Central Florida Future, Vol. 01 No. 19, April, 11, 1969

4-11-1969

Florida Technological University

Find similar works at: http://stars.library.ucf.edu/centralfloridafuture

University of Central Florida Libraries http://library.ucf.edu

Recommended Citation

This Newsletter is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at STARS. It has been accepted for inclusion in Central Florida Future by an authorized administrator of STARS. For more information, please contact lee.dotson@ucf.edu.
Harvard debate members discuss affirmative side of issue during recent debate at FTU. FTU was victorious.

FTU Downs Harvard

FTU was victorious over Harvard in a debate recently held in the campus Science Lecture Hall. The issue debated was, "Resolved: That Executive Control Werner and Walt Komanski. Werner was the first negative speaker Harvard was on the affirmative side removal of the policy planning Agency. Also gave the victory to ballot which measures the amount gained a two to one margin over debate at a local high school, justify giving Harvard the victory.

While the nation came almost to a stand still during the days following the death of President Eisenhower the communications researchers worked around the clock to study the public reaction to the death of the former president. Dr. M. Timothy O'Keeffe and Dr. Bernard C. Kissel of the Brevard County Board of Administration, served as moderator, added: "I thought the debate went well on the job in presenting their cases. At some points there were direct differences which made the whole event worthwhile." A reception in honor of the use of its facilities followed the debate. Ed Jones said, "I have enjoyed both the debate and my stay here in Orlando. I was glad to see this was fully organized and run by students as corn is at Harvard." We Live in the Present, By Fred Jones, but for the...

Students Visit Space Congress

The Sixth Space Congress in Cocoa Beach was attended by four FTU students at the invitation of the Space Congress Committee. The Congress serves to annually bring together leading engineers and scientists to review the progress in the U.S. space program. Students selected to attend the Congress were Tom McClendon, Charles H. O'Keefe, Jr., and James Woodberry, Jr. The students' work in the areas of science and technology at FTU qualified them for the Congress.

McClendon is a freshman with a 3.6 average in the College of Engineering, majoring in electrical engineering. Also in the College of Engineering, Wilson is a junior majoring in aerospace sciences and holds a 3.4 average. Woodberry in a junior microbiology major in the College of Natural Sciences who is maintaining a 3.1 grade point average. Another junior in Natural Sciences, Skidora holds a 2.6 average while majoring in physics.

Registration fees of $25 were waived by the Space Congress Committee so that the students could participate in the program which was held March 17, 18, 19.

Fund Campaign Planned For Scholarship Money

Plans for a $100,000 scholarship fund for next year have been revealed by George King, Jr., administrative assistant to the board of trustees. He said the one hundred thousand would be solicited from Central Florida Foundation banks.

"There seemed to be a great dis-ruption in the communication patterns of the people," Dr. O'Keeffe said, that has normally occurred only during times of unexpected, almost catastrophic events such as the King and Kennedy murders.

"This dis-ruption did not occur when Kennedy was killed, or when the first Spontak was launched or when the first human heart transplant was performed—all events of much greater importance than Eisenhower's death," Dr. O'Keeffe said.

Dr. Kissel said that the preliminary results of the study have indicated that communication researchers are going to have to change some of their views on why certain news stories diffuse through the population faster than others. "It appears that the personality of the individual involved can have much greater importance than we had previously suspected," he said.

The final results of the survey, which had more than 490 respondents, will not be known for some time. The computer facilities here are not available for the processing of the questionnaire.

This means some fruit outside the university will have to allow the communications the facilities for the family research project.

John Roberts Company has been awarded the contract for the FTU class rings. The contract was signed recently by representatives of the company and the university. John Roberts serves such institutions as Harvard, Yale, North Carolina State and Florida A & M Universities.

Orders for class rings will be accepted this month for delivery in May," said Student Body President Wain Komanski. "The contract is a good one and I am confident students will get a quality ring they will be proud to wear.

Some 12 colors will be available to select from including: aquamarine, ultramarine, light aquamarine, rose zircon, peridot, emerald, spinel, dark aquamarine, alexandrite, black onyx, blue spinel, turquoise, light zircon, fire opal, peridot, amethyst, blue sapphire, and topaz.

Phil Goree, Vice President for Student Affairs, said, "First of all, the contract negotiated by the Student Government is extremely fine. It provides a quality ring with enough variations to satisfy everyone. Second, the contract is considerably less than any other class rings in the university system (Florida)."

The band members ring is a 10 carat gold ring with the word "Band" and cost $31.00. Gifts may choose a smaller ladies ring, both of which start at $20.00.

Through several conferences with Jack Williams, the Florida representative for John Roberts, prices were lowered. According to Mr. Goree, the company re-evaluated its bid and lowered the cost just prior to closing time for the order.

Students may order their rings from the company representative who will be on campus or through the bookstore. Goree said that the company has eliminated any fee for the institution providing students order their rings from the company official." He went on to explain, "If not, there will be a small charge by the bookstore." The bookstore service fee would be for the two days the presentation.

Members of the ring committee were: Faren Gibson, Jerry Broehl, Leon and Walt Komanski, Jim Mills and Komanski serving as chairman.

The exact dates for ordering rings will be released as soon as word is received from the company.

Lou Frey Addresses Seminar

Congressman Louis Frey, Jr. addressed the Senior Seminar conducted by Dr. David E. Hernandez, College of Education, Tuesday, April 8, 1969. Frey is a member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The floor was opened for questions after Mr. Frey described the poll asked about lowering the voting age to 18. He said, "I don't think there is much in favor of lowering the requirements. He said that he had once been drafted, but after working with young people in the campaign, he had changed his mind for three reasons: 'The young people are more interested and more intelligent than my generation. Today's young people are more responsible and for something to believe in. The figures show that the lowest percentage of the vote is from the ages of 21 - 25. Students are interested in education, they are in high school and this is the way we can keep them interested.'"

To Viet Nam, Frey said, "I do not think that Viet Nam should be a political football. We have got to give the administration a chance to see what it can do. Some people going to be here are going to hate the Viet Nam war. The American people will not put up with Viet Nam for another four or five years."

Frey explained the need for the draft, "I think that the government has a responsibility to his country, like our President does. I think our government feels the USA will never have a Volunteer Army and that it has never had a professional army.

Congressman Sam Gibbons will address the Senior Seminar on the subject of "Traditions" at 1:00 p.m. Both of these visits are being jointly coordinated by Dr. Hernandez and Mr. Vander with the Office of Public Information."
Eberhardt Voices Opinion
On Parking Lot Problems

A quick glance at the FTU campus, and it appears rather randomly helter-skelter laid out. A closer look, and it appears rather randomly helter-skelter laid out. A very researched scrutiny, however, and it appears . . . that someone has dropped the proverbial sphere.

FTU Campus. Accrunt on the individual. You should not hear me 'accrunt' after the nurse hikes from the 'Outer Mongolia' mud hole parking lot to get to class, especially when the moisture is falling in a twenty MPH breeze out of the north. The tender ears of a Marine Corps wargent would turn red.

The utilities plant parking area should be surveyed and redesigned. There are too many areas labeled B, C, Y, S and XYZ, which are sitting empty here, until some D car seeks the privilege of receiving an invitation to the campus security ball.

Perhaps there is the possibility someone could build a little flame under some posters, and get the area near the Village Center redeveloped for parking again. More parking should be found in this Village Center area, for this will most likely be the center for dignitary receptions and other social functions for quite some time to come.

Much more temporary parking could be established in the area between the Village Center and the utilities plant.

The area along the entrance parkway should have a redesigned priority, not too different from the present. The first area should be for the handicapped (physical, not us mental ones), professors, other wheels, and seniors. The next area should be clerical (they could use some exercise too after sitting all day) and juniors. The third area should be for sophomores and freshmen. A little beyond this should be a special reserved area for the campus parking planner.

More parking areas are planned for around the new class room building and the administration building, but surely they will not be ready for this fall term, which should, and I hope, do better about double the present enrollment at FTU. I will reserve further comment about these new parking lots until after they are built, except to say that any approaching what we are now having along the entrance drive, well . . . we are going to need a lot more parking area.

Some fellow joke (he can still laugh too) suggested preferential parking for residents as they pay more for their education than those that commute daily. This is a debatable question, however, comparing all expenses and especially gasoline prices, I wish my circumstances were such that I was able to live on campus.

So parking is a problem. It is almost everywhere you go. But usually you do not see people building their carports a half-mile from their house.

I realize that these suggested parking areas may in the future be slated for some buildings to grow upon, but perhaps the campus planners could regain consciousness long enough to relocate some buildings and/or find some permanent parking space.

However, do not expect too much, my fellow campus hikers. They only have about a thousand acres to play with, and the task may be extremely difficult. Perhaps Union Park Elementary could have some consultants to . . .

You think I am trying to be funny, you are right. A person has to have something to laugh about, sitting exhausted, ten minutes late in class, wishing I could soak my feet in a tub of foamy water.

Seriously though, if our population estimation experts are correct as they have consistently been for this area of Florida, we can expect a growth here at FTU much greater and much faster than predicted. Therefore I would conclude with one final suggestion that will solve all problems, and put a much more favorable 'accrunt' on the individuals. In all additional campus planning and development, exercise those muscles nearest to the 'stain' and try to find a closer correlation between parking and the buildings which it will serve.

With all sincerity—
Respectfully,
Marvin "Mike" Eberhardt

March 25

UPFD Thanks FTU Police

Letter to the Editor:
I would like to take this opportunity to thank your campus Police Officers, Washbourne and Martin, along with the four students of Florida Technological University for their help in assisting our Department to combat and extinguish the brush fire along both sides of McCulloch Road and along the west side of Alafia Trail on Saturday, March 29th.

This was a potentially dangerous fire to the FTU Campus and we prevented it from crossing Alafia Trail. Tom Stockwell, Mark Stockwell, Steve Clandemins and Thomas Collins rendered a valuable service to our Department for which we are very grateful.

We in the Union Park Fire Department are proud to know you have such fine young men on campus.

Sincerely yours,
Mr. Stickler
Chief
Union Park Fire Department

(Continued on Page 3)
I was peacefully watching the tube one Sunday afternoon when I had the occasion to catch a network program called "American Sports, Man." In case you're not familiar with the program, it is a series in which well known celebrity-type people go out in the wilds to hunt various forms of wildlife. We get the filmed thrill of seeing them stalk their prey and gun it down. What better way is there to spend a Sunday afternoon than going on a hunt with your favorite celeb? Where else can you get familiar with the program, it is a couldn't come along with us, historic portrait of English society. The Great Welf all-round American, Gen. LeMay in America's favorite celebs? Where else can you get to spend a day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.

By ROBERT E. HOLINGER

The picture is not a two hour reenactment of Tennessee's poem. If one were to describe succinctly he would have to say the film is a historic portrait of English society. "Charge of the Light Brigade" concretely fastens the span between social attitude and the uniqueness simple social conventions of the day and are getting a pretty good picture of what is going on in the minds of all those hundreds of people from central casting. "Oh my God! They are all a bunch of fools." Ah, yes, that is pretty much the case. Cardigan (Trevor Howard) is the caricature of his society's ego ideal. He and the rest of his chaps play cruel little games in order to reinforce themselves, in some type of Victorian tradition. The whole bag appears as sort of a Kafkaesque theme of enlightenment through ordeal.

The film itself is a fine example of motion picture craftsmanship. Some might say that the overall applied cinematic technique is much like looking through the bottom of an empty mayonnaise jar. Well, it is a little gimmicky, though most will have to agree that it becomes eye pleasing.

The cast is great: David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, and John Gielgud round things out. They project efficiently in this authentic package. Even in their period dress they look very today. Which I guess I'll prove, imbecility is alive and doing well in this world.
FTU's Construction Pushes On
Parents’ Day Planned

The Village Center Student Activities Board is sponsoring the first annual Parent’s Day, Saturday, April 26, 1969. All parents of FTU students will receive a personal letter inviting them to these activities. The activities will get under way at 1:00 p.m. with registration and greeting in the multi-purpose room. A fashion show, presented by the Park Avenue Association, will be presented at 2:00 p.m. in the literary lobby. The FTU chorus will sing at 3:00 p.m., and after their presentation there will be open house in the dorms, campus tours, a village center program display and open house in the VC, and an Art exhibit will be set up. AT 5:00 p.m. a buffet dinner will be served in the multi-purpose room. The price will be $2.75 per person, however, resident students may use their meal tickets. After the dinner, a student variety show will be presented.

Any student who wishes to try out for this talent show should contact a Village Center activities board member.

Jaycees Offer Membership

The Orlando Jaycees offer men the opportunity for self-improvement and leadership training through participation in the club activities. The Jaycees is a young man’s organization where the member can get involved in community improvement projects. Anyone interested in the organization should contact Brian Roquemore today between 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. in the Village Center.

FIDELES, Tyes Hold Spring Rush Activities

Fideles and Tyes, the two social sororities on campus, held their spring rush March 27-April 3. The sororities had open house for all girls interested in pledging, April 3.

The open house began with orientation in the LLBR. The functions of the Panhellenic Board, the governing board of sororities, were explained by Helen Commander, a member of Fideles. The 16 rushees were divided into two groups and each group visited with each sorority for 45 minutes. The purpose of this was for the members to get to know the rushees and to answer questions concerning the sororities and pledging. Each sorority held two parties during rush week.

Fideles first party was held April 30 at the home of Jan Lorraine, President of Fideles. Eight of the 16 rushees were invited to the barbecue-type party. The members put on a skit and the purpose of the party was “to get to know the rushees better,” according to Miss Lorraine.

The second Fideles party, an ice-cream sundae party, was held at Helen Commander’s home on April 3. All of the eight girls were invited to the party. Of the eight, seven will pledge Fideles. They are: Martha Holbrook, Joyce Lawson, Linda Mettel, Yvonne Clark, Janet Newdecker, Cheryl Ritchie, and Ann Tremblay.

Fideles first pledge meeting was held Tuesday, April 8. The pledges were given their insignia for Fideles, a gold scapulus to be worn at all times when in the presence of a member. Their second party, a dessert barbecue-type party, was held Tuesday, April 15. The rushees were invited to the party and to answer questions concerning the sorority. The rushees and the members will not issue any orders to the pledges.

Current members of Fideles are: Jan Lorraine, Helen Geimander, Mary Silliman, Georgann Mollison, Karen Wilmuth, Kaye Cocklin, Cheryl Wilmuth, Mini Poley, Susan Hardin, Murrita Norris, Judy Moore, Carolyn Chamberlin.

President Jan Lorraine said of rush week, “It was great and a good experience. I was disappointed however, that more girls didn’t show an interest in sororities.”

Tyes held their first rush party in “C” dorm on campus, Monday, March 31. At the informal party, a skit was performed by the members. Refreshments were served and the girl’s sang folk songs. Tyes invited all of the 16 rushees to the party.

Their second party, a dessert party, was held at the home of Mary Lois Rajchel, vice president of Tyes, on April 2. Seven of the 16 girls were invited to the party and of them, five will pledge. They are: Lora Leo, Cheryl LeCompte, Carol Totaro, Sandy Wallis and Debbie Doubler.

(Continued on Next Page)
VC To Sponsor Spring Queen Contest

Village Center Student Activities is sponsoring a Spring Queen contest to elect a queen and two attendants to reign over the Florida Technological University Spring Formal, "A Night In Granada". The formal has been planned for Friday, May 3, features the "Convington Tower", and will be held in the Granada Room of the Park Plaza Hotel in downtown Orlando.

Each recognized student organization is eligible to nominate a candidate and must submit her name, a brief personal history, and an 8" x 10" glossy photograph to the Village Center no later than Friday, April 18. The contest campaign will take place on April 28, 29 and 30, and University-wide voting will be conducted on May 1, and 2. Announcement of the queen and her two attendants will take place at the dance on May 3.

Ron Turner, Student Government Vice President, presides over the Senate at the First S.G. meeting. Charlotte Scott and Maggie Strouse, secretaries, look on.

Library Hours

Friday 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Saturday 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Sunday 2:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.

Village Center Lacks Funds For Completion

The first phase of construction at FTU was originally to include completion of the Village Center and the start of construction of the physical education facilities. The cost of these two projects would have approximately $800,000. This construction was delayed in favor of rescheduling the $800,000 for the expansion of the computer utilities system, which was included in the second phase construction plans along with the general classroom, administration, and science/technology buildings. It was necessary to use the $800,000 to complete the $4.1 million of state funds in order to receive a $2.4 million federal grant for FTU's second phase. The failure of state bonds to sell in the market was responsible for the incomplete $4.1 million sum.

The Village Center and physical education facilities construction has been given priority in the third development phase now being planned. Sources for the funds required for this phase are presently being sought. The outcome of the present legislative session and a possible bond referendum this fall are expected to provide the major portion of the needed money. FTU is planning the 1969 legislature for approximately $200 million for expansion during the 1969-73 period.

Completion of the Village Center would provide increased space in the dining and food service facilities as well as additional space for University activities. A swimming pool is one of the planned facets of the physical education facilities.
Skadowski Vs. Machine

"All I did was put my quarter in here," said Brian Skadowski, unsuspecting student, as he explained to Maurita Norris what happened on that eventful day last week,
By ROBERT E. HOLINSER

If a 'Mens Only' magazine cover ever came to life it would just about sum up "WFD", Burton, Eastwood, and Ure take us on a mission that can only be described as the "Dirty Dozen Revisited".

Sexualisation is blatant. Eastwood is an aesthetic killer; he mimes it up in the beginning by switching from knife to pistol back to knife again with the casualness around the year 2050. The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college.

Success can be attributed to their · around the year 2050. The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.

The entrance to an aesthetic killer; he hole in somebody you can bet, the made application to this college safe until the year 2050.