Hosting, Supporting, and Preserving

- Goal of sustainable, long-term access and preservation on limited resources
- Graduate ETDs - 2004
- Honors Electronic Theses - 2011
Do you host ETDs in your institutional repository?

• Well...

• What if I don’t have an IR?
  – ETDs/ETHs are hosted by FLVC
  – Link in the catalog
  – Metadata is reconfigured and made available in a CONTENTdm collection for purposes of web searching and harvesting
Can people find our ETDs?

• Always a work in progress – SEO
  – Google, Yahoo, Bing

• Specific ETD sites
  – Networked Digital Library of Theses & Dissertations
  – OATD

• Specific searching in digital collections
  – Author, Advisor, College, Release date

• What if they don’t want to be found?
Should we submit to ProQuest or another proprietary company?

- Mandate vs. Option
- Student authors hold the copyright to their works
- They can choose to deposit in any repository or with any proprietary company
- Metadata is online and harvestable, but no requirement for depositing materials with ProQuest or others
Will our ETDs be accessible 20 years from now?

• If the past 10 years are any indication – yes!
• If not...
  – Begin with the end in mind – Digital Preservation
  – Florida Digital Archive Format Migration
• Discussion to move to “digital dissertations” beyond the PDF
Is there validity in retrospective digitization projects?

- YES!
  - Interlibrary Loan
  - Applying to graduate programs
  - Proof of research for employment
  - Lost originals
  - Format obsolete
  - Open Access
Can ETDs inform methods for additional student digital scholarship?

• Definitely!
  – Hosting
  – Digital Preservation
  – Copyright
  – Future use of content
  – Author Rights
  – Embargo periods
  – Open Access policies
  – Data storage
  – Data use agreements
  – Literature review
  – Citation management
