We Live in the Present,
Security Tips

Room 810 in the basement of the Library Building is home for some of the most people at FTU. Any student will tell you the Security Force on campus are not just cops. They are the nice guys doing a big job of protecting you and the university. Security superintendent John Smith offered some helpful hints for new and returning students.

Parking stickers must be placed on the right hand side of the vehicle. Parking stickers will be sold in the registration lines, but can be obtained earlier and easier in the security office. Students will purchase the decals at a cost of $2 for the first vehicle and $1 for every other vehicle registered. The decals are good for one year, and only be used in the parking areas marked with similar letters.

Smith urges that you bring your decals for students living in the dorms, for maintenance staff, instructors and administrators. Bicycle riders may also obtain decals, but they are free.

Each vehicle must be registered no later than the first week of classes. Citations for improper parking and driving will be issued by the security offices. Read your traffic manual for a list of fines.

In an effort to help students adjust during the first, hectic week, FTU’s security corps will probably have their decals on hand for the first time. Don’t panic, but don’t take a chance either. Always try to know where you are supposed to go. Also, Smith said that drivers should obey all traffic rules. Speed limits are enforced.

A final hint from Smith. People who have registered their vehicles will be given preference over people who haven’t. If your vehicle is not registered, you’ll be closed. Get to add-drop early, because lines start forming an hour before the lines close.

Easy Registration

Dredging registration? Heard the tales of horror circulating about computer cards, closed classes, and crying cords? Want to rake it off?

Well, read on. The following are some tips stumbled across by pros of the arts, and are guaranteed to guarantee success. Especially if you’ve not been to school in quite a while.

1. When working out a trial schedule, first decide the courses you want to take. Then, run these courses into your normal life to see if you know that class has limited time possibilities.

2. Next, choose from the remaining classes the one that now has the least time limitations. This may mean that on the first day of class you work at the first class you chose. Go on, and repeat the process, always selecting the class with the fewest time possibilities. You will be able to see easier to work classes with several sections around those with fewest time possibilities.

3. Go to registration prepared with several alternate classes or sections for every class on your trial schedule. This way you will have already chosen three courses before you enter the system.

4. Full schedules should take into account any classes that run in the same period. Most of the same courses are offered, because you know that class has limited time possibilities.

5. A first-quarter freshman would be wise to take a law class, such as English 101, Statistics 201, Psychology 201, etc. If you have these classes from the basic studies program on your trial schedule, be sure to have several other alternates chosen for your classes.

6. Registration is often easier if you are a new student, and you have these classes from the basic studies program on your trial schedule.

7. Full schedules should take into account any classes that run in the same period. Most of the same courses are offered, because you know that class has limited time possibilities.

8. Do not attempt to register anyone but yourself. Several checks will be required to register after everyone else, and will then be closed. Get to add-drop early, because lines start forming an hour before the lines close.

9. When you discover a closed class, do not take time to search for an alternate. Instead, go and pull the computer tape for the course. Try to do too much at once.

10. When you discover a closed class or a class you do not want to take, you must take into consideration factors of involvement, awareness, and all other important factors.

11. As you embark on the great journey of registration, you must take into consideration factors of involvement, awareness, and all other important factors.

12. You will discover a closed class as soon as you register. You must take into consideration factors of involvement, awareness, and all other important factors.

13. You will discover a closed class as soon as you register. You must take into consideration factors of involvement, awareness, and all other important factors.

14. You will discover a closed class as soon as you register. You must take into consideration factors of involvement, awareness, and all other important factors.

15. To get a full refund for an unneeded book, make sure there is a form filled out. If there is a form filled out, you will get a full refund.

Housing Tips

Check the mailbox and read the housing information. That’s the word to FTU’s current freshmen division, FTU is concerned primarily with your health, safety, and welfare. (If you need help with this, just ask.)

If you are lucky enough to be enrolled, you are probably going to be living on campus.

Library Tips

"Library, Silent Holder of Power of Words." This is the line of a distinctive poster which greets students returning to campus in the fall.

The library is a quiet place where you can work, and others can do the same. The library is a quiet place where you can work, and others can do the same.
