ROLLINS DAY BY DAY

By E. A. SCHURMANN

The person responsible for this column will feel like throwing a party for the entire school if the University of Indiana pulls a win over Harvard. Anyway the first string rating in the big ten doesn't mean so much anyway.

Dean Carrothers remarks that he is quite adapt in driving one-handed now that the trip to Lakeland is over. Hot brakes and new straw hats, cuss-words and swamp water.

Anyone feeling the need may still pass through the local laundry for the moderate sum of twenty-five cents. Know anyone you would like to see get starched?

Another excursion to Miami this week. Anyone ever attending one of these games knows just how much fun it is to visit Coral Gables without being waylaid by real estate salesmen.

After one good look at the coat our pigskin manager wore at the last game we wondered if that was to help the eyes of the players or if it was an advertisement for the Orlando Tent and Awning Company.

We notice where three college debaters are representing their Alma Mater in every portion of the globe. In other words talking their way around the world. How about Rollins finding and sending such a delegation?

Something should be said about the fine showing of the freshman eleven. The score might even mount higher if the squad had gloves to wear and we don't mean boxing gloves.

We notice that The Flamingo will soon make its appearance. Welcome again to our reading circle, oh, collector of both good and uncertain prose, poetry, etc.

It seems as if some of these freshmen can't leave the grade school building after their College Problems class is dismissed. Does it bring back fond memories or something?

It won't be long before we shall be hearing a great splash in the lake. The Rollins tank squad will soon be starting work. If anyone during the year has called you a fish, go out and make the squad, win the 220 and then laugh at them.

Not tooting our own horn or anything we think that the spirit of the Blue and Gold rooters at the Southern game was very commendable in a great many ways.

If the originators of the Two Black Crows could collect a dollar every time they were quoted it would look like the European War debt.

MOCCASINS DOWN TARS BEFORE LARGE CROWD

Before a crowd of two thousand Rollins and Southern fans the Southern College Moccasins overwhelmed the Rollins Tars 25-3 at Lakeland on Saturday, Oct. 22.

The Southern outfit slashed off tackles, ran the ends, and plunged through the line time after time for substantial gains which the Rollins defense was unable to prevent. This smooth running attack coupled with several costly misplays and the apparent poor condition of the Tars gave the Moccasins one touchdown in each period of the game. Rollins only score came in the first quarter when McCoy made good a forty-yard kick from placement.

This contest was the first of two games scheduled between Rollins and Southern for this season. The Rollins squad hopes to profit by Saturday's experience and when the two teams again clash on November 19, the local fans will see a better brand of football played by the Blue and Gold aggregation.

MUSICAL STUDENTS FORM LATEST ORGANIZATION

Last Thursday night in Pinchurst another organization was added to the thriving ones already established on the campus. The new club is composed of regularly enrolled music students and is to be called temporarily, the Rollins Music Club.

Sixteen students were present at the first meeting and, after a short talk by Mr. Andrews, elected the following officers: President, Anna Margaret James; Vice-President, (Continued on page 6)

Varsity Eleven Leaves For Clash With Miami

The Rollins Football squad with coaches Hill and Haynes will leave Winter Park Friday morning by bus bound for Miami, where they will play the University of Miami Saturday at 3 P. M.

The Rollins squad will be greatly handicapped by the absence of such men as Winderweede, Cross and Stonburn these men all were injured in the Southern clash. Coach Hill (Continued on page 6)

The Rollins yearlings defeated the Crawford Hulvey Military Academy 7-6 on the Harper-Shepherd Gridiron, Friday afternoon, October 21.

ROLLINS STUDENT SAVES SMALL GIRL FROM DEATH

Mary Millburn, ten years old, was rescued from drowning in the Lake of the Woods yesterday afternoon by James A. Cox, of 1622 South Summerlin St., who dived in fully clothed and pulled her out as she was going down for the third time.

The child had been paddling about in a row boat and dropped one of the oars. In attempting to reach for it she fell into the water.

The accident was seen by Mrs. Herbert Hughston, 1124 Lucerne Terrace and she called to Mr. Cox who was passing in his car. Mr. Cox dived into the water and quickly swam out to the drowning girl, who was about one hundred feet from shore.

Rollins Music Club To Present Serge Borowsky

The Rollins Music Club will present Serge Borowski, Russian baritone, in a song recital at the Congregational Church, Monday evening, October 31, at 8 P. M.

Mr. Borowski studied in Moscow and Milan, and has had leading roles in Italian opera houses. He had roles with the Italian Grand Opera Company in Athens, Corfu, Cairo, Alexandria and Nice. He is the composer and producer of the opera, "Russian Isba," in Paris, London and New York. At present he has pupils in St. Petersburg and other Florida towns and has classes in Rollins two days a week.

Boxing Tournament Is Planned For Rollins

Plans are under way to have a Rollins boxing team meet the U. of Miami and the U. of Florida leather pushers in the new Rollins recreation hall.

There is excellent material here at Rollins and the coaching staff is confident of developing a team of first class boxers.

Boxing is a sport in which the small college can successfully compete with the larger colleges and universities. Rollins has high hopes of proving this fact at the expense of Florida and Miami.

Cliff Caldwell bore the brunt of the enemy attack, while Captain Rashid did likewise for the Baby Tars. The Academy presented a team that tested the mettle of the Rats. The Caldwell brothers, Selltell and Armstrong, played a bang-up game for the Soldiers, while Captain Rashid, Proctor, Halper, Winchell and Tracy played good ball for the Rats.

Ostlund, Rat left end, recovered Fairfield's fumble in the opening play of the game and Rashid reeled off 27 yards off tackle. The ball was advanced to the ten yard line where a Rat fumbled and the Academy recovered and punted out of danger. In the second quarter, Halper recovered Caldwell's fumble, and from Hulvey's 48 yard line Gentile, Rashid and Tracy smashed the ball in seven plays down to the two-yard mark, where Rashid pierced center for the only Rollins score of the day. Tracy added the extra point on a fake play through the line. Score: first half, Rollins 7, Hulvey 0.

In the second half Caldwell, Armstrong and Scott opened up with a barrage of smashes, end runs and passes, which carried the ball from their 38 yard line across the goal for their touch-down. Scott's attempt to pass for the extra point was smothered by Winchell.

POUND WILL FIGHT IN ORLANDO NOVEMBER 11

"Big Ben" Pound of Rollins College will offer the local fight fans a treat when he climbs through the ropes November 11, at Tinker Field.

This will be the first real opportunity the local fans have had to see their heavyweight boxer in action.

Jim Downing is not ready to state who will be in the opposite corner, only that he will be a worthy opponent for "Big Ben" and will probably hail from New York.

Little Theatre Makes Bow To Public Nov. 18

The Rollins College Little Theatre Workshop will make its bow to the public with the presentation of four one-act plays on November 18 in the Recreation Hall of Rollins College.

The plays to be given are "The Turtle Dove," a Chinese play, "Fennel," an Italian costume play, and two modern comedies, "The Beaded Buckle," and "Our Kind." Comedy and tragedy, pathos and humor are found in these plays and even the (Continued on page 6)

For the sake of recalling old times at dear old Rollins, and for the sake of comparing the past of some three decades ago, with the present, the SANDSPUR will from time to time, carry an "Old Time" column beginning with this "Ye Ancient Rollins Number," which will undoubtedly prove interesting as well as amusing.

It seems as if it were a dream to learn that thirty short years ago, tuition, room and board at Rollins amounted to the enormous sum of $181.50 (payable in advance). At the same time Rollins had the three term year, two terms were of twelve weeks duration, and one term of nine weeks.

By looking on the editorial sheet of each SANDSPUR it will be found that it carries an editorial excerpt from the first issue of the SANDSPUR, which was published December 20, 1894. The SANDSPUR at first was put out by a literary society, composed of the Demosthenic Literary Society and The Friends in Council. It was published quarterly. Nearly everyone in the collegiate department of the college was important as all had something to do with the issuing of the SANDSPUR. The editor-in-chief of the first issue was Henry Buckingham Mowbray. Other members of the staff who assisted him in various capacities were, Frances Habbitt Crooks, Ruth Curlet Ford, K. H. Lyman, Robert Pollark Lyman, Fred Paterson Ensminger, and Rex Ellingwood Beach.

The first issue of the SANDSPUR fulfilled several important needs of the college; it spurred up school spirit and interest; it paved the road for other publications which were to follow; it worked its way to the gates of other colleges and made itself known; and it helped advertise Rollins. It gave the students an opportunity to express their thoughts and feeling and to record the views, opinions and the events of the time, thus preserving the early history of Rollins.

The first issue holds true to the Rollins spirit, as it will be seen from the following excerpt—"Rollins College is coming to the front with gigantic strides. The last important step has been the acknowledgment of it as a flag station by the F. C. & P." Rollins was rolling along then and is still at it. The Sand-Spur, that thing that sticks, is also known in higher circles of society as Cenchrus echinatus, Cenchrus tribuloides.

Before the SANDSPUR, even, The Demosthenic Literary Society published the Demosthenic Demonstrator. One or two excerpts have been taken from the June, 1894, issue for this issue of the SANDSPUR.

The committee charged with the arrangement of the course for the coming year consists of Dr. Charles A. Campbell, Chairman, President Holt, Dean Carrothers, Irving Bachellor and A. J. ## I. CHRONICLE

And it came to pass in the first year of the reign of King Charles that the king went forth from his own city one days journey even unto Saint Cloud. And he took with him his magicians and his soothsayers, singers and his disciples followed after him; even so that there was no devout man behind him in his own city to oversee the unruly servants. And a certain servant did love his messmate and did wish to take her unto himself. Therefore, they were betrothed. But the following day he would that he had not promised. Nevertheless the tender-eyed maiden saith it must come to pass and mourned and would not be comforted and vowed to sit in sack-cloth and ashes until the king should pass his decree. But the king was absent. Thereupon her father gathereth all the congregation of the servants together and saith unto them: My daughter lieth at home sore vexed with a devil because her bridegroom tarrieth. And it came to pass that the multitude collected from among themselves wise men who should put the matter aright. The name of the judge was Harry the son of Kansas. Ernest the Weirite was the scribe thereof. Cincinatus and Frederick the Smingerite expounded all things written in the law. Moreover John and Homer and the son of Watt testified of the things which they had seen with their eyes. And in the fulness of time ten thousand shekles were given to the maiden and she went on her way alone rejoicing. And the king returning and seeing the multitude was sore distressed in body and mind and sendeth every man unto his own house and there was much weeping and gnashing of teeth.

II. A FAIRY STORY

Once upon a time, there was a mill on the shore of Lake Virginia. Back of the mill the land rose to a great height. Here the fairies used to hold high carnival twice each year, when the oleanders were in bloom and at the ripening of the guavas. The fairies gave no heed to anything but their own merry sport, until the great wheel of the mill began to churn the waters of Lake Virginia. They supposed that the mill was a great monster gorging itself with pine trees, and at once determined to destroy it. This severe and cruel purpose wrought a sad change in this innocent, happy little people. From that day to this they have plotted mischief and that continually.

Long years have passed. The old mill is gone. In its place stands the cypress tree and another people are being persecuted by the elfin clan.

A practical, comon-sensible people possess the land and call it Rollins College Campus. A comely wharf covers the timbers that have for so long been a snare to unwary boatmen. On the wharf were gathered the women folk one bright Sunday in May. The sun was low in the west and the crimson and gold in the water rivaled the crimson and gold in the sky. Then all changed and the air was filled and heavy with a color like pink oleander. The women trembled and wringing their hands said: "What can it mean? See! the college horse seeks the water! She is sinking! she struggles! some unseen power pulls her down! Help, help, you men of Pinehurst!" Quickly the men came to the rescue and the faithful beast was saved.

Then the young men who had on them the mark of the sawdust said: "Let us go up and confer with the young people of Pinehurst and Lake-side and of the cottage that is built after the manner of a clover leaf." And they did so and were all of one mind. So now, when the old folks say: "Pooh, pooh, there are no fairies!" then the young men look at their talisman which is a knot of ribbon, the color of the pink oleander.

THE SANDSPUR, DEC. 20, 1894
A Real Ghost

"Certainly I believe in ghosts. Why? From experience, and if you care to hear the story, I'll tell you."

In the spring of 1879 I was loafing around San Francisco, my health not allowing me to be in my usual business. I had a very intimate friend who was owner and captain of a large sailing vessel, the St. John, and who made San Francisco his headquarters. He had just bought the vessel and was getting ready to make his first trip. He had great difficulty in getting a crew, as the ship was said to be haunted.

The tradition was that a few years before, the captain had been murdered by his crew. They had severed his head from his body and thrown both overboard at the bow of the boat. Now, at certain intervals, the head dripping with blood

YE ANCIENT ROLLINS

would come up over the railing and some disaster was sure to follow sooner or later.

As time hung heavy on my hands, Captain Montrose, that was my friend's name, asked me to accompany him on this trip; I of course, accepted his kind invitation and we set sail on the 17th of April. We had been out only a few days when the crew commenced bringing ghostly tales to the captain. They reported having seen this bloody head, but Captain Montrose paid little heed to them, as he supposed what they had seen was due to their imagination. But day after day they came with the same story, saying that the apparition appeared at exactly eight bells. At last the captain decided to look into the matter and see what it really was that so frightened his men. One Thursday night, instead of turning in at the usual hour, we sat on deck and smoked. Taking our steamer chairs and placing them near the bow, we made ourselves as cozy as possible. It was a dark night, cold and clear, and the sky was littered with stars. A slight breeze was blowing, which made the water ripple just enough to show the phosphorescence and as far as we could see it was a shimmering mass of light. Suddenly it began to grow dark and a queer, indescribable sensation crept over me. Just then it struck eight bells. I felt my eyes drawn to the side of the boat and there, slowly advancing over the railing, was an apparition such as I hope never to see again; a human head, which seemed to float in the air. The hair was matted and disheveled, the eyes glaring, the mouth wide open, showing two hideous rows of teeth, the face made more ghostly by three long scars, and a big gash on the forehead, and from the neck blood was dripping. When the head had advanced some distance from the railing it stopped and seemed slowly to rise. Suddenly all were startled by an unearthly noise, the remembrance of which will never leave me. It seemed as if all the sounds possible to the human voice were mingled in this one utterance. One man, frightened almost out of his senses by this screech rushed towards the ghost, if such it was, and made as if to clutch it; but lo! it was not there. As the man had advanced the head had retreated and he, still more frightened, retreated in turn, and the head again advanced. This was repeated several times; finally, with a little bobbing motion the apparition disappeared entirely, leaving a terror stricken crowd on deck. For a time we simply stared at one another. Then I felt my muscles relax and I got up, stretched myself, yawned and said, "Captain, let's go to bed!" We turned in without further words, but for me there was no sleep that night.

The men predicted that something dreadful would happen and said that the scream of the ghost was a warning to us. By this time we were so wrought up that we expected anything, and prepared ourselves for the worst, and we were not disappointed. It came, and soon, too. That night a lamp in the fore-castle exploded and before we knew that anything had happened the fire was beyond control. Several of the crew were burned to death, some were drowned, a few got off in the life-boats but were never afterwards heard from. The captain, second-mate and myself, after drifting around on a burnt spar for four days, were taken up almost dead by a passing schooner.

This was my first and only experience with ghosts, but it served to make me a firm believer in visitors from the spirit world.

—MYRA G. WILLIAMS

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

November 30. Those who remained at Rollins during the Thanksgiving vacation went to the gymnasium on this evening and participated in a taffy pull which was not a taffy pull. While Miss Grassie, Miss Crooks and Mr. Fairchild were at the dining hall vainly endeavoring to make pullable taffy out of butterine, the party at the gym, were indulging in such questionable sports as hypnotism, etc. Mr. Rowland passed into an unconscious (?) state, and Miss Ford in wild alarm, flew to the dining hall and brought back a six-gallon water pail. (Women were strong in those days).

Locals

Those having bills of the Sanford-Rollins base ball game as souvenirs are earnestly requested to drape them in black. (Ed. note—Same old story).

THE SAND-SPURS 1907

1. If Worchester is pronounced Wooster, how do you pronounce Rochester?

2. Prof. B. (in Algebra)—Mr. Slater's answer is correct but I prefer your form.

WE HAVE WITH US—SENIORS

PAUL HILLIARD

This feature of the SANDSPUR would indeed be incomplete without at least a brief notation of the life and past program of one Paul Hilliard. Hard as it is to believe, Mr. Hilliard has taken quite an active part in the activities of Rollins though last year he began paving the way to his downfall with such atrocities as "too big for his violin," etc. This year, so far, his slate is clean with the exception that he is in constant demand by the city police department and also his fraternity brothers for his careless glee club rehearsals and also his piano solos.

All joking aside Mr. Hilliard has been a credit to Rollins in a great many ways. He has both captained and managed the proteges of Fleet Peeples. This swimming squad has been a great thing and we are expecting even more this year. The Student Association has had as its noble leader Mr. Hilliard. And he was once editor of the SANDSPUR. As soon as Mr. Hilliard discovered what a football was used for he became our chief drawback but in later years has really developed into a worthy member of the backfield.

Our publication, The Flamingo, boasted of a real business manager last year with Mr. Hilliard as no one else but.

Mr. Hilliard surprised both himself and everyone else by taking a liking to basket ball and after a year or two became a regular (not saying what) and now bears his "R" proudly.

We have mentioned his talent along the line of music but his really fine voice can only be appreciated when heard (at a distance). We also note that Mr. Hilliard is quite popular with the weaker (?) sex and that a certain town in the state receives a lot of his attention. A better student than Hilliard is impossible to find. He studies constantly, actually being discovered going through these motions back in 1926—the exact date was Dec. 21st (during vacation).

Last but not least the Theta Kappa Nu's claim him for a brother when his dues are paid up and he has a cold.

We can't exactly decide what Mr. Hilliard will be when he leaves but we are hoping for the best and he has our best wishes (they don't cost anything).

SULLIVAN MEDALLION PLACED IN CARNEGIE

spring it was presented to Irving Bacheller, first citizen of Winter Park, during the inaugural exercises for President Holt.

The enlarged replica of the medalion which hangs in Carnegie is conspicuously placed at the turn in the stairs. This brings it face to face with the Rollins students throughout the day.

ROLLINS STUDENT SAVES SMALL GIRL FROM DEATH

Mary was turned over to relatives who took her home and she is reported to have recovered quickly.

Mr. Cox hurried to change his clothing and apparently suffered no ill effects from his experience.

FLORENCE MCKAY

"Hey there!" We hear her laugh and see soft brown eyes peer friendly toward us. But watch that smile when the clock sounds the hour, and blotting out all hope that it might be fast, the bugle sends its verifying notes across the campus.

"Have you the slightest idea," she says, "it's just a habit, 'what the lesson is about?'"

Poor Florence! As though to be president of the Y. W. C. A., secretary of the Student Council, a member of the Rollins Key and Rollins Literary Societies, the Phi Omega and Phi Beta Sororities, to say nothing of the numerous other activities of which she is a prominent part, are not enough to keep one hustling, but the catalogue insists that she must have one hundred and twenty-eight hours of English, Spanish and the like.

We wonder what Florence intends to be. Florence wonders, too, but she will have to wait until Commencement is over before she can spare time to concentrate on a profession.

Her willingness and ability to aid in student activities, together with many personal charms, has placed her first in her own group and among the whole student body. Everybody has profited by her Rollins spirit, and keen eyes shall follow, when she dons her cap and gown, saddles her sheep-skin pony and rides away on the road to success.

Alvera Barboe, and Secretary and Treasurer, Hazel I. Darlington. Richard Wallace was appointed chairman of the Program Committee and plans for the year were discussed.

The club will present to the people of Winter Park and Orlando Serge Borowski, Russian baritone and member of the Conservatory faculty, at a recital at the Congregational Church, Monday, October 31, at 8 P. M. This is only one of the many things the club plans to do during the year and under the guiding influence of Mr. Andrews much is expected of it.

VARSITY ELEVEN LEAVES FOR CLASH WITH MIAMI

has shifted Couch to a tackle and Starnes to a guard hoping by doing this he will clog up the hole in the forward wall left by the absence of big "Red" Winderweede.

Captain "Zip" Zehler is improving fast and the college physician announced that he may be able to get back into the game at Miami Saturday.

Coach Hill is taking a squad of eighteen men on the trip, but as yet he has not decided on the eleven men he will start against Miami.

The team will arrive in Miami Friday afternoon, they will stop at the San Sebastian Hotel in Coral Gables.

Someone remarked that Miss Thomas' Play Acting class looked like a deaf and dumb school at play. You see pantomime work is under full sway now.

ROLLINS FRESHMEN DEFEAT HULVEY ACADEMY, 7-6

The Academy threatened once again but the Rollins line held on the 2-yard line and Tracy punted out to the 25 yard line. Proctor intercepted an Academy pass and ran the ball back to mid-field where the game ended. Final score: Rollins 7, Hulvey 6.

BOXING TOURNAMENT IS PLANNED FOR ROLLINS

There is considerable local interest in boxing. The proposed tournament will probably draw a large crowd of Orlando and Winter Park fans.

Any financial gain resulting from such a show would be used to purchase much needed equipment for the gym.

Pound will use the college campus and the Rollins gym for training quarters where he will do road work, bag punching, and sparring, being assisted in the latter by Willie Greenspan of New York and Mickey Feador of Canton, Ohio, both members of Downing's staff of pugilists.

Aside from "Ben's" ability as a fighter, he is a true Rollins student, being a member of the Rollins Key Society, a member of the 1926 football squad, a holder of several canoeing titles, and above all a friend of every student on the campus.

LITTLE THEATRE MAKES BOW TO PUBLIC NOV. 18

most critical audience will find something appealing in the program.

The plays are being directed by Miss Dorothea Thomas, who has charge of the Workshop and the casts are composed of some of the promising actors in the college. Among those taking part in the plays are Annie Campbell, Ed Schurmann, Bob Burhans, D. B. McKay, Mary Hall, George Holt, Frank Abbott, Anne Hathaway, Joe Jones, Ludolf Ebsen, Louise Howes, and Miss Thomas.
