If he wins this year the cup goes to him permanently. Rumor has it that "fight!" is going to be the password henceforward.

All wishing to compete who have not handed in their names will find an entrance blank on the bulletin board in Knowles Hall. Sign this as soon as possible in order that numbers may be drawn for opposing contestants.

"What do you mean by coming to school like that? Your hair is disgraceful."

The teams will probably be as follows: One heavy varsity crew, 180 lbs; one light varsity crew 145 lbs; singles and doubles. Arrangements will also be made to include girls crews as well as mens.

Due to the fact that a Rollins crew will be able to train all the year round and not have to lay over and train indoors waiting for the ice to break, a superb representation of the sport should be presented in years to come by a perfect small college way down South Dixie.

However, the work is just beginning. Coach Chase will need considerable help in preparing for the beginnings of the new sport next year. There will have to be a live wire manager and a group of peppy assistants. These will be appointed before the close of this semester. President Parker will announce the procedure in electing them possibly with the advice of Coach Chase. Lets all give assistance in every way possible and start Rollins Rowing Along.

STUDENTS HAVE MANY WAYS TO PAY EXPENSES

State College for Women Students Help Earn Way with Odd Occupations

Students at the State College for Women find many ways to help meet expenses of their education.

Everytime a special delivery letter is received by a student at the institution, not only is the government helped, but it also aids a pupil at the college to pay some of her expenses at school.

Three students have charge of all the special delivery mail of the college, and they deliver it to the rooms.

One girl acts as agent for a local cleaning and pressing establishment, and once each week makes the rounds of all rooms at the college to gather up dresses from the girls to be cleaned.

Several help pay their expenses by writing articles for their hometown newspapers, and two students write for syndicates.

The business office of the college employs one student assistant and ten girls work part-time in the library. Several are engaged in the Extension Department, doing stenographic work.

The Y. W. C. A. of the college indirectly helps many girls. The organization owns sewing machines, one for each hall, and electric irons. The machines and irons are under the direction of different students who make a percentage on them by renting them by the hour to others.

One student runs the Y. W. C. A. pound, where all lost articles are carried, and she gets a percentage of the amount received at the annual auction sale of the unredeemed articles.

Fifty-seven girls work in the dining room of the college and thus pay their expenses, while several are employed a few in tea rooms near the institution.

Three students work in the college book stores and another trio in the research department of the Home Economics Department of the college. Then, many of them have scholarships which pay all or part of their expenses. Each county gives one scholarship of four years, and the student is expected to teach two years after leaving school.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy give seven scholarships to Florida girls. The alumnae, the Federation of Women's Clubs, College Pan-Hellenic, Jacksonville Pan-Hellenic, Miami Pan-Hellenic, Orlando Pan-Hellenic and Tampa Pan-Hellenic and different woman's clubs give scholarships.

LITERATURE COLUMN

TO SPRING

By Paul Hilliard

The trees, the leaves, the birds, the grass; the lake—
It ruffles in the breeze, a thousand waves.

The firmament proclaims these gorgeous days,
And nature's in its green; all's well with Fate!

The freshness of the morning bids us wake

To greet again the sun its glorious rays;

The dew upon the hillside gleams and fades—

The mist from off a breath Neptune did take.

Our day is at the morn, and spring is here,

And youth is summoned past the closing door,

And welcomed by a world without a tear.

A carpet green that, stretched across God's floor,

Will live to greet the morn another year.

We live today, the yester is no more!

THE ROLLINS TRIO—A BALLADE

By James B. Thomas

When Gretchen plays her violin,
While Edna plays her mellow flute
And Leila Niles is sitting in
To touch the keyboard's stirring note—

So one might hear a dropping pin
The chatting audience grows mute—
Such silence and applause doth win
The Rollins Trio's high repute.

Forthwith the harmonies begin
While every ear becomes acute;
What films of melody they spin
From days of harpsichord and lute!
Then clapping hands make merry din—

The artists' skill had borne its fruit,
Such silence and applause doth win
The Rollins Trio's high repute.

From smiling eyes and dimpled chin,
With charm that no one could dispute,

These mistresses of art have been Accustomed, in their high pursuit,
Their sweet acknowledgements to grin,

In ways both dignified and cute—
Such silence and applause doth win
The Rollins Trio's high repute.

L'Envoi.

Lovers of music, 'twere a sin
To miss a chance to pay them suit—
Such silence and applause doth win
The Rollins Trio's high repute.

Sun burned
and Son burned.

Sun-burn isn't very pleasant, anybody seeing the nine latest victims would know that—but the good time was worth it and lots more. Nine in a five passenger car was more than fun. Everything from breakfast on the road to the never-to-be forgotten lunch (how can Freda stay so thin!) and the swim at Coronado made Sunday the best one of the year.
