The UCF Libraries are honored to announce that longtime UCF friend and advocate, Phoebe Carpenter, recently made a $100,000 pledge to the UCF Regional Library. The gift will establish the J. Phoebe Carpenter Law Collection, which will provide funding toward the purchase of books, electronic resources, and scholarly research. The books and resources will include the study of English, the Humanities, and Renaissance literature.

An exhibit on the second floor of the main UCF Orlando Library will highlight this collection. The exhibit will run from April 5 through May 17.

Kudos

The UCF Libraries will honor Norman and Jean Gould, and sons Jeffrey and Bruce, for their generous support of the UCF Libraries. The gift will establish the Gould Family Law Collection.

Hold the Date

The UCF Libraries will honor Norm and Jean Gould, and sons Jeffrey and Bruce, on May 17 for their generous support of the UCF Libraries. More details will be awarded the UCF Regional Library on April 5, 2006. Emeritus status is a high honor that John Glenn and Gordon Cooper once tread are little more than weed riddled concrete parks. It is financially impossible to recreate Cape Canaveral to this former glories through material history's anniversaries. The application of computer-enhanced virtual reality can assist in recreating the past.

Today the skyline of Cape Canaveral is a shadow of its glory years. The historic sites that were the stage for such historical events as the U.S. space program are little more than weed riddled concrete parks. It is financially impossible to recreate Cape Canaveral to this former glories through material history's anniversaries. The application of computer-enhanced virtual reality can assist in recreating the past.

This exhibit encompasses physical Cape Canaveral artifacts, historical photographs, and resources will include the study of English, the Humanities, and Renaissance literature.
