‘Toothless Tigers’ Guard Tech

FTU’s campus police do not have any arrest authority, it was learned by the FTU Times last week. A member of the states attorney’s office contacted FTU and reported FTU’s campus police are the only ones that do not have the authority to arrest anyone for anything other than a traffic violation. The representation expressed concern that this left the security police like “toothless Tigers.”

After checking into the matter it was discovered that at all other Universities either the Sheriff’s Office or the police force is the only one with arrest authority. The only campus in which FTU is located that also has a campus police force is in the city in which the University is located is深县. This police force is the only one with arrest authority. FTU case it should be Sheriffs Department, but has never been able to do it. When the FTU Times contacted Starr he said that the force does not need to be depolice because he has always owed that authority to them. “If we are to be on campus ourselves” Starr said, “we could arrest me right away” but that would prevent all traffic violations are the only exception to FTU lack of authority the FTU Times pushed the Sheriff for a more definite answer. “What would happen if you (Starr) appeared on campus intoxicated, or disturbing the peace?” Starr’s answer was simply “Most certainly they could arrest me. They have just as much arrest authority as I do.” According to the Constitution of the State of Florida, arrest authority can only be obtained if the authorizing body in the region where you are located pass that authority on to the university or the legislature may delegate the authority. It would take “an act of Congress” to have the legislature delegate that authority and Starr says that would be another two steps. There is presently a pending bill in the legislature in which is, in name, for the benefit of all universities in the state, making security forces automatically have arrest authority, but since FTU is the only university in the state with this problem the bill is specifically for that purpose. As to why Sheriff Starr refuses to do this picture must be returned to Room 152 of the Village Center between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. each Monday through Friday. Students have given us fantastic cooperation this quarter, but only takes one trouble maker who might get arrested and that one says the arrest was not legal.” Starr also expressed concern that his staff was being demoralized by the current circumstances. He went on to say “I’m afraid that the only way we are going to get the proper cooperation from the police and the legislature and our only hope is for the special session coming up.

Notice!!

All proofs of senior yearbook pictures must be returned to Room 152 of the Village Center between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. each Monday through Friday. Selections will be made at that time.

Frank Santry

Senators of the Year

Senators Bob Corson and Frank Santry were named the “Outstanding Senator of the Year” at last meeting of the Student Government.

In an interview with the FTU Times both senators were asked to comment on the apathy of the students during the election and in general. Senator Santry said, “I hope the vote wasn’t a show of support (or lack of support) for the Student Government. Personally, I’m thoroughly disgusted with my electorate. Anyone running can run unopposed and win with only 17 votes, it’s disgusting.”

Asked what the problem was, Santry continued, “A great communication lag is our greatest problem. We simply cannot communicate with the students. We can’t get their names, addresses, and phone numbers for three to four months (from the computer).”

Senator Corson added, “Senators are interested in all the problems of their section. We are interested in and can try to handle academic as well as social, disciplinary, and monetary problems. We meet and talk with the faculty and administration and they come to us. However, we represent the students and to serve them, we must know their hopes, problems, expectations of FTU, their gripes however petty they feel the problems. The Lake Claire Project is that many people support both senators are interested in any projects which the student section is interested in. Senator Corson likes to work with the budget, and Santry is keenly interested in statutes and procedures. Both keep close watch on senate activities and as Santry said, “It’s easy to lose sight of legislative procedure when the only authority you have is the constituent.”

The senators greatest moments last year were the action in the budget and the main project and both senators were asked to comment on the current campaign. Senator Santry said that the most rewarding project was the drafting and passing of the constitution and the form of government, and the head this debate which issued Senator Corson stated that each senate meeting was a fresh and challenging experience and equally rewarding.

TAU Guilty, IFC States

TAU Fraternity, charged two weeks ago with violating Inter-Fraternity Council’s rush regulations, was found guilty of those violations after a closed hearing last Sunday in the University Center. TAU was slapped with a $50 fine and was placed on social probation until the end of November.

This means that TAU can not participate in intramural sports or can not hold social events.

The fraternity was not prevented from other rush activities, however. The sentence handed down by IFC to TAU was far from the maximum possible under IFC regulations. Maximum fine could have been $500, and suspension could have been for as long as IFC wanted.

TAU denied the charges before the hearing, but the fraternity was found guilty.

IFC said that the club had violated regulations of rush by holding a private party the same night as the first, make IFC smoker for campus members eligible for rush, and that at least one rushee was present at the party.

It was also alleged that a non member of TAU played in a recent flag football game for the fraternity.

This charge was not proved.

The IFC charges were the first brought against an FTU fraternity.

Spectre

‘Haunts Dorms’

There has been an apparition on campus which has been appearing in the evenings and frightening female resident students. The personage, dressed in a loose-fitting month robe with a gas mask over his face, has been dubbed “Gas Man” by the resident students. The following article mysteriously appeared in the FTU Times and prompted the FTU Times’s reporter-in-residence, Jim Lehman, to exclaim “Gas Man” late one night. The FTU Times now prints both the exclusive picture and mysterious article on the “Terror of Tech”.

Mysterious ‘Gas Man’

This photograph was taken at night by the FTU Times photographer Jim Lehman, as the “Gas Man” was captured in his nocturnal travels.

The Gas Man Cometh

In a reddish gray robe, he wanders with no apparent route among the residence halls. He shuffles slowly on his way, wheezing his message through a coffee brown gas mask. Almost nightly “Gas Man” has been sighted by residents and commuters alike. His arrival on campus through his Nietzschean black form is always sudden, it is never clear where he comes from.

He is a creature, superhumanly drawn, with black eyes that can glow in the dark, and a body that can move with ease and grace.

Poor Election Response Attributed To Apathy

You didn't vote? You passed the voting stations in the lobby of the library. You thought, "What good will my vote do?" Several races were won with three or less votes; one was tied with one vote for each candidate.

Don't say, "I didn't know the candidates." Most candidates campaigned with a very little effort, you could have talked about them. Congressman, but them. Did you say, "I didn't want to vote for any of the candidates."

When you have the interest and energy to march in protest of state and national policies, you wouldn't walk six steps out of your way to help make your college's policies. If you were among the unclassified students, you wouldn't take the time to walk down 40 paces, ask for a note specifying your academic standing, return, and vote.

Should elections be held while nearly one-half the university was unclassified? Why not? The new senate had to be elected as soon as possible. Many senators graduated, transferred, or chose not to seek re-election. These vacancies had to be promptly filled, Student interest and support is supposedly greatest the first few weeks of the fall. Election procedure is not to be blamed for the very poor turnout. The student government polls resutled 2500 or 80 percent of our students, are to be blamed!

Since FTU is basically a commuting college, you commuters have a responsibility to the college and to yourselves, regardless of your initial reaction to Student Government representation. If you didn't vote, you shortchanged yourself.

It's too late to profit in this election, but executive elections will be coming up in the spring. Be thinking of responsible students you can proudly back for this election.

Don't say, "I'll vote for me, one, shame on you. Fool me twice, shame on me." Be ready this spring. It will be your second election so don't you fooled next time?

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

We, the Veterans of Foreign War, Casselburn Post 1005, write to express our deep appreciation to the student body of Florida Tech. Florida Tech students, for their recent behavior during the student mobilization program, wish to commend those students who gave blood for our boys in Vietnam. We believe this to be one of the most noble forms of patriotism that has been demonstrated to date by the students of the Florida Tech area.

We, the Veterans of WWI, WWII and Korea, wish to thank the students as well as all the faculty and officials who are responsible for such splendid leadership in patriotism. It is young people such as those at your university that are our great nation's hope for the future.

FTU's Blood for Peace drive has trickled into high places. The campaign started on campus by John Davis and Darryl Bannister in conjunction with the Mustangs last month has been launched similarly on campuses at other universities in the state and nation.

And now, the achievement at FTU has reached the Congressional Record. Congressman Les Frey, Associate Editor, Florida Tech Daily and the Blood for Peace campaign into the Record from the floor of the House.

Congressman Frey stated, "I am happy to report to this body that it is, as a result of the November war moratorium day was generally a day of moderate, peaceful demonstrations on the college and university campuses in Florida.

"In my own district, some students at Florida Technological University, located between Orlando and Sanford, sponsored a Blood for Peace drive. The drive, which is continuing and will last until the end of November, is being coordinated through the Central Florida Blood Bank at Orlando.

"In 40 days, 40 pints of blood (there are considerably more now) have been donated by students, faculty and staff. It already has put to good use."

Frey said that a Vietnam veteran in a hospital in Brevard County has already received some of the FTU Blood from the "Blood for Peace" drive.

"I am very proud of John and Darryl as I am of all the responsible, dedicated students in Florida, and on the campuses visited by those of us who were members of a special fact-finding team earlier in the session. They represent the great majority of American youth who are intelligent, responsible and mature beyond their years," Congressman Frey said.

Ironically, as other universities were picking up steam with the drive, last Wednesday's visit by the blood bank resulted very few gifts. But at least, the idea was born here.

No, we cannot hope for universal involvement in whatever direction we may go. When we say that this can happen tomorrow or next week, we mean those who are now believing what we want to believe. It is good to work forward, but not at the cost of personal freedom.

So, the question becomes; how does the affluent American see the world? Are we to get involved with these three regions and their countries or are we going to stand on the outside, if so, what finalized it should. It's the same old question we have been facing since we legally a world power. And our opinions on this matter are as flaky as the wind.

If we are not in the war, we have people finding the country in order to fight under some other flag and on the other hand we are actively involved, we have them. A country can't have it both ways. I don't think we have to fight. You might say that we like to be free spirits.

But if we like to be free spirits, then how do we let ourselves be in involved in one way of the current peace push, Actually, whether we are in the cause or not does not matter. What matters is that we get 150 get there have been manipulated in our feelings or didn't have a different concept of what we should do. Have we been involved in causes such as civil rights or the current peace push? Actually, whether we are in the cause or not does not matter. What matters is we know what we did at our present time.

Being informed does not mean that we will be powerless. On the contrary, our anti-war feelings may be stronger than before. What it does mean is that we can not be manipulated.

Those who manipulate know that mass opinion can shape policy. And a look at past history will also show that frequently when the government was forced into some action because of "mass opinion", they moved in error.

We have to have some confidence in the man we or our parents elect. After all, we do have some brilliant minds intermingled with all that bureaucracy. Our government is certainly no stop in but a pragmatic view; it has gotten us into our war with China and Vietnam.

Time and freedom to be concerned not with food, clothing, and shelter, but peace, hope, and love. This does not mean that we have to do war and vote. We can, in our own individual way, demonstrate that we understand the diversity of positions; that we know that problems cannot be solved by mass emotional causes.

We need to find answers as well as to how we are going to be involved. In this respect, it would seem that when our country is helping another and our immediate security is not at stake, we should lift up to the individual as to whether he wants to get or not, and not sometimes we tend to forget that there are people in Vietnam who are there because they think it is the way to peace, and then the many ways to seek peace, for each of us, it may be better.

The main thing is that we have to go beyond superficial causes. World peace is possible to take our active involvement in one way of the other. We can not find peace, hope, and love just by grouping together in causes. Love belongs in the realm of union and sometimes union involves more than just caring.

Residents Want Longer Dorm Visitation Hours

Both men and women dorm residents would like to have extended visitation hours, but the men are a little more enthusiastic about it than the women. A survey taken on October 6 at Resident Orientation indicated that a majority of the residents wanted visitation hours changed. Mr. Henry Hill, the Men's Resident Instructor, and Ed DalBooq, and MRA representative, estimate that approximately 90 per cent of the men want extended hours. Sandy Whidden, a MRA representative, reports that over 75 per cent of the women favor extended hours.

The MRA has formed a permanent committee on visitation hours composed of Phil Arpin, David Belsheid, and Al Brof Graves. Another resident survey was taken Monday night, with a new proposal for visitation hours. The general trend of this survey indicates that most of the men prefer the maximum number of hours: 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 12 noon to midnight Friday through Sunday.

The WRA is planning to form a committee to further investigate visitation hours. Sandy Whidden suggested that any women residents interested in being on the committee should contact Kirsten Comish, the head of the Dorm Improvement Committee.

Present visitation hours are as follows:
- Monday-Thursday 5 p.m. - 7 p.m.
- Friday and Saturday 5 p.m. - 9 p.m.
- Sunday 12 noon - 9 p.m.

According to Ed DalBooq, the chief objection to the present hours is that they conflict with dinner time. The cafeteria serves dinner from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., which does not leave much time for in-dorm visiting.

The Fearless Toad Unleashed

Tech Talk

Dr. Brown has approached the Toad, no doubt spurred on by the realization that he is not entirely aware of all the student affairs, and requested that the Toad enlighten the student body to the "Perils of Companionship."

Toad: Beyond reproach in the field of companionship as the student body cannot fail to notice on any damp night. He further can attest to joining in this companionship, having been panned more than twice by couples on the campus lawn.

Fact: Women (maybe) control approximately 80 per cent of the wealth in this country. Fact: Women's property is approximately one-sixth longer than the male's.

As the male no doubt notices, the average female student is only average in the physical sense (fact—all the FTU female bodies are attractive), but the social events centered around important people, why—is it wailing, watching, planning her ultimate goal—complete control.

The male body engages in school not to learn, but to pray. The female exhibits a marked lack of intelligence in doing so. Not only does she limit the number of available prey (the male) on college campuses, but her earning ability as well. The female (a weaker sex, gentlemen) is plotting to capture your mind, your body—in total your financial earning ability.

In the event the male submits to his emotions and descends into that valley of capriciousness known as marriage, his individualism, his happiness, his life for life is ripped from his being to be stretched in the sun and stoned from that day forth by his "wife".

Those males who were unable to obtain an education due to the lack of college funds, filled to capacity by the financially feisty female body—are badgered, scorned, prodded, pulled, and generally maimed by the wife to bring home that all important dollar.

She prods him further, driving him on, increasing his dependents, nauseating a part time job digging ditches. She suggests, she insists, she DEMANDS that large life insurance policy. Gentlemen, she wants your bank statements and a copy of your marriage certificate. All the males at FTU have those outstanding characteristics—they're easily obtained) shhh, but the money, that's another story.

You can't flee to a poker retreat Saturday night, you must work nights, Sundays and holidays to pay for your keeper's Corvette and pink alligator mink lined twelve-hour girdle.

Your body ages, your arteries harden, your liver fails, your mind fails, your money; not your body, your soul, your excellent personality, a $100,000 savings account, $800,000 your $100,000 your money, your body, your mind, your soul, your body, your mind, your soul, (obtained) ahhh, but the money, that's another story.

The last shovel of dirt is tamped on your final reward, your wife's tombstone, your marriage certificate.

Your body ages, your arteries harden, your liver fails, your mind fails, your money; not your body, your soul, your excellent personality (all of the wealth in this country).

In the light of these two facts, a question should arise in the minds of the wealth in this country—of college being filled to capacity by the financially feisty female body—why!—women live approximately one-sixth longer than the male's.

File Deadline Extended

A letter sent temporary students explaining their status said that if the student paid for the first four weeks of his application they could be denied, his status changed to non-credit and no fee (except the refundable student deposit fee) would be refunded.

Last Friday was the appointed deadline for completing these files. (The deadline has since been extended to today). Friday was also the last day to file for Student Government positions.

In order to appoint the new senate, the number of students in each college and class within each college to have been notified. The computer attempted to classify all students accordingly Tuesday morning.

According to the computer breakdown, over 1,200 of 3,900 students were temporary (unclassified). If these 1,200 files are not completed by today, they officially, the size of the university will have decreased by 40 percent.

While the unclassified students could vote in the elections last week, there was no way to represent them in the appointments. Forty-nine percent of the Bus. Ad. 57.6 percent of Ed. Ad. 40.6 percent of Hum. & S.S., and 40 percent of the Arts and Sciences were unclassified as to the class within the college.

However, since these percentages were so close, the appointee was not as accurate and far it would have been if all the students were classified. Of the students picked up two of the six additional senate spots. Engineering gained no seats or unclassified and because of that college's small enrollment, it takes a high percentage of unclassified students.

With the above figures available, the appointee: was probably the last complete classifications total spots chosen.

There was a good turn-out,

For the Psychology Club noting to the Oviedo Lights last Friday night. A good-sized crowd of students. Approximately 20 students showed up.

Although he did not see the light, the group had fun getting to know each other, watching the fireworks, and eating fries out in the drizzle.

The club has planned a meeting for Friday, November 7th at 7:30 to 8:30 in the Village Center, Room 124. All interested people are welcomed.

The First Annual Palm Beach International Music and Arts Festival will be held over Thanksgiving weekend (November 28-30) in Palm Beach, Florida. The festival will feature the Rolling Stones in their first festival appearance, in addition to 50 other groups. The Palm Beach Festival advisory staff is made up of businessmen and ministers of the Palm Beaches.

Also appearing at the festival are Jefferson Airplane, Iron Butterfly, Janis Joplin, Sly and the Family Stone, Chambers Brothers, and Partridge Gas and Electric.

Recently added groups are Grand Funk Railroad, Johnny Winter, Byrds, Steppenwold, R Qtary, Funk Railroad, Johnny Winters, Pacific Gas and Electric.

The United States Government, the music industry, and other major industries are presently planning a "1970 United States Peace Festival" to be held in August, 1970 on Indian lands in Arizona. One to three million people are expected to attend.

The festival's board of advisors include Tommy James, New York Mayor John Lindsay, Artie GITHER, John Lennon, Peter Fonda, and Patrick West, director of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System.

Construction, including water and sanitary facilities are being handled by the federal government. Plans call for camping facilities to be available on the site for a week before and a week after the festival. According to "Billboard" magazine in its November 1 issue, the major national corporations giving financial support to the festival are American Telephone and Telegraph, General Motors, United Steel, Borden, and Union Carbide.

The Intercollegiate Music Festival's national competition for college pop and folk performers will be held in February, 1970, as students compete for regional championships and an opportunity to go after college music's national championships at the Festival finals. The national finals of the Butterfield-sponsored festival will be held August 6-8, 1970, in the Edwardsville campus of Southern Illinois University.

The three categories of national competition will feature top professional entertainment. A different act will perform each night along with the collegiate talent.

Regional competitions will be held at the University of South Florida, Villanova University, the University of Colorado, UCLA, the University of Texas, and Southern Illinois University.

MRA-WRA Plan Banquet Dinner

A special dinner for holders of 21 meal cards will be held November 13 at 5 p.m., at the Multi-Purpose Room of the Village Center. The banquet-type meal will be sponsored by MRA and WRA in conjunction with the University Food Service. According to William Bryant, Manager of the FTU cafeteria, the dinner will be quite different from the regular service. Entertainment will be provided by students.

Students attending the affair are requested to dress up. Men are asked to wear coats and ties and women should dress more formally than they normally would dress. A similar dinner for the 15 meal card holders will be held in December.

Mrs. Joe Pyne, President of Parents of Patients, has requested volunteers from FTU to help with brain damaged children in the Orlando area.

Volunteers work as teams for one hour a week. Training takes only a short time. Anyone interested in giving this time is requested to contact Mrs. Pyne at 841-4356.

Vincent The Vulture Is Alive And Well

Vincent the Vulture is alive and circling over the PTU campus. Vincent fever has swept the student body since Vincent lurched into the world via a "Futur article last week. Enthusiastic comments that range from "Gross" to "Yay" have come from student and faculty members alike.

Already, Vincent Vulture fan clubs have popped up in the wake of the send off for the noble creature.

One student, returning to his dorm after a night of revelry in the Library Building looked up in the sky and saw a giant bird silhouetted by the moon, wailing overhead. "It's Vincent," he screamed. "He lives, he lives." The student is under sedation now, and it is doing quite well. Although it was an owl he saw, it was thought that it counted, and the Future appreciates his enthusiasm.

Motorcycle of the FTU staff have gotten into the swing of Vulturesmack. Suggestions for a mascot have come from some people in high places. One suggestion was a condor, "It's cleaner and it's bigger," he said, "but it's native to California." In all condor, the condor was out. Another suggestion was a vulture, "It's老家," he said, "but it's native to Florida." In all vulture is a Florida State Bird, it is becoming bird aloft.

Vulturemania. Suggestions for a mascot to the student body are asked back. "What's wrong with the raven?" the vulture is a Florida State Bird, it is becoming bird aloft.

Who's been shooting on the PTU property? And why, oh why did they point that sign on the target? Maybe it was to give the shooter better incentive.
If you have noticed some 26 people capering on the Village Center green each Tuesday and Thursday lately—and if you concluded they couldn’t be adults because they were playing tag and jumping rope—and if you concluded they couldn’t be children because they were too big both vertically and horizontally—

don’t give up. It’s just a class of EDEL-415 students out to practice game children play so they can successfully teach the games to children later on. The idea of the practice is for the student to acquire such a complete “feel” for the games that his future instructions to children will be easy to understand and follow.

Title of the course is, “Teaching Elementary School Health and Physical Education.”

It may look like child’s play, but as members have a different viewpoint. Mr. Gale (Karen Zellner says, “It’s not so easy to get them to understand these things.

There is a lot more to it than you might think. Physical education is more than letting children run outside and get rid of their hostilities.” She finds the course “fascinating when you get to working on it,” but admitting, “I’d be happy to have a good hour of buffing and polishing.”

Eugene “Teddy” Clark, who joined the FTU faculty this quarter

as head basketball coach in the College of Education, instructs two of the five EDEL-415 sections. He describes the course as “fine practical training to teach.” He says students learn the true meaning and real goals of Physical Education.

Eileen Dailey is impressed with Clark’s methods. “He really believes in dynamic physical education for our children. It’s a wonderful class.” She reflected, “The boys are well-informed about the games they’re playing the games. They put a little more emphasis on the girls.

Sue Simmons commented, “It seems so long since I’ve played games like that, I was so stiff; I could hardly move for a couple of days.

Steve Buse admitted at first he was “a little uncomfortable about going out there and playing children’s games.” But he was pleased when he started putting his preparation into practice teaching at Lawson School in Oviedo, Steve often tells the students at advance where they would make their mistakes. He guessed Coach Carl knew this from his own experience.

“This course has proved to me that FTU lives up to its motto, ‘Accent on the Individual.’” Steve said. “I have been skeptical about it when he first came to FTU.

Steve was undaunted by the overwhelming number of girls in his class. “When you go out to the public schools to teach children, you can see the need for men in the elementary teaching field,” he said. The children show the influence of a woman’s world.” He is convinced men are essential in physical education.

Jim Stinwell likes the opportunity for involvement.” He added, “We get the chance to do some things once a week such week each student teaches a game to follow elementary. This gives him the ‘feel’ of the game both as a teacher and as a child. Then we can apply what we have learned when we get out with the kids,” he explained.

Karen, who is the mother of two children aged seven and three, likes the lab work in the field; but she doesn’t stop there. She is also practicing, applying some techniques on youngsters in her husband’s class. She finds out in a hurry if her terminology is above the level of the children. For instance, “you wouldn’t tell a young child to walk counter clockwise.”

Karen sees that children “are quick to know when you are prepared to handle them. You have to be careful and interested and keep them moving in order to keep them under control.”

The library is planning an orientation for students to acquaint them with the library. Fifty-minute sessions will be at 9 p.m. November 19 through November 14. They will be held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in the GCB 14, and Tuesday and Thursday in GC 164.

The purpose of the orientation is to explain the library organization to students, and to show them where to get help if they need it. The sessions will be conducted by Mrs. June Stillman, a member of the research staff, who conducted sessions for individual classes last year.

Approximately half the time will be spent looking at a movie entitled “The Hotspot Spot in Town,” which is done by professional actors, and narrated by Barry Sullivan, in the words of Mr. Lynn W. Walker, Director of Instructional Media, “It’s the most different movie about a library you’ve ever seen.” The rest of the session will be spent, up with slides and a lecture.

There are various reasons for the name Seventeenth. One is that the first session will be on Nov. 7. Andres Hillyer, a director on the VC board said it was hoped that the coffee house idea could be expanded into a regular meeting for students. Several locations on campus are now being considered.

If you have noticed some 26 people capering on the Village Center green each Tuesday and Thursday lately—and if you concluded they couldn’t be adults because they were playing tag and jumping rope—and if you concluded they couldn’t be children because they were too big both vertically and horizontally—

don’t give up. It’s just a class of EDEL-415 students out to practice game children play so they can successfully teach the games to children later on. The idea of the practice is for the student to acquire such a complete “feel” for the games that his future instructions to children will be easy to understand and follow.

Title of the course is, “Teaching Elementary School Health and Physical Education.”

It may look like child’s play, but as members have a different viewpoint. Mr. Gale (Karen Zellner says, “It’s not so easy to get them to understand these things.

There is a lot more to it than you might think. Physical education is more than letting children run outside and get rid of their hostilities.” She finds the course “fascinating when you get to working on it,” but admitting, “I’d be happy to have a good hour of buffing and polishing.”

Eugene “Teddy” Clark, who joined the FTU faculty this quarter

as head basketball coach in the College of Education, instructs two of the five EDEL-415 sections. He describes the course as “fine practical training to teach.” He says students learn the true meaning and real goals of Physical Education.

Eileen Dailey is impressed with Clark’s methods. “He really believes in dynamic physical education for our children. It’s a wonderful class.” She reflected, “The boys are well-informed about the games they’re playing the games. They put a little more emphasis on the girls.

Students Urged To Clear Field

The Tau fraternity recently pulled cactus and stumps from the men's intramural sports field, which Fred Clayton, facility director, supplied, and the Physical Plant moved the area.

The cactus and palm trees are continuously growing back and Kim Rensier, over intramural sports, said, "It's the best we can get until we get the new field, southwet of the Village Center is ready, hopefully during the winter quarter. I feel these people deserve to be mentioned and thanked." He added "Students can also be of great help by picking cactus and dangerous objects in their spare time when they are not there, and by parking on the north side of the road so that they are not a hazard to the players." In this way intramural players like Tom Levine and powder puff girls can be a success without getting hurt!

Elementary Edu. Students Display Their Art Talent

By BARBARA R. PIETRAZ

Possibly one of the briefest art exhibitions that the FTU campus will ever see closed yesterday after a Nov. 3-6 showing. This exhibit was installed in the lobby of the Library Building by students of Dr. Ruth Weidenheimer and represents a sample of the quarter's work to date on a project utilizing some of the typical art materials commonly found in supply in the public school system. Therefore, criticism must be given on a level commensurate with an activity that has not only enhanced their application of new materials as well as a new found skills, but also be on a level that will stimulate and instruct children in the actual classroom situation.

The essence of the exhibit, in general, was one of a certain liveliness and abundant use of color that earmarked untamed talent. Composition when viewed overall was poor but was redeemed in a few examples of batik, very minute weaving, and a few collages here and there.

Also color when handled well tended towards an enriching of an otherwise poor display if used in collaboration with good composition, stood out. The...

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

By Dee D. Decker

Dr. John W. Budina, FTU professor of Finance, recently explained the Federal Reserve System's "right money" strategy to the FTUers.

Dr. Budina received his Ph.D. from St. Louis University in 1966. His thesis was on the chartering of unit banks. He later did FRS research on Bank examination and chartering.

"The economy is not due for a recession," said Dr. Budina. Although the FRS has put no money into circulation since June, it flooded the supply of last Fall money is put into circulation at the average rate of three to three and one-half percent increase per year. Last fall, however, the money supply was increased by 13 percent. Some causes of the rapid inflation are the excessive money circulated by the FRS, the usually large federal deficit (although there will be a surplus this year), and the strength which strong commercial banking has on the FRS.

Although the FRS has cut the flow of new money, its action was too late and perhaps too drastic, said Dr. Budina. Many economists believe the FRS's right to regulate money should be limited. A bill in the Senate would restrict the FRS money supply increase to between two and six percent. Also the new FRS Chairman, Arthur Burns, is the system's first non-banker chairman.

The average American doesn't realize the impact money has upon the economy. It hits the economy indirectly, explained Dr. Budina. People don't pay attention to the growing crisis and understand it. Example, in 1966 there was a disastrous money shortage and close economic panic, yet people didn't realize it.

It will take another two to twelve months to see what effect the tight money coupled with the six percent federal reserve requirement and the government's surplus budget. The desired effect would be a slow down in the economy the first half of 1970.

Budina Explains FRS

Your Green checking account saves you time and proof of payment with every check. It's at the Bank, too. For example, in 1966 there was a disasterous money shortage and close economic panic, yet people didn't realize it.

It will take another two to twelve months to see what effect the tight money coupled with the six percent federal reserve requirement and the government's surplus budget. The desired effect would be a slow down in the economy the first half of 1970.

VC Plans Exhibits

The Village Center will sponsor an important exhibit following Stages" November 3-24 in the Multi-Purpose Room. The exhibit will consist of photographs, an engraving of theatre interiors, and contemporary art. The exhibit will start from the Renaissance through the 13th Century. Three 18th Century dramas in pen and water color are included.

Thomas Peterson, Associate Professor of Art and Chairman of the Art Department at Rollins College, will exhibit his original works at FTU November 20 and 21, in the lobby of the Library Resources Building. The exhibit will include acrylics, woodcuts, etchings and serigraphs which show a diversity of techniques. Peterson, an award winning artist, received his Master of Fine Arts degree from Columbia University and studied at the Ecole Americaine in France.
