FLORIDA FRONTIERS: THE WEEKLY RADIO MAGAZINE OF THE FLORIDA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Florida Frontiers: The Weekly Radio Magazine of the Florida Historical Society is a weekly, half-hour radio program currently airing on public radio stations around the state. The program is a combination of interview segments and produced features covering history-based events, exhibitions, activities, places, and people in Florida. The program explores the relevance of Florida history to contemporary society and promotes awareness of heritage and culture tourism options in the state. Florida Frontiers joins the Florida Historical Quarterly and the publications of the Florida Historical Society Press as another powerful tool to fulfill the Society's mission of collecting and disseminating information about the history of Florida.

Florida Frontiers began airing in January 2009, with the first few programs including a discussion with Patrick Smith about his novel A Land Remembered, a look at Florida's role in the Cuban Missile Crisis, a remembrance of Florida folk singer Bobby Hicks, a feature on Judy Lindquist's new historical novel Saving Home, and an exploration of Florida's frog leg industry of the 1920s and 1930s. People who remembered manufacturing and distributing moonshine whisky in Florida during Prohibition were interviewed, listeners were taken to the home of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, the Cape Florida Lighthouse was discussed, oral histories from the 1970s were rediscovered and renowned poet Maya Angelou reflected on the importance of Florida writer Zora Neale Hurston.

Florida Historical Society Executive Director Ben Brotemarkle is producer and host of Florida Frontiers, with weekly contributions from assistant producers Janie Gould and Bill Dudley. From 1992-2000, Brotemarkle was creator, producer, and host of the hour-long weekly radio magazine The Arts Connection on 90.7 WMFE in Orlando. In 2005, Gould became Oral History Specialist at 88.9 WQCS in Ft. Pierce. Since 1993, Dudley has been producing an ongoing series of radio reports for the Florida Humanities Council.

The program is currently broadcast on 90.7 WMFE Orlando, Thursdays at 6:30 p.m.; 88.1 WUWF Pensacola, Thursdays at 5:30 p.m.; 89.5 WFIT Melbourne, Sundays at 7:00 a.m.; and 88.9 WQCS (HD2) Ft. Pierce, Sundays at 7:00 a.m. Additional public radio stations are expected to add Florida Frontiers to their schedules later in

FLORIDA HISTORICAL QUARTERLY PODCASTS

The Florida Historical Quarterly has entered a new era of media. Dr. Robert Cassanello, Assistant Professor of History at the University of Central Florida and a member of the FHQ editorial board, has accepted a new role as the coordinator for podcast productions. In conjunction with the Public History programs at UCF, Dr. Cassanello will produce a podcast for each issue of the Quarterly. Each podcast will consist of an interview with one of the authors from the most recent issue of the Quarterly. The podcasts are uploaded to iTunes University and are available to the public at <http://publichistorypodcast.blogspot.com/>. The first podcast was conducted with Dr. Jack E. Davis on his article "Sharp Prose for Green: John D. MacDonald and the First Ecological Novel," which appeared in Volume 87, no. 4 (Spring 2009). Dr. Michael D. Bowen was interviewed for the second podcast. His article "The Strange Tale of Wesley and Florence Garrison: Racial Crosscurrents of the Postwar Florida Republican Party" appeared in Volume 88, no. 1 (Summer 2009). All podcasts are archived. In making this service available, the Florida Historical Quarterly joins a handful of journals that have entered the digital age.

FLORIDA HISTORICAL QUARTERLY JOINS JSTOR

The Florida Historical Quarterly is now available to scholars and researchers through JSTOR, a digital service for libraries, archives, and individual subscribers. JSTOR editors spent more than a year digitizing FHQ volumes 3-83; it became available to academic libraries and individual subscribers in August 2009. The FHQ will be available within a 5-year window. Recent issues of the Quarterly are available only in print copy form. JSTOR has emerged as a leader in the field of journal digitization and the FHQ joins a number of prestigious journals in all disciplines. The Florida Historical Quarterly will continue to be available through PALMM, with the same 5-year window.

January 14 Frederick "Fritz" Davis (Associate Professor of History, Florida State University)

"The Man Who Saved Sea Turtles: Archie Carr and the Origins of Conservation Biology"

An avid and lifelong naturalist, Frederick Rowe Davis studied the history of science at Harvard, the University of Florida, and Yale, where he completed his doctorate. Currently, he teaches the history of science and medicine and environmental history. Davis is the author of The Man Who Saved Sea Turtles, a study of conservation biologist Archie Carr, which was published by Oxford University Press in 2007. Through Archie Carr's remarkable career (1937-87), Davis explored the important developments in biology and conservation including the rise of conservation biology as an independent discipline. Carr dedicated most of his life to the study of all kinds of turtles, but his studies of the ecology and migration of green turtles are widely credited with helping save the species from extinction. More than that Carr popularized conservation by writing books accessible to even the most science-phobic that chronicled his own studies and adventures.

Davis recently received a two-year grant from the National Institutes of Health to complete his second book, Pesticides and Toxicology: A Century of Environmental Health. Along with colleagues from the Biological Sciences and Philosophy, Davis is currently at work on a three-year collaborative research grant from the National Science Foundation, which seeks to strengthen interdisciplinary graduate education in biology and the history and philosophy of science. Davis was the recipient of the coveted FSU University Graduate Teaching Award in 2006-07. He lives in Tallahassee with his son Spenser.

February 25 Dan Warren (Attorney at Law, Daytona Beach, Florida)

"If it Takes all Summer: Martin Luther King, the KKK, and State's Rights in St. Augustine, 1964"

A native of Greensboro, North Carolina, Dan Warren joined the U. S. Army Air Corp in 1943 at age 17, serving in Italy during World War II as a nose gunner on a B-24. After the war Warren attended Guilford College and then Stetson Law School. Settling in Daytona Beach Warren practiced law and took part in many civic initiatives, principal among which was his work with NASCAR head Bill France in the building of the Daytona Beach Speedway. In 1961 Gov. Farris Bryant appointed Warren State Attorney and later during the 1964 racial crisis in St. Augustine, his Special Council. Working diligently with Martin Luther King, the S. C. L. C. and local officials, Warren eased racial tensions by using the law to crack down on Klan violence. Intensely unpopular with the Mayor and other public officials who resisted his effort to integrate, Warren nevertheless ignored the threats of the Klan and the political repercussions of his position and proceeded to afford protection for the civil rights demonstrations. Resigning his position as State Attorney in 1968, Warren resumed the private practice of law, spending the remainder of his legal career defending the constitutional rights of others, especially minorities. Warren has written extensively on constitutional rights, especially freedom of speech and freedom of the press, as well as Fourth and Fifth Amendment rights. Encouraged by his wife Stasia, a Volusia County Judge, Warren set out to document his part in the St. Augustine uprising, and the resulting If it Takes all Summer (2007) is an insider's view of one of America's most important Civil Rights struggles. The book won the Florida Historical Society's Harry T. Moore Award. Warren is the recipient of many other awards including the NAACP Trail Blazer Award, and the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Civil Rights Award.

March 25 Randolph Roth (Professor of History, Ohio State University)

James M. Denham (Professor of History, Florida Southern College)

"Homicide on Florida's Antebellum Frontier"

A native of Denver, Colorado, Randolph Roth holds degrees from Stanford University (BA) and Yale University (Ph.D). Roth has taught at the University of Vermont, Grinnell College and in 1985, he joined the history faculty at Ohio State University. His research interests focus on the history of the United States from colonial times through the nineteenth century, with an emphasis on social and cultural history, and the history of crime and violence. Roth's most recent book, American Homicide, published in 2009 by the Belknap Press of the Harvard University Press, is an interregional study of homicide from colonial times to the present. It examines patterns of marital murder, romance murder, and other kinds of murders among adults in an effort to understand how and why the United States has become the world's most homicidal industrial democracy. Dr. Roth is co-founder of the Historical Violence Database, a collaborative international project to gather data on the history of violent crime and violent death. Dr. Roth's research has been supported by the National Science Foundation, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Harry Frank Guggenheim Foundation, and other organizations. A popular public speaker and award winning teacher, Roth received the Ohio Academy of History Distinguished Teaching Award (2007) and the university-wide OSU Alumni Award for Teaching (2009).

James M. Denham is Professor of History and Director of the Center for Florida History at Florida Southern College. He has also served fellowships at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, the University of South Carolina, the University of Wisconsin, Harvard University, Columbia University, the National Humanities Center, and the Virginia Historical Society.
